A long list of naturalization cases is ready for consideration, at the session of the superior court to be held in Willimantic Tuesday of next week. Many of the towns of Windham county are represented in the list of applicants for citizenship. Subjects of Great Britain, Poland and Italy predominate in the list, but a number of other European countries and some countries outside of Europe are included.

A lengthy review of the activities of the Chamber of Commerce during the past year, with special reference to what this organization is doing for Putnam, was presented by Secretary Albert L. Ralston, Thursday evening, at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, when the address was delivered by Edward L. Greene, of Boston, head of the Better Business Commission.

Secretary Ralston's resume of the chamber's work during the year was unusually interesting, for the organization has done and is doing many things, regularly, to boost Putnam, industrially and from a civic standpoint. That part of the Chamber's activities having to do with efforts to obtain new industries for Putnam was particularly impressive. So, too, do the fact set forth that a group of active and representative citizens who are members of the Chamber of Commerce can be gathered together at almost any time on ten minutes' notice to talk with representatives of concerns that may want to locate here, who have business propositions of interest to Putnam. The chamber is possessed of a mine of information relative to Putnam, its industries, shipping facilities, available plants and sites and much other material available at once for interested persons. This accumulation represents work and organization, and attests the position of the Chamber of Commerce to-to rendering aid and setting forth inducements likely to prove beneficial to the people of the city as a whole.

Secretary Ralston's report covered the meetings of the organization during the past year, its efforts in behalf of Dollar Day, Spring opening day, concerts in the square on Wednesday evening's last summer, Clean-up week, etc., etc.

Now ready for another year of work, the Chamber of Commerce, out of its experience, appears better equipped than ever to do many good things for Putnam, and this is the organization's ambition, rather than boosting the individual, as Secretary Ralston pointed out in his annual report.

Work on the new highway bridge over Little River, near the foot of Inspital hill is nearing completion. The new bridge is in a position nearly half of the present highway bridge and will be the means of taking out much of the sharp curve that the highway now makes in leading away toward the long up-and-down leading toward Pomfret. It is likely, though efforts of the Associated Press and the cooperation of the state highway department, the new structure will be made a memorial bridge, as will be announced in detail later.

Of interest is the announcement that Edward J. Keegan of the town of Thompson has been named a member of the democratic state central committee for the 28th district of the democratic state convention held in New Haven Mr. Keegan is engaged in the manufacturing business at Wilsonville, a village in the town of Thompson.

At a meeting of the Windham County Bar to be held in Willimantic today (Friday) action will be taken on the application of Joseph P. Smith of Plainfield for admission to the bar.

A meeting of Elizabeth Porter Putnam Chapter D. A. R. is to be held in Odd Fellows hall next Monday afternoon.

Silk Thread: Its Production and Manufacture, will be the subject of an address to be given at the Congregational church Sunday, 4:30, Edward S. Duffey, leader.

companist. The Imperial Male quartet of Hartford received well-deserved applause for rendering "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and "Abide." The quartet consists of Frank McClure, Edward Weidl, Carl Hess and Frank Farrell. The last mentioned was also heard in a solo, "Leave It With Him," which was well rendered. After Mr. Lyman's introduction, Mrs. Gunn offered invocation and then led the assemblage in the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Gunn's lectures were proposed by her audience and were marked by lofty thought and clarity of expression. At the conclusion she expressed her thanks to the assemblage for their attention.

Seumas MacManus, Irish poet and story-teller, delighted the audience at Windham High school auditorium on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Woman's club when he delivered his lecture on Irish Fairy Lore. Mr. MacManus said that Ireland is the greatest story telling country in the world. This beautiful art neglected and forgotten in other countries is very important there. The speaker described the method by which the fairies came to Ireland. Characteristics of these sprites were given and delightfully illustrated by Mr. MacManus.

As a fiction tale he told the story of Conal O'Donnell, the blacksmith. Other stories included Why Doesn't the Bat Come Out in the Daytime, The Fox and the Rabbit and The Fox and the Rooster. Mr. MacManus is the author of several volumes of poems and stories.

Mrs. Charles Tryon was the chairman of the committee of arrangements for the enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald W. Turner of 321 Prospect street entertained at luncheon, following the lecture, Mr. MacManus and Mrs. Turner's brother, Rev. Felix J. O'Neill and friends. Mr. MacManus and Father O'Neill are old friends. The former returned to Stafford Springs with Father O'Neill and lectured Wednesday evening in New Bedford.

Brief Mention.

PLAINFIELD

Public exercises in celebration of Arbor Day are to be held this (Friday) afternoon on the grounds of Plainfield Grammar school, at 2 o'clock in addition to the Arbor Day program, under the leadership of C. L. Butler, principal of the school, there will be exercises at the setting out of three memorial trees furnished by Nathan Exley, two in memory of the two Lincoln club members, Henry Dorrance and George Tyrer, of Wauregan, these trees being set out by a committee from this club, and one by the teachers of the grammar school, in memory of Mrs. Henry Dorrance.

The results of the clean-up bee held at the Congregational church all day Thursday were extremely satisfactory, a large number of men and women turning out, and a large volume of work being accomplished. Three of the sheds in the rear of the church were torn down and carted away, and a great deal of rubbish which has been accumulating under these sheds was gotten rid of. There were several teams working, and one auto truck, these vehicles being employed in the grading of the lawn. The part of the women's society was cleaning the interior of the church, washing windows, also serving a delicious luncheon to the men who were working.

The athletes of the school and Y. M. C. A. groups about town are busy training for the Y. M. C. A.-school track meet, to be between 12:30 and 3 p. m. at Brooklyn fair grounds, Saturday. This meet is a yearly event.

The May meeting of Plainfield Parent-Teacher association is to be held at the Community house Wednesday evening next. The meeting will be the annual father's night, held with the purpose in view of interesting men in this town, who have children in school, in the association.

Although Plainfield High was defeated by Pomfret school Tuesday, 5-4, the Plainfield supporters consider this fact no disgrace, since the Pomfret aggregation is a strong team, and the scholo somewhat out of its class. However, hopes run high for the game on Saturday, when the local boys meet Bartlett High school team at the Carpet Grounds, Moosup. Plainfield has defeated the Bartlett team this season, and hopes to duplicate the feat. Bibeault is still working his arm lightly, and, although he has done practically no pitching in games since his injury, it is practically certain that he will pitch the game with N. F. A. next Saturday. STORY THE PRIMARIES TELL.

More than [illegible] California because it [illegible] and [illegible] him if they [illegible] as a second candidate [illegible] balance and [illegible]. Another is held in higher regard than one who expected to be rated as a favored son.

There is no one to blame for this but Senator Johnson himself. He has been falling in the estimation of his constituents while another has been rising. His attacks have been repudiated. His efforts at [illegible] have been [illegible]. He has disappointed [illegible] friends until it is a [illegible] presents today.

He insisted upon the [illegible] who have been [illegible] to come to a realization of [illegible] people within [illegible] regarding the Coolidge administration and the Coolidge policies before it is too late to prevent a similar repudiation by their constituents toward them. There can be no mistaking the sentiment of the primaries.

YIELDED WISELY.

When the conferees on the immigration bill yielded to the plea of the president for the delaying of the effective date for the exclusion of the Japanese from the first of July until the first of next March, they yielded reluctantly, but never [illegible].

Having been made clear that the administration was favorable to exclusion but opposed to the enactment of needless bad feeling because of the method which congress had decided to use to obtain the peaceful relationship of nations and the most commonplace diplomacy called for the termination of the existing understanding between the two nations, quite [illegible]. Each nation [illegible] terms and it is only proper when the time comes to terminate such a part that the negotiations that any nation that is a party thereto would expect to be included in, should be carried out.

That is what is asked by the president and it must be regarded as a plea for the good of the country. It is known that matters of that kind cannot be put through in a minute. Making the exclusion effective the first of July would not have permitted a satisfactory negotiation. Some senators may talk about what could be accomplished in such a period but they know well that they never move with such speed.

With the agreement in effect until it is abrogated it is preferable that the ending of it be done in such a manner as to cause the least friction. However much responsibility may rest upon the communication by the Japanese [illegible] the word 'threat' of [illegible] was worked to its limit, it [illegible] matters any [illegible] going off at [illegible] agreement, and it does [illegible] relationship with others if this nation, as one to which many others are looking, resorts to methods which would be denounced if done by another.

The conferees have done well to respond to the president's appeal, and it is to be hoped that both houses of congress will look at it in the same sane manner.

PENALIZING THE COONEYS.

While New York was the center of operations for the bobbed hair bandit and her husband, such desperate methods could not fail to interest a large number outside of that city's limits. For the same reason many were interested in the manner in which the court dealt with them.

For the young woman to write the judge advising any other girls, who might have been inspired to gain publicity in the same manner that she did, to abandon all thought of such a career may have been a play for encouraging the judge to use leniency. From the fact that each one received a sentence of from 10 to 20 years in prison, and a denial of the request that both be sent to the same prison, it is apparent that the court considered that their conduct deserved such a penalty, but furthermore that it was of such a character that there was need of making an example of them if similar acts on the part of others were to be prevented.

However penitent the young woman may have seemed, it was quite in contrast to the attitude that was manifested in her quest for loot. Then she was willing to maim, and if the requirement had been necessary she probably would have killed, in order to gather in the dollars that belonged to others. The couple was ready to use desperate measures, and did use them. They terrorized the great city of New York and laughed about it. They were clever enough to elude detection for a considerable time, and but for certain circumstances might not have been stopped in their plans even now.

They didn't figure it that way, but they were earning the penalty which they have received and the court gave due consideration to the interests of the public in the disposition which he made of the case. If the advice written by the young woman to other girls is sincere, she will have put all thoughts of continuing a criminal career behind her before she leaves prison.

THREATENING MOSCOW.

Rumors of revolts in soviet Russia are broadcasted from time to time. Thus far they have not been prophetic of anything very serious. Changes have taken place in that country but while the government policies have been modified it has not been overthrown.

Claims are now being made that a new anti-bolshevik [illegible] are expected from Siberia, that the [illegible] are available, that a [illegible] in the making and that [illegible] mentioned in connection with the undertaking.

There was a time, a few years ago, when the statements were repeatedly made that the Russian [illegible] would not last six [illegible] were world hopes that [illegible] because of the manner in [illegible] was being conducted and the [illegible] so forth. There have been times when it has been said that [illegible] certain of the leaders [illegible] the crumbling of the government [illegible] was assured that the end [illegible] would display a [illegible] the opportunity to [illegible] the discontented.

While changes have occurred [illegible] soviet government is still in [illegible] ness, and because of some [illegible] ifications it has been able to [illegible] cognition from a number [illegible] ments. An anti-bolshevik [illegible] Siberia might give the [illegible] some worry, but it is to [illegible] that the seat of the government [illegible] in Siberia and it would require [illegible] opposition in Russia proper [illegible] Moscow could be expected to [illegible].

It is by no means improbable [illegible] there is an offensive under [illegible] that it will take place, but [illegible] in Siberia there is not [illegible] that one could expect to read [illegible] upsetting the soviet government.

THE RUM LINE TREATY.

When King George affixed his [illegible] nature to the twelve-mile [illegible] tween this country and Great [illegible] was advanced another step [illegible] effectiveness. Ratification [illegible] governments must [illegible] time ago that it would go into [illegible] there are formalities that [illegible] carried out and the signing [illegible] documents is one of them. [illegible] formalities are completed the [illegible] is not in full operation.

This agreement [illegible] tions, however, [illegible] is given the right to search [illegible] British vessels within the distance [illegible] one hour's steaming from [illegible] stead of within the restricted [illegible] mile limit which heretofore governed [illegible] such operations, has been virtually [illegible] operation from the time of ratification. Rum row has been established [illegible] a sufficient distance off shore [illegible] low for it and vessels of Great [illegible] ain, which the agreement permits [illegible] bring liquor into our ports under [illegible] have been regularly searched and [illegible] of them seized for violating the [illegible].

Whether this agreement will [illegible] the effect of causing rum runners [illegible] rum peddlers to change their [illegible] trations to countries which are [illegible] now covered in any such twelve-mile [illegible] agreement relative to search [illegible] to be seen. Indications [illegible] that other countries were disposed [illegible] follow the British lead in this respect [illegible] in which case it would be a two-[illegible] mile limit for liquor for them all. In view of the fact that this government sought the agreement, it [illegible] be expected that it will be able to effectively demonstrate that something [illegible] has been gained in the way of [illegible] enforcement thereunder.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In California Hiram Johnson also ran but in Indiana he didn't even get out of a shuffle.

The demand for relief from the block pavement in Main and West Main streets is practically unanimous.

The president is determined that if congress is going to indulge in unwarranted extravagances it must take the responsibility for them.

The man on the corner says: When it comes to putting aside something for a rainy day there are those who figure it isn't going to rain any more.

Many a community finds it is harder getting out of debt than getting in. There are members of congress, however, who seem to feel qualified to prove otherwise.

That organization which is to try to prevent the giving of the name of George to Pullman car porters hasn't mentioned any move to interfere with the giving of tips.

The purpose of the Backus hospital auxiliary is such that a great community benefit would be gained by every woman in Norwich and vicinity who is an active member.

What Henry Ford thinks of the other bids may be indicated by the fact that he hasn't changed his. What the other bidders think of Mr. Ford's bid is indicated by the offers they make.

ENTIRELY DIFFERENT

"I think," began the bachelor uncle who had been listening to his pretty niece turn down an invitation over the phone with agility and dispatch, "that it is utterly disgraceful the way you treat that young man! One would think that Edam Rokefort was simply nobody at all when you know quite well his family—"

"I never could see how ancestry has anything to do with the case!" remonstrated the pretty niece vigorously.

"Parmesa," said the indignant bachelor uncle, "there is no use in your [illegible] that a handsome, well-bred [illegible] young Rokefort is not [illegible] your attention! He is interested in serious things and—"

"Good gracious, don't I know it!" agreed the pretty niece even more vigorously. "I spent $7.50 in a beauty [illegible] hounded the dressmaker into [illegible] to get a particular dress on [illegible] when first Edam asked [illegible] face powder blended [illegible] and altogether made a grand success of myself, if I do say [illegible]. Did he know it? No! He bore on well through our greetings and then remarked that he had a treat for [illegible] and that he knew I would be just as interested as he was in the lecture that we were going to—Prof. [illegible] had just returned from Boorabura and would show slides of the [illegible] and play and was it [illegible] to get information first [illegible] these remote corners of [illegible].

FUNERALS.

Lowell H. Maffitt.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the funeral service held for Lowell H. Maffitt, Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the parlors of Church & Allen, 15 Main street and there were many beautiful floral tributes.

The service was conducted by Rev. J. Haslam Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, who also conducted the committal service at the grave in Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were Edward Weinert and Leon Ladd, sons-in-law, William Maffitt, brother, and William Trask.

Arrangements were by Church & Allen.

Mrs. Ida E. Barrett.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ira E. Barrett were held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her home, No. 30 Eighth street, relatives and friends attending from out of town. The floral pieces were most beautiful and many in number.

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, was in charge of the service and also read the committal service at the grave in Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were William Pitcher, William Holcomb, William Sears and Oscar Barrett.

Church & Allen were in charge.

Dr. John A. Rockwell

Services for the burial of John A. Rockwell, M. D., who died February 11th in Upper Montclair, N. J., were held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the grave in Yantic cemetery. Rev. Samuel H. Howe, D. D., pastor of Park Congregational church, delivered a eulogy and spoke of personal relations with Dr. Rockwell, whose friendship had been most highly prized by him. Relatives and friends were present, coming from several out of town places.

Local arrangements were in charge of Henry Allen & Son Co.

WILL NOT PERMIT FIRES ON HIGHWAYS

At this season of the year, when rubbish is being burned on or adjoining state roads added precautions must be taken by the state to prevent damage to its highways. Consequently, the state police department, at the request of the state highway commission, has been instructed by Superintendent Robert T. Hurley to curb the practice.

As a result of a similar warning last October when state police officers were ordered to put a stop to the burning of leaves on the highways, it is believed a great saving for the state was brought about as a number of instances came to light when property owners had chosen a public road as its border, as a spot for a fire to destroy the great amount of leaves that had fallen.

Believing that any damage which comes to the highways through such fires is a needless waste, the state is anxious to invite attention to the fact that prosecutions are likely to follow, under a statute which provides for penalties for damage to the highways if the warnings of the state police officers fail to produce results.

Aside from the injury to the tar and asphalt surface of state's roads which would come from these fires, the department also considers them a menace to transportation, which might cause the destruction of automobiles or trucks driven by gasoline.

FINISHING STREET WORK ON CENTRAL AVENUE

Acting street commissioner John C. Donovan is putting into shape the space between the trolley tracks on Central avenue which was an unfinished part of the job of macadamizing Central avenue from the top of Schofield hill northerly. He has started the work at the top of the hill, excavating first between the easterly tracks and the space between the double tracks and filling in with crushed stone which is rolled down by the road roller.

LAFAYETTE MAIN LOSES APPEAL ON CONVICTION FOR BREAKING GAME LAW

Lafayette Main, the largest land owner in North Stonington, got quick action from the supreme court of errors in the appeal which Lafayette himself argued before them in this city last week Wednesday, as the supreme court in Hartford Thursday handed down a decision finding Mr. Main guilty of violation of the game law of which he had been found guilty by a jury in the criminal court of common pleas.

Mr. Main was fined $75 on the charge of setting traps for deer unlawfully on Dec. 4, 1922 and was fined $25 on the charge of having in his possession in the closed season, Dec. 7, 1922, one woodcock, one quail and two partridges. The sentences against him carried the costs amounting to $200.26. On two counts against him he was found not guilty.

When his appeal came up for argument here last week Wednesday before the supreme court, Mr. Main argued his own appeal without the assistance of counsel. At his trial in the lower court, he appeared in a suit of new blue overalls and jumper and at one point in the trial dissected a bird to see if any shot could be found in it. Before the supreme court he was clothed in a neat brown suit and was said to have made a very creditable showing in the way he presented his arguments.

At the same session of the supreme court Mr. Main argued an appeal from the common pleas in the suit of Telley E. Babcock of Norwich against Fred J. Appley and Lafayette Main, both of North Stonington. In this appeal he lost also as the supreme court at Hartford Thursday handed down judgment for the plaintiff, Babcock.

Mr. Babcock was given a verdict in the lower court for $192.77 and costs of $51.24. Babcock sued on the claim that Frank B. Stanley, acting as agent for Appley, had sold to him on Jan. 15, 1922 an engine, wood saw and attachments for which Babcock paid Stanley $185 but that Appley and Main took possession of the property and conveyed it to Main's farm in North Stonington and refused to deliver it to Babcock.

The supreme court found no error in three other cases in which decisions were handed down Thursday. The cases decided were:

The court adjourned without delay after hearing arguments in two Fairfield county cases. They were the action of Polifziner Brothers against Peter Vanech, both parties to the action having taken an appeal from a decision awarding $28,414.40 to the plaintiff for failure of the defendant to fulfill a contract or the purchase of 100 tons o sugar in 1920.

LIONS GIVE REPORT FROM CONVENTION IN PROVDENCE

President George A. Finn presided over the meeting of the Norwich Lions club held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel and the singing for the day was in charge of Lion George P. Madden.

President Finn and Lion John Barry gave interesting reports of the Lions' International District convention held in Providence Wednesday after which the weekly attendance prize was awarded to Lion Walter Block, the presentation being made by Lion Dr. Clarence Thompson.

Following several song numbers, Lion William O'Neil was appointed as song leader for next week.

A special announcement was made at this time which delighted the members. Lion Edward Carpenter invited the club to hold the meeting next week in the evening, as he wished to invite the members to gather at the Carpenter factory for an evening session. The invitation was accepted with pleasure.

The address of the day was given by Lion Rev. R. B. Day, who spoke most interestingly on the Mercantile Seamen of the World. In his address he related a number of incidents which he had personal contact with in connection with his work among the seamen, when he was with the Seamen's Church Institute in New York, and said that few people realized the work that was being done by this institute. Rev. Mr. Day was on the sea for several years and his accounts were most interesting. At the close of his talk he was given a rising vote of thanks and the meeting adjourned with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag.

Placed at each plate at the tables was one of the leaflets being distributed by Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, which carries interesting articles about the flag of this country, how to display it and how it should be respected.

AWARDED $1,000 IN COMPENSATION CLAIM

A compromise award and finding by stipulation providing for payment of $1,000 in full settlement of the claim has been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue in the workman's compensation claim of Fred Frattali of New London against the Bowman Hotels Corporation, operators of the Griswold Hotel at Eastern Point.

Frattali claimed that he had received an injury consisting of a sacro-lumbar sprain on April 24, 1921 which had disabled him up to the present time. Both insurer and employer denied the man's right to compensation, but a compromise settlement was reached as stated. The claimant is to pay all medical and hospital bills out of the $1,000 allowed him in settlement.

SPIRITUAL ACADEMY SEASON WILL END THIS MONTH

At the Spiritual Academy, Sunday services will be discontinued after this month, to be resumed on the first Sunday of October, at which time the pastor Rev. Albert P. Blinn will deliver the addresses and Mrs. Isabel C. Bradley will follow with psychic messages. On the three remaining Sundays of this month Mrs. Gertrude J. G. Brown of Boston will speak and give psychic messages May 11, Mrs. Amelia Adams, flower medium, May 18th and Mrs. A. H. Parker, May 25th, the closing Sunday. The annual business meetings of the First Spiritual Union and of the Helping Hands will be held on the last Monday of the month at which the officers will be elected.

Death of Bridgeport Man.

Albert Jones, 36, a Bridgeport cook and waiter, who had been a patient in a Norwich institution, died there Wednesday after illness of a year. He was born in Denison, Texas, Aug. 28, 1857, the son of Paul and Ruth Clark Jones. Burial is to be in Bridgeport.

Anniversary for Policeman

Sergeant Thomas Murphy of the local police force came in for congratulations Thursday, the day being the first anniversary of his appointment as sergeant of the local force.

Officer Myron Morgan also celebrated his first anniversary as traffic officer on Thursday.

EXTOLS BEAUTIFUL MOTOR TRIPS AROUND NORWICH

Knott Knotes, the publication issued by the chain of hotels which includes the Wauregan house, extols the beauty of a motor trip through Norwich and Eastern Connecticut in its current issue.

To the motorist who is seeking new trips, and who has not explored that part of Connecticut in the neighborhood of Norwich we say "Do so, by all means." There are roads in that District of great beauty and roads that will travel easily beneath the wheels of your car—well paved and in splendid condition.

Of course we will be considered prejudiced in making this recommendation, because it is just the sort of recommendation we would be likely to make, having a hotel in Norwich.

Perhaps we are a bit prejudiced and for the above reason, but we believe the motorist who takes our advice and explores the roads we mention, will be grateful to us—yes, even if he stops with us en route, at The Wauregan, Norwich Connecticut.

Practically all the automobilists around New York are acquainted with the Boston Post Road. This is a most popular and well traveled route between New York and Boston—and deservedly so. But people might get tired of going over it, and seek for other paths. Unless your car is equipped with pontoons you cannot very well turn off it into the sea, but you can turn the other way—inland—and if you do this at New London, you will, after traveling twelve miles strike Norwich, often called "The Rose of New England."

From here you have a great variety of trips to choose from. You can go to Hartford, or to Springfield, or to Providence, and so to Boston. The roads are in fine condition and there are stretches of country that will make you catch your breath with the beauty they hold out before you.

Good roads and beautiful scenery—no traveler wants anything more, unless he is heading for a certain place and in that case he often wishes the most direct route.

Going to New London by Post Road and then turning inland through Norwich, will furnish you with a very direct route to the White Mountains, as we said before to Providence and Boston—equally as direct as continuing along the socalled Shore Road. Try it once for a change and see for yourselves.

A friend of ours coming down from Bretton Woods happened to strike Norwich while we were there. "You should get people interested in these splendid roads," he said on meeting us. "I never knew of this trip, and I found it great." We tried them out ourselves and found them as he said—splendid indeed.

Along the road from Norwich to Hartford, that beautiful capitol city of Connecticut, there are some dandy views. The road in places mounts up to a high position and some great valley views are shown, stretching out before you.

The old Mohegan Trail has been turned into an interesting motor trip, starting at New London and going through Norwich, continuing up to and finishing at Webster, Mass. This is a historical trail and brings back memories of the Mohegan Tribe who vanquished the Narragansetts on the Great Plain just east of Norwich.

The views secured for this article give but a very slight idea of the charm that this country holds in store for you. There are many far more beautiful scenes than are here depicted—but these will serve to show the excellent quality of the roads—and that is important, too.

"See you in Norwich this summer."

Sunday School Institute.

Mrs. E. J. Mathews of South Willington, president of the Tolland County Sunday School association, announces the spring institute for district number two, comprising the towns of Willington, Mansfield and Coventry, will be held at Mansfield Depot, Eben Durham Memorial Baptist church, on May 14.

The afternoon session will begin at 2 o'clock. The programme includes an address by the Rev. Charles C. Johnson of South Coventry, on "Educational Opportunities of the Church School in the Small Town." In the evening the Rev. John C. Seaddard of Putnam, on "The Evangelistic Opportunities of the Church School." Miss Helen Wilcox of the Hartford School of Religious Pedagogy will also speak.

POLISH FALCONS ENJOY FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET

Norwich lodge of Polish Falcons enjoyed a banquet Wednesday evening at Pulaski hall. The banquet was the first ever held by the Falcons and was one of the most enjoyable affairs participated in by members since the organization of the lodge.

The activities began about eight o'clock when orchestral numbers were furnished and a number of patriotic songs were sung by the gathering. The scene in the dining hall was most attractive as the members sat about the beautifully decorated tables. The hall was decorated with red and white, the Falcon colors, and American flags, while the table decorations were cut flowers arranged by Mr. Johnson. One specialty was a large bouquet which had been presented to the lodge by Joseph Panek, toastmaster for the evening.

Grape Fruit Cocktail
California Celery Queen Olives
Roast Native Fowl, Chestnut Dressing
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Neapolitan Ice Cream
Assorted French Pastry Coffee.

Following the banquet Alex Radziyanowicz, president of the Falcons, spoke briefly and the address of welcome was made by Councilman Martin Rozycki. There were several speakers and a number of the members favored with vocal solos. Dancing completed the programme of the evening, music being furnished by a Polish orchestra.

The committee in charge of the first Falcon annual banquet was as follows: Mrs. Richard E. Lane, Mrs. Strang, Mrs. Litkowicz, Martin Rozycki and Joseph Panek.

Norwich lodge of Polish Falcons was organized about 14 years ago and saw a steady growth until the World war arrived. Interest then began to lag and only a few men kept the lodge going ahead. At the close of the war there was talk of starting to re-organize but this was not done until seven months ago and since that time under the leadership of President Radzianowicz the lodge has steadily grown and women have once more taken up membership. At the banquet Wednesday evening, 13 new members were enrolled. The Falcons are the largest organization of its kind in this country for Polish citizens.

NORWICH BOY'S POSTER BROUGHT HIM PIN PRIZE

One of the posters entered in the Humane Poster Contest from the Norwich schools, recently on exhibition in the Old State House in Hartford, attracted considerable attention. A newspaper clipping attached to the poster explained why the boy who drew the poster took his subject from a real incident in life—the rescue of a drowning cat. Acting on the suggestion of the committee, besides whatever award may be given for the poster itself, the Society in a letter commending Harry Thayer, age nine of 41 Lake street, attending the Broad street school, enclosed a membership badge to remind him that his brave act was not only appreciated but recognized by the Connecticut Humane Society.

In reply the Society received the following communication: "I thank the society for the pin which it sent me. I was very much surprised when I received it, also much delighted. My teacher said she hoped I would prove myself a gallant knight all through my life and shine like the pin. I shall try.

Sincerely yours,
HARRY THAYER

FORMER NORWICH RESIDENT DIES IN FORESTVILLE

Mandaville A. Potter, 81, a former resident of Norwich, who was stricken with apoplexy Tuesday morning, died Thursday morning at his home in Forestville, Conn. Mr. Potter at the age of 16 years shipped as a sailor to Desolation Island, and afterwards enlisted in the United States navy at Hong Kong. He served there until called home during the Civil war, and he then enlisted in the 16th Connecticut regiment on August 30, 1862. In the battle of Port Hudson on May 27, 1863, he was wounded and received his discharge from the service on August 19, 1863.

In 1864 in Bristol he was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Adams, who survives him. In 1865 he moved to Norwich and in 1900 to Forestville. Two children were born of the marriage, Miss Sadie Potter and Arthur Potter of Fir street, Forestville.

Mr. Potter was a past commander of Mauross post, G. A. R., and was a member of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., of Norwich. He was a member of Asbury M. E. church.

ATTENDED MINSTRELS BY WILLIMANTIC MACCABEES

Mrs. Louise Manchester, Mrs. Edward Mullen, Mrs. Charles Prodell, Mrs. Shubert and Mrs. Carl Schlintz, representing the Ladies of the W. B. A. of the Maccabees, Norwich Review, were in Willimantic Thursday evening and attended the minstrel and musical given by Windham Review at Odd Fellows hall.

The minstrel was given under the direction of Mrs. Mary Mathieu and was one of the best the review has ever given. A number of other reviews in the state were present at the entertainment.

RIVERVIEW CLUB TO PLAY TWO GAMES WITH THREADMAKERS THIS WEEK END

The fans of Norwich will get an idea of the calibre of baseball to be played this season in the state league when the Riverview club of the State hospital crosses bats with the American Thread of Willimantic Saturday on the Riverview grounds. These two teams will clash again Sunday at Recreation park, Willimantic.

The Riverview club has strengthened somewhat since the opening games and now has one of the strongest infields playing semi-pro ball in this state. Joe Belair, a local boy, is doing the catching this season and is slowly rounding into form. Davis of Sub Base fame has been engaged to [illegible] of the games against the [illegible] while the old reliable Zemke will hurl the other.

[illegible] a clever fielder and hard hitter will again cover the initial sack; Eddie Burns, fleet of foot and [illegible] fielder, will cover the keystone sack with "Dinty" Moore doing [illegible] in the short field. The hot corner will be taken care of by Harry Mills who is in mid-season form and going good. "Left" Harrold, a hard hitting outfielder from the Sub Base, will play left field, with Agos, Hamill and O'Neil alternating in the other outer gardens.

The American Thread team will [illegible] "Mickey" Flaherty of Hartford, last season with Ware, doing the [illegible] the backstop work with Hamel [illegible] over. RANGERS TACKLE FAST BRIDGEPORT TEAM SUNDAY

New London, May 8.—Sunday will be a red letter day in the annals of the soccer game in Eastern Connecticut when the second round game of the Connecticut spring cup competition will be played at New London between the Rangers of this city and the fast Clan Campbell team of Bridgeport. Several teams have appeared here this season from the southern section of the state but none as powerful as the Clansmen from Bridgeport. This team originated among the members of Clan Campbell, Order of Scottish Clans in the Park City, and has had a very successful season winning the amateur championship of the state by being the last surviving team from this [illegible] national amateur cup [illegible] It also played a great [illegible] the state cup competition, [illegible] h teams as Ansonia, Swedish Pottington, and was finally [illegible] the final tie by Manchester by the score of four goals to three after one of the greatest struggles ever witnessed in this state. In the second round of the competition it had to play three games with the Waterbury team before it qualified for the third round and each game was stubbornly contested from start [illegible]

Every player on the Campbell team [illegible] having seen service with [illegible] regulars in England and Scotland. Pollard, the goalkeeper, was a member of last season's St. George team and he had previously played with the Hedben Bridge team in Darcnshire. Ferguson is the old Danersk player and one of the brainiest players in the state, Kirk, Findlay, were members of last season's St. George team having previously played with junior teams of Scotland. Berwick was a member of last season's Ashfield team in Scotland, while the rest of the players have had experience with the best junior teams abroad.

Two of the best known state officials will be on hand in an official position, the best known is Joe Booth, who will officiate as referee, he is the secretary of the state association, state league and amateur league and was organizer of practically every league and competition in the state, a past officer of the United States Football association, honorary member and president of the Connecticut State Referees' union and practically the best known official in the country.

The other is John D. Ross, who will officiate as delegate in the game, he is the representative from this state on the council of United State Football association.

The Campbell team will arrive about 1 o'clock, travelling by bus and will bring several supporters with them. The team will line up as follows: Pollard goal, Calbert and Findlay backs, Taylor, Smith and W. Brown half backs, Kirk, Berwick, Ferguson, Creighton and Meikle forwards, with M. Brown as a reserve.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 8.—The Chapman Tech baseball team under Coach E. Stanley Taylor, is putting in an extra hard practice this week in anticipation for the game with Norwich Free academy on Saturday, at Norwich. When Westerly High defeated both Chapman Tech and the Academy within four days, the Westerly nine took first place in the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic standing.

The Chapman Tech and Norwich Free academy nines are now fighting for the possession of second place in the league standing. A victory for either Norwich or for the New London nine means second place with a possible chance of catching up with the league leaders in the playing of the second round of the league.

While Chapman Tech sees what a loss and what a victory will mean when these teams meet on Saturday at the Rose City, Coach Taylor of the Red and Black is keeping the boys on the diamond three-quarters of an hour later than in previous days of practice sessions. Judging from the spirit that the New London high school outfit is putting into its efforts, it looks as if Norwich will have to be in its best form to keep the Tech boys from crossing the plate.

The game is bound to be a close one from the very first inning if past performances with teams which both have met is a criterion. But it seems that Norwich has a slight edge on the Whaling City outfit, for Westerly won over Chapman Tech by a score of 1 score, and over Norwich Free academy by a 13 to 7 score.

SNEAK THIEVES MAKE HAUL FROM OLYMPIC STARS

Paris, May 8.—Sneak thieves today entered the dressing room of the American Olympic rugby football team at the Colombes Olympic stadium and robbed the players of all their valuables, about 5,000 francs, and several hundred dollars in American currency. The men tonight were disconsolate especially over the loss of their jewelry which included a number of watches and medals won in athletic tournaments, to which they attach much value.

Alan Muhr, of the French Olympic committee accompanied the boys to the police station where a complaint was lodged. The police promised to put their cleverest detectives on the case. A workman who has heretofore been entrusted with the task of locking the doors to the dressing room reported that today he had forgotten to do so. He was closely questioned by the authorities.

GOODMAN THREATENS TO ABANDON RUGBY GAME

Paris, May 8.—The breach between the American Olympic rugby football team and the French Olympic committee over the refusal of the latter to permit the Americans [illegible] own pictures of the United States-Rumania match Sunday, [illegible] unhealed today, Manager Samuel Goodman even threatened to abandon the game if the permission were not granted.

The French committee had previously let the photographic concessions for the entire period of the Olympic games to a French company. A meeting has been called for Saturday between Manager Goodman, representatives of three leading American camera firms and Alan Muhr and Franz Reichel of the French committee at which an attempt will be made to iron out the difficulty.

ACADEMY SECONDS SLAUGHTER WHEELER HIGH BASEBALLERS

In a game marked by unusual wildness of pitching the Academy Seconds pounded out a 22 to 2 victory over the Wheeler High team at North Stonington on Thursday afternoon. The Seconds put up an exceptionally good game of which the feature was the wonderful pitching of Steinman, the angular youth from the wilderness of Bozrah. Steinman was in rare form and fanned 15 of the opposing batsmen. The hitting was led by Pitt and Johnny Haslam with three hits each. Wheeler used three pitchers.

LEONARD-BARBARIAN BOUT HAS FALLEN THROUGH

New York, May 8. — Negotiations for a match in Detroit, Mich., between Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, and Sid Barbarian, Detroit lightweight, were abandoned today when Billy Gibson, Leonard's manager, rejected terms offered for the bout. It was understood the Detroit promoters offered Gibson $15,000 for the match.

Coal Heavers Win in Ninth.

Hartford, May 8.—Pinch Hitter Anderson's hit that fell for a triple between three Hartford fielders in the ninth inning scored two runs and won the game for Worcester today, 4 to 3. Canavan allowed five hits while the Senators made eleven.

The score:

Hartford	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	1	0	3

Two base hits, Hauk 2, Bellanger; three base hits, Roser, Anderson.

Hillies Win in Ninth.

Springfield, Mass., May 8. — Pittsfield broke its losing streak of eight games here today, beating Springfield by 3 to 2. Olsen pitched his first game for the home team and was not scored on until the seventh. McPhee's hit scored Stapleton with the winning run in the ninth. The score:

Two base hits, McPhee, Stapleton, Duffy.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch, Captain, New York Giants

Any inning. No runners on bases.

Who should cover second base on balls hit to rightfield—to leftfield?

Under such conditions when a batsman hits ball into rightfield, the second baseman should take the throw in from the right-fielder with the shortstop backing him up and the pitcher coming in behind the shortstop in case of a bad overthrow. The third baseman remains on the bag.

If the hit is into left-field under the above conditions, the shortshop covers the bag and takes the throw in from the left-fielder with the second baseman following in behind the shortstop, and the pitcher running over and following in behind the second baseman. The first and third basemen remain on their bases.

The reason for this shift is that the infielders in running up in this way get to their places more quickly than if any other arrangement is followed.

MEETING OF TWILIGHT LEAGUE AT ARMORY TONIGHT

There will be a meeting of the managers of the six teams in the Norwich Twilight Baseball league at the state armory at 8 o'clock this evening. The six teams that will be represented are: Nuggets, Battery B, Yantic Grain, Hardigs, Y. M. H. A. and Swan-ees. At the meeting officers of the league will be elected and committees appointed and rules governing the league will also be drawn up.

DUANE SUFFERING FROM SEVERE FRACTURED JAW

New York, May 8.—Carl Duane, New York featherweight, who suffered a fractured jaw in his bout with Johnny Leonard of Allentown, Pa., at Madison Square Garden last Friday night, was operated on in a New York hospital today and three teeth, which were almost countersunk in his jaw, were removed. Duane will be forced to remain idle for three months. Billy Gibson, his manager said today.

COLLINS' TRIPLE FIGURES IN RED SOX VICTORY

Boston, May 8.—John Collins' triple off Walter Johnson in the first inning scored two Boston runs and was the outstanding feature of the Red Sox 4 to 2 victory over Washington today. Ehmke held the visitors to five hits while Johnson struck out eight, he walked three and hit two, and all three of the players who were passed eventually scored. Score:

CLARENCE DE MAR IS AWARDED VARSITY LETTER BY HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., May 8.—Clarence D. De Mar of Melrose, was tonight awarded a varsity track H by the Harvard athletic committee for his work "in winning the Boston marathon in 1911 and three times since." He was a regular student at the college from 1910 to 1913 and took special courses the next two years by which he received the degree of associate in arts.

So far as could be learned tonight this is the second time in Harvard's history that an athletic letter has been given for work outside of college competitions. Bobby Jones received a golf H. after winning the national open championship during the summer following his last school year at Harvard. In line with its policy of reducing the length of the athletic schedules the committee tonight voted to suggest to Yale that one basketball game be played in New Haven in 1925 and one in Cambridge the year following instead of the usual two a year.

The committee approved the agreement made by the track advisory committee that freshmen competing in the 440 yard or longer runs in the dual meets with Yale and Princeton be barred from other events.

VETERAN TURF MAN FAVORS ALTAWOOD TO WIN

Louisville, Ky., May 8.—Billy Walker, who had the mount on Bob Wooley the first Kentucky derby in 1875, which was won by the "little red [illegible] Aristides, believes a "little [illegible] may win the derby. Walker [illegible] as enthusiastic a horseman as [illegible] in the day when he rode Ten Broeck and other famous racers of a half century ago.

Walker is a close student of breeding and is especially well versed on all the American blood lines. He asserts that he never saw a colt that more resembled Aristides in his three year old form than did Altawood, the winner of the bluegrass stakes at Lexington, Wednesday.

"He is about the same size and color as Aristides and has a stride similar to the great son of Leamington," Walker said today. "Aristides, [illegible] way, was from a Lexington [illegible] also was Bob Wooley, the horse I rode in that derby. Bob Wooley was also by Leamington, but he was not nearly so good a colt as Aristides."

HEAVYWEIGHT CAMPAIGN STARTS AT GARDEN TONIGHT

New York, May 8.—The first [illegible] battle of the heavyweight elimination series that will culminate in a championship fight for the survivor with Jack Dempsey in September takes place tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden when Quintin Romero, rugged Chilean, makes his American debut in a 10-round match with Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight.

Following this on Monday, Harry Wills, giant negro who has been signed by Tex Rickard for a long-waited match with Dempsey will be tested against Bartley Madden, veteran Irish heavyweight, in a 15-round contest at the Queensboro stadium.

The outcome of both bouts will be watched with keen interest, particularly the showings of Romero, an untried product who aspires to supplant Luis Firpo as South America's title contender, and Wills, who is out to prove his claim to being Dempsey's logical challenger.

According to Rickard's heavyweight program, the winner of the Romero-Johnson fight will be matched with Loughran in June. The victor of that contest probably will face Wills to decide Dempsey's opponent in the title fray which the promoter now plans to stage at Boyle's thirty acres September 6.

HORSE LOVERS ARE FLOCKING TO KENTUCKY

Louisville, Ky., May 8.—Sport lovers from many parts of the country, but principally from Chicago and the east, are preparing to come to Louisville in such large numbers for the running of the fiftieth Kentucky derby May 17 that greater service demands than ever before will be made on railroads, passenger officials said today.

Scores of private cars and more than twenty special trains will come, bearing their crowds of turf devotees, besides there will be hundreds of extra cars attached to regular trains.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Harry Sinclair and Harry Payne Whitney of New York, Albert Foreman, Chicago banker, and Frank Navin, owner of the Detroit American league baseball club, are among those who already have arranged to come in private cars.

CHAMP'S BROTHER HERE TO LOOK OVER HARRY WILLS

LIONS CLUB TEAM WINS A PRACTICE GAME

Yesterday afternoon the Lions club baseball team under Manager Clarence H. Thompson won a seven inning practice game from a make-shift team composed of Academy players and recruits. The Lions, through terrific hitting by Georgie Madden and Judge Barry, the Jewett City luminary, and the sensational fielding of Doc Sussler, nosed out a 7 to 6 victory.

Doc Thompson did the hurling for the Lions and "Nugget" Madden did the backstop work in his usual spectacular style. McGowan and Hinricks did the mound duty for the Academy boys.

EXPLAINS WHY PLAYERS WERE BARRED FROM GAME

Sports Editor: The fuss that is being made over the refusal of five Bulkeley players to abide by Coach Robert T. Aldrich's ruling to leave the junior prom held at the Hotel Mohican Friday evening, the day before the game with Naugatuck, is really uncalled for. The players who were kept out of the game for keeping late hours and who were named in Monday's issue of The Bulletin were reinstated on Monday by Coach Aldrich when school opened. When a certain party in the city makes a public announcement to bench the players for insubordination, that individual does not know what he is taking about. It seems to the writer of the article that some people in the city do no other strenuous exercise but jump at conclusions. Why not look into the facts of the case before denouncing the five players that were barred for that contest? There are numerous fans and grads of Bulkeley who have not come forward with some money when an appeal was made by Headmaster Underwood for funds, recently, to buy new uniforms and other paraphernalia for the team. But when five players were barred for being at the junior prom dance until the end, they clamor for the benching of the players without giving them a hearing. And then these people think they are helping in fostering sports in New London.

The real reason for the leaving out of five of the Bulkeley players was by agreement between the players and Coach Aldrich. Two days before the game a meeting was held in room 14 at Bulkeley school for the purpose of deciding whether several members of the team would quit the dance at 11 o'clock or not, as three of the players were to escort girls who were coming here from Brooklyn, N. Y., to attend the dance. Would it be the proper thing to do, to have a girl come here nearly a hundred and fifty miles to attend the dance and then be compelled to leave at 11 o'clock? Coach Robert T. Aldrich understood the situation that the members of the team were in and explained to them that if any player would not care to leave the dance at the specified hour, he would not have to do so and that he (Coach Aldrich) would replace that player in the game with Naugatuck High on the following day. Now it was a gentleman's agreement and Coach Robert T. Aldrich is living up to his end of the bargain. There were no hard feelings between the players barred for that game and the coach.

The junior promenade is recognized as the biggest dance in the history of the class of 1925 and other classes. It only comes once in a lifetime and the players are only human and would like to take in the affair. It was unfortunate that the date of the dance had to come on the night before a big contest with a high school team. But once the date had been set it could not have been changed very well without much inconvenience to the students that had their hearts set upon the affair taking place.

As further proof that there was no hard feeling between the players barred for the Naugatuck contest and the coach, the players in question have already taken their regular places in the lineup on Tuesday afternoon against Morgan High at Clinton. We would like to drop the matter right here, but there are certain wise ones that are still making something big out of a little thing and are voicing their opinions in a stentorian manner up and down State street it seems. While they have a right to voice their opinions, because this is a free country and nobody can stop free speech, why have they taken such an interest in the Bulkeley affairs all of a sudden? At the games played by Bulkeley in the past years, the ones that are making the holler now, have been seen dodging the ticket seller. They see games free of charge and the other people of New London who support the Bulkeley team, that won the state high school championship last year, are content to let the matter slide by without a word of advice either to the coach or to the players as to what is the proper thing to do, when the players were barred for the Naugatuck game. I thought in writing this article, I could show to the readers the inside facts that surround the case. I have looked into the facts of the case for the past two days and have gathered enough material on the big argument at present keeping the sporting element in New London believing one side of the story and then the other by untrue stories that are circulating at the various ball parks in the city.

A BULKELEY PLAYER.

Yale Net Stars Win.

New Haven, May 8.—Yale defeated Colgate here today, 3 to 0, in the tennis singles. Due to rain only three sets were played, the remaining singles and doubles being called off.

Syracuse to Send 3 Crews.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 8.—Definite decision has been reached by the navy committee of the athletic governing board of Syracuse university to send three crews to the annual United States Naval academy-Syracuse regatta at Annapolis, May 24, and two crews to the American Henley at Philadelphia, May 31. The Syracuse varsity, junior varsity and freshman eights will match blades against the midshipmen, and the varsity and junior varsity will compete in the Henley.

Yantic Grain Team Wins.

The Yantic Grain baseball team defeated the Jail Hill team Thursday evening at the Fairgrounds in a five-inning game, 4 to 3. The battery for the Grainers was Rogers and Beebe, and for the Hillies, J. Shea and Corcoran.

Princeton Polo Team Wins.

New York, May 8.—The Princeton polo team won from Norwich, 12 goals to 2, in an intercollegiate championship tournament game at Fort Hamilton today.

Haverford Tracksters Win.

Newark, Del., May 8. — Haverford college defeated the University of Delaware in a dual track meet today, 93 1-2 to 32 1-2 points.

SPORTING NOTES

Frank Boyle, manager of Marshalltown, Iowa, the past tow seasons, has signed to pilot the Sioux Falls, S. D., team of the Tri-State League.

Terre Haute has obtained Infielder Tommy Morris from the New Orleans team of the Southern League. He is subject to recall by the Pelicans.

The Fort Smith Twins have purchased Catcher Krause from the Houston Texas League team. He will replace Butch Kerns as second string backstop.

Chester (Red) Torkelson has signed as manager of the Vicksburg, Miss., team of the Cotton States League. He handled the Pilots the latter part of the 1922 season.

Jack Coffey, veteran minor league manager, now coaching Fordham University, says he plans to become a player again. He has several offers from Class B and C teams.

The final tryouts for the selection of the American Olympic catch-as-catch-can wrestling team are to be held in Madison Square Garden May 27-29.

Captain E. T. Collins of the Chicago White Sox, who celebrated his 37th birthday on May 2, is the only player remaining in the major leagues who was a member of the 1910 pennant-winning Athletics.

Manager Donie Bush has made three changes in the Indianapolis roster. Clyde Selb, a pitcher, was given his unconditioned release when his arm [illegible] failed to show its old time form. Glenn Turner, a Memphis semi-pro catcher, who was given a tryout, has been sent to the Terre Haute team under an optional agreement, and Roplequet, Wabash College southpaw pitcher, has signed a contract.

It is said that Epinard, the French "wonder horse," showed so little promise as a colt that his owner decided to dispose of him at the yearly sales and was only restrained by the pleadings of his wife.

Floyd Scott, outfielder of Kansas City, had his slugging clothes on in the opening game of the season, getting two runs and a triple.

Mike Gazella, former Lafayette athletic star, has been sent to Minneapolis under option by the Yankees. He shows considerable promise as an outfielder.

When Reb Russell hit a home run on his first time at bat this season, it brought fans back a few years when Reb was the home run king of the Association.

John Wight, a third baseman, and Fred Spates, a pitcher, have been purchased by Albany of the Eastern League from Atlanta. The purchase price was $4000.

Edward Rentz, a Chicago semi-pro pitcher, has signed with Dubuque of the Mississippi Valley League. Thirty-two players have reported to Manager Johnny [illegible].

Tiny Hurst, 18-year-old pitching recruit, has been sent to the Sioux City team of the Tri-State League by the Cardinals. He weighs 240 pounds and takes a fine curve [illegible]

Chick Mattick, manager of Ottumwa of the Mississippi Valley League, has been confined to his home in Ottumwa with a severe attack of [illegible]

[illegible] Manager [illegible] of the Milwaukee team of the American Association, start [illegible] Milwaukee, a [illegible] eight hits and struck out 11 men. A few more games like [illegible] and McGraw will have Scott back on the Giants' [illegible]

PAPPINESS

(Specially for The Bulletin.)

...ght on ... "happiness" worth an "h."

... Found it in a western paper, but I know whether that paper coined it fresh or took it up. It is, however, ... e and so ex-

...om the ... "pap." And pap ... name of a form of

"Pappiness," therefore would seem to be "the state or condition of being pap-fed."

... and condition of a large proportion if not an actual majority of the American people, male and female, today, it is clear that the word is a necessary one. It fills a gap; it meets a long-felt want.

Of course, we've always had such words as languor and enervation and effeminacy and flaccidity and atony and emasculation, and the like. But ... them ... spread ... pap ... aids are heard on all ... wails which, in pitiful fact, are fast coming to be the voice of the people.

There is, for example, a measure of 100 per cent contempt conveyed by that word "pappiness" which is not ... can doesn't exceed the percentage of contempt which a really manly man must feel for the pap-desirers of the age.

I will agree that, when pap is fed to helpless infants, it is of some value and service. But when grown men and women, old enough to eat meat and bread, fling themselves, figuratively speaking, upon their backs, kick and claw and squall for some one to come along with a pap bottle, it's time we had a word to describe their state or condition without any shading of excuse or exculpation in it.

In the old days we used to hear people say of a hearty dinner that it felt as if it would stay by them. "That's what keeps your ribs from falling in," was one man's comment on the corned beef and cabbage which was his favorite dish. "That'll make your hair grow," was another's report after doing justice to a dinner of beef stew and potatoes, topped off with a huge "hunk" of mince pie and about three cups of strong coffee. "We can cut down all the wood in Maine if we're given all we want of this," said a camp of lumbermen as they shovelled down the pork and beans by the wheelbarrow load.

There may yet be such hearty feeders and efficient workers in remote forest camps and on back-road farms. But they're not much in evidence on the farms or in the shops or along the highways with which I am acquainted.

Consider those highways, first. I happen to live just off the line of a main transcontinental road running from Boston to the Pacific with few breaks. All its eastern portion is of concrete or macadam and, as may be supposed, it is traversed daily by hundreds if not thousands of motor cars. It is also fairly lined with creeping files of "lift"-hunting loafers, waiting their chances to sponge free rides from passing motorists. Singly or in groups of two or three or four, they sit or lie or feebly dawdle along the roadside till they spy approaching some car or truck with not wholly occupied seats. Thereupon they amble to the middle of the road and wave their arms and, when you have stopped, begin to beg for a "lift" as ...

"Begin to beg," I wrote. Some of them beg; quite as many put it in form of a demand: a considerable share simply yank the door open before the car has fairly stopped and plump themselves down with a semi-snarling inquiry, "How far you goin'?"

This highway is closely paralleled by two railroads. An hourly bus service goes over it all day long. There is nothing to prevent a self-respecting man from getting wherever he wants to go by simply paying his way on conveyances managed for travellers' convenience. But no, it's easier to beg free rides from private car owners than it is to earn money to pay railroad or bus fares.

In other words, "pap" is what they want. They want somebody else to furnish the pap, supply a spoon, put it to their lips, wipe their faces of the gobs they're too enervate to swallow, and then wash up the dishes.

Of course, some few are mere criminals, on the lookout to steal cars or rob drivers. But the majority are simply devotees of "pappiness," too emasculate to earn their own passage money, and too lazy to make their way afoot.

Take another phase, that of the men who are supposed to make and repair the roads. At one side of my rural town a big gang of men is replacing some badly broken up macadam with concrete. The lie of the land makes a detour impossible. The road-builders are, therefore, supposed to keep one half of the highway passable while rebuilding the other half. This would require some handwork at the edge of the division. Handwork is too hard. Therefore the whole road is torn up by machines, and travellers must pick their way over expanses of mud and ruts and sink-holes, sown with fragments of rock and broken macadam at the imminent risk of cutting tires, or breaking axles or being actually stuck.

You see, there's "pap" in the contract, if it can be carried out wholly by the use of machinery. And "pap" is what contractor and foremen and workmen are all after.

On my own dirt road there is a fearfully bad place, caused by a small spring in the roadway. Dozens of cars and several horse teams have vehicles have been mired in it so badly as to require outside assistance. The road repairers have been over this slough three times; twice with a tractor-drawn scraper and once with a team to gather up loose stones and generally finish off the surface.

Yet, because it would necessitate some handwork to clean out the ditch and lead the spring water out of the road, not a thing has been done. What the tractor-drawn scraper and the ... couldn't accomplish has been left undone.

Again, the call for "pap." The safety of the public? The service of the town? Who thought of either? "Pap" was what their minds were fixed on. What ... least trouble was done, in fact all that machinery would do. Why should the followers of "pappiness" launch out beyond that?

Consider the case of the farmer. He can't pick up a paper daily or weekly or monthly, whether one devoted ... journal of the ... devoted to agricultural affairs or one professing to give world news, without finding in at least every other issue a fanfare of fish-horns blowing over the increasing use of machinery on the farm.

One would think, after listening in to some of these outbursts that the modern ideal of successful farming was to sit on the back porch, smoke a corn-cob pipe, touch a button and have machines plow and plant and hoe and sell the crops and deposit the money in the bank. Oh, yes, and also bring the farmer his pap three times a day and hold his mouth open and pour it down!

Machinery is to do it all, and then some. If he is compelled to hire a "hand" to look after the machinery that hand will require a free house and garden, free firewood, free milk, an eight hour day and double pay for overtime. Saturday afternoons off every week and Monday forenoons off, too, every time he meets a bootlegger of a Saturday night. He will also feel ill-treated if he isn't given a pig or a calf or a few chickens from time to time, and a bonus at the end of the season.

"Pap" all the time. The hunt is for gifts not earned. All the world and his wife are chasing the landscape over trying to get something for nothing. What they can get without giving any return for is so much "velvet."

They hug themselves in self-approval over gains made without working for them. They actually think themselves "smart" if they are able successfully to beat their way. "Let George do it," provided they are able to pick his pockets of a share of his earnings.

It may reasonably be assumed that every past generation had its failings; that they all were tarred with some fault. What these faults were it is bootless for us to inquire. They are matters of history; no longer of current interest.

But we have not only the right but the duty to consider the characteristics of this present generation. And I'll leave it to you if "pappiness," i. e. the craze for being pap-fed, isn't one of its most outstanding characteristics. And about its most contemptible one too.

THE FARMER.

Let Kellogg's Bran free your children from that dangerous disease—constipation

Children are subject to constipation. In the excitement of play, they neglect themselves and foster this dread disease. More than forty other diseases can be traced to constipation. Don't delay. Begin at once to cleanse their systems of the dangerous poisons.

Kellogg's Bran sweeps the intestine clean—and purifies it. It drives out the poisons which undermine your children's health. It makes the bowels function regularly and naturally.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to bring results if eaten regularly, or your grocer will return your money. It is guaranteed because it is ALL bran! Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. Kellogg's Bran is recommended by doctors everywhere—they know from experience that it brings results.

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. They will like its wonderful, nut-like flavor—so different from common brans which are most unpalatable.

As a cereal, with milk or cream, they will enjoy Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Sprinkle over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in delicious muffins, bread, griddle cakes and other recipes given on every package.

But start them eating Kellogg's Bran to-day. Start every member of your family eating it. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Ask for it at your restaurant. It is sold by all grocers.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Washington today enters upon its 125th year as the capital of the United States, the transfer of the seat of government having been made on this date in 1798.

Republicans of Utah are to meet in state convention at Provo today to select eleven delegates to the national convention to be held at Cleveland next month.

Unless there is an eleventh hour reprieve, six men will be hanged at Amite, La., today for the murder of Dallas Calmes at Independence three years ago.

A movement for a third political party in Oklahoma is expected to come to a head today at the state convention of the Farmer-Labor party to be held at Oklahoma City.

The first visit of a chief of state to the league of nations headquarters at Geneva will take place today, when King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania will be received by Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league.

International understanding and peace will be features of the program of the biennial meeting of the World's Y. W. C. A. committee, which opens in Washington today. Women representing forty countries are to be in attendance.

Important, not only because of the immediate effect it will have on Scotland but because of its significance in constant tendency toward devolution within the British empire is the Scottish home rule bill which will come up for its second reading in the house of commons today.

FRIENDS

May I be friends to all the trees;
To birds, and blossoms and the bees:
To things that creep, and things that hide
Through all the teeming countryside;
On terms with all the stars at night,
With all their playful beams of light;
In love with leafy dales and hills,
And with the laughing mountain rills;
With summer skies, and winter snows;
With every kind of breeze that blows;
The wide sea, and the stretching plain,
The tempest, and the falling rain—
If I were thus what need had I
To fear Death's solemn mystery
That takes me from the world's alarms
And lays me in earth's loving arms?

Your Victrola is new with every new Victor Record for each Victor Record you buy brings fresh entertainment. Thousands of selections are listed in the Victor Record catalogs and new Victor Records are announced every week. No less than three operatic singers of the highest rank—Ponselle, Fleta and Mardones—are among the recent additions to the unequalled group of Victor artists. The high quality and the variety of the Victor Red Seal repertoire extends to every class of music. The favorite names of grand opera, the concert stage, of vaudeville, in popular music, in the dance world—are Victor names.

		Number	DOUBLE-FACED List Price
Trovatore—Stride la Vampa! (Fierce Flames are Soaring!) (Verdi) In Italian / Lucrezia Borgia—Brindisi (Drinking Song—It is Better to Laugh) (Donizetti) In Italian	Margarete Matzenauer / Margarete Matzenauer	999	$1.50

Two of the great contralto numbers in Italian opera—the weird song of the gypsy mother in "Il Trovatore" and the drinking invitation of the infamous "Lucrezia Borgia." A superb record for the operatic section of your library.

Carmen—Fantasie (Bizet-Sarasate) Violin Solo / Mazurka (Zarzycki) Violin Solo	Erika Morini / Erika Morini	6445	2.00

Sarasate's dazzling violin-fantasie on two themes from "Carmen;" and Zarzycki's mazurka, both resembling it and contrasting with it. Recording that faithfully portrays every detail of the violinist's art.

Cradle Song (Brahms) / Lullaby (Rossini-Scott)	Rosa Ponselle / Rosa Ponselle	1002	1.50

Two very famous lullabies—Brahms' and Cyril Scott's. Both are sung with exquisite expression by a famous artist who has recently joined the great company of Victor artists.

Melodious Instrumental

Sylvia Ballet—Pizzicato Polka (Delibes) / Damnation of Faust—Dance of the Sylphs (Berlioz)	Victor Concert Orchestra	19249	.75

Two orchestral numbers technically issued for educational purposes, but they are admirable concert numbers, nevertheless. Or these records may be used for interpretative dancing.

Selections for Mother's Day

What a Friend We Have in Mother / That Old Fashioned Mother of Mine	Peerless Quartet / Henry Burr	19305	.75

Timely numbers in the popular manner which will be specially appropriate as a Mother's Day gift.

Dance Records

There's Yes! Yes! in Your Eyes—Fox Trot / Love Has a Way—Fox Trot	Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra	19309	.75

Bold, sonorous fox trots in splendidly finished style. The kind of playing and recording that make both Whiteman and the Victor famous.

No Means Yes—Fox Trot / Feeling the Way I Do—Fox Trot	Philip Spitalny and His Orchestra	19306	.75

First Victor Record by this celebrated Cleveland organization. It plays to thousands weekly at the Allen Theatre and the Hanna Building Restaurant. With the issuance of this record, its audiences become as wide as the world.

I Must Have Company—Fox Trot / Worried—Fox Trot	Philip Spitalny and His Orchestra	19307	.75

The muted trumpet today is rivaling the saxophone as the comedy member of the dance orchestra. This record shows interesting uses of it, with remarkable banjo, clarinet and piano work.

In the Evening—Fox Trot / Where the Lazy Daisies Grow—Fox Trot	Jean Goldkette and His Orchestra	19308	.75

First Victor Record by this famous orchestra. Its playing, at the Greystone Ballroom and the Detroit Athletic Club, has been a feature of the city's social life. This record enables everybody everywhere to enjoy the music of this organization.

THE NORWICH BARGAIN HOUSE

"Always More For Less"

3-5-7 Water Street, Corner Washington Square, Norwich, Conn.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Attacked by the Panther

'll be right over," answered the ... Elephant on hearing that dear ... 's house had been broken ... a tornado in the last story. ... once the old gentleman rabbit ... up the telephone receiver and ... to the front gate to wait for ... friendly elephant. "Pretty soon he

"Now you're talking," laughed the Panther.

"... that was some cyclone," he ... on seeing Uncle Lucky's ... "But I'll fix it in no time. It's ... ted in two like a brick," and ... strong animal pushed and ... two parts came to- ... fixed the roof, nail- ... shingles and boards over ... where the little house had ... part. After that he painted it ... and when he had finished, that dear little house of Uncle Lucky's looked just as good as new.

"Hip, hip, hurray! for my elephant friend,
He's fixed my house from end to end,
He's mended the roof and the chimney, too—
You'd never know it had broken in two."

Pretty soon the elephant put his tools back into the trunk—I mean his tool box — and started to go away.

"Stop, stop!" cried Uncle Lucky. "I'll take you home" and the old gentleman rabbit hopped into the garage for the Luckymobile.

Well, they hadn't gone very far—maybe a mile; when, all of a sudden, just like that, a voice shouted:

"You'd better not try this place to pass. There's a panther hiding in the grass."

"Who are you?" asked Little Jack Rabbit as Uncle Lucky stopped the Luckymobile with a dreadful bump.

"I'm Bobby Redvest, but I'm hiding in this tree because I don't want the panther to see me."

"Well, I don't want him to see me either," answered the old gentleman rabbit quickly turning the Luckymobile around. But Oh, dear me! He had waited just a little too long for that wicked panther had been tiptoeing closer and closer, and when he saw the two little rabbits driving away, he gave one great big tremendous jump landing right in the middle of the back seat.

"Ha ha! so you thought you'd get away, did you," growled that cruel beast, licking his lips with his long red tongue and grinning till all his teeth glittered.

"I'll give you a bag of peanuts if you'll please go away," sobbed Little Jack Rabbit.

"No, I'd rather eat you both," answered the panther.

"I'll give you a bagful of lollypops," answered Uncle Lucky.

"Now you're talking" laughed the panther, "if there's anything I like, it's lollypops." and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS FOR SAFETY ON HIGHWAYS

The May issue of the Eastern Connecticut U. C. T. Monthly, of which H. R. Branche is editor-manager and C. W. Pearson, secretary-treasurer, is especially devoted to the topic of Safety on Our Highways and contains the following editorial on the subject:

The paramount question today to users of automobiles, is that of safety on our highways, and how it can be obtained.

How long before the state and federal governments will take drastic action for the safety of the innocents whose lives are imperilled by the reckless operation of motor vehicles on our public streets? For the person who operates his or her, car in a safe, practical manner, trying to guess what the other fellow is going to do, is a nerve-racking proposition.

As an organization The United Commercial Travelers are deeply interested in the question of personal safety of their members, who are today 99 per cent. covering their territory through the agency of the automobile.

We believe some more severe punishment than a fine should be meted out to the reckless or intoxicated driver of a motor car, and we also believe greater care should be exercised in the granting of licenses to foreigners and others whose training appears to be one of contempt and utter disrespect of the laws of safety or the rights of others. The hogging of three-fourths of the roadway, and the crowding into gutters of careful drivers are but few of the complaints reported almost daily by our members. This type of roadhog, no matter how broad and how straight the highways were constructed, would still continue to be a menace to any and all with whom he might come in contact. It has been said that the highways cannot be made "fool proof," perhaps not, but a long stride towards that end can be taken in the suppression of the indiscriminate granting of licenses, without first digging into the past history of the applicant. If every applicant for a license were forced to put up a bond as a grauantee that care would be exercised in the operation of a motor vehicle it might help some.

Motor cars are being operated on roads built for horse-drawn vehicles at a rate of speed approximating the speed of trains on our modern railroads equipped with every known safety device and under the guidance of trained men who had to serve years prior to being permitted to assume the responsibility of handling the lives of the traveling public.

Our highways over which automobiles are being driven at 35 to 60 miles per hour, with a hit or miss policy for protection are furnishing just that sort of safety and the hits are more frequent daily.

There is scarcely a mile on any of our trunk lines where the slaughter of human life has not taken place. Count the spots along the routes and see how often the fences have been broken through by autos which shot over the embankment or turned upside down along the way.

How many more lives are to be sacrificed before something will be done to make the holders of automobile licenses sit up and take notice? The first rule in the book of Rules on Steam roads is: "In case of doubt take the side of safety." The first rule applicants for licenses should be forced to learn should read—Your life and the life of others are in your hands.

BOND SUBSCRIPTIONS SLACK TO IMPROVE GOLF COURSE

At a meeting to be held this (Friday) evening at the Wauregan House the board of governors of the Norwich Golf Club will present plans for action by members of the club. The meeting is called owing to the failure of the members to subscribe in full to the suggested bond issue of $60,000. To date but $33,000 has been subscribed and if the remainder of the bonds are not taken the proposed 18 hole course of the club cannot go through.

If enough money cannot be raised to extend the present nine hole course, restrictions must, of necessity, be put in force and the membership of the club, which is growing by leaps and bounds, will have to be restricted.

In explanation of the situation the following notice has been sent to the club members by the board of governors, C. Royce Boss, president.

Norwich, Conn., May 7, 1924.

A special meeting of the membership of the golf club is hereby called for Friday, May 9, 1924, at 7.30 p. m. at the Wauregan house, to consider the following recommendations which were unanimously adopted at a full meeting of the board of governors, held May 6, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

Your board of governors recommends that in view of the lack of interest as shown by the subscriptions to the Golf Land Company's bonds, the project of enlarging the facilities of the golf club should be dropped.

In explanation of this, total subscriptions received to date, $33,000; of this amount, $10,000 was subscribed by three members, leaving $23,000 subscribed by the rest of the membership which approximates 300 in number. This apparent indifference to the project requires the board of governors to make this recommendation.

Due to our present large membership and our restricted facilities, the board of governors further recommends the adoption of the following rules:

Only male members will be permitted to use the course on Saturday afternoons and Sunday morning and on Memorial day, Independence Day and Labor day. Guests will be permitted to play only on the above specified days when accompanied by a member.

Regulation of four-ball matches will be made with a view to give preference to two-ball matches.

A rule covering the right of precedence to those playing the 4th as opposed to those playing the 5th should be made in favor of those playing the 4th when they have advanced to or beyond a point south and west of the water pipe.

Rules covering the use of tennis courts should permit priority of arrival to determine the use of the court. Not more than two sets in succession to be played by the same players when other players are waiting.

Your attention is directed to the necessity of restricting further membership under present conditions.

NEW ENGLAND STATES SECOND IN RECRUITING

Comparative returns for the recruiting for the 1924 Citizens' Military Training Camps by the various Corps Areas up to April 11th made public today by the Adjutant General of the Army place the First Corps Area, comprising the six New England states, second on the numerical list of candidates accepted and third on the list of percentages of quotas filled. The Eighth Corps Area covering Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona stands first on the numerical list with 1093 men accepted for camp. New England had 941 accepted candidates as of April 10th. Third place is held by the Fifth Corps Area comprising Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana and Kentucky with a total of 691 accepted candidates of that date.

On the percentage list the standing is obtained by comparing the number of applications received which are considered acceptable with the quota set for the Corps Area. The Fourth Corps Area including the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana stands first with 3094 acceptable applications of a quota of 5800 giving her a percentage of 54.7. The Sixth Corps Area made up of Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin has 1862 acceptable applications, a quota of 4300 and a percentage figure of 45.9. The Corps Area stands third with 1158 acceptable applicants, a quota of 2500 giving a percentage of 44.2 obtained.

Returns brought down to last Thursday night for New England give a total of 1032 candidates actually accepted and notified of their acceptance. The detailed figures by states in New England place Massachusetts first among the six states in the First Corps Area with 338 men accepted, Maine stands second with 138, New Hampshire third with 62, Rhode Island fourth with 56, Connecticut fifth, with 51, and Vermont sixth with 35.

Six stills, two of them in operation, 30 gallons of moonshine whiskey, 46 quarts of beer and several barrels of mash were seized by members of the police liquor squad and a federal prohibition agent in raids made in Haverhill, Mass.

The Long-Life Enamel

THERE'S no end to the uses of Vitralite, the Long-Life Enamel, 'round the home. While it is the favored enamel of professional painters, its free-flowing, self-leveling and great covering properties have made it the amateur's standby. Vitralite dries with a beautiful porcelain-like gloss that lasts longer than paint, inside or outside, and is so durable that it is guaranteed for three years. The white and five beautiful tints will make a strong appeal to your sense of good taste when you see them at our store. Come in; see how beautiful Vitralite is.

NEW LONDON TO HAVE PENN. R. R. LINE STEAMER TO LONG ISLAND PORTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 8—A couple of big parcels of property were sold in this city today when the Connecticut Power company secured the building on Water street known as the C. D. Boss building. The transfer was made to the power company by the daughters of Mr. Boss and Frederick W. Mercer. The sale price was $50,000 of which $10,000 was paid down and the balance is to be paid February 18, 1925. The property was used years ago for the manufacture of the Boss crackers which had a reputation as wide as the boundaries of the United States. The business was founded by the grandfather of the grantors of the deed today and he made a fortune in the business, working himself as hard as any man in his employ to make a success of the establishment. The property was inherited by the father of the grantors and by him transferred to the sons. Then came the cracker trust and that dissipated the business of the Boss factory. It has been always said that Charles D. Boss, the father of the daughters who transferred the property to the Connecticut company might have sold out to the cracker trust, but he declined to do that. A competition was created that reduced the price of the goods in the market and Mr. Boss was finally driven out.

The Paty Schwartz company, in the grain business, today bought a section of the Armstrong building on Bank street, opposite the New London County Historical society building. The price paid was $16,000. The site of the building was a vacant lot when Frederick Sherman, W. R. Perry and B. A. Armstrong foresaw that sometime there would be a demand for a store or factory building. They bought it and on the site erected what was then one of the largest structures in the city. Trouble was experienced in getting a foundation for the building and piling had to be driven there and a great deal of filling was done. There is no cellar under the structure as the land was "made" and the piling and cementing stopped the inflow of water from the cove. Messrs. Sherman and Perry are now glad that their foresightedness is said to have been a success to the building noted by the cash of Mr. Armstrong. A spur track has been constructed in the rear of the building alongside the New Haven road tracks. That brought some litigation but this was finally adjusted. Lane A, which has always been a bone of contention as to whether it is a street, adjoins the property purchased.

In the Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers' circus which comes to New London next month there are 100 cars in the train and the management finds it impossible to arrange a street parade, when such a great volume of equipment is to be handled in so short a time.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Enrico Porsiri, 202 Shaw street to be suspended. The commissioner has caused the license of George Keenan, 14 Winthrop [illegible] to be returned to the owner.

Mrs. Joseph Saunders and infant son of Front street; Clarence Thompson of Westerly, Mrs. Vernon Parker of Eastern Point road, Groton; Miss Ava O'Connell of Westerly and Mrs. [illegible] of Granite street, passed the Lawrence hospital [illegible] were discharged today.

The funeral of John F. Waite was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at [illegible] Masonic Temple. The services were conducted by officers of Pequot Commandery. Members of the order also acted as bearers. Burial was in the family plot in Elmgrove cemetery.

The body of Mrs. Lena Chapman, [illegible] resident of Groton, whose death occurred at her home in Wa[illegible] early in the week, arrived here yesterday afternoon for burial. The latter part of the week [illegible]

William Prescott, Jr., a resident of Fea Minor Lane, Waterford, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton, in Waterford town court, this morning charged by his wife with the non-support of their four children. The case was continued until August 2nd and Prescott furnished as surety on his bond of $250 for appearance at that time Richard Smith of Waterford. Mrs. Prescott refuses to reside with her husband, but is insistent that Prescott shall support their four children. As Prescott agreed to contribute $12 weekly for the support of the children a continuance was ordered for the purpose of determining whether or not it will keep his promise. If it does the matter will probably be dismissed of by a nolle be entered, but if he refuses to support his offspring he will be prosecuted. Prescott was arrested several days ago by State Policeman Bernard W. Kenerson, of Groton barracks.

Solomon Ockoneff, 20 [illegible] proprietor of the jewelry [illegible] State street, is [illegible] at Hartford Memorial hospital [illegible] having collapsed at his place of business this forenoon. It was [illegible] first believed that Mr. Ockoneff suffered a shock, but after the arrival of a physician, it was learned that the case was not so serious as feared, but such as to warrant Mr. Ockoneff's transfer to the hospital. This afternoon it was stated that Mr. Ockoneff was resting comfortably.

Sergeant Frank Howard left this afternoon at 4 o'clock for Hartford and Albany, where he will obtain extradition papers for Lawrence W. Easton, formerly of New London, who is under arrest in New York on a warrant issued by the New London authorities, charging Easton with forgery. It is believed that Sergeant Howard and his prisoner will arrive in New London Saturday or Sunday.

Easton is accused of forging a check of the Structure Oil company of New London drawn upon the Old Colony Trust company for $165. The check was negotiated by Easton through the French-Lindsey company of Pittsburgh and was signed by F. L. Drake, treasurer of the oil company and countersigned by L. T. Spear.

Joseph Adams, a Polish man living at 76 Boswell avenue, Norwich, will be in the police court tomorrow morning charged with violation of the automobile law. Adams was arrested this morning by State Policeman Fred Caron of the Groton barracks and was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $200 in Louis Lubchansky. Adams is alleged to have operated a truck heavily laden through Bank street late yesterday afternoon. When the truck was near the corner of Ocean avenue, Officer Caron happened along and inspecting the load he was satisfied that the quantity of material the truck carried weighed greatly in excess of that which is allowed by law. When the load was weighed it was revealed that the load weighed 6500 pounds more than the truck is allowed to carry. Adams was ordered to appear in the police court this forenoon, but he was not presented, the case being deferred until tomorrow.

Adams was then taken into custody and compelled to furnish a surety for appearance tomorrow.

When the public ball field was provided for athletic purposes it was supposed that the grounds and the buildings on them would be protected by those using them to the extent that no one would molest any property there. That idea seems to have been an erroneous one, for twice in four days the building in which field property is kept on the Caulkins park has been broken into and last night a catcher's glove that cost $6 and a couple of baseballs that are worth $4 were stolen. The physical director employed at the grounds has notified the police. It is believed that boys are guilty of the thefts.

Iman Ellonsky has purchased the building on Bank street where the Philadelphia Clothing company was located before the owner went from New London leaving creditors to look for what he owed them. He is understood to be in Philadelphia. Ellonsky has already partitioned the building so that two stores will hereafter be where one was previously established.

The body of Miss Chapman, the sister of Mrs. A. F. Crumb of Groton arrived here from Washington this evening at 6.40. The burial will be in Groton.

The work of rebuilding Howard St. highway is going on so that that section of the highway south of Hamilton street is nearly all cemented. The bridge work goes on slowly, but month of the bridge the work of laying cement will begin in a day or two.

Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ is confined to his home, 95 Federal street, suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism.

Silas Maxson, Jr., has sold a house and lot at 580 Montauk avenue to George E. Watters, superintendent of the board of water and sewer commissioners.

Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield has returned to New London, having been in attendance several days of the eleventh annual session of the [illegible] superintendents in New York city. On the return trip to New London Mr. Mansfield stopped at Bridgeport and attended a session of the [illegible] conference.

Miss Irene Johnson a trained nurse in New York, returned to that city today, after spending several days with relatives here.

George Hoyt, [illegible] Elizabeth street, has returned to attend [illegible] to that time he will visit Lake Placid, N. Y. and Montreal, Can.

Samuel M. Breed of Federal St. was in New York today and attended the funeral of Edward Lewis [illegible] Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Mrs. Thomas Joyce of Dunn Square, Mrs. [illegible] of St. Patrick's rectory, Mrs. [illegible] of Mohegan avenue, Mrs. [illegible] Jones and Mrs. [illegible] Jones.

Mrs. Graham S. Hislop and daughter, Miss Margaret and Master [illegible] Hislop, have returned to their home in Montreal, Que., after visiting Mrs. Hislop's parents, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Jones.

Some time ago, practically all the merchants agreed to close their stores [illegible] but it has become known that some of the merchants intend to break away from the agreement and keep their stores open during the early Saturday evening, an evidence of this change is noted in the fact that several of the hardware stores have decided to keep open until 8 o'clock and it is understood that the movement to return to a later Saturday closing hour will be taken up by other store-keepers within a short time.

An automobile owned by Mrs. Margaret Cleary, 93 Ocean avenue and operated by Stephen Roache, of Quaker Hill, and a machine operated by Mrs. E. Alexander, 254 Jefferson avenue, were in collision late this afternoon at the corner of Lincoln and Connecticut avenues. Both cars were damaged, but the machine operated by Mrs. Alexander sustained the brunt of the damage for a wheel cap was knocked off and the car was forced across the highway and against a support to a letter box. Mrs. Alexander placed the responsibility for the collision upon Roache, who she declared, was driving at a high rate of speed.

New London is to have another marine line, for it became known today that steamer Shinnecock, owned by the Pennsylvania railroad is to be operated between New London and Long Island ports.

The first of the trips will be made next Wednesday when the steamer will arrive here with about 200 men and women, the party to include officials of the road and prominent business men of Long Island and New York. The visitors will be met at the city pier by a delegation of New London business men, after which the gathering will be given lunch at the Hotel Mohican. The Pennsylvania railroad's Sunshine band, will accompany the visitors. The Shinnecock will be operated chiefly to accommodate tourists and is capable of carrying 60 automobiles.

Another special deputy has been placed under Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott, of the state domestic of animals' department, yesterday Chauncey B. Ganung, of Morris, was appointed by Commissioner Whittlesey. Chief Elliott is well known in New London and Norwich, in which cities much of his work has been centered for several months.

Miss Irene St. Germain of Waterford and Mrs. Fred Burdick of Howard street, were patients discharged at Home Memorial hospital yesterday.

Henry Cooper of Greenport, owner of the launch K-13686, which was seized off Montauk Point several weeks ago, it being alleged that the craft was a rum-runner, who has been held for trial of charges of violation of the navigation laws, was acquitted of the charges, late Tuesday, at a hearing before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson at the customs house. The charges against Cooper were proceeding upon a foreign voyage without obtaining clearance papers and failing to file a manifest. The K-13686 was seized by the revenue cutter Seminole, Lieutenant Commander Dench, off Montauk Point, it being contended that the launch had been to some of the liquor laden craft at Rum Row, for the purpose of obtaining a quantity of liquor. No liquor, however, was found on the launch, which was ordered to a port and which has been moored here ever since.

The black-heart cherry tree in front of the one-time Joseph Brown property is in full bloom. At one time there used to be a considerable number of this fine species of cherry in town; now this one is about all that remains. The fruit is large and luscious, and when ripe takes on a very deep shade of red.

This week so far, seventeen delinquents have been obliged to pay fines for failing to register their dogs. Eight in Lisbon and nine in this borough had to come across with the coin.

At a special meeting of the Read and Herskell Cemetery association, held in the Jewett City bank Tuesday, Harry L. Hull of Lisbon was elected clerk and treasurer, also trustee and sexton to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George A. Haskell, who has been clerk and treasurer since 1893, a period of 31 years.

The selectmen of the town of Lisbon have just acquired a valuable asset in a parcel of land from the Versailles Fibre Company, Inc., for highway purposes which will complete the new road from the old Learned homstead to the Versailles mill.

People on Main street were watching with interest, Thursday evening a flock of chimney swallows flying erratically about over the borough. Many can recall when these birds used to [illegible] chimney of the Fred Fanning house. They lived by the hundreds in this great flue which morning and evening it was their custom to leave and return to in a body.

Few sights in the bird world were locally more familiar. Their rapid, arrow-like flight would continue until dusk had deepened. Then when over the chimney, with much fluttering of wings, they would drop into it great black mouth, literally by the bushel, all coming together in a compact stream.

Of late years the small modern chimneys afford them but little comfort, and only a few straggling pairs have been noted for several seasons. Forty-odd years ago, when the Jewett City boys used to be much interested in getting a complete collection of birds eggs, it was always a great problem to secure the egg of the chimney swift.

Mr. Fanning, once permitted three local boys to take out the fire board in the old disused fireplace. Every boy proved to be too fat by half and it can be safely said, that no darkness ever equalled that thick sooty sort, to be met with inside a chimney. The boys also mounted the roof with a garden rake and an old lantern, but the up-rush of air in the roaring draft, would put out the light when it was let down ten feet at the end of a fish pole. These swallows also lived in considerable numbers in the chimney at the old Jabez L. Benjamin house in Lisbon. E. C. Willcox was a farm hand there at that time, and being interested in the boys' desire to get a few eggs, he invited them over one night in early June, they went, having warded the Quinebaug. After the old man was in bed, the trio with Mr. Willcox in the lead, visited every room in the great farm house and took out the pipe hole covers, then carefully reached in and felt along the rough sooty bricks. In one of the upper chambers, three nests were reached [illegible] Today one of the boys, only a little older [illegible] has one of the eggs to show which he got with much fear and trembling in that old farm house chimney, 45 years ago.

STATISTICS OF PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES IN MASSACHUSETTS

Boston, May 8.—Official returns of the Massachusetts presidential primaries on April 29, announced by the secretary of state today, showed that although there was no contest for republican delegates-at-large, all pledged to President Coolidge, the republican vote was about 10,000 greater than that in the presidential primaries four years ago. The democratic vote was 20,000 in excess of 1920.

In the democratic contest for delegates-at-large, with nine candidates for the eight places, all but one unpledged, Senator David I. Walsh led with 42,922 and Brigadier General Charles H. Cole, independent candidate, favorable to Governor Smith of New York, was second with 31,904. The press returns on the night of the primary gave Walsh 42,994 and Cole 31,849.

Governor Channing H. Cox headed the republican ticket with 89,536, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was second with 86,543.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS QUIET.

New York, May 8.—Reactionary price movements predominated in today's dull and uninteresting stock market, the quietest full day session this year.

A wave of short selling at the opening undoubtedly was based on the senate's insertion in the tax bill of a graduated levy on undistributed corporate earnings. Forced recessions of a point or so in a number of the industrial leaders failed to bring out any large volume of stock and aggressive tactics on the short side were soon abandoned.

Oils proved vulnerable to selling pressure on publication of the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute showing another increase in crude production for the week ended May 3. Sinclair was the chief target for the attack, establishing a new 1924 low at 18 1-8 and then rallying to 18 3-4. Wall street heard after the market closed that the Sinclair company had arranged a banking credit of $25,000,000 which would take care of its financial needs until next year.

Atlantic Refining was hammered down nearly five points to 106 and then rallied to 107. Sinclair preferred touched a new bottom at 77, or four points below yesterday's final quotation. Losses of a point or so were recovered by General Asphalt, Mexican Seaboard certificates and Producers and Refiners.

Rails showed up relatively well, Lackawanna standing out with a net gain of 2 3-4 at 110 1-4 while gains of approximately a point or so were recovered by Chesapeake and Ohio, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, New Haven, Frisco preferred and Chicago and Northwestern.

All the so-called pivotal industrial stocks closed below yesterday's final figures. American Can and Baldwin showed losses of about a point each at 102 3-4 and 112, respectively; Studebaker dropped half to 35 3-4 and U. S. Steel closed 3-8 lower at 98 1-8.

While price movements in general were rather narrow, losses of a point or more were recorded by Dupont, General Electric, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, American Radiator, Fisher Body, International Business Machine, Yellow Cab, Tobacco Products and National Lead.

Foreign exchanges were decidedly reactionary presumably on selling inspired by reports of labor troubles in the Ruhr. Demand sterling droped about two cents over night to $4.36 1-2 and then rallied slightly. French francs broke approximately fifty points to around 5.90 cents and then recovered about half of their loss. Moderate losses were recorded by most of the other principal European rates.

Call money again ruled unchanged at 3 1-2 per cent. The time money market was quite with 4 1-4 per cent the prevailing rate. Borrowers were not disposed to bid over four per cent. for the shorter maturities. Prime commercial paper continued to command 4 1-2 per cent., with some exceptionally good names being quoted slightly below that figure.

TELLS WHAT CONNECTICUT DOES IN SUN CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

What the state of Connecticut is doing at the Seaside Sanatorium at Waterbury in the treatment of non-pulmonary tuberculosis in children was described by Dr. John F. O'Brien, superintendent of The Seaside, in a paper read at the New England Health Institute at Boston this week. His subject was Non-Pulmonary Tuberculosis.

Dr. O'Brien's paper was in part as follows:

It is right and proper that, in this [illegible] tuberculosis tragedy, the pulmonary [illegible] should occupy the center [illegible] stage. And yet tuberculosis [illegible] in its aspects fully as tragic even [illegible] are not so common. genic tubercle bacillo. We also have a culture of the bacillus subtilis, an organism to be found in abundance in trees and grass, which now grows slowly, shows the same staining peculiarities, and under the microcope appears identical with the tubercle bacillus.

Therefore we must conclude that bacteria are no exception to the general biologic rule that there is nothing constant in nature. Then, at least, a rational explanation of the phenomenon mentioned above suggests itself. Whatever the source of infection, the profuse amount of lymphoid tissue in the child tends to develop an organism corresponding to the bovine bacillus. In adult life with the disappearance of lymphoid tissue and other tissue changes, it becomes necessary for this to change over into the human type. If we concede this possibility, can we any longer contend that tuberculosis would be eradicated even if all the tubercle bacilli could be killed off? Would not the disease reappear in our dark, damp and dirty stables, in our poorly lighted and poorly ventilated dwellings; among the under-nourished and over-worried; among those who try to burn the candle at both ends; among the alcoholics; among the very classes where it exists today? Would not new tubercle bacilli develop from what are now harmless saprophites?

Then why concern ourselves too much about the tubercle bacillus? The soil is of much more importance than the seed—"And some fell on good ground and when it had sprung up [illegible] forth fruit a hundred fold; and other some fell by the wayside where it was trodden down, and the [illegible]rds of the air devoured it."

Gospel of Open Spaces

The gospel of open spaces and fresh air and sunlight has been preached for years as a cure and preventative for tuberculosis, but the greatest of these is sunlight.

If everything on this earth is so absolutely dependent upon, and so profoundly affected by the sun, is it conceivable that man alone can shut [illegible] indoors, away from its benefic rays and not pay a penalty?

About twenty years ago, a strange word began to appear in medical literature. Dr. Rollier was writing about his work in the Alps. Those sufficiently interested to look up this word in the dictionary found that like many of our medical terms, it was borrowed from the Greek and the first part of it meant sun and the other part meant treatment—Heliotherapy or sun-treatment. Perhaps this would explain the miraculous cures of non-pulmonary tuberculosis which had been occurring at the [illegible]ch Seaside Sanatorium at Barèk, Calot denied it. He attributed the [illegible] air, the salt water [illegible] the modifying injections. [illegible] admitting the in[illegible] factors insisted that [illegible] fixation obtained by Ca[illegible] his nicely fitting and beautiful [illegible] plasters, had much to [illegible] the results. But Rollier away from the sea using no plaster apparatus even without the modifying injections, was reporting equally good results. To this day the two men with their followers have waged a controversy in Europe about their respective methods of treatment. It should be noted, however, that each uses sunlight.

Challenges Rollier Statement.

There is one very positive statement which Rollier makes and which is repeated by his followers in America. This statement I and no other man with orthopedic experience can allow to go unchallenged. He claims, as have other men in the past who have confused cause and effect, that fixation of a joint with plaster of paris causes ankylosis. I deny it, and in this I am sustained by the best authorities in this country and in Europe. Fixation of a joint never causes ankylosis. If anyylosis occurs, it is due to disease, for fixation preserves function. Wherever there is motion there is found red bone marrow. Restrict the motion and the red bone marrow gives place to yellow bone marrow. remove the red bone marrow and you remove the favorite food of the tubercle bacillus and assist in the cure.

Connecticut's Sun Treatment.

The state sanatoria of New England are now showing a keen interest in this important work and are nearly all utilizing heliotherapy in the treatment of non-pulmonary tuberculosis.

Five years ago Connecticut made her first offering at the shrine of heliotherapy when she opened at Niantic her Seaside Sanatorium for the care of non-pulmonary tuberculosis. Why at the seaside? Because Connecticut knows that the sun does not disdain but rather is grateful for the help she receives in disseminating her rays from myriads of ripples on the water, even from each tiny particle of sand on the beach; because she knows that even the color of the sand is important and has therefore shown her wisdom in establishing her sanatorium on a beach with the whitest sand available; because she knows that the torrid heat of the summer is less enervating if moderated by the cooling breeze; because she knows that all-wise nature stores away this same excessive heat in the vast ocean only to return it later, and so temper the severity of the winter; because she knows that sea bathing by stimulating and invigorating and refreshing our patients give them joy and comfort, and that the plunge into the cold water increase their metabolism and thus acts as an important adjunct in the cure. Each morning at Connecticut Seaside Sanatorium, where I have the honor to be superintendent, fifty-nine little brown children look out over the great Atlantic, from the beach or from their open porches, and see their hope of life and health slowly rise above the eastern horizon, and from then until it sets in the west their naked bodies are exposed whenever possible to its healing rays. For here we are using, heliotherapy as intensively, as far as I can learn, as any place in this country, or, for that matter, any place in the world. Our regulation heliotherapy uniform, designed to permit a maximum of exposure, consists of a pair of very abbreviated bloomers, and serves alone as a school dress, a dinner dress, baseball uniform and a bathing suit. When sliding on the hills or skating on the pond, our children are also allowed mittens, ear laps shoes and arctics. At no time, however, do they wear ordinary cloth.

In spite of, or perhaps I should say, because of their outdoor life and their scanty apparel there is a remarkable absence of diseases of the respiratory tract which are so prevalent in childhood. Since our institution has been open there have been no cases of broncho or lobar pneumonia, and no severe cases of croup, either spasmodic or membranous. Although middle ear disease is a notoriously frequent complication of non-pulmonary tuberculosis and although a good proportion of our children present this complication on entrance, nevertheless only one such case has developed after the child came to us. And this is true in spite of the fact that the children are allowed to go swimming during any month of the year. It has been our experience that exposure of the naked body in all kinds of weather not only does not cause what we all know as common colds, but is actually the most effective method of prevention.

Sun-Browned Children.

In using such a powerful therapeutic weapon as unfiltered sunlight, it is necessary to proceed cautiously, and expose only a small portion of the body at first, and that for but a few minutes daily. We have adopted the method elaborated by Rollier. The first day the feet are exposed for five minutes three times a day; the second day the legs five minutes and the feet ten minutes, three times a day; the third day the thighs five minutes, the legs ten minutes, and the feet fifteen minutes three times a day. Next is added exposure of the abdomen, the chest, the back, the forearms and the arms. At the end of ten days we have obtained a complete exposure, while at the end of three weeks our patients are permitted unlimited time in the sun. And then we watch the greatest of all physicians as it tans their bodies and quiets their pain, bringing sweet and peaceful slumber, sending enriched and purified blood through their veins, bringing the glow of health into their cheeks and laughter and luster to their eyes. Seeing this, the surgeon with a feeling of awe and gratitude lays aside his scalpel and agrees that non-pulmonary tuberculosis shall no longer be known as surgical tuberculosis and thanks God for the sunlight. Under this treatment there is a remarkable gain in weight. Our children have averaged 11 1-4 pounds a year, which is in marked contract to the average gain of from 4 to 6 pounds that normal children show.

Perhaps the question will enter your minds, why are your children not allowed to wear their clothing on cloudy days in the winter? Would it not be better to be out of doors for most of the day fully-clothed than to be out for five or ten minute intervals without clothing. To the former question I will answer that even on cloudy days, especially near the shore, the amount of sunshine filtering through the clouds is considerable, as anyone will testify who has exposed unprotected and unaccustomed skin on the beach during such weather. Then, too, by doing this our children are more resistant to the cold and can remain out with less discomfort on the more moderate winter days than do those who wear clothing part of the time. To the second question I must say that I am unwilling to concede that there is any greater benefit to be obtained by being out of doors most of the day fully clothed than there is in keeping the skin unprotected throughout the day even though the severity of the weather necessitates remaining indoors a good portion of the time. No one has ever said much about aerotherapy or exposing the naked body to the air, because it is necessarily done when practicing sun treatment and yet everyone agrees that cold air on the uncovered skin has a stimulating and invigorating effect. This effect can be obtained within doors if the building is moderately well ventilated and not over-heated, as it is due to the increased metabolism associated with more rapid elimination of the body heat.

In selecting a location for the treatment of non-pulmonary tuberculosis it is necessary to exercise even more care than in the treatment of pulmonary disease. When that great pioneer and teacher, Dr. Trudeau built the first sanatorium in America he was very careful in choosing his site. With the vast unpopulated country available why did he decide on that particular spot? His own simple and [illegible] logical explanation was that there he could always light his pipe. The surrounding hills afforded him protection from the winds.

For every day in the year we took the temperature of the southern exposure of our building, of the northern exposure, and of the sea water as the waves rolled over the white sandy beach.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

Two automobiles were damaged and one of the drivers, Jesse Inman of [illegible] sustained a cut on the head early after seven o'clock Friday morning when the two cars collided at [illegible] main street opposite the intersection of [illegible] street. Inman came [illegible] a truck roadster while [illegible] drivers in a Dodge roadster was traveling in a westerly [illegible] and struck the Inman machine a broadside blow, as the latter car was coming into Main. Mr. Inman was thrown against one of the rods of the top of the car and was cut in two places on the head. The left running board and fender were smashed on this car. One fender and the axle were somewhat damaged on the Warner machine. After assisting Mr. Warner to the office of Dr. S. J. Turcotte, both men call[illegible] on lice station and reported to Chief of Police MacArthur. They came to a mutual settlement, so no action was taken by the authorities.

At the session of police court Friday morning three cases of intoxication were heard and disposed of. Lieutenant Frank McLean and Officer Roderick Lariviere, who made the arrests about one o'clock Friday morning on Main street, testified against the three. Adam Fuchs and Joseph Moriarty pleaded guilty but the other member of the trio, William Timmins entered a plea of not guilty, saying he had not had a single drink and that Lieutenant McLean had arrested him simply because he had a grudge against him. By permission of the court, Timmins attempted to cross examine the lieutenant but this led to an argument and Timmins was ordered to stop. Judge Foss could not see the affair from Timmins' viewpoint and sentenced him to thirty days in jail, Timmins gave notice of an appeal to the superior court. Fuchs has a good sized record on the court books and he was fined $15 and costs, amounting to $22.15 which he paid. Moriarty was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $17.15 with a suspended thirty-day jail sentence.

When the tie rod of the steering gear of a Willys-Knight machine owned and driven by Harold S. Maine of this city broke late Thursday afternoon in Franklin, the machine ran wild and crashed into a bank at one side of the road, overturning and breaking off the right front wheel of the car. With Mr. Maine were Edgar E. Bass and Herbert D. Pollard, who were shaken up by the accident. All three men are officials of the Windham National Bank here. Mr. Maine was slightly cut on one hand by broken glass. The men were brought to this city from the site of the accident which was opposite the home of Thomas Newman on the Norwich-Willimantic highway. The car was hauled to this city for repairs.

Harold Hansen was in Glastonbury Tuesday.

Rev. J. W. Carpenter and daughter were in Hartford Wednesday.

The Bible study class was held in the chapel Wednesday afternoon.

The burning of the mortgage at Eber Dunham Memorial church, Sunday evening, was an event to be remembered by those who witnessed it, little Marjorie Gergler, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gergler playing a prominent part by dropping the documents ablaze into the urn where it was soon reduced to ashes, the congregation meantime singing, Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow. Mrs. Merritt Smith gave a very interesting history leading up to the organization of the church, May 21, 1907.

Mrs. Smith said in substance:

Fifty-two years ago I attended my first religious service at Mansfield Depot (having just moved there) in the little red schoolhouse on the hill.

Our preaching service, Sunday school and prayer meetings were held there until the little red schoolhouse was sold and a larger and more modern building replaced it. As religious services in the new school building were prohibited the meetings and Sunday school were held in my front yard during the summer, boxes and planks serving as seats. When the weather became too cold the services were held around at the different homes.

Meantime Eber Dunham, a resident, and who had been a faithful attendant at the meetings, died, leaving by will an amount of money which, when it reached a certain sum should be used to build a Baptist church at Mansfield Depot. Thirty-three years ago the Union chapel was built, the money being raised by subscription.

In 1907 the Eber Dunham Memorial Fund had reached the amount specified in the will and the church was organized May 21.

They then bought the Union chapel and the church was erected, being connected with the chapel. The church was dedicated in 1908 and services have been held in it ever since. We had no resident pastor until quite years ago when the Brown property was bought by the church and converted into a parsonage.

The Union Chapel society presented the church the proceeds of the sale of the chapel. Interest accumulated, but still there was $1,300 lacking. The money was borrowed by mortgaging the property. We are very happy tonight that we are freed from debt and may God bless and prosper us in the future, as He has done in the past.

Mrs. Algure sang a solo, Mrs. E. B. Thompson read the names of those who responded to Dollar Day for the benefit of the church mortgage. The meeting was closed by prayer and benediction by the pastor.

LEBANON

At the Baptist church, Sunday morning there was a communion sermon. A duet, "The Old Rugged Cross" was sung by Rev. A. G. Littlefield and Miss Mary Chappell. Next Sunday's subject is "The Laws of God and the Laws of Man." Following the preaching service was communion at which time the right hand of fellowship was given to Ernest Martin, a former member of the Baptist church, but for several years a member of the Methodist church in Willimantic, from which church he has now taken a letter.

At the C. E. meeting Miss Cora Chappell was leader. The following delegates were appointed to the State C. E. Convention to be held in Hartford next week: Miss Beatrice Littlefield, Miss Flora Bruce, Miss Cora Chappell and Abraham Aspinall.

Students' Fees Pay Small Part of Cost

Not less than $10,000,000 is required adequately to endow a modern medical school and double or treble that sum is not too much if the school is to include in its scope all the specialities of medicine and surgery, according to Dr. E. D. Burton, president of Chicago University. The days have long gone by in which a group of physicians could supplement their income by conducting a medical school for pecuniary profit.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Franz Schubert's lovely music, sung by artists whose voices are an inspiration, and whose acting is as great as their voices, was heard last evening in "Blossom Time," making its first appearance in a two-day booking at the Strong theatre. This tuneful and decidedly dramatic musical play is fashioned against the colorful background of old Vienna, and the stage effects and costuming give a striking picture of that romantic city during the early part of the 19th century.

"Blossom Time" is a delightful blending of comedy and tragedy, the lilting strains of light musical comedy with the more powerful vocal efforts of opera, which carries the interest, something which cannot be said for the average "slapped-together" connection between the songs of the present day musical comedy.

There is nearly everything that the most exacting could ask for in "Blossom Time," and it is all well done, the songs, the orchestra accompaniment, the acting, the dancing (and there is much of this, all executed with a grace much above the average), the humor, the costuming, the stage setting. In fact, "Blossom Time" is an achievement of which the producers, the Messrs. Shubert, may well be proud.

There are moments in this musical play which are so inspiring as to carry the lover of great artistry out of himself. One of these is the end of the second act, when Joseph Mendelsohn as "Franz Schubert" renounces his love and turns to his music to drive out the pain which has come into his heart. Mr. Mendelsohn's acting at that point, together with his powerful voice, captivated the capacity audience and there were several minutes of continuous applause until Mr. Mendelsohn finally appeared in a curtain call, when the applause increased to a deafening tribute such as few actors have received in this city.—From Burlington Free Press and Times, May 3.

Now that King Tut-Ankh-Amen has been exhumed after 3000 years of mummified slumber, the eyes of the world are centered on the Nile country.

Unusual interest, therefore, attaches to the fact that the William Fox special photoplay, "The Shepherd King" was filmed in Egypt, many of the scenes being taken in the Valley of the Kings on almost the exact spot where scientists and archaeologists are bringing to light relics of the ancient glory of the Pharaohs.

When J. Gorden Edwards, the Fox motion picture director, was put in charge of the production he was given carte blanch in obtaining authentic and realistic setting for this spectacular photodrama based on the life of David of Biblical times. The prologue of the story shows Moses leading the Israelites out of Egypt. Mr. Edward took the entire company to Egypt, assembled several thousand Egyptians, and then proceeded to the Valley of the Kings. Many of the most striking scenes were taken on the identical spot where a few months later Lord Carnarvon and Mr. Carver uncovered the long sought tomb of the illustrious Pharaoh.

It is something more than local color that these graphic Egyptian scenes in "The Shepherd King" bring to the millions who have read the accounts of the excavations now being conducted in the Valley of Kings. It is a page of history, significant, colorful and soul-stirring, depicted in the very locale where thousands of years ago the most heroic figure of Biblical times led an entire race of people out of bondage into the Promised Land, a historical event that stirs the imagination and thrills the heart as no romance could that has sprung from the mind of man. The realism of that scene alone—the Exodus—stamps this marvelous production as something unique in pictorial art. The number of people in this big scene exceeded 5,000, a veritable army recruited from Palestine and the Nile country.

This picturization of the stage play by Weight Lorimer and Arnold Reeves, will be shown at the Breed theatre starting Sunday. Violet Mersereau has the leading feminine role in the photoplay which was adapted by Virginia Tracey.

One of the season's finest pictures will be [illegible] tomorrow. It's "The Stranger," a Paramount picturization of a story by John Galsworthy. Betty Compson, Richard Dix, Lewis Stone and Tully Marshall are the featured players.

Even if film fans will but remember the [illegible] Dix of "The Christian," Lewis Stone of "Scaramouche" and Tully Marshall of "The Covered Wagon" and mingle them all in one picture, they can then frame out an inaccurate guess on what "The Stranger" is like. You have to see it actually realize how really big this production is. It's a story of regeneration, chuck full of heart-interest and appeal.

Richard Dix has always been one of our favorites, and there's nobody quite like Lewis Stone for a role such as Keith Darrart.

Regular short subjects will also be featured.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Norwich public will have the opportunity to see in person that popular western motion picture star, Franklin Farnum, the man of a thousand thrills, in a monologue of Hollywood. Four other Keith acts will also be on the same program.

WHAT IS ORANGE PEKOE TEA?

Let me have a pot of Orange Pekoe tea. How often do we hear this expression in restaurants and tea rooms. Yet, if you asked "what is Orange Pekoe," the answer would almost invariably be, "I don't know, but I do know it is supposed to be good tea."

Once and for all, let us explain that Orange Pekoe is simply the name of the leaf and the distinguishing mark of the size of the leaf. It is not arbitrarily nor necessarily the best tea by any means. You may have a good, bad, or indifferent Orange Pekoe tea, all depending upon the elevation above sea level at which the tea plant is grown.

Goodness of the leaf is judged by the flavor which depends upon two things—the elevation at which the plant is grown and the care exercised in the manufacture of the tea. The higher the elevation of the tea garden, the richer the leaf is in essential oil which constitutes its flavor.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AT PALACE

Without exception the members of the cast of Mary Pickford's new and latest photoplay for United Artists Corporation, Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall which will open a four days engagement at the Palace theatre commencing (tomorrow) night, Sunday May 11th, at 7.30 P. M. and twice daily thereafter at 2.15 and 8.15, constitutes in even greater segregation of stage and screen stars than any list of players that ever supported her in any of her previous offerings.

Miss Pickford in the role of Dorothy Vernon is again the grown young woman. This character, however, is wholly different from that of the little street singer so exquisitely portrayed in Rosita, the picture in which Miss Pickford first assumed a grown-up role.

The part of Sir John Manners is layed by Allan Forrest, who recently worked in Jackie Coogan's In the Palace of the King.

Anders Randolf, who appeared in The Bright Shawl, takes the part of Sir George Vernon, and Marc McDermott, well known on stage and screen, makes an admirable Sir Malcolm Vernon, Cousin of Dorothy, to whom she has been bethrothed against her will.

Queen Elizabeth is interpreted by Clare Eames, well known in both this country and Europe for her brilliant work as England's famous queen.

Mme. Carrie Daumery, widow of the famous violinist, Yeaye, has the part of Lady Vernon, mothe of Sir Malcolm, and Lord Burley, Councellor to Queen Elizabeth, is ably handled by Eric Mayne, who did notable work in "Suzanna" and "The Light that Failed."

Lottie Pickford Forrest, sister of the star and who has not been seen on the screen for more than two years, is cast as Jenny Faxton, maid and confidante of Dorothy Vernon, and the part of Perkins, servant and retainer of Sir John Manners, is played by Malcolm Waite.

In the role of the Earl of Rutland is Wilfred Lucas, while Courtenay Foote portrays the Earl of Leicester. Each of these two players has had extensive experience.

All seats are reserved for this engagement and now on sale at the box office for entire engagement. This picture will not be shown in any other theatre in Norwich this year at lower prices.

Palace Theatre

Thanks to the genius of Willie Fung, Chinese boy, who played a "bit" part in Her Temporary Husband, which is now playing at the Palace and last showing tonight.

John McDermott, the director, was able to view the total eclipse of the sun which was visable in California during the production of that First National picture.

The day before the eclipse the popular director sprained his back while diving at Santa Monica beach. Next day he was unable to raise his head more than a few inches. At noon time, when the rest of the company was "taking in" the eclipse a la smoked glasses, McDermott stood in the background cursing his luck because he was physically unable to raise his eyes sun-ward.

Then entered Willie Fung with a brilliant idea. He ran for a pail of water, which he placed on the ground so that the reflection of the sun could be seen on the surface of the clear water. Thus McDermott was able to gaze down at the water and see the phenomenon he otherwise would have missed.

Added attractions, a two-reel photo play The Northern Trail with Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery and Ethel Grey Terry; also latest Pathe review, and Educational From the Windows of my House the apice of the program. Continous showing today 1.30 to 10.30 daylight time.

Strand Theatre

Are we responsible to others for our actions? Do we harm only ourselves by the thoughtless things we do—or is each detail of our daily life bound up inextricably with the network of someone else's whom we must also harm? Must we, eventually, account to society for what we do?

This is the big problem that many people have asked themselves—and it is this gripping question that, it is treated with amazing force in the new feature film, "Forgive and Forget," which comes to the Strand theatre on Monday. In this production it is a young wife who thinks that her life is hers, and that if she flirts a little, is just a tiny bit indiscreet, gets herself whispered about here and there—it is only to herself that she must answer. And then, like a bolt from a clear sky, comes the crushing result of the actions she thought were "nobody's business—just a little, harmless fun."

Estelle Taylor, Pauline Garon, Wyndham Standing, Josef Swickard, Philo McCullough, Raymond McKee, Vernon Steele, and Lionel Belmore make this literally an "all star cast." Howard M. Mitchell has given excellent direction and Harry Cohn has established himself again a producer of rare intelligence.

First German Lutheran Church

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, meeting of the Ladies' Aid society in the church parlors.

Friday night at 7.30, choir rehearsal, Saturday morning at 10; German school and religious instruction.

EMPIRE Milking Machines

TRADE MARK REG.

Terry Grice and part of his herd

Empire Double Unit

155,000 Milkings in 9 years with his Empire Milking Machine

In service 9 years—milked 6200 times—milked 25 cows each time—155,000 milkings in 9 years—one man does more than three hand milkers.

40 to 50 days' extra milk from each cow—800 pounds' extra milk per cow each year—cows in better condition—respond to feed quicker—better cream and better sales—extra profits.

Why Farmers Use More Empires Than Any Other Make

Now get this straight—it is the difference between the Empire and all other machines that gives Terry Grice and every user of an Empire the extra profits—less work, less labor, more milk and cleaner milk.

No matter what may be said about other milkers, farmers have nothing but good words for the Empire. And that's to be expected.

And another thing—having an agent close at hand is a big asset—quick, prompt service. We make the change over to machine milking for you. Also large stock of parts in stock. Better talk to us about an Empire Milker.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

There was a session of the town court Friday morning, Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding, to consider one case—that of E. Leonard Grees, of Cranston, R I., charged with reckless driving of an automobile. Judge Woodward imposed a fine of $25 and actual costs, remitting $20 of the fine. Mr. Grees is a traveling salesman who mages regular visits into this territory.

While injunction proceedings are pending between the Crystal Water company and the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, work on putting in the high pressure gas mains between Danielson and Putnam is proceeding. Along the route near White's crossing, in the town of Putnam, about a mile of ditch has been opened. Digging has been undertaken there in order that the gas main may be put in and the ditch filled before that route comes into use as a detour while concrete roadway is being built on the trunk line between Attawaugan and Putnam. No operations have been undertaken along North Main street since the injunction was issued a week ago.

On Mechanic street, where the first of the trench digging for the gas line was done, a long section of the main has been welded together. An air compressor will be brought here the first of next week to test these welded sections before they are lowered into the ditch.

Work can be undertaken at many points along the route between Danielson and Putnam while a decision is awaited on the section under injunction between Morin avenue and Elmville.

The centralization here of the enterprises of the Paco Manufacturing company seems to forecast further building operations, to provide homes for the additional workers that the concern will employ. There are very few available rents in Danielson at present, notwithstanding the large number of houses erected during the past ten years. A revival of industry will make the pressure for homes as strong as it has been at any time during the past decade.

Over on the West Side, scores of employes of the [illegible] company have been engaged this week and during the past week in planting gardens on land that the mill company makes available for its workers, without charge. This is a practice that has been in vogue for years and was given a great impetus during the World war when the "plant a garden" campaign was on, that the nation's food supplies might be increased.

This year the gardens number well along toward the 200 mark and cover several acres. These gardens are down the hill near the lower village. About every variety of vegetable known in southern New England is being planted. Judging on the production of other years from these gardens this year's produce will be worth many hundreds of dollars. Not a few families raise enough potatoes to last through the winter, enough corn for immediate use and enough for canning. Tomatoes, lettuce, radishes and many other vegetables are to be found in these garden tracts, beets and turnips also occupying considerable areas of the planted section.

Great pride is taken by many of the gardeners in the space alluted to them and [illegible] the acres under cultivation in the section mentioned will be very much a trip of inspection.

The honor list at Killingly High school for April follows:

With the track meet at the Brooklyn fair grounds today (Saturday) and the Older Girls' conference at Hampton, the trend of traffic out of Danielson this morning will be westward.

A dance at the state armory Friday evening provided diversion for many, various towns in the county being represented by the dancers.

Owners of cemetery lots have begun the work of putting them into condition for Memorial Day.

Killingly High School's baseball team had no game scheduled for this week, but several contests are arranged for early dates. The team is playing this season on the Connecticut Mills grounds.

Considerable additional progress has been made this week in equipping the Main street plant of the Paco Manufacturing company.

Walter A. Case, of Providence, is spending the week end with friends in Danielson.

Members of the V. D. club of Killingly, formerly with the 26th Division, held a meeting in American Legion hall Friday evening.

Rev. J. F. Quinn of Windsor has been visiting this week with his sisters.—Misses Katherine and Nellie Quinn.

Mrs. W. H. Polhemus will have the members of the Fortnightly club at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Frank H. Greener will entertain the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church Wednesday afternoon next.

A food sale was conducted at G. O. Thomas' store Friday afternoon by the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church.

An alarm from Box 24 called out the fire department early Thursday evening for a small blaze where gasoline ignited, at a filling station in the business section. There was no damage.

Mrs. Leonard James will entertain the Reading circle meeting Monday afternoon.

Mrs. J. Herbert Smith will have the members of the W. C. T. U. at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Now the Clock's O. K. Again.

PUTNAM

The Smith Street school and Grade 5 A have been announced by Superintendent of Schools Ralph C. Jenkins as winners of the two $5 prizes offered by the Putnam chamber of commerce for activities during Clean-up week. The awards were based on points won by pupils.

A total of 55 out of a total of 83 children at the Smith Street school performed the full amount of work necessary to earn a point. These youngsters spent many hours in raking up yards, carrying away rubbish, trimming hedges, digging up weeds and a variety of other employment tending to make the city more sightly. Miss Ella I. Ballard, principal of the winning school, states that the prize will be used in obtaining something useful to improve the school.

At the Israel Putnam school, 330 children entered the contest and 138 performed sufficient work to earn a point each. The high school and eighth grade ranked third, with but 31 out of 260 workers scoring points. This seems to denote that the younger pupils took their task more seriously and applied themselves more arduously. The Smith Street school's score was 64 per cent., Israel Putnam, 41 per cent. and the high school and 8th grade but 12 per cent.

The second prize was for the pupils of St. Mary's school and Grade 5 A taught by Sister Seraphine. The children put in 312 hours and had a big lead over other grades. As a whole school children last week ran up a grand total of 1,677 hours employment for a better appearing city and the result in all sections of the city were manifest.

Following the banquet of Putnam chamber of commerce at Putnam Inn, Thursday night, a nominating committee, Thomas H. DeCoudres, Ralph C. Jenkins and W. J. Bartlette submitted to the annual meeting a list of names and the following officers were elected for the year:

President, Alexander Gilman; 1st vice president, E. C. Rogers; 2nd vice president, Charles Richard; 3rd vice president, Otto E. Wulf; treasurer, Daniel J. Byrne; directors, A. Newton Vaughn, Armand J. Lizotte, Walter J. Bartlett, Francis Metcalf and George L. Padgett.

Mr. Gilman, the new president, is one of Putnam's leading business men, and is head of A. Gilman & Co. He was born in Putnam, has always lived here, has been prominent in politics and chairman of the democratic town committee and recently retired as postmaster of Putnam. He has been an active member of the chamber of commerce for years and has always taken an interest in public affairs.

A feature of the evening, not on the progfiram, was an impromptu talk by Frank Davenport of Harrisburg, Pa. Mr. Davenport is the guest fo his father, H. H. Davenport, of Pomfret, and was a guest of his father at the meeting. He was presented by President A. Newton Vaughn as "The Live Wire of the Harrisburg, Pennsylvania chamber of commerce." Mr. Davenport spoke of the importance of chambers of commerce to any city and said that few important industries would consider locating in a city where there was no chamber of commerce. He likened the chamber of commerce to a barometer of the city's business aliveness and progressiveness.

The honor roll for the fourth marking period at Putnam High school has been announced. There are 27 pupils of the first honor roll, for which an average of over 90 per cent. is required, and about 40 more on the second honor roll for which an average from 85 per cent. to 90 per cent. is required. Those receiving honors are:

By the end of this month this section of Windham county will have one of the finest dancing pavilions in New England. The new building is nearing completion at Alexander's Lake and it is expected that it will be opened Memorial day.

The structure is 127 by 72 and the dance floor, laid in matched maple will be 111 x 44. Around the dance floor is a promenade 14 feet wide. Ninety pairs of casement windows open outward permitting an open air pavilian in summer and a closed dance hall in winter. A heating plant has been installed for use during cold weather.

The building has a gambrel roof with three gables and a sloping roof over the promenade. The roof is supported by eleven trusses so that no posts appear on the dance floor. Seventy-seven brick piers support the floor making it firm and level. The exterior is clap boarded with cedar and the roofing is slate-surfaced. A kitchen, lunch room, 340 checking boxes and a storage place for canoes and boats are in the basement. The opening of the new pavilion will be made attractive with special features.

Some went on bicycles because they had no fare to pay while those who didn't go at [illegible] made up their minds to stay away. Bets are now being laid as to how many Putnam nurses will go—on bicycles—to the Quaker city, this summer when vacation time for the staff of nurses at the Day Kimball hospital rolls around.

At the present time a quartette of R. N.'s are just starting training for the trip. Possibly there may be more before mid-summer, for the training table at first numbered only a duet. It has doubled in a short time and may double again, but it is hoped that not to an extent that will leave the hospital without any white capped and white-gowned thermometer yielders during palm leaf fan time.

When a local newspaper man saw benickered young ladies from the haven for the sick and injured on the side hill, en route to Pomfret, pushing bikes along the highway he gave a glance and just thought it a reducing stunt of the moment. When two more were seen astride a couple of northend horses, gone too familiar with the saddle, meanining the horses, the old news sense became active. Investigation disclosed that at least four nursse are promising themselves, and each other, that they will ride overland to Phille this summer on several makes of bicycles.

One R. N. is a native of William Penn's town and decided that she would go home this summer. No stuffy Pullman's and no breezy buzz-wagons for this young woman. She decided she would pedal her own boat and bought a bike. A second followed, after learning the plan of the first Mrs. Naomi Fletcher of Waterbury is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Everett Reynolds.

A Grange whist was held Friday night in Odd Fellows' hall.

Mrs. Fred Prince has been spending a few days in Milford, Mass.

Mrs. Mary A. Clark is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William Fletcher, in Worcester.

Miss Hannah Pease, sewing instructor in the home economics department at the high school, has been called to her home in Anson, Me., by the illness of her mother.

Leonard Beausoliel, U. S. navy, who has been stationed in Cuba, is on his way to the United States and expects a furlough during which he will visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Beaunsoliel.

State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric, was among state official, who left New Haven, Friday, for Richmond, Va., as guests of the Governor's Footguard. The Footguard was invited to Richmond as guests of the Richmond Blues. Both the Hartford and New Haven companies fo Footguard are attending the affair and Governor Templeton is a special guest.

Announcement was made Friday that Governor Templeton has accepted an invitation to come to Putnam Sunday, June 1st, to deliver an address in the Bradley theatre, at a mass meeting to be held by and under the auspices of the Putnam council of the Citizens' Alliance. The meeting is called for three o'clock in the afternoon. The Alliance, a statewide organization, with branches in all cities and sizeable towns, chiefly interested in promoting good citizenship. The local branch numbers 150 members and two meetings have been held in local theatres. The Alliance is active in urging the enforcement of the 18th amendment.

PLAINFIELD

Plans have been formulated and considerable preliminary work done, for a three-night bazaar, for the purpose of raising money for the Athletic Association of the High school.

Monday evening, May 12, will be the annual ladies' night of the Lincoln club. There will be a dinner in charge of the committee, Clarence Winsor, chairman; Clarence and Fred Jeffries, Cecile Butler, William Bailey, Ray Greene, George Hutchinson, and Louis Gendron. This committee, Thursday evening at the church to complete plans for the dinner. There will be an entertaining program, the feature of which will be two addresses, one by Miss Dorothy Atwood of Wauregan, on her trip to Alaska, and the other by Dr. William Wilson, his subject being Florida. The musical portion is being arranged by the entertainment committee, Sidney Mathewson, chairman. The waiters for the dinner will be young men of the church in charge fo Clarence Jeffers. This is the third ladies' night which has been held by the club.

The Arbor day program which was to have been carried out in the grammar school, Friday afternoon, was postponed to Monday afternoon, owing to the rainy weather, which prevented the pupils from being out of doors in the afternoon. The three trees in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dorrance, and George Tyrer, were, however, set out on the north edge of the lawn, in front of the school building.

A food sale was held by the Woman's club Friday afternoon, at the Plainfield Public market.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Lee and family and several friends from Plainfield, were in New London Wednesday evening, attending the graduating exercises of the Joseph Lawrence training school for nurses, held at Plaint hall. Miss Julia F. Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lee was a member of the class.

Blanch Cordeau and William Credit were married at nuptial mass at 8 o'clock, Monday morning in St. Johns church, by Rev. R. H. Morrissey. The bride and groom were taken to Danielson after the mass and had their picture taken. When they arrived in Plainfield a breakfast was given at the home of the bride, Mrs. Cordeau, mother of the bride. Mrs. Credit [illegible] the groom and Miss Anna [illegible] served the breakfast. The orchestra of [illegible] played during the meal. Later in the afternoon the guests went to the home of the groom where a dinner was served in honor of the bride and groom.

Many friends attended the wedding, the guests numbering over 200. The bride received [illegible] from the groom's parents and a dining room set from the parents of the bride.

Among those present at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Couchon and family, Mr. and Mrs. Rasine, Mr. and Mrs. W. Auger, Mr. and Mrs. William Couchon, Mr. and Mrs. Labruque, Byron Provost, Peter Sevigny, Albert Sevigny of Baltic, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Bernard and family of Pittsburg, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jarvis and son James of Philadelphia.

"MY GOOD HEALTH TODAY IS DUE TO TANLAC"

Says Mrs. Hayden, of Brockton, Mass. Tells How She Broke Shackles of Ill Health

"Judging from the results in my own case, Tanlac deserves all the praise that is being given it," is the glowing tribute of Mrs. Julia Hayden, 167 N. Main St., Brockton, Mass.

"Stomach trouble, lack of appetite and nervousness had caused me great suffering for a whole year. Nearly everything I ate brought on stomach pains, gas and bloating, and nervousness made it almost impossible to get a good night's sleep. I was hardly able to move around the house and would be confined to my bed for days at a time.

"That I am in good health today is every bit due to Tanlac and to Mrs. Isabelle Harding, 22 Ivywood St., Brookville, Mass., who advised me to take it. Tanlac gave me a splendid appetite, relieved the stomach trouble, quieted my nerves and did me a world of good in every way. I have great faith in Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills, for constipation, made and recommended by the manufacturers of TANLAC.

Honduras has displayed the same spirit that is found in too many of the small republics, and that is the unwillingness to deal with big and important matters otherwise than by the spilling of blood. Force has been the means of reaching a decision for so long that it is difficult to employ any other scales. And what is worse it gives indication that it will be a long time before such a spirit will be eliminated. Characteristic though it is to the Latin-American republics, it is nevertheless detrimental. It is a handicap to sound and clean government. It stands in the way of progress and advancement. It creates uncertainty and distrust in government. This applies to those without as well as those within such republics, while it creates a similar spirit of unrest among others who are more easily influenced by such unconstitutional demonstrations than they are by the rejection of them.

Honduras would have avoided its lesson and could have reached the same goal without resort to bloodshed had the willingness to reach a peaceful settlement been manifested in the beginning.

MOTHER'S DAY.

This is the 16th anniversary of Mother's day and the tenth since it was definitely set by joint resolution of congress for the second Sunday of May. The purpose of the day is to set aside an occasion when the people may give public expression of their love and reverence for the mothers of the country.

This is a movement in which everyone should be eager to participate. Like other causes for which special days are set aside it is not a matter that should be restricted to one day, but maintained through every day of the year. There is no limitation to mother's love and there should be no limitation to the love and reverence for mother. Mother love has been an influence for the truer and better things of life, and it is only fitting that love of mother should make an ever increasing contribution to the betterment of homes and the uplifting of humanity.

It is not enough to feel that mother love is something that we are justified in expecting or that we are only getting what is due and intended when we receive it. It is not something that we should receive without showing our grateful appreciation in all ways and at all times. It is not something that can be bought. It is not something that can be begged: it is the manifestation of a compelling force which has been a wonderful inspiration and guide in the past and which the world should never be willing to see relaxed.

Mother's day is every day for many people. If Mothers' day can be the means of making every day Mother's day for everyone it will accomplish a grand good service.

BURNS' RESIGNATION.

The resignation of William J. Burns as chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice hasn't been momentarily expected for the past several days. It hasn't come, however, with any great degree of surprise to those who have been following the investigations. It doesn't appear that any new development has brought it to a head. Rather is it the outcome of the situation which has been brought to light in connection with the investigations and the criticisms that have been made of the manner in which his bureau has been administered.

It comes following the discharge of a number of the bureau's dollar a year men, whose presence therein seems to have had slight justification and it comes after certain testimony has been given by Mr. Burns as the head of that important bureau.

William J. Burns is well known for his service as a detective. His selection for the head of the secret service was looked upon as an excellent one and there is much that might be said in commendation of his ability, and his work. His resignation from the service comes after the change in the head of that department. It is a move that was inevitable in view of the charges that have been made regardless of what credence may be attached to the many insinuations and possible half truths. The resignation leaves the new head of the department in a position to organize his secret service in his own way and under his own ideals. It means the withdrawal of a Daugherty influence and appointee.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

If a person is inclined to be observing—and now and then you will find one who is—he will be impressed with the rapid increase of grocery stores. At first it would seem to indicate that the population was increasing by leaps and bounds. If not, what will explain this sudden epidemic of grocery sheds that seem to be spreading throughout the city like measles in out-of-the-way spots? At the time of this writing not any have appeared on Lanman's hill, or the north shore of Fairview reservoir. As a matter of fact has there been an increase of population sufficient to justify these new and numerous stands for dispensing beans and onions? If we may take the latest public school registration as a fair basis for making estimates of increases or decreases in population, it is perfectly safe to say that these vendors of cabbages and prunes will not be buying many steam yachts out of the net proceeds of their business this year.

There is a verse of Scripture which reads thus, "the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in the land." Are there not, however, other infallible signs that spring is here? It is not very hard to believe that the lads with balls and bats are more reliable harbingers of spring than singing birds and tuneful turtles. To say the least their "voice is heard in the land" all right. And the same touch of spring seems to grip us all in about the same way. We look every day at the scores on the boards and in the daily paper. Our eyes gleam with joy when "Babe" Ruth, or others who are babes along the same lines who succeed in making home runs. We all of us take very kindly to home runs. But we do wish in these spring days that more of the lads would make home runs in the class room, and if the same energy was put into them as there is on the ball field, there would be as many home runs. My boy, if you can't make a home run or a three-bagger, you can make a clean-cut first base run.

In regard to man it is perfectly true that, "he is known by the company he keeps." If he is a low-down fellow he will not seek fellowship with the sain s If the society of F. M. C. A.'s and churches satisfies him he does not hobnob with bootleggers and bandits. The principle applies just as truly to the companionships of nations. If they are in sympathy with the policies of sultans and grand viziers, and if they are satisfied with the workings of soviet governments, it is hard to see how they can enjoy laws actuated by justice and humanity. Along the line of some political issues one finds it hard to see how the United States can be really satisfied with her present national alignment. If the policy of Premier MacDonald succeeds, Russia and Germany will be admitted to the league of nations. The only nations then left outside will be Iceland, Afghanistan, Mexico, and (just think of it) the United States.

"I am not bound to succeed, but I am bound to live up to the light I have." This is a motto that the writer saw displayed the other day in front of a large city church of Connecticut. Is there not something in this saying worth looking into? Is it not idiite possible for us to over-emphasize the value of success? "There's nothing succeeds like success" has been dinned into us so long that we hardly dare to take exceptions to it. Of course "nothing can succeed like success" but may there not be an ethical value in failure? People who have been utter failures in some pursuits have succeeded enormously along other lines. May not the sense of failure be a spur to try other activities? Take a man of Mus has a few mite of a talent and has worked it for all it was worth and another man with ten talents who has not pushed them to the limit, which is worthier of the greater reward?

What an infinite variety of views there are about the Bible! If correctness of view were essential to salvation why is it that sincere and honest men cannot see eye to eye? The writer has a growing conviction that the Creator never expected that there would be uniformity of belief. If he had there would have been a larger conformity in the human personality itself. There seems to be a revelry of differences in all created things. No two faces look alike; nor two skulls are shaped alike, and the greatest differences of all are found inside of these skulls. Now with these radical and universal differences why should there be insistence upon uniformity of belief? Why should any man or any council of men dare to pronounce an ultimatum in matters of belief? God alone can be the final authority.

The design of man, as stated by Aristotle, is for action and this necessity for action increases with advancing civilization. In the very earliest ages, man soon learned by mere instinct what his five outward senses were for, and the same instinct told him how to use them just as far as his necessities required. But as he had but few necessities, his five senses were only partially developed. But as civilization increased man's desires increased and hence means were devised to educate the use of his faculties. We can see this by comparing pagan with civilized nations. Heathens are simply peoples who have failed to grow. They never build Westminster Abbeys and Lincoln Memorials; their skill stops with the mud hut. Their industry, their literature like their music is on the minor. Rev. Paganism has never furnished an Aristotle.

In ecclesiastical Christianity, there are some people, and their number is not large, who will remember May 10 as Ascension day. Exactly why is not clear to the cloudy, non-liturgical mind. Does it mean that the ascension of our Lord took place on May 10? If so we are more exact than in most other questions of chronology. But of far more importance is May 10 known as the Confederate Memorial day. This is clearly historical. This day in the south is what May 30 is in the north. About the same line of thought will be presented on both of these days. Both will recall deeds of heroism, sacrifice, and sorrow. Both will have the same story to tell of the ravages of war. In this respect, however, the south will have a more vivid recollection than the north, because theirs were the fields that were enriched with precious human blood, and were whitened by human bones. May the history of the war make another one impossible!

The people of the United States have a perfect right to look favorably or otherwise on the question of the soldier's bonus bill, recently passed by both houses of congress. It does not mean lack of appreciation of the splendid work our soldiers did across the water in keeping civilization from collapse if one questions the wisdom of this bill when one considers the effect it is going to have on increased taxation. I say there is room for an honest difference of opinion of the subject. But we do feel justly indignant at the uncalled for insult of the soldiers while this bill was pending in the senate. One senator in particular had the effrontery to say that they received more money in the army than they would have earned at home for the same length of time. The lowest pay was a dollar a day. What young man in the prime of his strength was working here at home for a dollar a day?

THE RAVAGES OF CARBON MONOXIDE

Carbon monoxide, most common and insidious of poison gases, is continuing its frightful ravages on human life, according to a statement made by Dr. R. R. Sayers, chief surgeon, bureau of mines, department of the interior, before a meeting of the Pacific Safety conference, at San Francisco. In New York City several hundred deaths occur each year from carbon monoxide poisoning, due chiefly to domestic use of gas where sufficient care as to proper use of appliances and ventilation is not taken. Records from the state department of health of Ohio, which are said to be incomplete, show that 64 deaths and 113 partial asphyxiations occurred in that state during the winter of 1922-23. Fifty-five of the deaths were due to gas heaters and stoves and five to exposure to automobile exhaust gas.

Carbon monoxide is a gas slightly lighter than air, with which it diffuses readily. It will burn and has a wide explosive range. Like air, it has neither color nor taste and has no odor in concentrations usually encountered, therefore it can not be detected by the ordinary senses with which men are endowed. It is produced by burning carbon-containing fuels, as coal, wood, gasoline, natural and manufactured gas, etc., whenever not enough air or oxygen is supplied to burn the fuel completely.

The human race has probably been exposed to this gas since men first began using fires in confined or sheltered places. A number of cases described in the ancient literature indicate that carbon monoxide was a frequent cause of death by accident, suicide, and as a means of punishment or torture. Aristotle, who lived in 384-322 B. C., stated that "animals collapse from harmful odors, as man gets a severe headache and often dies through charcoal vapors." The Romans knew that smoke was poisonous, and used the greenest, most smoke-inducing wood to put persons to death. The occurrence of carbon monoxide poisoning has increased in frequency through the years until at the present time it is found in the home as in many industries.

Common sources of carbon monoxide, illustrating its universal occurrence, are mine fires and explosions; the gaseous products of combustion of powder, dynamite and other explosives; blast furnace stack gas; coke-oven gas; coal gas; automobile exhaust gas; gas ranges and room heaters burning natural gas or manufactured gas; smoke from burning buildings; and railroad locomotive stack gas. Manufactured gas may contain anywhere from 10 to 30 per cent of carbon monoxide. If the connections with either heaters or lights are poorly made an added danger is introduced. The use of rubber tubing has been especially emphasized by many investigators as causing poisoning and often death of those exposed, due to deterioration of the rubber and to ill-fitting connections. Automobile exhaust gas contains an average of 7 per cent of carbon monoxide.

The detection of carbon monoxide is very important in order to avoid exposure. In concentrations usually found carbon monoxide can not be detected by its odor. However, in its occurrence from most sources carbon monoxide is associated with other gases having distinctive odors, and thus warning is given of a dangerous atmosphere. Removal of the odorous constituents from illuminating gas in scrubbing the gas is often the cause of poisoning to users through absence of warning odor. The odors coming from domestic gas stoves may or may not be a criterion for judging the presence of carbon monoxide.

Mice and birds are more quickly affected than men by carbon monoxide, and may be used for detecting dangerous atmospheres. Birds are preferable because they show symptoms earlier and are easier to observe.

The miners' flame safety lamp cannot be safely used for the detection of carbon monoxide in air, as it is difficult to detect with a safely lamp even the presence of 1.5 per cent of carbon monoxide. This percentage is exceedingly dangerous to life—in fact, a man breathing such an atmosphere would be overcome at once.

The "Hoolamite" or activated iodine pentoxide indicator for carbon monoxide, is frequently used by engineers of the bureau of mines engaged in mine-rescue and recovery operations. The indicator gives immediate positive results with carbon monoxide in air in concentration of 0.07 per cent or more. This detector has an advantage over the use of mice and birds in that a determination can be made in less than one minute, whereas it takes as long as 30 minutes before an animal will give an indication of gassing, in say, a concentration of about 0.1 per cent of carbon monoxide. No skill is required in making a determination.

A qualitative detection of carbon monoxide in air in amounts greater than 0.03 to 0.04 per cent can be made by shaking a dilute solution of blood with the air, and then comparing it to an unexposed sample of similarly diluted blood. If carbon monoxide is present, the exposed samples will be pinker than normal blood.

The bureau of mines has recently devised a method whereby the blood solution, which is brought into equilibrium with the gas by shaking as described above, is quantitatively analysed for carbon monoxide hemoglobin, and the amount of carbon monoxide in the air determined in low concentrations to an accuracy of 0.01 per cent. Also, the same apparatus can be used for the determination of carbon monoxide in the blood of a supposedly poisoned victim. The apparatus is simple, portable, and compact, and the making of determinations requires no special skill. Carbon monoxide exerts its extremely dangerous action on the body by replacing oxygen from its combination with hemoglobin (red blood.)

It has been shown many times that animals without red blood can live in atmospheres containing high concentrations of carbon monoxide without apparent harmful effects. Recently this was demonstrated at the Pittsburgh experiment station of the bureau of mines, when some roaches were kept for several days in an atmosphere of over 60 per cent carbon monoxide, 20 per cent oxygen and 20 per cent nitrogen without lessening their activities.

The after-effects of carbon monoxide poisoning range from practically none to headaches, muscular pains, long periods of unconsciousness, loss of strength, and mental derangement, such as loss of memory, paralysis and temporary blindness. In nearly all cases these after-effects clear up within a few days, but there are cases where they have extended over several months.

Good ventilation, and good equipment are the most important factors in the prevention of carbon monoxide poisoning. For treatment inhalation for a period of 20 to 30 minutes of oxygen or a 5 per cent mixture of carbon dioxide in oxygen, if available will greatly decrease the number and severity of symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning, as well as decrease the possibility of serious after-effects. All hospitals, and all industries in which this type of poisoning exists, should supply apparatus for the efficient administration of these treatments. Everyone should be trained in methods of giving artificial respiration and as many as possible know how to use inhalers in order that resuscitation of carbon monoxide victims may be effected promptly.

Today's Anniversaries

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

CHARTER BUILDING

In whom all the building, fitly framed together, groweth unto an holy temple in the God. Eph.2.21.

It would almost seem as though God had made the world just to try man—of what stuff he is, what stuff he can develop in the battle between force uncontrolled and force directed by intelligence. What a battle that was between nature and man in the building of Minot's Ledge lighthouse! Minot's Ledge was "a bold black knot of rock," lying off the coast of Massachusetts. At high tide the waters covered it wholly. In thirty years forty three vessels had been dashed to pieces upon it twenty-seven of which had been entirely lost, together with their crews. Captain Alexander agreed to construct upon that rock a tower one hundred and six feet high, thirty feet in diameter at the base. On his first visit to the rock it was so slippery that he could not get a footing upon it. He sent out a crew of men and they were able in an entire season, to cut but four or five little holes in the face of the rock.

The men would work as fast as they could until the fireman, seeing a wave coming would shout to the men, and they would fall upon their faces, clinging desperately to one another, while the wave went over them. Then they would rise, and work again. In five years the tower was built. In some such way must every man build a character. God gives him the raw material and the strength to build, but man must do the building. No one can do it for him. Thank God, no one can successfully oppose any one doing it for himself, and God always helps those who are determined thus to build.

"We are building in sorrow or joy.
A temple the world may not see,
Which time cannot mar nor destroy,
We build for eternity.
Are you building for God alone,
Are you building in faith and love,
A temple the Father will own,
In the city of light above?"

Are You Discouraged?

Julia Ward Howe's Ruddy Tresses

Julia Ward was brilliant; she was surrounded by luxury in a large city—but her hair was red and during most of her younger days she was very sensitive about it.

She was born in New York, her mother died when she was five and her father raised her. He built a mansion, and there being no colleges for women, provided a private teacher. He died when she was 16 and she and her sisters and brothers were cared for by her uncle.

While on a trip to Boston she met Doctor Samuel Howe, who was much interested in the care of the blind. She was 24 and he 40, but the friendship ripened and the wedding in New York was a society event. They sailed for England, and soon after arriving he was taken ill with fever. After his recovery they visited most of Europe, spending many months, and in Italy their first daughter was born.

Returning to America, they gave up luxury and settled in Boston at the Institution for the Blind, but later moved into a separate home. Three other girls and a boy were born, but she helped with the blind whenever possible.

Soon after going to Boston she published her first book of poems, "Passion Flowers," and other volumes followed.

During the Civil War she was prominent in the care and entertainment of the soldiers, and in a hotel in Washington, after a visit to camp, she wrote "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Two years after the war she and Doctor Howe went to Greece and aided that country during its war. Returning to Boston, she organized the New England Woman's Club, the first of its kind in the country, and soon afterward she became famous as a speaker. Stirred by the Franco-Prussian War, she tried to form in Europe a Peace Congress of Women, but Europe was not ripe for it.

Her husband died four years later and she, now grey-haired, took great interest in the study of the Bible. She died, at 90, and the nation mourned for her as the "Grand Old Woman of America."

THE HARLOWARDEN GARDENS
ADDRESS DEPT. N.-B.—GREENPORT, N. Y.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Thomas Lipton, the man whose chief desire has been to feed the world, and after that to lift the America cup, is in line for congratulations today on the beginning of his 76th year. Sir Thomas, hwose present fortune is estimated at more million dollars than he is years old, began his career as errand boy in a store in Glasgow, and his wages amounted to 60 cents a week. The life did not suit him, so he ran away from home and came to America, where he experienced many hardships before he finally returned to Glasgow. Borrowing some money from his father he was able to start a little grocery business, which he conducted in accordance with methods he had learned in America. The business prospered from the start. Now he owns nearly 1000 stores throughout the world. He has packing houses and tea houses in America, plantations in Ceylon, bottling plants in Ireland, and various establishments in other countries.

Stories That Recall Others

Lesser of the Evils.

Doris, two years old, was having her face washed. The day before she had fallen and severely scratched her face, so that the application of soap and hot water was anything but pleasant.

"It hurts," she said.

"I'm washing easy," her mother assured her.

"Wash hard! Wash hard!" demanded Doris as the pain continued and increased.

Experience Speaks.

The sidewalk philosopher holding forth a few days ago had all the earmarks of knowing his business, gray hair, stooped shoulders and lined face. His companion and audience was one equally venerable. The discussion was of a man, mutual friend of each, who, judging from the conversation, was a philanthropist.

"Well," summed up the philosopher, "there's no better investment than in human kind, provided the man is a right. But there's no worse investment than in human kind if the man's wrong."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

SAGAN

"The spectacle of a 'country' actually for sale is unusual in these days; but throughout history kings and princes and even presidents have not failed to add to their domains by purchase as well as by conquest," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society referring to Sagan, a little mediatized principality in Germany, advertised for sale in European newspapers.

"Sagan," continues the bulletin, "now has no separate existence save in so far as it gives a princely title to its owner, but a century and a half ago it was a sort of very diminutive Bavaria of Saxony, an integral principality of Germany. The origin and fate of this little 'state' which lies about 100 miles southeast of Berlin, illustrates the history of the many 'mediatized' domains of Europe to which reference is constantly being made in world news.

"For a long time the principle of the inheritance of properties and titles by the eldest son was followed in many of the German principalities. On the death of a ruler his domains were divided among his sons. After a few centuries of this the old empire was peppered with little fragments of once extensive division. Scores of these claimed to have no allegiance to any other ruler than the emperor.

"The large state of Silesia was divided up in this way and the little principality of Sagan, about five times as large as the District of Columbia, became one of these [illegible] derivatives, breaking [illegible] the principality of [illegible] princes continued [illegible] affairs of [illegible] until Napoleon's victories and reorganizations brushed away much of the political dead wood left over from the Middle Ages.

"In forming his Confederation of the Rhine from conquered German states, Napoleon decreed that many of the little principalities should thenceforth be a part of the large state through local states of dukedomes. This merging of the petty states with larger ones was known as 'mediatization.'

Conflict of Official Opinion on Religious Teaching

Use of schoolhouses in Utah for religious instruction, specifically by the Mormon Church, is forbidden by state laws and the state constitution, according to an opinion rendered by the attorney general of the state, himself a Mormon. On the contrary, Dr. C. N. Jensen, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has recently advised a school board that such use of school houses is permissible. Under the statutes of Utah the State Superintendent is legal adviser to all school boards, and his advice will govern the boards unless prevented by judicial action.

JOHNSON SCORES CLEAN KNOCKOUT OVER CHILEAN IN SEVENTH ROUND

New York, May 9.—Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, knocked out Quinton Romero of Chile in the seventh round of a 10-round match at Madison Square Garden tonight. The knockout blow came after one minute and 47 seconds of the round.

It was one of the most furious and bloody struggles of the season. The Chilean, blinded from streams of blood that gushed from a cut over his left eye, groped around the ring in the final round in a pitiful effort to remain on his feet while absorbing tremendous punishment inflicted by Johnson. The Iowan's attack beat Romero's face into a red, pulpy mass.

Wild scenes followed the termination of the bout. As Referee Magnolia had apparently counted up to nine as bell sounded. Romero was on his [illegible] preparing to rise. Simultaneous with the bell, the referee waved both men to their corners.

Newspapermen at the arena thought the Chilean had been saved by the bell and that he would come up for the next round. A report spread that a member of the state boxing commission had ordered the bout stopped and a technical knockout awarded to Johnson. [illegible] from furious building [illegible] where a general [illegible] arose among protesting [illegible] timekeeper's table. [illegible] which had assumed the proportions of a riot. The announcer jumped into the ring, clamored for attention; the fighters sat in their corners, waiting for quiet and the bout to resume.

[illegible] announced that the referee had completed his ten swings, that Johnson had registered a clean knockout and that the bell had been [illegible] breaking which [illegible] into the [illegible] Romero almost, around the [illegible] get for Johnson but [illegible] ing to drop. From [illegible] the bloody pursuit [illegible] Johnson carefully keeping [illegible] and preventing Romero [illegible] attempts to come in close [illegible] escape the rain of devastating [illegible] that swept his face. A [illegible] the finish.

Romero's game and tragic ending upheld the reputation for gameness which Firpo brought to the American ring. Four times during the passionate struggle the dark and rugged warrior stretched upon the canvas; but on each occasion he arose with the spirit of battle strongly surging.

In the first round the expectant crowd got an early thrill as Johnson's [illegible] spun the Chilean around and dumped him in a shaken heap. In the second another driving right sent him sagging to his knees and after [illegible] a dazed sprawl on the floor. In the fifth, weakened by Johnson's continued pounding, he dropped as if [illegible] weakness after another right to the jaw. Each time he took the [illegible] of four.

The defeated gladiator shot his strongest bolt when he had apparently been beaten beyond effective resistance. Between the third and fourth rounds his seconds worked frantically with smelling salts, as the round began Romero overcame the weakness which punishment and loss of blood had forced upon him and rallied with [illegible] power born of sheer determination [illegible] Johnson retreating and covering before him around the ring.

[illegible] spent its fury and [illegible] beaten man, remained [illegible] supported only by the ropes [illegible] still remained when his [illegible] the canvas after the [illegible] blow.

Hardigs vs. Yantics.

The Hardigs will play the fast American Woolen team of Yantic Sunday afternoon at Yantic. The Hardigs have been going strong so far this season, winning [illegible] games in many starts and expect to add another one Sunday.

The Hardigs will lineup as follows: J. Tombari or Kamos catch, Rankin or Kozlowski pitch, Donegan first base, Simons second base, Meehan third base, Kelly shortstop, Fitzgerald left field, Segal, the mainstay of the Academy, will play center field, and Hilderbrand will take care of right field. Coughlin and S. Tombari will act as subs. Manager King had his boys working hard this week and expects to bring home the bacon.

ACADEMY CLASHES WITH CHAPMAN TECH TODAY

Interscholastic baseball interest today centers on the Academy-Chapman Tech game at the Academy campus when the second place standing of the Interscholastic league will be decided. Both the Academy and Chapman have won one and lost one game and are now tied up for second place. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

Coach Brigham gave the boys an afternoon of skull practice on Friday as the weather did not permit of outdoor work. This practice will do the team no small amount of good for the boys have not been playing a very brilliant or heady game of late as was demonstrated at Westerly earlier in the week. [illegible] the various plays and the value of team work and cooperation.

In today's game Coach Brigham will send in the same lineup as was used against Westerly on Tuesday with the exception of Gee at first and Kilroy [illegible] the centerfield [illegible] players [illegible] suspended from the team because of insubordination. Kilroy and Gee cut a scheduled practice one afternoon this week without permission and Coach Brigham thinks that if they do not care to practice they surely do not care to play in the games. However, the Academy will not be greatly weakened by their absence as Burke who will take Gee's place at first is every bit as good a player. In the outfield there are several good candidates for the centerfield position. Kilroy's playing in the Westerly game was rather ragged and an enforced rest may do him good.

The Academy is the favorite in today's game as the comparative scores with Westerly show. Chapman Tech having been beaten 10 to 1 by Westerly and the Academy lost 13 to 7. Harold Hull will be the umpire.

Chapman Tech is Ready.

New London, May 9.—Although old Jupe Pluvious, foreman of the clouds, released some of the excess water he had stored away, making it impossible to hold the last day of practice prior to the meeting of the Norwich Free academy nine by Chapman Tech Saturday afternoon at Norwich, the Tech outfit is expected to be in good condition in its first attempt to invade the Rose city this year.

Coach E. Stanley Taylor, helped along considerably in getting the Red and Black in the fitness in which they are for this game Saturday by Assistant Coach Weaver, expects to start Cruise on the mound against the Red and White. Although Cruise is not [illegible] yet he will be given consideration over the other members of the twirling staff at the Tech. Johnny Brown pitched the Tech to a victory on Tuesday which makes it almost impossible that he will be given the pitching assignment. However, he will be held in readiness, and if the Academy batters show a tendency to tick Cruise's curves, Brown will intervene and try to save the day if there is saving to be done.

COLLEGE CREWS HAVE FINAL WORKOUT FOR TODAY'S RACE

Cambridge, Mass., May 9.—Crews of four colleges, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Massachusetts Institute of Technology had final workouts on the Charles river today in preparation for tomorrow's regatta. The crews worked upriver from the start of tomorrow's races in heavy tide and on rough water conditions for the Charles river basin, where the four mile and three quarters course is laid, making practice there impossible.

Harvard enters a heavy, untried crew in the first trial of the Crimson under Coach Edward Stevens' western system of training. The average weight of the Crimson varsity eight is 161 5-8 pounds against an average of 179 3-8 for Ivniger's Pennsylvania crew and 168 pounds for the Columbia eight. In the junior varsity event E. H. Bennett's strong Pennsylvania crew rules a favorite.

Four races make up the regatta program. Harvard and Technology freshman crews will row at 4.30 o'clock, Harvard, Pennsylvania and Technology 150 pound crews will race half an hour later, and the junior varsity events will follow at half hour intervals.

PROTESTS TAXING OF FUNDS FOR OLYMPIC ATHLETES

New York, May 9.—Murray Hulbert, president of the board of aldermen and a member of the executive committee of the American Olympic association, has protested to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon against a ten per cent. tax on the funds now being collected to defray the expenses of American athletes to Paris.

Mr. Hulbert based his protest on the grounds that funds collected for educational purposes were exempt from the tax and asserted that the Olympic games had an historical and educational value. He has enlisted the aid of Senators Smoot, Wadsworth, Copeland and Underwood, he said.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

Captain New York Giants

Any inning. Any score. Runner on first base.

If batsman singles to left field what position should the infield take on the play?

The pitcher should immediately back up third base. Then, if the outfielder has a chance to catch the runner coming to third from first base, this throw is backed up. If the outfielder sees there is no possible chance to catch the runner at third, he should throw the ball to second base and the shortstop should cover that bag with the second baseman backing him up and the first baseman still further backing up the throw.

The reason for this position taken by the infielders is to take care of a throw to third in case it should be an overthrow, but if it is not possible to get the runner at third, to prevent the batter from making second on the play.

NEW YORK BOXING COMMISSION HAS MANY MATTERS FOR CONSIDERATION

New York, May 9.—The gates of suspension which bar Harry Greb, middleweight titleholder, and Kid Norfolk, colored middleweight, from pugilistic activity in Massachusetts for six months, were similarly lowered against the pair in New York state today. This action was taken by the state athletic commission after learning the reasons for the disqualifications in Massachusetts.

Although the Massachusetts board requested that the suspension be confined to that state, the New York commission refused to pigeon-hole its working agreement with the bay state board.

This punishment automatically bars Greb from fulfilling his contract to meet Jack Delaney, Bridgeport middleweight, in the milk fund show here on June 27. Chairman Brower of the New York commission said the Pittsburgher would be barred from this bout unless the barrier was lifted in Massachusetts and subsequently lifted here.

The New York board also announced that it had selected Dave Shade, Pacific coast welterweight, as the most logical opponent for Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion. Shade already has posted a forfeit fee for a match with Walker. As the welterweight champion is not a licensed boxer in this state no action can be taken against him for failure to recognize Shades challenge but application by him for a license will be granted only upon condition that he fulfills his pledge to meet any contender the commission might select.

Louis "Kid" Kaplan, Meriden, Conn., featherweight filed a challenge for Johnny Dundee's featherweight crown with the commission today through his manager, Dennis McMahon. A certified check of $2,500 accompanied the challenge.

Rocky Kansas, Buffalo lightweight, posted a similar forfeit and challenge for the lightweight crown of Benny Leonard and Sid Barbarian, Detroit lightweight, posted a forfeit and a challenge for the same title.

Application for a license to conduct boxing shows was granted to the Polo Grounds A. C.

OLYMPIC TENNIS TEAM HAS BEEN SELECTED

New York, May 9.—America will be represented in its first attempt to lift Olympic tennis laurels by one of the strongest teams she is capable of mustering. This was revealed today when the Davis cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association announced that the men's team would consist of R. Norris Williams, II, of Philadelphia, as captain; Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, N. Y., Francis T. Hunter, of Beckley, W. Va., and Watson M. Washburn, of New York.

The women's team, selected some time ago, includes Miss Helen Wills, of Berkeley, Calif., national champion; Miss Eleanor Goss, of New York; Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup, of Wilmington, Del.; and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, of Boston, as captain.

Richards was included in the men's squad after a brief controversy over his status as a player-writer. His engagement to cover the Olympic games as a reporter for a news agency at first created a barrier to his selection but this was solved when his employers consented to a leave of absence for him during the week of Olympic tennis competition, July 13 to 20, thus enabling him to compete and still comply with the Olympic player-writer rule. The young internationalist previously had resigned from both the Davis cup and Olympic squads over this issue, but withdrew his resignation when assured his status would be cleared.

The place of William T. Tilden, of Philadelphia, national champion who withdrew from international play over the player-writer controversy, has been taken by Hunter, originally named as an alternate.

The team thus does not include the first two ranking stars, Tilden and William M. Johnston, who was unable to accept an invitation to go, but it has the next three ranking singles experts in Williams, Richards and Hunter. Washburn ranks fifteenth, but his chief ability lies in the doubles. He and Williams rank third on the national doubles list and form the strongest combination available from the personnel of the Olympic team.

All four of these stars will compete in the singles and the doubles, in addition to pairing with members of the women's team in the mixed doubles.

SURE OSBORNE'S JUMPING METHODS ARE REGULAR

New York, May 9.—The American Olympic committee is so confident of the legality of the high jumping style of Harold Osborne, world's indoor record-holder of the Illinois Athletic club, that it has authorized slow motion pictures to be taken of it and used as a means of instructing youthful jumping candidates.

This was disclosed today by Frederick W. Rubien, secretary of the American Olympic committee, who reiterated his belief that the council of the International Amateur Athletic federation would sustain the legality of Osborne's so-called "western roll," question over which has been raised by French Olympic officials. France's action was based on an American newspaper story describing Osborne's performance as more of a dive than a jump, but this is denied by Olympic officials here who contend there is nothing irregular in the style, practiced by a number of stars in addition to the Chicago athlete.

The American Olympic committee has received a number of requests for information relative to Osborne's jumping methods from athletes aspiring to emulate the I. A. C. crack, and the films, Mr. Rubien explained, will fill this educational purpose.

RIVERVIEW CLUB PLAYS WILLIMANTIC TEAM TODAY

The Riverview club clashes with the American Thread team of Willimantic at the State hospital grounds this afternoon in the first of a two-game series, the second game being played at Willimantic on Sunday afternoon. Today's contest will be one worth seeing as the Riverview club has been greatly strengthened during the past week. The Threadmakers have a strong lineup with several well known semi-pro players.

AMERICAN BALL ADOPTED FOR OLYMPIC TENNIS

Paris, May 9. An American tennis ball today was chosen for use in the Olympic games, the French Tennis federation, which had opposed the use of the American ball, capitulating to the French Olympic committee after a seven weeks' conflict.

The ball, manufactured by an American firm and according to an American process at the Nantere works in France, withstood the most severe tests of resiliency imposed by the French Tennis federation with a special instrument invented by the tennis expert, Max Decugis, seven times champion of France. The ball proved itself in every way up to Olympic requirements, it was declared.

Members of the French Olympic committee, when they announced selection of the American ball last February, were accused by members of the tennis federation with having adopted a ball of American make for the purpose of favoring the American tennis players over the English and French.

COMMISSIONER DONOHUE LEAVES FOR EUROPEAN TRIP

New London, May 9. — Chairman Thomas E. Donohue of the Connecticut state boxing commission and Mrs. Donohue, left New London this noon on the 12.37 express for New York city, where they will board the White Star liner Adriatic, sailing for Queenstown. Mr. and Mrs. Donohue will make a tour of the British Isles and places on the mainland. Mr. and Mrs. Donohue were given a rousing sendoff at the Union station by a large number of friends and admirers.

Both the commissioner and his wife will visit the places of interest while on their journey to Europe. Leaving from New York tomorrow, the Donohues will return June 30, on the liner Olympic. The itinerary arranged for the chairman of the athletic boxing commission and his wife is as follows: Sail from New York arriving at Queenstown on May 18. May 19, train to Macrom, by motor coach to Glengariff, Kenmare, May 20, by motor coach to Killarney lake, May 21, 22, 23 inclusive, spent at Killarney and environs. [illegible] to Dublin by motor, arrive in Dublin and visit [illegible] on the 26th, a steamer to Liverpool and Kendall, visiting the birthplace of Mrs. Donohue's mother in Kendall. Ten days will be spent at Kendall and Mr. and Mrs. Donohue will not leave until the sixth of June for Chester. On the 7th, a train will be taken to Warwick; the 8th will include a visit to Kenilworth, Shottery, Stratford; the evening train will then be taken to London and six days will be spent in the largest city in England. On the 17th the Donohues will find themselves in Paris, the next five days will be spent at the palace of Versailles and Malmaison. A visit will be made to the war area, including Rheims, Ft. De La Pompelle, and also the Rheims cathedral and wine cellars. The 24th of June will find both Mr. and Mrs. Donohue taking the train to Cherbourg, France, and from there sailing to the states on the liner Olympic.

Although the trip is somewhat of a pleasure trip for both Mr. and Mrs. Donohue, Mr. Donohue will visit the National Sportsman's club in London, where all the big championship bouts are staged and see just how the shows are staged by this club. In France, Commissioner Donohue will view one or two boxing bouts and compare the French system of matching boxers and handling the boxing game to our own and that of England.

Besides visiting the various clubs where boxing bouts are staged, Mr. Donohue will visit the charitable institutions of the British Isles and in France, for Mr. Donohue is superintendent of the Hillside home in this city.

What time he has off from his duties, he spends following up the boxing game of the state and after two years of hard and faithful service as a member of the board he was elected to the capacity of chairman. He will assume his duties to his new position on July 1, by that time the trip is expected to benefit both Mr. and Mrs. Donohue in more ways than one. In addition to going armed over to the other side with numerous letters of credentials to the various clubs and charitable institutions, Mr. Donohue will act in the capacity of postman when he will deliver a letter from the New London mayor to the mayor of Old London.

WISE COUNSELLOR WILL RUN IN KENTUCKY DERBY

Louisville, Ky., May 9.—It appeared highly probable today that Wise Counsellor, one of the outstanding [illegible] dates for the Kentucky derby, would start in the Preakness at Pimlico next Monday. A message made public here today from John S. Ward, his trainer, said the horse was "going fine" and directed that Jockey Mack Garner be sent to ride him.

Bulkeley to Play Alumni.

New London, May 9.—The Bulkeley baseball team will not remain idle this week end. A game has been scheduled with the Alumni for Saturday afternoon at Morgan park at 2.30 o'clock. May tenth was an open date on the Bulkeley schedule due to the cancelling of the Stamford game by Stamford on Monday. Coach Robert T. Aldrich has been trying to arrange a game with a high school team in the state or out, but all attempts have failed and as a last resort to not keep the state champions idle over the week end he has managed to arrange a game with the Alumni.

A case of inhuman treatment of the worst kind of a horse has been revealed in Waterford and it is probable that the owner of the animal will be prosecuted within a few days, as humane agents of the state are investigating the case. It is the claim that the horse ran away two years ago and caused injury to a member of the family of the owner. The horse was then kept in the barn until because of the decay of the flooring, the horse was precipitated into the cellar. Instead of causing the animal to be removed or put out of existence, it was allowed to remain there, being fed daily by the owner. A few days ago the horse was discovered in its dungeon-like quarters, but its feet had gradually rotted away until the beast was standing on stumps. The attention of agents of the humane society was called to the treatment of the horse with the result that the animal was killed.

JEWETT CITY

David Hale Fanning was here eleven years ago today, May 10, and everybody that was alive then will recall the interest and activity, for the unveiling of the new monument was to take place the coming Memorial Day. All was bustle and excitement; the granite men were placing the figure in place and the speakers of the day were adding the final polish to their orations. The recent death of Georg A. Haskell, is the first break by death, in the committee to whom was turned over the entire arrangement and detail of purchasing and erecting the shaft. None were more interested and active throughout the whole grand celebration than was Mr. Haskell, for he was the old soldier, and his days of labor were to him a pleasure, as long as he was able to see the consummation of his hopes.

Another break in the committee, though in strictest fact, not a break, is the unfortunate visitations of an inscrutable Providence upon Rev. Edward M. Hayes, pastor at that time, of St. Mary's church. He worked with and for the people, his interest in the monument never flagged, and his best and finest energies he unselfishly gave, that this task to which he had set his hand should not fail. David Hale Fanning and Father Hayes seemed peculiarly attracted to each other. Both men of business and keen intellect, they pulled well together. Not a little of the beauty of the setting of St. Mary's church today, can be traced to the close friendship that existed between these two out-of-the-ordinary men. Today, Father Hayes is an invalid in a southern city, totally incapacitated and unable to in any way discharge the official duties of the church he loves so well. His was a fine mind, and too great strains upon it proved disastrous in the extreme.

After all the monument celebration was over, there was a little more than $100 left. Mr. Haskell deposited this money in the Jewett City Savings bank, February 3d, 1921, when the veterans of the World war boulder was placed on the library lawn. Mr. Haskell met with the resident members of the trustees, E. H. Hiscox, D. F. Finn and F. D. Ballou. All being agreed, $124 was drawn and applied to the boulder project. Today $28.01 remains in the bank, which the administrator of Mr. Haskell's estate will turn over to E. H. Hiscox, the next member on the board of trustees, also its secretary.

It was largely due to the insistence of Father Hayes and Mr. Haskell, that a niche was hewn inside the granite base of the monument. There, with fitting and impressive ceremony, the following articles and data were carused to be deposited, within a copper box, 10x4x4 inches:

A copy of the Norwich Bulletin of April 28, 1913, copies of the Jewett City Press and the Norwich Evening Record. A photograph of David Hale Fanning, and a sketch of his life, copies from The Bulletin of April 28. A story of the monument from its start, nine years before its erection, to its finish, a copper cent after the latest die. There was a photograph of the monument from a painting taken by G. H. Prior, also photographs of all four churches of the borough and the First Congregational church in Pachaug, together with the picture of the old St. Mary's church, which stood nearly upon the site of the monument.

A copy of the official invitation was enclosed which reads: The honor of your presence is requested at the unveiling of the Soldiers' monument in David Hale Fanning park, Jewett City, Connecticut, Memorial Day May thirtieth, nineteen hundred and thirteen, (Signed), George A. Haskell, chairman, Everett H. Hiscox, secretary, Daniel F. Finn, Frederick D. Ballou, Rev. Edward M. Hayes, committee.

The president of the United States is Woodrow Wilson, a democrat. The governor of Connecticut is Simeon E. Baldwin. The senators in the U. S. senate from this district is Frank B. Brandegee, Griswold's representative in Hartford is Fred L'Heureux. The population of the town of Griswold is nearly 4,300. The town clerk and treasurer is John Welsh. The selectmen are James H. Shea, John Potter and Oscar Dugas. The board of education is John H. Tracy, Heburtus C. Burdick, John C. Hawkins, James T. Wilbur, William C. Terry, Shepherd P. Brown, Marcus H. Driscoll, L. H. Desrosiers and Frank E. Robinson. The school committee is George H. Jennings, George A. Hasskell and James H. Shea. The warden of the borough is Joseph M. McCarthy, clerk and treasurer, William T. Crumb. The burgesses are Albertus C. Burdick, Joseph Bryant, Horace Myott and Frank E. Robinson. The following names of the Civil war veterans, the residents of Griswold, were also placed within the box after which it was hermetically sealed by Charles E. Spicer: *Stephen P. Green, *William H. Tift, Lewis A. Thornton, *Joseph Cross, *George A. Haskell, *George W. Blake, *John H. Lee, Hugh McLaughlin, *Russell M. Brown, *Adolphus Moffat, *Fred Whipple, William A. Whiteman, *Joseph Parisseau, *Alfred Bicknell. The names starred are of those who have died since the unveiling eleven years ago.

Anne Brewster Fanning Chapter, D. A. R., gave a reception to the pupils of the night school in Assembly hall Thursday evening, which was attended not only by the English speaking school, but by children from the Polish evening school. The programme opened with the singing of America, followed by the salute to the flag. Tyler Gilbert played a violin solo and Miss Irene Warner sang two solos. Arthur M. Brown gave an address. The chapter had offered a prize of five dollars in gold to the pupil who wrote the best paper on The History and Correct Use of the Flag. The regent, Mrs. Henry Olson presented the prize to William Kolan. At the request of the members the young man read the essay, which was received with much applause. Miss Marie Roy received honorable mention. Miss Irene Stewart played a piano solo. Ice cream, cake and punch were served. Marches and games enlivened the rest of the evening. Miss Stuart and Mr. Gilbert furnishing the music. The committee who arranged for the reception was Mrs. A. M. Brown, Mrs. J. H. Tracy, Miss M. A. Burdick, Miss Alice A. Brown and Miss Ida T. Foster. The night school has been taught by Miss Marguerite Bliss and Miss Alice Barnett for 75 nights, and is one of the most progressive institutions in the town, on the basis of Americanization.

I will sell at public sale to the highest bidder, to satisfy a judgment, on Saturday, May 10th, at 2 p. m. (D. S. T.), in front of town hall, Jewett City, one Ford coupe in good running condition. John T. Dolan, Deputy Sheriff. —adv.

The church services on Sunday will be Mothers' day observances in most of the church. At Pachaug morning service there will be a songologue named Steering by Mother's Light, given by the pastor and a double quartette, Mrs. Wm. Edmond, Mrs. J. P. Richardson, Mrs. E. A. Geer, Blanche Montgomery, Albert Reynolds, Harold F. Geer, W. B. Montgomery and Eno Karjalo.

The conference of six church is to be held in Hanover Wednesday next, the 14th.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Bliss, Miss Marguerite Bliss nad Miss S. A. Burral were in New Bedford this week to atten the presentation of Robin Hood Donald Bliss taking the part of John Little, or Little John, as he was called. There were 75 in the cast, with costumes from Boston, and a large orchestra. Press notices were very complimentary to the young man's voice and ability.

Some men ought to be ashamed of themselves if they are acquainted.

The marriage of Miss Sally Williams Palmer, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Theodore D. Palmer of Stonington, Conn., and niece of Mrs. William S. Letchford of Morristown, N. J., and Joseph B. Pearman of New York city, took place at 12.45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the 30th, at the residence of Mrs. Letchford. Rev. Cornelius Clifford, rector of Our Lady of Mercy church, of that city, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, W. Palmer Letchford of Morristown, had as her only attendant little Miss Sally Palmer Letchford. John C. Sheehan of New York was Mr. Pearman's best man.

Mr. Pearman is an ex-service man, having served with the 27th division overseas as a non-commissioned officer, and upon his return was stationed for some time at an officers' training camp.

CANTERBURY GREEN

A large assemblage at the grange Wednesday evening witnessed the second of the competitive programmes being given by the members. After the business session, the following entertainment was presented by the men. The numbers were announced by Frank Miller and were interspersed with anecdotes of his recent travels abroad. He paid a tribute to Canterbury and the grange. Song and encore by Arthur Tracy; farce, James Towne and Herbert Williams; paper on the Grange, Milo Apply; Talk on Control of Tuberculosis in Cattle, by Malcolm Wibberly. A cabaret scene in which there were jokes, songs, impersonations and recitations, by seven men. The judges who were Miss Elizabeth McGovern, a teacher at Packer, Mrs. Susie Williams, master of Brooklyn grange and Charles Dodge, overseer of Plainfield grange, decided that the men had won by five points, the women having to pay the forfeit of a supper for all. There were visitors present from neighboring granges. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served.

Mrs. James Lathrop is spending the week in Philadelphia to witness the graduation of her daughter, Lydia, from a local hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Floyd, the former the new supervisor of schools, are located with Mr. and Mrs. James Lathrop until Mr. Floyd can make other arrangements.

Rev. Ralph Knight is advised by his physician to take a month's vacation from his studies and parish work, which time he will spend in a sanatorium nerr Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodier were at Backus hospital Tuesday to visit their daughter, Mrs. Elsie Linton.

LEFFINGWELL

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grimth, of East Great Plain were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Ross.

A. H. Beebe is erecting a double garage.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reynolds have moved into their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, formerly of Wawecus Hill, have purchased the Reynolds old home and have moved there.

Culverts are being laid on the Norwich to Essex turnpike, on the Leffingwell end of the road.

Mr. and Mrs. J. James Beard, of Attleboro, Mass., were guests last Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Beard. They were returning home after spending the season at their winter home at Daytona Beach, Florida.

Tuesday evening the Ladies' Aid society held a supper in the church vestry, with Mrs. N. E. Whiting in charge. The menu consisted of baked beans, potato salad, brown bread, pickles, rolls, coffee and whipped cream cake. A good crowd was present and a large sum was realized.

The individual who spends his time in telling what he is going to do after he gets there always fails to arrive.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Mrs. Shaw Calls Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a God-Send to Sick Women

Cambridge, Me.—"I suffered terribly with pains and soreness in my sides. Each month I had to go to bed, and the doctor told me I simply had to go under an operation before I could get help. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and I told my husband one day to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I took the third dose I felt better. I took it four times a day for two years, getting better all the time, and now for four years I don't have any pains. After taking the medicine for two years I had another child—a lovely baby girl now four years old—the life of our home. I do praise this medicine. It is a Godsend to women who suffer with female troubles and especially for pains at the periods. I surely was very bad once, and I know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation."—Mrs. JOSIE M. SHAW, Route No. 1, Cambridge, Maine.

A country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound reports 98 out of every 100 were benefited by it.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY AUNT MARTHA DISCOURSES ON DEATH AND HEAVEN

Death? Some are fond of dwelling
Upon it, but not I;
I'd rather, like Elijah,
Mount a chariot for the sky.
But where Death's going to leave us!—
I'm curious, I declare;
'Jest any place will please me
That has blossoms, birds—and air.

Now heaven as mostly painted
Has never won me much;
And streets of pearl and crystal—
I never cared for such.
Wherever Death may take me
No golden harps I'd hear;
Far rather would I listen
To a wee bird sweet and clear.

Some say that Death's an angel—
As if a body knew!
With feather wings all shiny—
I hope that isn't true.
For I never wished for glory,
And I never cared for change;
My greatest fear's that heaven
May be a little—strange.

And Death—I would not know him
Just think him some old friend
That I'd somehow forgotten
Who'd kindly come to end
With his old love my troubles,
And carry me away
Some place we'd both been happy
In some old forgotten day.

If had I my way, heaven
Would be where I should greet
Vanished friends and loved ones:
And every soul I'd meet.
All lacks passed from remembrance,
Would be more dear and kind,
Every fault forgetting,
Their own all left behind.

—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston Transcript.

A WOMAN'S "IF"

If you can make a cake that beats all others,
Bake biscuits that are crisp and brown and light
Steak so very well that your own brothers
Extol your food finds favor in their sight,
If you can bear to see the buns you've polished
If you can see your cake supply diminished
And not protest in accents wild and loud,

If you find a way to keep from getting
Mad when you've scolded keen your own maid,
If you can bear to be always last yet's getting
Up when you've told her she always is late,

If you can greet with every sign of pleasure,
If convinced that you're a perfect treasure—
What is more—he'll take you for his life.

THE RADIO OF THE ROOMING HOUSE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Tragedy and humor and even an occasional romance are attached to the conventional rooming house.

For some years the writer has lived in a half back room, top floor, furnished roomm house. The average room hunter would climb the four stories and announce that to be "just the room wanted." Some unique satisfaction, but there was nothing to excite possession, except as the cleaning woman used to say, with a breath of relief, "no fancy things round."

Upon the writer's return last fall an active spinster (75) had taken the corresponding room in front. She had the usual characteristics of those whom life has outgrown, of having a pedigree, a self-appointed mission on earth or rescuing and looking out for those steeped in sin and wickedness—an example of piety and wisdom—on regulating the affairs of others, never was out alone after dark, read the Sunday papers on Monday, etc., and in that capacity had taken charge of the top floor.

The fascinations of my room had laid such a hold on her that during my absence she spent much of her time within. I came home after a hard day's work to find her clothes soaking in my bowl, or hanging out of the window (sink outside her door) milk bottle rifled and filled with water, furniture moved, shoes, scissors, umbrella, plants resuscitating in my window recess, all of which, without remark and patience, considering age, I put out in the hall, which she would gather up in time saying that, "I was not brought up right."

I remember something about not leading into temptation, but my mail basket was such a temptation that many were the precious missives I left for her attention. I knew they had been read for she would forget now and then and give me some astounding information. I offered her my books of poems and other valuable literature to read, but without interest.

One night I had difficulty in opening my closet. That closet really held a secret. I had my suspicions. I had been having some top notch fun, but it was beginning to be serious if the secret of that closet were revealed.

A few days after she accumulated me seriously and said, "How can you work so hard at your age?" "Do you work every minute?" "How can you go to Hoboken every morning at your age?" I thought some more. Had that old devil gone so far as to examine the contents of my closet and valise in the hope of finding a startling life history or the great wealth I was supposed to possess?

The adjoining room was occupied by a generous hearted girl from the west, and upon my giving my alert adversary a more than formal release, she, pityingly, had given her permission to laden her room with plants etc., doubtless, thinking, that I was a hard-hearted Yank. Ere long she found that she had not escaped the some fate as myself for her kindness for her mail received similar attention and her life secret had been discovered.

The romance is attached. A young man with an inestimable opinion of himself, with whom we had been having a nice little flirtation (at one time we thought of drawing lots) had come along. I told him that my grey hair was premature and my saddened face the result of mental perplexities.

I had been in the habit of taking off ten for tentative and further reasons, and when I felt particularly cheerful and had three squares, took off fifteen. He had heard about my money, and had begun to call me "dear," but without hesitation and the slightest regard for my feelings disclosed—that age. I shuddered.

That old radio,—that example,—had found a key that unlocked my closet. She had found in my valise a birth certificate, executed some years before when contemplating a visit to a foreign country, and had added the extra years. She did. She had held him up and told him our secrets, mine my age, and the girl from the west, she was engaged.

We have not seen him since. We are not pining (this is not the first time) but our fun is over. The top floor is like a tomb. The radio neither speaks nor looks at us. Our doors are locked and double locked. We fumble around for our keys every night, but it is too late. our secrets have been broadcasted. What do you think?

THE LITTLE SPINSTER

AT CLUB NO. 2'S MEETING

Dear Corner Folks: Well today has been a red letter day for some of us anyway. When I got up this morning I felt sick and tired from over doing yesterday I suppose. I took a long walk and, after working all the morning, it was too much for "Poor Ma." But this morning struggled along for breakfast and very soon Free Air telephoned asking if I wanted to go to Norwich. Well it didn't take me long to say "yes" and in due time she came along with a nice car and lo and behold there was with her Bug, Rural Aunty, Cheerful and Grandma Gray and a friend. There was a nice seat for me and we started, had a lovely ride got there in good time, met many sisters, enjoyed ourselves immensely, partook of a fine dinner, visited some more, then Free Air, Bug and our friend and myself stole away like naughty children and went to see the picture The Covered Wagon, and let me tell you that if any of you have never seen that picture do see it if it ever comes your way. It was wonderful such trials and hardships as they endured in those days; it makes us think we are living in pretty good times after all.

In the late afternoon we arrived home safe and I for one can say we had a most enjoyable day. I think they will all agree with me. I told Free Air on the way home how much I enjoyed myself and I would always be ready to fill any seat in her car at any time. Our Corner is truly named Social Corner. Will close by telling you that those corns are behaving beautifully. Those plasters have done good work, I am just the same as ever.

MA OF GREENE GABLES.

WILDWOOD HAS SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Dear Social Corner Folks: It has not been long since I wrote to the Corner, and now I am writing for Sister Wildwood. She had a serious accident two weeks ago today on April 16. She fell on the floor and broke her leg, and spent her 85th birthday in the hospital. It is very sad, as she may never be able to walk again if she gets over it, which seems doubtful.

The doctors say it will be many weeks before she can come home, as she is one of the older members we thought this the better way to let old friends known through the Social Corner. She sends thanks to Balsom Fir for the pretty Easter card, and wishes her to know the Bach is now in Portland, Maine.

Rural Delivery: You have never answered the two letters mailed you from Puget Sound.

As ever you sister,

POTLATCH.

SPRING ACTIVITIES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The first few minutes have had in three weeks I will improve the time by writing to the Corner.

Been very busy housecleaning, papering, painting and white washing. With every thing else we have had two messes of big dandelions and now have a big mess of cow slips on cooking.

I welcome spring and soon will have to be setting out my plants. They are now all in bloom. Have a few seedlings to plant later. The children have transplanted some lettuce and we expect to have some early lettuce if nothing happens.

Merry Farmer's Boy: I rode past the old K. Homestead and there was a family moving out.

Best wishes to all.

SWEET WILLIAM.

CORNER MEETINGS GET CROWDS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: What a nice crowd of people was out to the May gathering of Club No. 2! Really Barnum and Bailey's circus coming to town couldn't beat us for getting a big attendance.

I was sorry Chocolate had no entertainment. The recent letter regarding the last entertainment seems to me unjustified. Those jokes were taken from creditable publications and newspapers and to attack them in a letter gives the people and the absent Corner members a bad impression. Now our paper goes all over the United States. Our friends and even Norwich people in India read it. I think the best place to criticise any part of the programme is in the meeting and not in a Corner letter. And I hope it will not happen again. It was very nice of Olea to tell [illegible] to Club No. 1 in order to clear [illegible] any wrong impressions there. I hope this will remove the misunderstanding and that our dear sister Chocolate will help out in June, as it is hard to please all. You know, Chocolate, how hard I have to work to get a house and call for food for our monthly dinner. I get discouraged and feel like giving up the job and letting the soliciting go and let the dinner prove whether it is worth responding promptly to my calls. It is a pleasure to work for the club's day of pleasure if you will all take hold in turn and help to do your part with me.

Dear sisters, all over the country, please help me to make Great Grandma's 94th birthday, May 16th, one to be remembered by her. She is considered a member of Club No. 2. She sings the Doxology and wears her yellow name badge every meeting day in her home. Her address is Mrs. Jane E. McCall, 19 Mountain avenue, Norwich, Conn.

Thanking you all for all help and responses to my calls and requests.

CALLA LILY.

MEETING DIFFICULTIES

Dear Sisters of The Corner: No life is without a problem, minor or major, trivial or great, and perhaps the best test of our character is the manner, the courage, perhaps, with which we meet the difficulties which face us.

The biggest and most difficult problems which face us are those which involve our personal relations. Living with people gracefully, whether one's husband, one's daughter, one's mother-in-law, one's friend, is a fine and difficult art. All of us need freedom to be ourselves, time to be quiet and alone for our soul's good, opportunity to follow out the interest and inclinations which would mean our self-development and enrichment.

Yet family life—group life—may lovingly but mercilessly wrest from us every claim to individuality. All about us are daughters, sons, brothers, fathers, husbands, wives, dependant relations, old friends who have lived together for years, who are chafing—openly or in secret over their involuntary surrender of individual liberty. How, then, may the ties of companionship be preserved, yet the individual find herself unhampered in self-expression or development?

For each person there must be there is—a just and sane compromise between selfishness and sacrifice. No life is worth while which casts aside its responsibilities, its memberships in "the group" but no life has fulfilled its full promise unless it has walked a little in its own chosen path. I am no genius for geniuses have laws unto themselves. So many have asked me how I write interesting letters. All I can tell you is to get an idea, trace it and find all you can about it, study it if you don't write but in one letter a month that will pay you. We have very interesting letters now and I do love the recipes. They are such a help. I see some of the sisters do not favor them but you remember that all are not alike. There are so many and they write on different subjects.

So much has been written about training children reminds me of a story I heard, or read in some paper or magazine concerning William Howard Taft. In addressing an audience he narrated the story of a fond mother who came to place her son in his brother's school. About one thing she was determined. Her boy must not receive corporal punishment.

"We have never," she declared, either his father, the nurse, or myself, lifted a hand against him, except in self defense."

Whether the story illustrated the speaker's theme or not I don't know, but all those humorous anecdotes are wonderful in helping to hold the attention of the speaker's audience.

Give a person a bar and a fulcrum, and he can lift many times the weight he could not otherwise move. Most of us have burdens to bear, many are struggling on beneath ten times what they ought to carry.

To laugh when we long to weep, to make others smile when we are hungry for sympathy is not easy. But along this way lies hope. It is the road to victory.

KITTY LOU

OUR MOTHERS

Dear Corner Sisters: Mother. The sweetest word in the English language. What a wealth of loving memories that one word brings to most of us, young and old, rich and poor and how many will say, like me, thank God I still have my own dear mother, and how thankful we should be that we have had our mothers for still another year.

Of course we all love our own mother best and we think there is no other that can compare with her, and surely it's the least that can be said in return for her love and kindness, and with each passing year we realize it all the more.

What is home without mother? Mother makes the home, so without mother home is not home. I well remember when we were all at home together and before our dear father passed to the home eternal when ever any of us came into the house from work or play and mother didn't happen to be at that very moment in our range of vision, it was, from father, "Where's your mother?" and from us girls it was, "Where ma?" So its easily seen who is first and last in our minds and hearts.

Mother love is a wonderful thing and you have to be a mother to understand and realize the full extent of a good mother's love.

I know there are some mothers that are not worthy to be called mother but thank God they are the exception and not the rule.

I always feel sorry for a home that is childless, and for the woman that is married and has no children, for there's nothing that can take the place of baby arms around your neck or baby lips calling "muvver."

Sunday being Mother's day let each one of us not forget to do some little act to let mother know that we still love and appreciate her.

I don't believe there is one heart so callous but that it must thrill at some memory of her in whose honor the day is named.

Our mothers! God bless them.

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

PINEAPPLE SALAD DRESSING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It has been such a long time since I have written to the Corner. I am afraid even the few sisters I have met will have forgotten me, but just hope not. I remember one of the good sisters saying she thought we ought to write often if only to say, "Hello and good bye."

Pineapple Salad Dressing: Juice of one lemon (put in cup) and fill with pineapple juice, 2 eggs beaten light, 1-2 cup sugar, pinch of salt, red pepper and mustard, butter size of walnut. Cook in double boiler. Use pineapple of other fruit for salad. It is very nice.

CURT, (May 18.)

THANKFUL FOR RECIPE

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I did not intend to write so soon again but want to thank Winnie very much for [illegible] recipe.

[illegible] Dear Rodger, who Strange [illegible] who I thought I knew all [illegible] know you.

SOME LOOK FINE, OTHERS LIKE IT

Dear Sisters: Burton Trehearn was great as a classic tragedian, and if some at least agreed if he were to wear his hair very short he would be just as popular as if it was long. Now it is unusual for a man to wear his hair long and why should a man be allowed to wear his hair in an unusual manner when a woman if she departs from long locks is critized.

There is no need to fuss girls if you want your hair bobbed. Why solicit advice from your friends? If you have a husband you should please him, (surely you ought to please him.)

Your friends hate to be rude for it is just as rude to express your dislike for bobbed hair, as it is to say you don't care for their hat or coat or dress.

In some paper, I read of a woman 90 years old who had her hair bobbed. Well that was a personal matter with her. Evidently she had no one to please. It is certainly a sanitary way to keep your hair. I wish some times mine was bobbed. A great many would like their locks shorn but are so desirous to please their friends that they evidently will not do it.

A school board should have a contract for a teacher to sign not to bob her hair while in their services. A man with long whiskers can serve his employer just as faithful as a man without whiskers. Their whiskers do not make any difference. I was amused when I saw that the teacher out in California won the case concerning bobbed hair. The state department of education decided that a young woman had a right to wear her hair as she chose, while the school board had tried to have her resign, but she did not listen to their request but kept on teaching.

Men can wear ear-rings if they wish. Way back to the time of Aaron and Moses—it was Moses who decided to wear them. I forget just now who it was used to shave her eyebrows off and the men made a terrible fuss over it. To wear your hair to please yourself is one great advantage you have, so there is one pleased anyway and that evidently is yourself.

Nance O'Neil claims that a woman can look from 10 to 20 years younger just by shingling her hair. And she wasn't merely preaching when she made the statement, and whether it was her bobbed hair or not she looked ten years younger. She says if you tell anyone anything simple they won't believe it. It's like a formula for growing thin, no one believes its effective because it is simple.

So there isn't much of an idea I can have about bobbed hair when people 90 years old and actresses all make the same statement.

I presume there will be a great many sisters who will think I am an extravagant writer concerning bobbed hair, but I just don't know anything about it until I see it short. Then I can tell just how it looks. Some look fine, while others look like sin, and I say—that I think the person herself has more to do with it than anything else. It is the same as advising one about getting married. The Household says, Everyone does well to remember that to marry is no great accomplishment, while to stay married happily is it requires tact and understanding to keep love calm. The young blacksmith of Antwerp fell in love with an artist's daughter. Her father refused her hand to the youth, for he had planned she must marry an artist. The ambitious father had no particular artist in view, he had no objection to the young suitor with the brawny arms except he was a blacksmith. Then the young fellow would be an artist for the love of the fair Hollander. It was love for a woman that made that wonderful painter, Rubens. His Descent from the Cross is known all over the civilized world. So, each and everyone knows how and what to do. It is a pitiful mistake to attempt a decision for anyone or the inferior pleasing of frivolous hours.

BEAUTIFUL MOUNT VERNON IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Dear Social Corner Friend: Just a brief outline of this summer resort for it has been a favorite home for many people, who have returned summer after summer for pure air, and pure water, and to enjoy the grand scenery. The village has electric lights, a park, beautiful shade trees, a beautiful stone and wood church and the modern Deland Memorial library, town hall, Stearns school. The drive through the village is many, winding through the beautiful woods, by the mountain brooks, and past well kept farms. Nature appeals to one in this region in many ways, and you gladly follow where nature leads and to them Mount Vernon will ever be a delight.

On the crown of Prospect Hill, is located the Grand Hotel. It has an elevation of 1,100 feet, and is 600 feet above the nearest railroad station, at Milford, five miles distant. Still the roads leading up to Mount Vernon are not very steep, many extensive travellers have said it is the finest location they ever saw. Amusements are many, three tennis courts, croquet grounds, baseball fields, a country club, golf course, swimming pool with a depth of water of 10 feet, also fishing and hunting.

The water supply, is from an artesian well drilled through solid granite to the depth of 550 feet. This beautiful resort is only 60 miles from Boston, over state roads, via Lowell, Nashua, Milford, N. H.

SATURDAY EVE.

HOW ORANGES ARE HANDLED

To the Editor and Sisters of the Corner: Greetings. Not having written in so long I will write another for the shutins and my friends. After being in Florida since last September and looking forth to spending a good many more seasons in Florida, I can say that time sure does fly, and the seasons vary so little that, it does seem like a perpetual summer here. Now's the time when you can do full justice to the beauties of this state. The air is full of orange blossom odors and you see on some trees, the bud, bloom, small oranges and still full ripe ones that have been on the trees fully ripe since that November. Now let me give you a mind picture of how a box of oranges is handled before you folks up north get them.

First, an inspector from the exchanges and packing houses goes to a grove, looks it over, then gives an order to the grove picker's field man. Then comes the trucks and carts with colored and white men in other groups to pick. A grove of 20 acres requires two weeks to be picked by a crew of 16 to 20 negroes who pick from 40 to 70 boxes a day at 8 cents a bushel box, (this year.)

The man who carts them gets eight cents a box to cart it to the packing house. There are from 30 to 40 boxes on a Ford truck. Then when they arrive at the shop they are ranged along by rows. Then a man with hand truck loads them onto a machine in which there is some kind of water or liquid. This takes the oranges on a belt conveyor through brushes to wash the oranges, then through felt brushes to wipe the oranges, then on to the graders who look them over and take out the poor ones or bruised ones. Then down a chute to big tables and there they go to some men who put tissue paper around them and into crates. The experts there work so fast that it seems like they were machines themselves. First motion with left arm to oranges, left at the same time takes up a paper on the side, then rolls up orange and then put it in crate. When crate is full it is put on conveyor and sent to shipping room. In some packing houses, the boxes are made by machinery and in others, by hand. Now when some of you folks read about buying a grove in Florida and becoming rich and independent, don't believe it. For the orange and grapefruit business is a gamble just like our apple crops are at home. A year ago folks got $4 a field box for oranges and this year only 90c to $1.25 for the same size box. So many folks get fooled.

Now for a 10 acre grove, it requires $1,000 worth of fertilizer a year to have the best oranges. Should it be a poor market year for your oranges, then you don't make so much. There are some growers that have made up to $10,000 on oranges in one year, but their groves are 8 to 12 years old. In very near every grove you'll see a colony of bees, and that honey is sure good. One thing more for orange picking. Every orange is cut off the trees and not pulled off. The cutters look like wire cutting pliers.

This year there was an unusually large crop so that with Florida shipping millions and more boxes, the fruit was so plentiful that they now sell for 50 cents a bushel at the groves. Where you have to pay so much, it is the freight or express that brings them up so high. Now you can buy a crate for 85 cents, a full size box. The oranges are 50 cents at the grove. That totals 85 cents, but on a full box to Connecticut the express is $3.20 so that makes a total $4.40 a box when it reaches you folks at home.

When we ride along and see hundreds of bushels of fruit rotting on the ground and think of the children who never see one in the country we sure do feel bad to think we cannot give them the benefit of that fruit. Now I will give you a nothern man's view of the scenery here near my place. The wide range of trees, shrubs and plants that can be used in making Florida beautiful and attractive to tourists travel opens up opportunities of wondrous promise in supplementing climate pictures that will feed the aesthetic appetite as well as to hold the interest and affection that climate awakens. So you see even the men folks can tell us women some thing, when it comes to telling about nature. I live near a small lake among the pines and only 500 yards from the Dixie highway from New York to Miami. Now days the tourists are flocking back to the north by the thousands. I thought I had seen tourists and their various outfits, but I hadn't begun seeing those that come by every day. After you've been on long trips like I did last fall, and camped every night, I tell you folks, that the call of the trail is strong. But not having been sick but three days in nine months myself, my three children nice and plump and in perfect health, my husband in good health, where last winter he was sick with double pneumonia and asthma, so bad that I thought I would lose him from day to day, do you wonder why I've made up my mind to stay in God's country? For if ever there was a paradise on earth, it surely is Florida. The coldest day we had in January or February went to 38 above zero. When delicate flowers bloom the year round, the truck gardens are in their best the green leaves on all trees, and when in winter would you call the weather cold? The heat is different from up home. The thing is that, in the south your blood is thin. That is the ones who have lived here over four or five years. But, when they go for a visit of three months back home in every three or four years why their blood stays normal, and we folks up north don't only feed on bacon and grits. Grits is the heart of the corn after they make corn meal. No wonder the folks down south are thin blooded and slim. But feed them on food like we do home and I'll guarantee that they will look like us folks from the north. One man in Georgia after a conversation with us said to my husband. "Man, I tell you, if my woman could look as healthy and plump as yours, I'd give my farm to see them looking so. Why, your boy there is only 11 and is bigger and stronger than my two sons of 14 and 16 years old. Your 12 year old daughter is better educated and quicker witted than my two big girls." So you see sisters of the Corner, how the southern folks think of us northern people. In North Carolina and South Carolina as well as in Georgia some of the folks are so land poor that they can't even afford $10 a month for tuition and books to educate their children. The poorest folks in Connecticut are rich in comparison with the southern folks. Florida is some better off because of so many crops of rich tourists who come yearly and thousands who settle here for the year round. Real estate in Florida has jumped 300 per cent in the last four years.

Well, I will close to give others a chance for space on our page. Here's hoping that your summer will be as nice as our weather is here nowadays. And best of health for the sick folks of the Corner.

ENJOYED CLUB NO 2'S MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I was very glad to be able to meet with the sisters of Club No. 2 in the Buckingham this week. It has been impossible for me to meet with you before. I was sick when the anniversary gathering was held and was away at the time of the April meeting. Spent five weeks in Rutland, Vermont helping my mother (Ink) care for a sick uncle. Am glad to be back again and be able to meet with you once more. We had a large gathering and I enjoyed it very much. There were lots of good things and many new faces I had not the pleasure of meeting before. Was glad to see so many out. We surely are a band of social people and if any doubts it join us and see for yourself. Hope as many as can will go to the Willimantic club meeting next Wednesday May 14th for we always have a fine time. With best wishes for the Social Corner's success.

ALTA, (Aug. 18.)

STAND BY YOUR COLORS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: With pleasure I will respond to the roll call, as the Corner holds many nice acquaintances of mine.

I joined in 1914 and Club No. 2 was started the next spring. One fall on the fair ground a reporter for The Bulletin wanted to take our pictures and we didn't just think we wanted our pictures taken. "Oh, conie, ladies, stand by your colors," he said. So, sisters, stand by your colors, when your name appears. Must make this short so others can also have room.

ANNETTE, (Jan. 19.)

CLUB NO. 1 WILL HAVE MAY PARTY

To the Sisters of the Social Corner: Club No. 1 will meet in Franklin Hall, Willimantic, May 14. Bring cup, spoon knife and fork, napkin and soup plate, as clam chowder will be served.

As this is May time will each one bring a small May basket to exchange with another. Everybody come for our final meeting of the season, and have a good time.

MARY FRANCE.

SPRING IS HERE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: What is more charming than to fall quietly asleep from the sweet music of a radio or the peeping of the frogs. I have had experience with both this spring. The singing of the birds, the green growing grass and the bright sunshine with carpets and other things floating on the line all go to testify that spring is here once more. I have just returned from an auto ride and enjoyed it very much.

Sweet William: How is the little baby daughter? I hear she is a regular beauty. I suppose there's sunshine in the lovely brown of her eyes.

Trust the sick will soon be out this lovely weather.

Best wishes from

BON AMI.

HASN'T FORGOTTEN THE CORNER

Dear Corner Members: For some time I have said now its my time to do my bit, but, somehow have not done the small duties we are expected to do.

Very much pleased to see so many new members appear along with some of our older writers.

Grandmother Grey. Its time that we heard from you again.

Rural Auntie: Much pleased to read of your busy moments of the past winter. Haven't had a chat with you since we were out huckleberrying last summer. Many changes have taken place since then. Hope we meet again this summer that is if the summer season ever arrives, for it seems they grow later each year. I hope you will be successful in your June meeting at Moosup. As there are many writers up your way perhaps more would be able to attend, instead of having to journey down to Norwich.

My letter perhaps is not interesting, but nevertheless, it will inform you that I have come through the winter, and have not forgotten the members of the Social Corner.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, May 9.—Speculative interest in today's stock market was at a low ebb, prices drifting irregularly lower in extremely apathetic trading. Total sales, which approximated one million shares, were the smallest of any full day session this year. Speculative uncertainty over the outcome of pending legislation, particularly the tariff bill, was widely regarded as mainly responsible for the market's lethargy. Many brokers also expressed the opinion that the market had discounted everything in sight, and was waiting for some positive indications of the future trend of business before establishing a definite trend in either direction.

Sporadic attempts on the part of bear traders to unsettle the general list met with success in only a few issues. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe was hammered down 5 points to 82 3-8; heavy liferings of that stock coming into the market just before the close. Yellow Cab issues broke to a new low level for the year, Chicago Yellow Cab closing 1 3-8 lower at 40 5-8 and Yellow Cab Manufacturing showing a net loss of 3 3-4 at 47, the closing prices being slightly above the minimum quotations of the day.

With the exception of Bethlehem, which closed slightly more than a point lower at 48 1-2, the steel shares held relatively firm in spite of estimates of a decrease of over 400,000 tons in the April unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel corporation, which will be made public at noon tomorrow. U. S. Steel common closed 1-8 higher at 98 1-4.

Baldwin, Studebaker, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Davison Chemical and most of the other active industrials lost ground but not losses were held to fractions. While buying power was extremely limited, the majority of stocks showed good resistance to selling pressure.

Doubling of the Ohio Oil company's quarterly dividend and optimistic statements on the future of the industry by Standard Oil and Independent officials failed to make much impression on the oil shares, most of which exhibited a reactionary tone. American Smelting dropped nearly 1 1-2 points to 62 despite recent reports of improvement in the statistical position of the industry.

Railroad shares showed mixed changes, Norfolk & Western standing out with a gain of more than one point. New Haven improved fractionally on fairly active trading.

Woolworth was the outstanding strong spot in the specialty list, the old stock jumping nearly 12 points to 433 1-4, and the new stock, which is traded in on a "when issued" basis, advanced 3 3-8 points to 85 1-8.

The money situation showed further ease, a further reduction in rates, some 30 and 45 day loans being quoted as low as 3 3-4, 60 and 90 days offerings being obtainable at 4 per cent., while the longer maturities at 4 1-4. Prime commercial Paper is now available in large quantities at 4 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange trading returned to normal after the violent disturbances of the past few days. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.36 1-4, while French francs were quoted just under six cents.

Belgian obligations assumed the leadership of the foreign list, which mainly were undisturbed by erratic fluctuations in exchanges. The 7 1-2s, selling on a parity with the government's 8s, achieved a new high price for the year at 102 3-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 9.—Wheat prices advanced today, receiving much of their stimulus from an estimate of 8,000,000 acres decrease of wheat territory this year in the Northern Hemisphere. Likelihood of freezing weather in Kansas together with a possibility of the McNary-Haugen bill being attached to the revenue bill in the senate had a further bullish influence. Wheat closed firm, 3-8@1-2 to 1c net higher; May 104 5-8 to 104 3-4 and July 106 1-8 to 16 3/8@1-2 with corn 5-8 to 1 3-8c up, oats at 1-8@1-4 to 1-4c advance, and provisions unchanged to 10c lower.

At the outset, wheat responded a little to opinions that the government crop report was to be construed as bullish, but the market soon underwent a setback as a result of selling attributed to the northwest. It was at this stage that almost simultaneously the renewal of gossip about the McNary-Haugen bill developed and that the estimate of decreased acreage became public. The acreage figures were issued by a leading authority here, and we from 13 of the principal countries north of the Equator. Throughout the remainder of the day, the course of the market was upward, with the Kansas crop outlook being given attention near the close.

Anxiety about the Kansas wheat crop was based on reports that wheat there has joined and would be liable to serious damage from frost. The fact that snow and rain with near freezing temperatures were indicated for the grain belt as a whole, was also disquieting as pointing to delay in the planting of corn, the time being rapidly narrowed in which the corn crop can be planted to advantage.

Word of 200,000 bushels of corn bought for export tended somewhat to strengthen the corn market, and so too, did denial of reports that a corn milling plant had shut down. Oats demand improved a little.

Provisions fluctuated in line with hog values.

CURB MARKET.

New York, May 9.—Stock prices pointed downward in today's relatively quiet curb market. Unfavorable weather which has restricted the consumption of gasoline and other crude products, is the latest reason advanced for the reactionary trend of the oil shares. While most of the active issues declined only fractionally, net losses of 2 to 5 points were registered by Prairie Oil & Gas, Solar Refining, South Pennsylvania, Illinois Pipe, Continental and Borne & Scrymser.

Western Pennsylvania established a new 1924 high at 12 in response to an increase in the dividend from 25 to 50 cents. Ohio Oil improved fractionally on similar dividend action.

Glen Alden coal was again the feature of the industrial list, establishing a new high record at 31 1-2 and from which it receded to 27 at point taking. The recent advance in this stock has been predicated on an early settlement of the anthracite wage controversy. Duplex Rad. also fell back about a point to 32 1-2 as did Durant which established a new low at 5 1-2 in further reflection of reports of new financing. Appalachian Power, making its first appearance on the tape since last December, jumped 39 points to 58.

Copper shares were again the active features of the mining list.

COTTON.

METAL MARKET.

New York, May 9.—Copper quiet, electrolytic spot and nearby 13 3-8; futures 13 3-8@13 1-2. Tin firmer, spot and nearby 47.00; futures 46.00. Iron steady, prices unchanged. Lead steady, prices unchanged. Zinc steady, East St. Louis spot and nearby 5.75@5.80. Aptimony, spot, 8.50.

Some years ago an American millionaire commissioned a London firm to manufacture an Easter Egg capable of holding the whole of his bride's trousseau and jewelry. When it was complete the services of seven men were required to carry it to the owner's house.

TO DISCRIMINATING THEATRE-GOERS!
"Blossom Time" the new world-famous operetta, is a story of mirth and pathos set in old Vienna in the year 1825. It is Franz Schubert's love story, illustrated by the great composer's own composition "A Glorious Festival of Pure Music"—replete with immortal melodies of a beauty that often lies near to tears." The comedy is fine and finished; the period costuming exquisite; the settings ornate and the cast exceptional!

GREENEVILLE

On Thursday afternoon the Woman's guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal church met with Mrs. Howard Gordon, vice president of the guild, at her new home on Boswell avenue, the members being present.

The meeting was opened by the vice president and reports from the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted. The supper committee reports showed that $50.59 was realized from the supper held May 2nd. The committee announced that there would be a costume party of the members in the Guild room Tuesday evening for the members. Everyone is expected to come.

TAFTVILLE

William O'Brien of Providence St. has purchased a new automobile.

The Uncas-on Camp Fire Girls tendered Miss L. D. A. R. Adams a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Helen C. Aberg on North Third avenue, Friday evening, in honor of her approaching marriage.

Fred J. Aylward, of Pawtucket R. I. was a business caller in town Friday.

The Boy Scouts held their regular weekly meeting in the recreation room of the Taftville Congregational church, Friday evening, under the direction of Scoutmaster Victor H. Davis.

The first baseball practice of the season was held Thursday evening on the Providence Street grounds, when the local varsity of baseball were out en mass on those who aspired for positions on the village team. From the practice that was performed, no trouble should be experienced in obtaining a good ball team to represent Taftville this season.

BULLHEAD IN A TREE MYSTIFIES LEBANON

The Bulletin's Lebanon correspondent writes:

Wednesday morning early, a bullhead was found in a maple tree in the yard at G. E. Chappell's. The fish, which was alive was 14 inches long and weighed three quarters of a pound. There is much speculation as to how it came there. It certainly got water enough to keep it alive during the terrific thunder shower of Tuesday night.

CAUGHT FUGITIVES FROM ROBBERY OF CHINAMAN IN NEW LONDON

Chasing three young thieves aboard a motor truck from New London police ran past the fugitives as the truck had stopped at Montville to change a tire, and the New London officers reached here ahead of the men they were looking for. Upon reaching here the New London policemen soon met Officer Michael Carroll on Main street and told him they were looking for three men who were supposed to have left New London on the truck of the Plaut-Cadden Co

Within a few minutes the officers had the three youths under arrest, finding them near the corner of Main and Market streets.

A canvas cover on the Plaut-Cadden truck helped in the escape of the men from New London as they stayed out of sight under the cover and also kept hidden when the truck had stopped at Montville when the New London officers' machine caught up to and passed it.

ROBBED CHINESE LAUNDRY AND NIANTIC STORE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 9—The New London police this morning made a commendable capture of three youths who robbed the Chinese Laundry conducted by Eddie Young, 272 Main street and earlier in the day burglarized the grocery store of George Sheffiott at Niantic, but in making the capture the police had a chase of 14 miles to Norwich where the men were taken into custody, but a few minutes after they arrived there.

The youths are Joseph Lemowsky, 16, of 200 Railroad avenue, Jersey City, N. J. Victor Selvaggio, 17, of [illegible] Mercer street, Jersey City and Louis Gilbeau, 20, of 23 Light street [illegible], Lynn Mass., and are now prisoners in the police station here awaiting trial in the police court tomorrow morning.

The crooks obtained approximately $30 from the laundry and about $25 from the Sheffiott store and the plunder was found on the lads when searched at Norwich.

About 10:30 o'clock the police were informed by Young that his place had been robbed and Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Frank Philopena were assigned to the case. When the officers arrived at the laundry they were informed that the lads disappeared through Shapley street. Then the police sped automobile was summoned and with the arrival of the car in charge of Motorcycle Officer George Laboue, the chase was started. When the officers reached the corner of Main and Williams streets, they were informed that three youths answering the description of the crooks had boarded a truck of the Plaut-Cadden company. In charge of George Linicus. The police car was then headed for Norwich and as the truck had passed the corner 20 minutes ahead of the police auto a record drive was made to Norwich. Upon the arrival of the officers at Norwich inquiry at the Plaut-Caden store there revealed that the truck had started for Norwich, but that it had a delivery to make en route. A short time later and while the officers were waiting the arrival of the truck, the furniture vehicle was observed on Water street. Linicus stated that his passengers had alighted at the corner of Water and Main streets. [illegible] Laboue and Philopena alighted from the auto and going to Main street Linicus espied the crooks headed through Main street towards Franklin square. The officers seized the trio and about that time Sergeant Smith and Patrolman Michael Carroll, the latter of the Norwich department arrived. The crooks were then taken to the Norwich police station, where a search of them revealed $53.59, which, it is claimed, is the plunder obtained from the two breaks. The crooks were then brought to New London and locked up.

When the three youths went to the Main street laundry, Young was engaged in the rear of the place. Lemowski went behind the counter, while Selvaggio remained inside the door and O'Brien maintained a lookout from the sidewalk. Lemowski removed the specie from the cash drawer and handed it to Selvaggio and as the former was taking the bills Young appeared. Both Lemowski and Selvaggio ran from the laundry and were joined by O'Brien The trio ran through Shapley street, continuing to Huntington street, to Williams, where they got aboard the Norwich bound truck.

While the New London police were searching for the crooks the state police informed them that the Sheffiott store had been entered and it later developed that the trio were the perpetrators of the break earlier in the forenoon. The crooks went to the Sheffiott store and noting the [illegible] located and a sign in the front entrance stating that the place would not be open for some time, went to the rear of the place and smashed a window. Going inside the store the money drawer was rifled.

As the police started on the chase for the crooks from the laundry, two suspicious looking young men were observed and as they could not give good accounts of themselves and believing that they might be the perpetrators of the break at Niantic, they were ordered into the police car and made the trip to Norwich. It then was revealed that they were not guilty of the Niantic break. They were Alex Lyra, 23, and Ed Johnson, 34, both of 51 Fremont street, Lynn, Mass., being held on a technical charge of vagrancy.

MOTOR VEHICLE DEPARTMENT CIRCULATES TRAFFIC RULES

The state motor vehicle department is giving [illegible] information to [illegible] operators that the [illegible] following signs have been [illegible] the police departments in all the cities of Connecticut:

"Where a traffic officer is stationed at a street intersection all vehicles wishing to turn to the [illegible] point must pass in front of the officer.

It is believed that the lessening of confusion made possible by this uniformity will help to reduce the accident rate, which has soared higher for the first four months of 1924 than for the corresponding period of any year since the department was established. Other states report proportionate increases. Accidents caused the deaths of more people in the United States and Canada in the last year than typhoid fever, measles, diphtheria, dysentery and whooping cough combined, according to a statement just issued by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Automobile fatalities led all other causes in the roll of death. There has been an increase of more than 50 per cent. in deaths from this cause in the last five years.

GOVERNOR'S FOOT GUARDS REVIEWED BY PRESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, May 9.—To the Governor's Foot Guards of Connecticut went the honor today of being the first troops review by President Coolidge since he entered the White House last December. The guards are en route from Hartford and New Haven to Richmond, Va., where they will be the guests of the Richmond Blues. They stopped off at Washington, marching down historic Pennsylvania avenue from the Union station to the White House where they passed before President Coolidge, the members of his cabinet, Governor Templeton and the members of his staff and the entire membership of the Connecticut delegation in congress.

The Foot Guards made a striking appearance in their uniforms of red and white, drawing comment from all who saw them.

HEARD REPORT FROM MISSIONARY MEETING

The chairman, Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn [illegible] the May meeting of the [illegible] department of the Woman's [illegible] Park Congregational church, next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Parish House. The devotional services were led by Miss Edith Bliss with Mrs. Beatrice Peterson at the piano.

Mrs. F. W. Cary made a plea for membership in the new auxiliary of the W. W. Backus hospital. The department appropriated the sum of $8 for incidental expenses to the Eastern Connecticut Branch of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions and notice was given of the spring meeting of this branch to be held May 14th with the Second Congregational church at Stonington. There is to be but one session starting at 2 p. m. D. S. T. and the meeting is to be preceded by a basket luncheon.

A very interesting report of the meeting of the Woman's Congregational Home Missionary Union of Connecticut, held last week at New Haven was given by Miss Louise A. Griggs, secretary of the missionary committee of the United church of New Haven, after which Miss [illegible] Foster delighted her audience with a remarkable missionary story [illegible] a charming way.

A social hour followed the meeting and tea was served by the committee: Miss Minnie Palmer, chairman, assisted by Miss Evon Brandegee [illegible] John Williams, Mrs. Charles H. Osgood and Mrs. Albert M. Van Wagenen.

TROLLEYMEN ASKING OVER 50 PER CENT WAGE INCREASE

Local trolleymen are awaiting with interest an announcement by the Connecticut company concerning the proposed wage increase to be debated between officers of the company and a committee representing the motormen and conductors, within a few days. The maximum wage scale now stands at 57 cents an hour and the new schedule asked for calls for 87 cents an hour, to become effective on June 1st. It is believed that the controversy will be even more lengthy this year than that of last year when the company finally granted the men a small increase.

Will See Mary Pickford Picture

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

Seventy of America's disabled ex-service men, crippled heroes of Chateau-Thierry and the Argonne, of St. Mihiel and Verdun, are working busily these days in the specially equipped V. F. W. Poppy Factory in Pittsburg, Pa. They are making the thousands of tiny scarlet poppy emblems to be used in the national Poppy Day movement conducted annually by the Veterans of Foreign Wars on Memorial Day as a tribute to our soldier dead and as a means of raising funds for relief of disabled.

More than 3,000,000 poppies have been completed to date, to carry to all parts of the country—north, south, east and west [illegible]

AMERICAN LEGION

The membership "push" of the state department of the American Legion, today in the sixth day of its progress, was scheduled to be one of the biggest days in the drive thus far and was one of the days in which the state department expected to enroll a large part of the 10,000 expected new members.

In one Connecticut town a tent was set up on the "green" where "recruiting officers" were stationed and where "recruits," the latter in the form of new Legion members, were being enlisted. This idea, started in one town was the latter part of this week rapidly spreading to other towns.

ODD FELLOWS

There was a good attendance at the meeting of [illegible] Lodge No. 27, held Tuesday evening in Odd Fellows hall on Main street. The meeting was [illegible] Grand Warden Keith and Grand Louis Waters. Considerable routine business was transacted after which the initiatory degree was worked on a class of candidates by Noble Grand Kelly.

Announcement was made that the regular open [illegible] session for May would be postponed until the first one in June as the date for May [illegible] conflicted with [illegible]

MACCABEES

The regular meeting of the W. B. A. Maccabees was held Wednesday evening at Buckingham Memorial. In the absence of Acting Commander Mrs. Eckstein, Miss Emma Haas, district deputy of Hartford, presided. It was voted to hold a whist May 16th.

Commander Mrs. C. Eckstein, Captain Mrs. Irene La Pre and members of the guard, Mrs. Jane Farrell and Elizabeth Eckstein, attended a general rehearsal at Hotel Bond, Hartford, Sunday afternoon. The rehearsal was for the beautiful pageant in which every review of Maccabees in Connecticut is to take part. The pageant is to be held in the Bond Hotel ballroom, May 28th, afternoon and evening.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

Sedgwick Corps, No. 16, with the president, Mrs. Clara P. Bunnell in the chair, held its regular meeting at o'clock Friday afternoon in the Buckingham Memorial. The reports of the secretary and the treasurer were presented and accepted. The members were reminded of the [illegible] which will hold an all day [illegible] on Thursday, the 15th. The [illegible] closed in the usual form with salute to the flag and singing America.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart Legion, Norwich Chapter No. 124 held its regular meeting Thursday evening at Moose Home on Laurel Hill avenue. Senior Regent Mrs. Anna Crooke presided. The meeting was well attended and various committee reports were approved. The chapter has voted to hold a food sale this month.

Following a social hour the meeting adjourned until May 22nd the next regular meeting night.

LADIES AUXILIARY, A. O. H.

The basketry class of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Division, No. 18, met at the home of Miss May Kilday on 10th street Monday evening. A number of baskets were made after which refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Boiz of Fourth street.

MOOSE

The regular meeting of Norwich Lodge, No. 950, was held Friday evening at Moose Home with all the newly elected officers present. Considerable routine business was transacted and in the new business the committee announced that plans were underway for an out door bazaar to be held in the interest of the Connecticut State Building at Moosehearts, and that the affair would be a banner one.

The committee on application reported all ready for a big class initiation to take place on Sunday, May 18th

ENJOYED A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

"I wish to say that FOLEY PILLS worked O. K. on me in a couple of hours and the pains left me at once. I took a couple of them in the afternoon, went to bed and had a good night's sleep and have slept good ever since," writes Con Thiel, 115 E. Columbia St., Fort Wayne, Indiana. FOLEY PILLS, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, will thoroughly flush the kidneys and increase their activity.

POETRY

Mother's Day

Let every day be Mother's Day,
Make roses grow along her way
And beauty everywhere.
O, never let her eyes be wet
With tears of sorrow or regret,
And never cease to care
Come, grown up children, and rejoice
That you can hear your mother's voice

A day for her, for you she gave
Long years of love and service brave,
For you her youth was spent;
There was no weight of hurt or care
Too heavy for her strength to bear,
She followed where you went;
Her courage and her love sublime
You could depend on all the time.

No day or night she set apart
On which to open wide her heart
And welcome you within;
There was no hour you would not be
First in her thought and memory,
Though you were black as sin.
Though skies were gray, or skies were blue,
Not once has she forgotten you.

Let every day be Mother's Day,
With love and roses strew her way,
And smiles of joy and pride
Come, grown up children to the knee
Where long ago you used to be
And never turn aside;
Or never let her eyes grow wet
With tears, because her babes forget.

—Edgar A. Guest.

Mothers' Day was observed here Sunday with special sermons at a number of the churches and the display of carnations by many. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of Andover, Mass., delivered the sermon at the First Congregational church. Faithful Mother was the subject of a sermon by the rector, Rev. Fr. F. C. Williams, at St. Paul's Episcopal church at the morning services. A timely sermon was also delivered at the afternoon services at St. Paul's church, Windham.

Rev. E. V. Claypool, D. D., of Providence, was heard in an address, Protective Motherhood, at the Methodist [illegible] Rev. Edwin M. Pickop, pastor of the South Coventry Methodist church had for the subject of his sermon, Mothers' Day, a sermon which was also delivered by him at the afternoon services at the Gurleyville Methodist church. The newly installed pastor, Rev. E. O. Pieper conducted the services at the Redeemer Evangelical Lutheran church Sunday afternoon. Rev. Frederick F. [illegible], pastor of the first Baptist church had as his subject for his sermon, Great Mothers. The pastor of the First Congregational church at [illegible] Johnson gathered support on Mother's Apron Strings.

The various masses at St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches were well attended Sunday morning. Out of respect for mothers of the nation, white carnations in memory of those departed and red for those who live, were worn by residents.

The recent activities of Constable [illegible] Colchester, in checking [illegible] of that section under suspicion, being liquor law violators culminated in two successful raids conducted Saturday when incriminating evidence was secured against Abraham Meotz. Constable Reilly was assisted in the work by Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officers William S. Congdon, Stanton L. Briggs, Harry W. Aery and Fitts, the last named of Norwich and County Detective William F. Jackson and Constable Jesse Pullman of Colchester.

A public bath house conducted on Pleasant street, Colchester by Abraham Holtzman was the first place raided by the squadron. Ware, Mass., can tell about its crocodile and Winsted is still privileged to relate fish stories, but both will have to get up early in the morning to go one better than is told by a resident on the Goshen road in historic Lebanon. Everett, son of Mrs. George E. Chappell was walking through the yard of their home and was beneath a maple tree when something fell to the ground and began to wriggle. It was found to be a bullhead or mud pout which weighed three-quarters of a pound and was fourteen inches long. The fish was dressed and relished by the family. The nearest body of water to the spot is a quarter of a mile away and the fish had no wings. Everyone has seen a horse-fly—but a fish-fly is another matter. It is presumed that the bullhead had probably been in the clutches of a hawk or some other large bird.

The roll at Windham county jail, Brooklyn, was increased by two Saturday, when Joseph Harding and Robert Fitzgerald, colored, were committed to the institution. Harding pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication and could not pay his fine of $10 and coses. Fitzgerald, an old-timer with the police officials was sent over on a charge of vagrancy. The case of Bert Melville for breach of the peace was continued two weeks.

The Willimantic Ministers' union is to hold its May meeting at the Mansfield Congregational church today (Monday) beginning at 10.30. The members will be guests of Rev T. T. Hawthorne Jones and his wife, Rev. Florence C. Jones. Rev. Arthur W. Clifford, of Windham Center, president of the union will be in charge of the meeting for the last time before his removal to North Weymouth, Mass. A general discussion will take place on Efficiency in Church and Parish, and this will be followed by fifteen minute addresses on efficiency in various phases of church work, by Rev. Charles G. Johnson of South Coventry, Rev. Frederick C. Williams of St. Paul's Episcopal church, this city; Rev. Frederick F. Foshay of the First Baptist church; Rev. John H. Knott of Chaplin; Rev. E. M. Pickop of South Coventry and Rev. A. Satnley Muirhead of the local Methodist church.

President Nora Murphy presided at the May business meeting of A. C. Tyler Auxiliary No. 14, held recently in G. A. R. hall. Two members were initiated. Delegates elected to the department convention in South Manchester, June 13 and 14, were: Catherine Joyce, Ellen Lynch, Mabel Peck, Cathrine Donohue, Mary Mathieu, Elsie Warren and Grace Sweet. Williams; reading, What the Grange Stands For, by Milo Appley; talk, by William Miller. The Club of Long Ago, by seven men. The judges, Mrs. Susie Williams, Charles Dodge and Miss E. McGovern, decided in favor of the men by five points. The sisters will furnish the supper at the next meeting.

JEWETT CITY

The big fire alarm whistle had a poor spell again Saturday evening, a little before eleven. Miss Rosanna Desjardines, night operator at the telephone exchange, pressed the button number 23, for a slight chimney blaze on Railroad avenue. The whistle at the Ashland boiler rooms didn't seem to get it right, for all it would do was hand out a series of erratic single blasts, a few minutes apart. The fire officials will again investigate the reason for these recurring failures of the system. The question of steam in this case, does not enter into the matter. When the operation of the whistle occurred there was 80 pounds showing on the Ashland guages. At the recall, which also went astray, the pressure was at 90. Some of the firemen ere at the hose house and got a line on the fire from the operator by telephone. Four hours later the uncertain alarm would have been baffling. Any fire chief will say, that it is next to impossible to gain at a bad fire, like the one in the Liberty hall block, the few minutes lost be an incorrect alarm.

Fire Marshal G. H. Prior said Sunday that no system is better than the Gamewell. [illegible] visited occasionally.

The white or vari-colored boutonnaires to be noted here and there, were evidences of fond memories or pleasant associations with the living "best friend." The story of home love and mothers were told from the pulpits.

Special K. of C. meeting tonight, Foresters' hall. First degree.—adv.

They were presented in the Griswold town court by Prosecuting Attorney Richard Dudkowski, Saturday morning.

The former was fined by Judge John T. Barry, $75 on each of two counts, amounting to $78.74. He produced the coin.

Folunsa's case was continued to this (Monday) morning. Agent F. D. Ballou, Superintendent Richardson and Assistant Paymaster G. H. Prior of the Ninigret company were at the trials. No effort will be spared to stop violations of the liquor law on the Hill.

Sunday, although a little shy on precipitation was the third in which the wind held steadily in the east. Those who have planted, report the soil cold and wet, with danger of early planted seed rotting, unless warm sunlight comes to the relief. One man calls it "bilious" weather, and the market gardener concurs with same. The old-timers call the present storm a "lamb-killer."

A dance scheduled to be pulled off in Union hall, Voluntown, Friday evening, took place on time. Various attractive side issues not on the bill added to the general interest. Knighthood times with warrior hold stuff, and a choice bold stuff, and a choice bit of Spartan heavywork, loaned at once a status and poise, that, it is said, was wonderful to see.

Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Jennings have returned from spending a week in Boston, at Dr. John Jennings. Dr. Jennings attended the sessions of the New England Health Association which were held in the John Hancock building. Seventy were present from Connecticut, six lectures a day being the programme.

The beautiful flowers used at the Congregational church Sunday were given in memory of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Sweet, by their daughters.

Mrs. Ewa Andrzejieck, 64, wife of Andrew Andrzejielk, was stricken with a shock Saturday and died in the evening. The couple had recently purchased the property formerly owned by Michael Hallisey, on Mechanic street.

Miss M. A. Burdick spent the week end in Preston.

Miss Nellie P. Franklin has gone to the home of Mrs. Frank Dals in Jamaica Plains, where she will remain for seerval weeks. Miss Franklin is suffering from a serious nervous breakdown. She was accompanied by Mrs. W. A. Richardson on the trip to Boston.

There is no waiting for meals with a Florence Oil Range

Quick heat for cooking

WHEN you are rushed to get your meals promptly, you won't have to waste time fussing and fuming over a slow stove if you cook on a Florence Oil Range.

The Florence gives you intense heat for speedy cooking. Just touch a match to the Asbestos Kindler. In a few moments the kettle begins to sing and the pot to chuckle. You can roast, bake, boil and fry—in fact, you can cook anything on a Florence Range.

When you are not using the fire, merely turn it out. This means a cooler kitchen in warm weather, and it means economy. And, remember, there are no ashes or soot to dirty your kitchen; no shaking the fire to tire you; no drafts to baffle you.

The flame in a Florence Range is close up under the cooking, where the heat is not wasted. By turning a lever you can regulate the heat to any degree.

Does not burn from a wick

The vapor from kerosene is what burns. Kerosene is a cheap and plentiful fuel. The Florence flame is not a wick flame, such as you see in the ordinary oil lamp.

You will appreciate the special features of the Florence the moment you examine one at the store (department, furniture or hardware store).

The Florence Leveler enables you to set the range level on an uneven floor. Notice particularly the quality of the porcelain enamel and the sturdiness of the whole range. The Florence not only means a clean kitchen, but it adds beauty to any kitchen.

The Big Burners

Florence Leveler
Attached to each leg of the stove this device enables you to set the stove level on an uneven floor.

Breed Theatre

Through the magic powers of the motion picture camera the audience at the opening performance of The Shepherd King, at the Breed theatre last night was transported to Egypt and along the Nile, and then through the Holy Land. The memorable and hallowed spots of history were used as a background for the colorful action shown in this famous romance—set in the shadow of the Sphinx.

There can be no doubt of the authenticity of the scenes shown in this picture. Nothing quite like the scenery presented here has ever been seen on a local screen. The story was filmed on the exact sites described in the Bible, both in Egypt, showing the exodus to the Holy Land, and in and around Palestine. Greater mobs are used in some of the massive scenes than have been seen in any previous picture.

If you like action adventure and tense drama all presented in scenes of unrivaled beauty, then don't fail to see this spectacular photoplay. William Fox sent Director J. Gordon Edwards abroad to film this picture, which took a year to produce. He employed 5,000 desert Arabs as extras. Virginia Tracy adapted the screen story from the stage play by Wright Lorimer and Arnold Reeves. Violet Mersereau has the leading feminine role and the leading male parts are played by well known French and Italian actors. The Shepherd King will be shown again today and tomorrow. A Jack White comedy and the Pathe news complete the bill.

Enchanting "Blossom Time" Coming

The playgoers of this city should be very grateful to the Messrs. Shubert for the presentation of so exquisite a musical offering as "Blossom Time," which is booked at the Broadway theatre under the direction of the Messrs. Shubert for Friday night only, March 16.

Blossom Time is one of the greatest musical successes of the decade. It has been on view at the Ambassador theatre, New York for two years. This operetta with Franz Schubert music is undoubtedly one of the most delightful musical entertainments of the kind ever staged. With a score consisting entirely of the famous composer's loveliest melodies which are delicately woven into a story of Schubert's life, it represents the most distinguished musical production of the past few years.

The action of the play takes place in Vienna in 1826, when Schubert was unknown save to a few friends who believed in his genius. He falls in love with Mitzi Kranz, daughter of the Crown Jeweler, to whom whom he has been giving music lessons, and as their intimacy develops he composes a love song in her honor. Too self-conscious of his awkward appearance to sing it to her himself, he asks his handsome friend Baron von Schober, do it for him. Meanwhile, Mitzi, who has already fallen very much in love with her inar[illegible]ciate suitor, is led to believe by a jealous prima donna, bent on avenging [illegible]he self on the baron, that Schubert is a rake, and so when the baron sings the impassioned melody to her, she falls into his embrace and precipitates the most tragic incident in Schubert's life.

Mail orders now being received. Seat sale opens Wednesday.

Strand Theatre

Supposing you were a week-end guest in a house party at which there was a jewel robbery? And just suppose that if you were searched it would mean having discovered in your pocket a burning letter from the pretty wife of the man whose guest were were. Would you refuse to be searched and thereby through your silence take the guilt of the theft—or would you establish your innocence of the theft at risk of letting the letter be discovered and incriminating the woman?

That is the intriguing situation that launches "Forgive and Forget," the new C. B. C. feature production which opens a three day run at the Strand theatre today. Just what the gentleman in question does, we don't feel at liberty to disclose, because it is one of the big punches of the story. But that he does something interesting and that something that follows [illegible] greater heights you may be assured. In fact, there isn't a moment in the entire action when the spectator is not thoroughly engrossed in what is happening and wondering what's going to happen next.

Added to this element is an intensely interesting treatment of modern marriage and what happens when the members thereof feel they are being neglected by one another. Here is a theme that has a knowledge of human nautre and its reactions as a background on which is drawn with telling strokes a story of strength and character.

Exellent acting by Estelle Taylor, Patsy [illegible] Wallace [illegible] Standing Phila [illegible] Vernon, Ethel [illegible] Milne, and Lucien [illegible] make [illegible] "Forgive and Forget" a production it is. Howard M. Mitchell has given understanding direction and Harry Coan has made a production that is well forth seeing. Don't miss it, is our advice to film patrons who like a good picture well done.

STATE CHAMBER TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

State interest will center in Bridgeport, May 21st and 22nd when the annual meeting of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce will be held in that city. Stanley H. Bullard, president of the chamber for the past three terms and several other prominent men in chamber work are residents of that vicinity, and their personal interest in the prog[illegible]me and entertainment assures a worth while series of meetings.

The programme for Wednesday, May 21st, will consist of a meeting of the board of directors at 10 a. m., and in the afternoon will follow a meeting of delegates, alternates and members for the report of officials and committees. An address is planned for the afternoon session which will be of vital interest to every one interested in transportation matters and a discussion of the particular problems before Connecticut business men at the present time will follow.

The Thursday meetings are scheduled for morning, afternoon and evening and will undoubtedly comprise the big state business convention of the year. A business meeting will be held on Thursday morning and special group meetings will continue in the afternoon bringing together men interested in retail merchandising, public utilities, banking and insurance as well as civic matters and citizenship. Thursday evening will end the convention with an informal banquet at which speakers of national reputation are being procured.

PALACE REVIEW

Mary Pickford Sweet as Ever in New Play

Mary Pickford in Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall continues to be the world's sweetheart in the picture and the large audience attracted to the Palace theatre last night went home after witnessing one of the finest picture stories ever shown on a local screen. Throughout the play, Dorothy is first of all a real human girl. Mary Pickford interpreted the part to perfection and to judge from the way the audience acted most of them enjoyed every minute.

Mingled with serious situations was enough comedy to make it one of the gems of the screen. Mary displays all her luxuriant personality splendidly. The picture is garbed elaborately and the settings are magnificent. They are never overdrawn—never anything but secondary to the prime importance of the story.

Strange as it may seem Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall opened at the Palace theatre last night in this city at popular prices, while the same picture made its premier in New York city at prices much higher than are charged here. It should draw large houses during its entire engagement of four days here.

Miss Pickford in the role of Dorothy Vernon is again the grown young woman. This character, however, is wholly different from that of the little street singer so exquisitely portrayed in "Rosita" the picture in which Miss Pickford first assumed a grown-up role.

Anders Randolf, who appeared in The Bright Shawl, takes the part of Sir George Vernon and Marc Dermott, well known on stage and screen makes an admirable cousin of Dorothy, to whom she has been betrothed against her will.

Queen Elizabeth is interpreted by Clara Eames, well known in both this country and Europe for her brilliant work as England's famous queen.

Estelle Taylor, popular screen star who has just finished with Cecil De Mille in The Ten Commandments was chosen as Queen Mary.

Mme. Carrie Daumery, widow of the famous violinist, Ysaye, has the part of Lady Vernon, mother of Sir Malcolm and Lord Burley, councillor to Queen Elizabeth, is ably handled by Eric Mayne, who did notable work in Suzanna and The Light that Failed.

Lottie Pickford Forrest, sister of the star, and who has not been on the screen for more than two years, is cast as Jenny Faxton, maid and companion of Dorothy Vernon and the part of Perkins, servant and retainer of Sir John Manners, is played by Malcolm Waite.

In the role of the Earl of Rutland, Wilfred Lucas [illegible] the part of the Earl of Leicester. Each of the [illegible] players has had [illegible] experience.

Broadway Theatre

After considerable delay the management has finally been able to secure, at considerable expense, the personal appearance of that popular western motion picture star, Franklin Farnum. This man of a thousand thrills will present a monologue of Hollywood.

Alice Isabelle & Co. assisted by Lillian Isabelle and Frances Sylvester, offers bright routine of songs, dances and nuts.

"The Stranger," produced by Joseph Henaberry for Paramount from the widely read novelette, The Print and the Last, by John Galsworthy opened a capacity crowd at the Broadway theatre last night and will be shown today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Much of the dramatic action of this screen play revolves around the processes of English criminal justice. One of the many powerful incidents of the story is the arrest and trial for murder of an innocent man.

Betty Compson is the girl; Richard Dix the man, Lewis Stone the brother and Tully Marshal has the title role —an old mop-man, who sacrifices himself rather than see a young couple in whom he is deeply interested suffer.

Positively best program of the year. Don't miss it.

Vegetable Fruit Growers to Meet.

At the Farm Bureau office on Wednesday at 7.30 p. m. (standard time), there will be a meeting of the fruit and vegetable growers of Norwich and vicinity. At this meeting Paul Mehl, marketing specialist of the Extension Department, at Storrs will present the subject, "Points That Are Valuable in Selling Produce On the Market." Mr. Mehl will speak principally on the marketing of fruits, drawing deductions from the survey which he conducted in Waterbury. He has some very interesting data on this subject, which will be interesting to growers of this vicinity. The talk will be illustrated by lantern slides.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A squad of six state officers from Danielson barracks, working with available Putnam police raided the dance hall of the Polish Freedom club in Putnam late Saturday night and made one of the biggest hauls of prisoners ever taken in a raid in Windham county. Forty-four men were taken into custody, all but two of whom, it is presumed, will be presented in the Putnam city court this (Monday) morning. The other two are held to answer charges of alleged violation of the liquor laws, as told in the Putnam news this morning. Several Danielson men were caught in the raid, as were others from Norwich, Jewett City, Webster and Southbridge.

Mrs. Elizabeth Driscoll L'Homme, 54, died Saturday night about 10 o'clock at her home in Goodyear. Mrs. L'Homme had been ill since last October. She was a native of the town of Killingly and had spent her entire life here.

Fruit growers, vegetable growers and many others will be interested in an agricultural meeting scheduled to be held this (Monday) evening at the county house, at East Woodstock, under the auspices of the County Farm association. There is to be an illustrated lecture by Paul Mehl, marketing specialist, on Where Our Food Supply Comes From. The slides point out the competition to be met by the fruit growing industry. A. E. Wilson, vegetable specialist, will speak on Pointed Ways in Selling Vegetables. There will be a worthwhile discussion of various topics to be considered at the meeting.

Among the more than one hundred high school and Y athletes who competed in the county track meet at the Windham county fairgrounds in Putnam Saturday, those representing Killingly high school made a fine showing. Killingly, as a school took second place, with Plainfield High school and Putnam High school tied for third place. Ralph Blakely, the star of Killingly representing Killingly scored first place in the 100 yard dash, first in the 12-pound shot put, first in the broad jump and second in the high hurdles.

Blakely also showed well for Killingly, getting first in the broad jump, first in the high jump, third in the hurdles.

Jerome Conklin was first in the inter-state 100 yard dash, second in the intermediate broad jump.

Killingly's relay team was second place winner in the junior high jump and third place in the junior baseball throw.

Killingly was easily first in the two-mile relay race. Williams, Killingly, Blakely made up Killingly's team which won first place in this event.

Killingly and Putnam High schools tied for honors in the annual typewriting contests between teams representing the schools. The senior event was won for Killingly by Miss Fleurette Boulaine, whose average was 71 words with 3 errors. Second place in this contest was won by Miss Helen Lennon, Putnam, with an average of 53 words with 10 errors. The team average for Killingly was 61, with 2 errors, the team average for Putnam was 53 with 26 errors.

Miss Gertrude Marion of Putnam won the junior contest with an average of 52 words and 1 errors. Miss Helen Lennon was second with an average of 53 words and 6 errors. In this group the Killingly team average was 38, with 6 errors, the Putnam average 35 words with 15 errors. The winners were awarded gold and silver medals.

PUTNAM

Regardless of the present depression in the manufacturing industries in Putnam, throwing hundreds of people out of work, there is considerable building going on in the city. Two large tenement houses are being erected on Van den Noort street and two cottages are being built on Prine street. A large addition is being made to the Putnam Foundry & Machine company's plant, on Mechanic street.

Boys from Putnam, Thompson, Woodstock and Pomfret were at Brooklyn, Saturday afternoon, attending and participating in the county track meet held at Brooklyn fair grounds.

All the trees on the north end of Oak Hill have been cut off. Many of them were chestnut trees and were dead from blight. The same condition exists on the south end of the hill, which is covered with dead chestnut trees among the oaks from which the hill derives its name. When it was first rumored that the trees were to be cut off there was some sentiment expressed that the trees should be saved and a Woodstock man offered $500 toward a fund for the city to purchase the property and save the trees. It is now too late to save the forest on the north end of the ridge and interest in the matter apparently has abated.

The cold weather put a damper on business, Saturday afternoon. Out-of-town shoppers were not in the city in large numbers and many a householder spent the half holiday in starting up his heater fire allowed to go out during the warmer days early in the week.

Members of the Putnam Country club had a few unprintable things to say about the contractor laying the new gas main from Putnam to Danielson for his thoughtlessness in the blocking up of both automobile entrances to the club property. The lengths of pipe had been welded together and laid along the roadway, completely blocking all means of driving into the club yard. This condition existed Saturday and Sunday, the two biggest days of the week at the club.

A large delegation of members of Union St. Jean Baptiste of Putnam will be in Danielson Sunday, May 18, when Danielson Union inducts a large class of candidates. This class is the result of a membership drive carried on throughout New England.

Mothers Day was observed in the Putnam churches. At the Methodist church, following a special sermon by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Burton, Mrs. Burton's Sunday school class distributed carnations to all mothers present.

At the Congregational church there was a special service and the pastor, Rev. Simeon E. Ozand, took for his subject, The Consecration of Mothers. In the afternoon, from 2 to 6, a Sunday school conference was largely attended. Refreshments were served. The evening session was from 7 to 10 o'clock.

The American Legion Auxiliary of Thompson is planning to increase the finances of the Legion on Poppy Day by selling poppies throughout the town. They will work in conjunction with legion members and will go to the villages of Quinebaug, Fabyan, Wilsonville, Thompson, the Grosvenordales and Mechanicsville, selling flowers and accepting any offered contributions. The plan was outlined at a recent meeting of the auxiliary. After the business session the president, Mrs. William [illegible] was surprised with a well laden May basket. Mrs. Prince made an address of thanks and appreciation for the remembrance.

There was a large gathering of the members of the Thompson Boys' club, Saturday evening, to listen to a reader. Miss Elizabeth G. Whiting. The meeting was held in the town hall.

At the meeting of Putnam Lodge of Elks, Tuesday evening, more applications will be balloted upon, in preparation for a large class initiation to be held in conjunction with Mother's day observance on the evening of May 27th. The annual informal Ladies' night of the lodge will be held Tuesday evening, May 20th. Instead of serving supper at a late hour a new plan will be followed this year. Supper will be served in the lodge rooms at 8 o'clock. The gathering will then assemble in Music hall, Livery street, where there will be an entertainment and dancing.

On account of weather conditions little attention or thought was paid to Arbor Day, Friday. The only observance was in the schools where the governor's proclamation was read and the teachers in the lower grades gave talks on bird and vegetable life.

J. A., Philips, who was taken into custody in Putnam Friday afternoon by the police, was taken to Webster, Mass., Saturday morning and turned over to officers from the insane asylum at Medfield, Mass.

Philips, during his detention at the Putnam police station, talked incessantly about obtaining a lawyer to make a legal fight to have him declared sane. Occasionally the man would drop to his knees and make a prayer, and would then resume incessant talking.

In the fourth annual typewriting contest between Putnam High school and Killingly High school, held before a large gathering at the Killingly High school in Danielson, Friday night, Killingly won the gold medal in the senior contest, while Putnam won the silver medal. In the junior contest both gold and silver medals went to Putnam. Danielson won the school trophy, a silver cup, awarded the school maintaining the highest average speed.

The individual medals were awarded as follows: Seniors, gold medal, Miss Fleurett Boulaine, Killingly; silver medal, Miss Jenevieve Letters, Putnam; Juniors, Miss Gertrude Marion, Putnam, gold medal; Miss Helen Elizabeth French, Putnam, silver medal.

In 1921, Killingly won the senior contest and Killingly the junior contest. In 1922, Putnam won both contests; last year Putnam won the senior contest and Killingly the junior contest.

C. Ray Cotton, Henry Hurdman and John Fern, chiefs of Wappaquasset Tribe of Red Men, were in Bridgeport Saturday, attending the session of the Grand Council, as delegates from the local tribe. Accompanying them was Constable Peter A. Gardner, who is a member of the Grand Council and a member of the credentials and mileage committee of the convention.

A program is being arranged for the meeting of the League of Women Voters, to be held Thursday afternoon next in the chamber of commerce rooms. One of the forthcoming entertainments the league is sponsoring, in connection with an organization of the Baptist church, is the appearance here of the Lotus male quartette of Boston. The quartette will be assisted by Miss Louise Hanson, reader.

New London, May 11.—An automobile, owned and operated by J. W. Fordham, 68 Hempstead street, was in collision with another machine at Marlboro, this state, Saturday afternoon. Fordham's car, a Dodge touring car, was badly damaged.

A greater number of bluejackets than has thronged the streets of this city in many months were about today, for during the night the U. S. S. Savannah and Camden, arrived in the lower harbor and took up anchorage near the U. S. S. Bushnell, which arrived in port a few days ago. The three craft, together with several boats from the submarine base, will go to the vicinity of Block Island and Montauk Point, Monday, to remain the greater part of the week at target practice.

The police sought in vain Saturday afternoon and today an Italian, who is guilty of the commission of a crime, which will carry him to state's prison if he is apprehended and convicted. Late Saturday afternoon the Italian was in the vicinity of Riverview avenue and Crescent street, where he engaged in conversation with the 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Colby of 73 Riverside avenue, who was playing on the sidewalk. The girl was requested to enter a small section of woodland to pick flowers and she accompanied the man to the secluded spot. There the fellow not only exposed himself, but attempted to assault the child. Being unsuccessful in his brutish endeavor the Italian left the child and the latter went home and related what had occurred. The father of the child lodged complaint with Motorcycle Officer Ray, but a search by that officer failed to locate the man. Since then the entire police force have been furnished with a description of the fellow wanted. The man is described as of middle age, with short, stubby mustache, dark brown or gray. He wore a brown sweater and blue overalls and carried a blue coat on his arm. The fellow carried a hoe and is believed to have been either a laborer or farmhand.

The residence of Harold Friars, 70 Montauk avenue, was entered by a sneak thief some time Saturday evening, for when Mrs. Friars returned home shortly after 10 o'clock she discovered that entrance to her home had been effected during her absence of two hours. Police investigation revealed that entrance to the house was gained by the crook using a duplicate key. So far as Mrs. Friars could determine the thief did not obtain any plunder.

Daniel Boyle, 65, died in the Mitch-ell ward of Lawrence hospital, Saturday morning from tuberculosis. Mr. Boyle was formerly employed by the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company, but had been incapacitated several months because of ill health. He is survived by his widow and four daughters. Mr. Boyle, who had been confined to his home a number of weeks because of lung affection, Wednesday attempted to obtain a greater volume of fresh air by going to an open window in the second story of the house. Leaving the bed he staggered across the room and fell out the window to the ground, a distance of about 20 feet. Because of the injuries he received Mr. Boyle was transferred to the hospital.

The condition of Joseph Kopp, 17 Garfield avenue, who sustained a shock while exercising on the street last week, is less encouraging today than at any time since he was stricken.

The police was summoned to the Mariners Savings bank, Saturday forenoon, where a fellow, probably suffering from mental trouble, gave the bank officials a slight scare, not because it was feared that an attempt at robbery would be committed, for the man did not enter the institution. About 11 o'clock a telephone operator of the Southern New England Telephone company, corner of Union and Golden streets, saw the fellow walking on top of the bank. The man acted [illegible] Alter watching the man walking about the roof several minutes and peering through skylights, the operator made known her observation and that led to the bank officials being notified.

Just before the bank was communicated with the fellow tied a handkerchief or two about the instrument case and dropped it to the pavement in the yard of the post office. Almost instantly afterwards he jumped from the roof of the annex of the bank to the post office yard, a distance of about 20 feet.

The police were notified and two telephone operators were dispatched to the corner of State and Union streets for the purpose of watching the movements of the man, but he was nowhere to be seen. Motorcycle officer George Labonte and Patrolman Frank Chilopcha were sent to the bank in the police speed automobile, but a search in the vicinity of the institution failed to locate the fellow, who wore a gray suit and grap cap and had on either leggings or puttees.

Miss Caroline Quinn has returned to her home, 197 Montauk avenue, concluding a several days' visit with friends in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Catton, 74 School street, Mrs. Catton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Gadbois and the latter's daughter, Miss Florence Gadbois, 449 Montauk avenue, returned home Saturday, having spent several weeks touring Europe.

George W. Sisson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sisson, of Coles street, and Miss Gladys Irene Oliver, of Mystic, were married Friday evening at the parsonage of the First Baptist church, by Rev. Chester H. Howe. They were attended by State Policeman Bernard W. Kenerson and Mrs. Kenerson, the latter being a sister of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Sisson will make their home temporarily with Mr. Sisson's parents.

Funeral services for Ada W., infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Brown, 28 Maple avenue, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents, by Rev. Horatio Chase, pastor of the Montauk Avenue Baptist church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The body of Mrs. Lena Chapman, a former resident of Groton, whose death occurred at her home in Washington several days ago, was buried in Groton cemetery Saturday afternoon. Committal services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church.

An automobile truck owned and operated by D. W. Bradham, 9 North street, was in collision with an unidentified automobile on Bank street Saturday afternoon. Both machines were damaged.

Thomas Connally, an old offender for intoxication, will be in the police court again on that charge Monday forenoon, for Supt. Richard W. Mansfield of the B. F. Learned Mission caused Connally to be taken from the mission Saturday night when the latter, who has been lodging there, put in an appearance drunk. Another old offender, James Morrison, will also be presented on a drunkenness charge. Morrison was arrested on State street Saturday evening by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky.

Harry Long of Lyme and Merrill Comstock of Chappell street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged Saturday.

The Pequot Casino, one of the pleasure places for many years in the Pequot colony, was sold at auction on Saturday afternon, Nathan Belcher being the purchaser. The price paid was $15,000. Mr. Belcher acted for Robert Moore, of New Orleans, La., a summer resident at the Pequot, whose large estate is diagonally opposite the Casino property. Mr. Moore is now en route to Europe and what disposition will be made of the property is not known. Mr. Belcher stated today that he did not know what Mr. Moore intended to do with the property, but believed that it was acquired by the purchaser to protect his interests at the Pequot. The sale of the Casino property was made in compliance with an order of the superior court on a foreclosure order, resulting from suit being brought by the National Bank of Commerce. Besides the Casino, which is a two-story, wooden structure, the sale includes the small island southeast of the main property and known as Quinnipeag island, as well as riparian rights. The property was owned by the Pequot Casino association. Several years ago the Casino association abandoned active control of the property and it was later leased to John Carney, of New Haven. The property was then used as a dance hall and went out of business a year ago, when a squad of raiding officers under instructions from State's Attorney Hull swooped down on the place and found evidence of the sale of liquor there. Carney was arrested and held a hearing and his case is on the docket for trial at the session of the superior court, which will open in New London Tuesday. The property has been a great expense to its owners for it has been twice gutted by fire.

At a meeting of the Officers' Association of the New London fire department, held at the quarters of Nameaug Engine company Friday night, Chief Charles Rose was the center of an attack made by foremen of the several companies because of an alleged order making it compulsory on all drivers of apparatus to take their orders from the chief and not from the foremen. Chief Rose denied that any such order had been given, but it is understood that such a suggestion had been made to Chief Rose by City Manager Holt. The meeting was a stormy one and resulted in a committee being appointed, who will cause a set of rules to be drafted which will be submitted at another meeting of the association to be held Tuesday night at the quarters of Konomoc Hose company.

Patrolman Ernest Opperman discovered a bad break in one of the city's water mains on Easterly place, Ocean Beach, late this afternoon. The water and sewer department was notified and a repair gang was engaged several hours perfecting repairs.

An automobile owned and operated by Charles Peterson, 189 Howard street, struck an unidentified sailor this afternoon when near the corner of State and Bank streets when the sailor did not heed the warning of the approaching automobile. The sailor sustained minor bruises.

Leon M. Guest, 12 Pocasset avenue, Providence, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky, charged with reckless driving. He will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. Guest had operated his machine from Bank to State street and was headed in a northerly direction. In passing through the safety zone Guest turned and looked around at some pedestrians and in doing so he lost control of his car, a Ford coupe, which struck one of the traffic signs of the "lighthouse" type, wrecking the front end of the machine. The car had to be towed away by a wrecker and put in storage.

COLCHESTER

The members of Fire company No. 1 were called out Friday afternoon on the park and were given instructions in the handling of the new chemical and pumper engine. The boys showed up well and with a few more tryouts they will be able to handle the engine nicely. At the trial it was three and one-half minutes after the siren was sounded that the company left the engine huse and had a stream of water playing. The engine has been accepted and the fire protection committee has paid for the engine.

WESTERLY

Daniel J. Sully, of Hollywood, Cal., at one time a summer cottager at Watch Hill, occupying Kenneth Ridge, one of the largest cottages of the resort when he was known as the "cotton king" and almost cornered the world's cotton supply, arrived in Westerly Saturday noon, to visit Watch Hill. This is Mr. Sully's first visit to Westerly in four years, he being called here by business matters, returning to New York Sunday. Kenneth Ridge has been let for this year by the Kenneth Ridge company, of which Mr. Sully is the agent, to Mrs. Frank A. Sayles, who has been on a visit to Europe. Mr. Sully used to tell Norwich acquaintances that he sold his first bale of cotton to the late Gen. William C. Ely, of Norwich.

Attending the Methodist Men's convention Saturday and Sunday, in the Municipal auditorium, Springfield, Mass., as delegates from Westerly were A. C. Taylor, W. H. Clapham, T. H. Coles, F. G. Kennedy, H. E. Martin, C. E. Mayne and James Cross, making the trip by automobile. This convention brought to Springfield three thousand laymen of the Methodist Episcopal church. The Men's Methodist conference held there during the past two days closed with the Sunday evening session at which Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania spoke on How to Make America Dry. Among other speakers were Sherwood Eddy, world traveler, who was a speaker on world subjects at the Westerly High school auditorium last Wednesday evening and Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Boston, who will be heard in Westerly at an early date.

Saturday afternoon, a Ford sedan, owned and driven by Francis J. Haswell, who was accompanied by his sister, Miss Elizabeth Haswell, was struck while on Oak street as Mr. Haswell turned into his driveway, by the Buick touring car of Fred Sisson who was driving up Oak street. Apparently no signal was given by Mr. Haswell as he turned into his residence and the rear end collision followed. No one was injured. The sedan was pushed a considerable distance. The Buick car sustained a broken forward fender.

The Land of We-Don't-Know-Where, a children's play in two acts with a prologue, is being planned at Christ Episcopal church by the Consecration class of the Girls' Friendly society. The class is under the leadership of Mrs. Calvert B. Cottrell and the dramatic instruction has been under the direction of Mrs. Roy Rawlings.

The first annual meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Christ church will be held in the church vestry Wednesday evening. [illegible] Nicker will speak. The object of the association in the church is to help parents by awakening the mto their primary responsibility in the guidance of their children's spiritual life, also to raise the standard of their home life. The association has worked hard for the last year and it is hoped by the help of the parish the work will be a benefit to both parent and teacher the coming year. Following the meeting the Mothers' club will serve refreshments in the parlor.

Arthur D. Remington of Providence was a visitor Sunday in Westerly, where he formerly resided.

PLAINFIELD

A family reunion was held at the home of John B. Inglis Sunday, Mothers' day, when all the children of Mr. Inglis assembled to pass the day with him, Mrs. B. B. Tait and her husband of West Warren, Mass., Mrs. Frank Pellett and her husband, with their little son John of Westminster, also the children who are living at their home. There were several guests outside the family present, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pellett of Westminster and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chadwick, who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Tait home, going by automobile.

A number of friends assembled at the home of Mrs. Eva Pike Saturday afternoon, the time being spent in amusements of various sorts, refreshments being served by the hostess.

The game with Bartlett High, which was to have been played Saturday afternoon on the Carpet grounds, was cancelled because of wet grounds.

Mothers' day was observed at the Congregational church Sunday with special music and sermon on the subject "A Mother's Way." At the evening service music was furnished by the choir and the Leach orchestra of Wauregan. A short address was delivered by the pastor, Rev. William C. Prentiss, the subject being The Great Musician.

That ancient game, quoits, more modernly called horseshoes, to which large numbers of men nad boys turn in the early months of the spring and summre, has become one of the pastimes of this village during the past few weeks, many interesting matches being played. James Muldoon stands as champion, having defeated all comers. His last match was rather one-sided, he having defeated Nelson Greenwood and Jesse Alexander 15 games out of 20.

Callers at the home of Samuel Wilberley Sunday were Mrs. Trail, Miss Florence Trail, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Trail and son Kenneth of Midway and Albert Exely of Groton.

Ray W. Greene was at Wheaton college the past week, attending a public function.

Miss Carrie Green, who has been seriously ill for some time, is resting comfortably.

The Lawton Fire company was called out at 12:30 Sunday afternoon for a chimney fire in the New Village. Little damage was done.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

The funeral of Raymond E. Demars, who died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Demars in West Stafford on Thursday, took place at St. Edward's church Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. Felix J. O'Neill sang the requiem mass. Burial was in St. Edward's cemetery.

LAST STAFFORD SALOONS GO OUT OF BUSINESS

Stafford Springs, May 11.—By order of the borough court, the last of the old-time saloons in Stafford Springs has been dismantled. Since the Volstead act went into effect George Panciera and A. D. Bernarda have retained their bar equipment for the sale of soft drinks. Several days ago the state police paid each of the places a visit and at the Panciera place there was found a quantity of moonshine, "Jaky" and a kind of bitters which, upon analysis, was found to contain 37 per cent. alcohol. A few weeks ago two sales of the outlawed wet goods were procured at Panciera's. In court two weeks ago he pleaded guilty to two sales, reputation and keeping with intent to sell. He paid a fine of $350 and costs of $19.80 and was given the alternative of dismantling his bar or going to jail. He chose the former and as a result the entire saloon equipment has now been removed.

Mr. Bernarda has also removed his bar. He was charged with keeping a slot machine and will be in court Monday morning to answer to this charge.

Trinity college professors and students "knocked off" on all academic activities and, garbed in old clothes and overalls, attacked the job of cleaning up the college campus.

THE INSISTENCE OF CONGRESS.

The action of congress relative to the date when the Japanese exclusion provisions of the immigration bill would become effective gives the impression that both the upper and the lower houses care not how the relations between this country and Japan may suffer, looking at another way it may be interpreted as a determination to put all possible handicaps in the way of the president.

On the question of exclusion there was little room of opinion. The president was clear that he favored it and congress unreservedly does. What the government was attempting to do was to put into effect the agreement existing between the two countries in a way that there will be the least possible friction now or in the future instead of terminating it with full explanations and in an abrupt manner that creates ill feeling and places the two governments in a worse position than existed before.

Because the house of congress and the senate are two entirely distinct bodies is the time when differences would be effected. If that means that a Japanese who could be admitted to the country within that period now come here would be in a different situation. In that event the same restrictions and more would be in effect so that the country would suffer nothing by delaying the date of effectiveness.

Inasmuch as the Japanese government has the full right to determine what policies it will pursue in the maintenance of the friendly relationship between the nations, it is another country's business to interfere in certain matters. The action of congress in connection with the Japanese exclusion provision is certain to harm but little and good would be assured by the plea urged by President Coolidge.

Inasmuch as the action of congress is the expression of many men, it is not the action of the president; yet

THE LODGE PLAN.

Senator Lodge came out [illegible] the world court [illegible] to be favorable [illegible] to be seen. It has been [illegible] at a time when [illegible] of little study to be given it [illegible] session of congress. That of itself might prove to serve as a reason for not taking any action at this time upon the joining of the existing world court by this country. Whether this new proposition explains why nothing has been done thus far concerning adherence to the world court has not been explained in connection with the world court [illegible] persistently brought forth as a reason for opposition that it was the product of the league of nations. Whatever has an association with that body is self condemned in some minds, even though it may be rendering a good and useful service.

According to the Lodge plan the idea is to have the nations of the world join with the United States in transferring the existing world court from the control of the league of nations and place it under The Hague convention and call it a world court of justice.

Such a plan is of course certain to require much time. Whatever this country may decide concerning its part therein, it would be necessary to get the consent of the other nations before there could be any such thing as the separation of the present world court from the league of nations. That means a decided uncertainty as to the matter of time required, but it would meet the requirements of no other country than this so far as known and should other countries be unwilling to make the change for the sake of getting the adherence of this country to a world court, the like of which is already functioning with an American judge as a member thereof, it would mean much delay and uncertainty.

Inasmuch as the president and the secretary of state has heard nothing in advance in regard to the Lodge plan, it is quite evident that foreign sentiment has not been sounded upon its idea.

FIGHTING PNEUMONIA.

Every new discovery that facilitates the fighting of disease is welcomed by suffering humanity. Much progress has been made in medical science and through persistent study new treatments that bring desirable results are brought forth from time to time to aid in the reduction of the death rate.

The latest about which information has been given is the new serum for combatting pneumonia through which is predicted that the death rate from that disease will be cut in two. When it is figured that there are 80,000 deaths a year from pneumonia the saving of 45,000 means much, while it would be an excellent accomplishment if it actually meant the saving of no more than 25,000.

It is to Dr. L. D. Felton of Harvard that credit belongs for bringing out this new treatment, which has not been given publicity until it has been well demonstrated in more than a hundred cases where it has been closely observed for the record purposes. There has been known to be a serum which could be used effectively in the treatment of pneumonia, but while it was successful for such use, it created such other disturbances in the human body that there was a disposition to avoid it. Dr. Felton has been engaged in the task of purifying this serum and has apparently accomplished his purpose as the many tests go to prove.

Pneumonia is one of the diseases which is greatly dreaded. It collects a big toll every year and the discovery of a safe serum that will place an effective check thereon means much. In this instance efforts to build up false hopes do not appear. Great and elaborate claims have not been put forth until the treatment has passed the experimental stage.

Within a short time much help has been obtained through new discoveries in fighting diabetes. More recently a serum for scarlet fever has been spoken of with encouraging prospects and the pneumonia serum gives hope that not only will all expectations be fulfilled but that equally successful methods of combatting other diseases will be found.

TONIGHT'S CAUCUS.

What is done in the way of putting a republican ticket in the field for the coming city election the first of next month depends upon the republicans. The opportunity for the selection of candidates is provided tonight when the republican caucus is held in the town hall. It is an opportunity that should be improved rather than neglected. It means the opening of the campaign and it is the important occasion for naming candidates who will, by their respective merits impress the voters of the city and inspire their confidence.

Because it isn't the day when the choice of city officials is made doesn't mean that the caucus should be overlooked. It is upon the results of the caucus that the voters must act on election day. That duty cannot be delayed until the day of election.

It is an old story preceding elections for voters to have much to say in regard to candidates, unfavorably as well as favorably. Criticism too often comes from those party members who have failed to attend the caucus or to let their views be known on such an occasion. They have entrusted the choice of candidates to others, possibly to only a few, and then have been disappointed because their wishes have not been carried out.

For that reason it is incumbent upon every republican who can get there to be at the caucus tonight, that he may have the best possible candidates and have a hand in their selection that the preliminary work to the election day may be properly started.

It is to be remembered, also, that the women voters today means women as well as men.

THE LOST AVIATORS.

[illegible] the army air service has [illegible] on their way. Major Martin [illegible] and his men were making [illegible] would be located the [illegible] concerning their airplane [illegible] to get any trace of [illegible] since the time they took [illegible] 400-mile hop [illegible] grave [illegible] fear.

Had they been rescued a report [illegible] would report their safety [illegible] cause for much satisfaction. That [illegible] see through a disagreeable [illegible] can be imagined. That [illegible] are possessed of the quality and determination that wins is clearly evidenced. That they are alive to tell of their experience is fortunate.

Conditions under which the flight [illegible] interruption and to that an unfavorable [illegible] are taken in order to [illegible] up with the other three ships [illegible] are making the flight around the world. Two pilots had developed engine trouble over Iceland and were forced down. Their machines were wrecked, but after a short stay the two pilots were able to continue the flight. Another ship was forced down in the mountains of Alaska. This is accentuated by the report which Major Martin now makes to the effect that they crashed into a mountain in a dense fog.

The experience of this party amply illustrates the adventurous character of the trip on which the four American aviators and their helpers started. Major Martin had encountered considerable trouble before the accident, but being smashed up at a point where they were left to their own resources demonstrates the wisdom of the supply of concentrated food which was carried.

Possibly Major Martin was as well equipped as any of the party to meet the conditions experienced and it is to be hoped, if the condition of the men is not serious, that some way of permitting them to continue their flight may be provided.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: See you at the caucus, tonight?

Republican caucus tonight. If you are a republican you should be there.

The May rains are making plenty of business for the fellow who runs a lawnmower.

Have you been longing for the time when something would be done about the equalization of taxes?

The republicans of Norwich should be mindful of their duty in connection with the city caucus tonight.

Uniform tests for motorists are urged, but it doesn't appear that the trouble lies with the uniforms.

It is to be hoped that the copious May rains do not mean that there will be none during the hot weather.

The decreased activity in the mills of New England means of course that everyone who desires is having his fill of fishing.

How long before certain members of congress will appreciate the fact that the country is backing the Coolidge policies?

Congressman Hammer of North Carolina threw a folding chair at a colleague. Would senatorial courtesy have prevented that in the upper house?

It has been forbidden to use portraits of Lenine on cigar boxes, labels, cigarettes, jewelry or candy boxes, but that ought to leave the way clear for Bat Bill Hayward and others.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To keep the kitchen sink fresh and without odor from the waste pipe, use cooking soda and hot water poured into the pipe once or twice a week.

To remove the cork from a bottle if there is neither knife nor corkscrew at hand, stick two safety-pins diagonally through the cork opposite each other. Pull on the upper part of the pins and the cork comes out very readily.

If grease is spilled on the stove sprinkle with salt. This will prevent any odor of burning grease.

Have you noticed that your oil mop has an inclination to become matted? If, after using it, you will brush it with an old whisk-broom instead of shaking it, the mop will always be clean and fluffy.

Always place a folded towel in the bottom of your dish-pan when washing fine glass or china. It saves breakage.

An ordinary steel nut-pick is a handy kitchen tool. It can be used to remove the tops from milk bottles and to remove the rubber rings from jars of peanut butter.

Save all the waxed paper that crackers and bread come wrapped in to roll out pie crust or biscuits on. It saves washing the bread-board.

To prevent cream from dripping on the table-cloth from the pitcher, rub a little butter on the lip of the pitcher.

Do not forget that paper absorbs juices. Therefore always remove paper from meat before putting away.

Keep a bottle of gasoline handy to use in cleaning the bathtub and washbasin. Saturate a cloth and wipe them out. You will never [illegible] cleanser after trying it.

USING SOUR MILK

Sour milk can be used [illegible] a. sweet, in cake, etc., if one-third a tablespoon of soda is added to each cup of sour milk. After that use baking powder just as though sweet milk had been used. Some cooks claim it makes better biscuit than sweet milk. If you have a recipe calling for a cup of milk and two teaspoons of baking powder use sour milk and shift in a third of a teaspoon of soda into the flour, with the baking powder, then proceed as usual. Buttermilk can be used in the same way.

FOR GROWING PLANTS

Plants will grow more quickly if a few drops of ammonia are added once a week to the water with which they are watered. The water should always be colder than the temperature of the room and the leaves of the plant should be kept free from dust by sponging or syringing.

FOR THE DINNER TABLE

The modern housekeeper takes no thought as to the appearance of her dinner table and is always on the alert for something that while different is in perfect taste. Nothing could be lovelier than a service of cobalt blue which is supplemented by candlesticks of glass which are suitable for the candles of yellow or green.

REMOVES STAINS

Mustard stains on table [illegible] (to eradicate) of the article [illegible] Water in which has been [illegible] one tablespoonful of washing soda to each quart of water. The coloring should last as long as any trace of the stain remains and should be followed by a thorough rinsing.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

The very best kind of rose for cheeks, however, is obtained [illegible] gienic living. Plenty of fresh air, daily exercise in the open, fresh fruit and green vegetables will bring a healthy glow to the cheeks that cannot be matched by any cosmetic.

If your fingers are very [illegible] cloudy that a fair one [illegible] make the fingers seem longer. [illegible] must be very careful about the cuticle of the nails. A nail that is too short will only be ugly and unsightly, and will not be an improvement even to the prettiest hand.

Raise yourself up on the [illegible] main so for ten seconds, relax so the body rests on the entire foot at once. Repeat this for ten times. If you practice it daily as an exercise at the same time train yourself to walk about the room while you are dressing as much on your toes as you can manage. Faithfully practice this will develop the calf of the leg.

The reasons why drinking water is so important to milady's beauty can be briefly summarized as follows: (1) Water helps ward off constipation by carrying away waste products. (2) If taken about a half hour before meals (not with them) water facilitates the digestive processes. (3) If taken internally helps the pores of the whole body to keep active and healthy. The temperature of the body is regulated by evaporation or perspiration from the skin; water provides the moisture necessary for this evaporation.

AS WOMEN GROW OLDER

It is difficult to get away from the babyish type if one has a round face, round features, and a certain plumpness of figure, but, by rejecting rose color and sky-blue, except in the very last touches of trimming or glimmers of lining (and these restrained almost to the vanishing-point), one may take a long step in the right direction. Fluffy curls, beads, [illegible] about a plump throat; puffed [illegible] sleeves, especially weighted with tassels; large-figured materials; all-round belts or wide sashes (which divide and thicken the figure); short skirts or ankle-straps should not be worn.

The hair should be kept smooth, following the lines of the head closely; the neckline long, the sleeves also long, fitting the arm easily; use plain materials and panels; belts at the sides; let the hem-line reach the ankles.

FOR THE BATHROOM

The bathroom comes in for its own share of the decorative trifles that are so charming this season. Perhaps the latest and most delightful are sets of clock, candlesticks and powder box, all made of clear glass. The clock has a large face and is set at the top of a pyramid of amber or blue glass, the candlesticks are short and also are triangular, while the box that contains the powder and puff is the most original of all. The stopper contains a small bottle of perfume with a perfume dropper.

BRIGHTEN MATTING

To brighten your faded matting, take a pint of gasoline and put enough oil paint in it to tint the color you wish. Use a broad brush and go over quickly and lightly. If you would like to have a shiny surface, let it dry overnight and then varnish it lightly.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Plaids are fashionable not only in wool and in silk, but in voile, organdie and even chiffon.

Bright red, green or blue leather belts, tooled, or perforated or decorated with nail heads are smart accessories for the tailored frock of the white sport outfit.

The Scotch plaid is at its handsomest in voile. This voile covers mat crashes, makes charming panels and is used by itself as a scarf.

Hosiery in one of the pale golden rosy shades [illegible] worn with the silvery gray [illegible] suit or dress. The strong [illegible] must be gray or black.

Imported towels of finest huck have narrow borders of striped lines. The effect is [illegible] decorative particularly when monograms or initials are placed above the striped border.

A flower [illegible] shoulder is one way of showing [illegible] keep up with the fashions and a very fascinating way, too.

Among the [illegible] for the [illegible] [illegible] with a key [illegible] Upon [illegible] account of [illegible] fortune [illegible] key it had [illegible] initials [illegible].

Walter H. Eddy, discoverer of the first vitamin to be crystalized. Asked if the crystallization of a vitamin as an individual compound meant capsule food, he said: "I hope not—for it will take all the joy out of life." Previous to his successful experiment scientists only knew what vitamins did—not what they were—experiments having proved that they prevented scurvy, beri-beri, and other perilous ailments.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. William T. Murphy.

The death of Mary Hallisey, beloved wife of William A. Murphy, occurred Sunday morning at her home at 41 West Town street, after an illness of five weeks.

Mrs. Murphy was born in Ireland, 42 years ago, the daughter of John and Mary Fenton Hallisey. She received her education in the schools of that country and when a young woman came to Norwich where she had since made her home. In 1907 at St. Patrick's church she was united in marriage with William A. Murphy, the service being conducted by Rev. Hugh Trainor.

Mrs. Murphy was a member of Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, and of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus. She was a loving wife and mother and a kind and cheerful friend. News of her death comes as a shock to her many friends and those left to mourn the loss of a loved one have their heartfelt sympathies.

Mrs. Murphy is survived by her husband and two children, Agnes and Walter Murphy of Norwich, her mother, Mrs. Mary Hallisey of Ireland; two sisters, Julia Hallisey and Elizabeth Hallisey of New York city; one brother, James Hallissey of Worcester, Mass.

Mrs. Kate Selzer.

Following a long illness, the life of Mrs. Kate Gerhardt Selzer, 75, came to a close Sunday morning at 3.30 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Franklin H. Rumford of 533 Main street where she had resided for the past 12 years.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Franklin H. Rumford of Norwich four sons, George, of Middleburg, N. Y.; William, Charles and Henry Selzer, all of New York, and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

She was a member of the First German Lutheran church and took active part in church work as long as health permitted. News of her death will be received with sorrow by many loving relatives and friends.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS ADOPT HIGHWAY SAFETY RESOLUTION

With 100 present the Eastern Connecticut United Commercial Travelers held a shad dinner at the Wauregan hotel Saturday at 5.30 o'clock followed by an after dinner programme with Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald as the principal speaker. The mayors of eastern Connecticut and prominent business and professional men were among those present.

The decorations were very attractive. Large U. C. T. emblems were suspended above each table and there was a large American flag above the speakers' table. On the side walls were six of the large arrow markers used at the opening of the Mohegan Trail seven years ago. The alcove was draped in the U. C. T. colors and on the small platform was a sign reading "Better Highways and Safety On Our Highways." There was also a large plate glass sign reading, "Norwich Council, No. 309, U. C. T. of A., Meets the Second Saturday Each Month, Roseland Hall, Market Street. Brothers Are Welcome." This sign will be permanently placed in the hotel lobby. The decorations were in charge of Morgan Gronin while the floral decorations were by a Norwich florist.

At each cover were red and pink roses, song sheet, copy of the Eastern Connecticut U. C. T. Monthly, a copy of Knott Knotes containing an interesting article on the Mohegan Trail and a U. C. T. paper cap.

Those at the head table were as follows: Judge Allyn L. Brown, Norwich; Hon. John A. MacDonald, state highway commissioner; Mayor Malcolm Scott of New London; City Manager Holt, of New London; Joseph T. Cruttenden, Niantic; Charles V. James, Norwich; Past Senior Counselor Everett N. Lyons of Waterford; Mayor Milo R. Waters, Norwich; Senior Counselor Leroy C. Searles, Rev. Henning Johnson, Norwich; Toastmaster Herbert R. Branche, Norwich; George W. Hickey, acting mayor of Willimantic; President Hugh R. Campbell of the Norwich Rotary club; Past Senior Counselor Alexander Jordan, Norwich; E. LeRue Bliven and Henry W. Lanz, Norwich.

The following menu was served at 5.30 o'clock grace being said by Rev. Henning Johnson of this city.

Celery Radishes
Olives
Clam Chowder, Manhattan
Broiled Shad, Maitre-Hotel
Julienne Potatoes
Green Peas Asparagus Tip Salad
Chocolate Eclair Vanilla Ice Cream
Coffee Cigars Cigarettes

Charles W. Pearson acted as song leader for the community singing in his usual enthusiastic manner. In his opening remarks Toastmaster Branche said:

Enthusiasm is one of the fundamental essentials to success in all business, but more especially that of the commercial traveler. It is the key that opens the outer gate and brings him face to face with his prospect and goes a long way towards getting his signature on the big order contract. It is said there are three kinds of people—leaders, followers and hermits and that most of us belong to the second class. I am certain that if the one who coined that saying were here tonight and saw the many leading men of Connecticut, judges, lawyers, business men, men high in state office and commercial travelers, he would change his opinion. The commercial traveler is here to stay. He has become a part of the big American business plans. He has found his niche. The toastmaster then introduced Senior Counselor Leroy C. Searles, who spoke in an interesting vein on U. C. T. activities.

Mayor Waters was then presented to the gathering by the toastmaster, and was followed by Acting Mayor Hickey of Willimantic, and Mayor Scott of New London.

Mr. Branche spoke of the opening of the Mohegan Trail seven years ago. He said that because of the World war, the Eastern Connecticut chamber of commerce, sponsor for the trail, had ceased to function, and the matter has laid dormant. He said he believes it is time to continue the work.

In introducing Acting Mayor Hickey of Willimantic, Mr. Branche said it was a pleasure to have the acting mayor as a guest and speaker, but that it was sincerely regretted that the late Mayor Dion, who promised the committee a month ago that he would be present, had been stricken and passed away.

Mayor Hickey gave a spirited talk on what Willimantic is doing on the highway question. He spoke of Main street, Willimantic, some two miles in length, on the main line east and west, and heavily traveled. This gives Willimantic a highway problem which many other cities do not have. They are doing what they can to promote safe travel through the city and traffic officers are being stationed wherever possible.

Highway Commissioned Speaker

Judge Allyn L. Brown, in his address, spoke of the Mohegan Trail and also spoke on conditions throughout the state in general. The principal speaker of the evening, State Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald, was introduced by Judge Brown.

Commissioner MacDonald spoke of the details of the highway system in Connecticut. He said work on the post road has been started and that the road is being "four tracked", making it 36 feet in width. He said that in five years, in all probability the cement road in Connecticut between New York and Boston will be finished.

With reference to automobile accidents he called attention to the fact that it is not the alien or uneducated foreigner who is responsible for the majority of the accidents. He said that many drivers, who are foreigners and little educated often excell drivers of means and education in the operation of machines. The commissioner said that it is not the "fast" driver who is responsible for accidents so much as the "slow" driver. The "slow" driver very often produces situations which lead to accidents on the roads.

The big trucks he said are responsible for fifty per cent. of the road accidents as a machine, in passing a big truck cannot see around the sides of the truck which obscure the driver's vision. Commissioner MacDonald spoke of the millions of cars in service and of the millions to be built and said that something will have to be done in the matter of highways. He spoke of the four track highways, the two outside tracks to be reserved for slow drivers and the two inside tracks for fast drivers.

Straightening the curves and rebuilding bridges is only a question of money, he said. The work can be done if the legislature appropriates the necessary money.

Pleasing features of the banquet were vocal solos by Henry D. Lovett of Groton and Frank R. Smith of New London, accompanied by Robt. W. Otis of this city. Both are vocalists of unusual ability and were heartily applauded.

Safety Resolution Adopted

At the close of the banquet present the commercial travelers passed ... the hotel to the ... rooms ... where a business session was held. A Norwich council. Nine candidates were initiated at the very lively meeting. A resolution bearing on the matter of safety on the highways was unanimously adopted at the business meeting. The resolution was to the effect that whereas "automobile accidents on our state highways are increasing in an alarming manner and whereas motor cars are being operated on our public streets at an excessive rate of speed approximating that of steam railroad trains, and whereas there appear to be an utter disregard for the lives and safety of others by intoxicated persons while operating motor cars on the public highways and whereas the U. C. T. are deeply interested, as an organization, in the question of the personal safety of their members and whereas 90 per cent of our members cover their territories by the agency of the automobile, it is resolved that it be the sense of Norwich Council, No. 309, U. C. T., in meeting assembled this 10th day of May, 1924, that we go on record favoring a more searching inquiry into that past conduct of those who desire to take out drivers' licenses and be it further resolved that we graciously bring to the attention of the state highway commission, John A. MacDonald, the many dangerous railroad crossings, narrow bridges and sharp curves, on the trunk lines of eastern Connecticut.

It was voted to send a copy of the resolution to the state highway commissioner, the mayor of eastern Connecticut, the chambers of commerce of eastern Connecticut, the Rotary clubs of eastern Connecticut, the Lion clubs of eastern Connecticut and the press. The meeting came to a close at midnight.

The arrangements for the banquet were made by the Eastern Connecticut Civic committee: H. R. Branche, chairman; Alexander Jordan, Adelard Morin, E. N. Lyon, Daniel Polsky, H. W. Gallup, C. W. Pearson.

The reception committee comprised Henry W. Lanz, William A. Holt, P. C.; Arthur G Growell, Daniel Polsky, Herbert W. Gallup, Leroy C. Searle, S. C.; C. W. Nay, P. C.; Adelard Morin, Everett N. Lyon, P. C.; Elkin Smith and Henry D. Buckley.

Those on the entertainment committee were James F. Campbell, chairman; Alfred P. Rogers, Charles D. Tingley, P. C.; Ernest S. Bean, Philip H. Sheridan.

FORTY-FOUR ARRESTED IN PUTNAM POLISH CLUB

Putnam, May 11.—A roundup of prisoners such as Putnam never before witnessed was staged between 11 o'clock and midnight Saturday, when a squad of six state police, working under the direction of Officer A. W. Williams of the Danielson barracks, and available men from the Putnam police department under Captain William J. Jarvis, swooped down on the hall of the Polish Freedom Club, Inc., in School street and placed 44 men under arrest. All later were released under bonds. Stanley Laczak and John Duda were released under bonds of $500 each, each charged with alleged violations of the liquor laws. The other men are held simply as frequenters, the bonds in their case being $25 each, furnished in about every instance by Mr. Duda.

A dance was on at the club when the officers unexpectedly made their appearance. The coming of the officers was like a bolt from the blue. The jazzing orchestra came to an abrupt stop and the whirling dancers halted wherever they happened to be. Consternation reigned, but everything remained quiet and orderly. No one got away—the officers said to that. The women at the dance were not molested, but, armed with the proper authority, the officers proceeded to lineup the men and to search them for liquor. Not a man was found with any on his person.

A search of the place was undertaken by the officers. In a room off the dance hall was a table with liquid alleged to be moonshine, and glasses. Upstairs, the officers uncovered some alcohol and down in the cellar, under the woodpile, the searching party secured a jug containing more alleged intoxicants.

With the search completed all the men in the party were whisked away to the police station in a number of automobiles. There the bonds were fixed and sworn and all the prisoners were released with an order to be on hand for the hearings Monday morning.

Only one man in the place appeared to be under the influence of liquor and inclined to have a bit of an argument with one of the officers but he promptly subsided when he was forcibly shown to a seat.

Men from Putnam, Danielson, Jewett City, Norwich, Webster and Southbridge were caught in the big haul, the most spectacular bit of police work staged in Putnam in many a day.

CHILDREN GUESTS AT DOUBLE BIRTHDAY PARTY

A pretty double birthday party was held Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock in honor of the seventh birthday of Susan May Lewis, daughter of Samuel E. Lewis, of Moosup, and Lloyd Cochran, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Cochran of Maple street, at the home of Miss Susan's sister, Mrs. Clifford C. Orr, of 9 West Pearl street.

Sixteen little friends of the children attended the party and were entertained at various games, prizes being won by the following: Pinning the tail on the donkey, Edith Billings; marble toss, Myles E. Standish, Jr.; hoop toss, Edith Billings.

The games continued until about 5 o'clock, when the guests were invited into the dining room, where they gathered around the prettily decorated table. Everything was in pink, the centerpiece being a large Jack Horner pie representing a rose, out of which ran pink ribbons which were secured to tiny pink May baskets filled with assorted sweets. At each plate was a favor, which upon being opened was found to contain paper hats and prizes. At either end of the table was a birthday cake, upon which were seven lighted candles. The little host and hostess served their cakes after which refreshments of sandwiches, cake, assorted sweets, ice cream and punch were served by Mrs. Orr, who was assisted by several of the mothers.

WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE INVITES FREE DISCUSSION

The following letter has been sent to all the members of the state board of education, including Governor Templeton and Lieutenant Governor Bingham, members ex-officio, by Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, president of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, regarding their unanimous opposition to the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution:

"I read with interest the action taken by the state board of education about the proposed child labor amendment to the constitution. The League of Women Voters is having a round table discussion of the proposed federal child labor amendment at its citizenship school to be held in co-operation with Wesleyan university, Middletown.

"I should like it very much if you could be present and take part in the discussion. It would insure the members of the league a thoughtful presentation of both sides of the question."

The league is heartily in favor of the proposed amendment.

BELTS CUT AND WATCHMAN ATTACKED

Two belts were cut and the watchman was attacked at the Versailles Sanitary Fibre mill at an early hour this (Monday) morning by unknown persons who got into the mill. The watchman said his lantern was cut by an iron bar that was thrown at him.

A telephone call from a nearby house brought two squads of police from the state police barracks in charge of Sergeant Gorgas.

Supt. H. C. Mosher of 50 Broad street notified the local police from his home and on his way to the mill stopped at the police station. Sergt. Thomas Murphy sent Officers Patrick Murphy and Peter Driscoll to the scene and they went to Versailles with Mr. Mosher in his automobile.

RIVERVIEW CLUB TAKES BOTH GAMES OF DOUBLE BILL FROM WILLIMANTIC

The Riverview club was returned a winner in both games of the week end bill with the Willimantic Threadmakers, taking a ten-inning game on Saturday at the State hospital diamond, 4 to 3, and winning Sunday's engagement at Willimantic by the same score. Both battles were close and interesting, the Riverview victories coming as results of hitting by Moore, Harold and Mills. In Saturday's contest it was Moore's triple and Lefty Harold's stinging grounder that won for the Hospital in the tenth and in Sunday's contest it was Mills' homer in the eighth inning that put Willimantic down to defeat.

Saturday's game was not so spectacular as the game Sunday but it was equally as interesting, many snappy plays being executed by both teams. The work of the combination of Eddie Burns and Dinty Mocre at second and short was a feature of Saturday's contest. During the game these two handled 14 chances between them without an error and it was their fielding that kept the scoring of the Threadmakers down. O'Neil also figured well in the scoring for the Hospital as it was his two timely singles that brought in three of the Riverview tallies. Moore's triple came as a fitting climax to his brilliant fielding game. Paul Zemke, veteran of many ball games, pitched good ball for nine innings and was relieved in the tenth by Lefty Harold in an endeavor to baffle the Threadmakers. He succeeded. Willimantic used two pitchers, Powell and Roy.

Sunday's game at Willimantic was a spirited contest throughout, neither team crossing the plate until the ninth inning when the Riverview team went across one lone run. As the game approached this point looked mighty big but to make sure Harry Mills, with Burns and Harold on the bases, connected for a

AMERICAN RUGBY TEAM OVERWHELMS RUMANIANS

[illegible]mpic Stadium, Colombes, France, [illegible] (By The A. P.)—The American rugby football team today won the right to meet France in the final match of the Olympic competition by defeating the Rumanian team by a score of 27 to 0

The score might as well have been 100 to 0, and the Americans been desirous of piling up a large number of points. They were content, however, simply to win and plainly held back against the little fellows from King Ferdinand's domain.

During the second period the Americans carried out snappy combination [illegible] and tricky passes, instead of [illegible] through the lighter Rumanian line, as they did in the first period in order to clinch the game at the start.

The Americans, with eight substitutes in their line-up, showed the spectators a great article in rugby playing. They were superior in every department to the Rumanians. Although heavier men, they still were faster than the Balkanites; they were better in tackling, passing and running through the field. Their goal line never once was threatened; the Rumanians never were even within kicking distance of the American goal posts. They had the ball in American territory only about ten minutes out of the eighty minutes played.

The Americans secured the ball from scrimmage nine times out of ten. Similarly they got possession of the ball nearly every time it was thrown in from the touchline.

The weather was clear, but a little too warm for rugby playing. The crowd which witnessed the contest was a slim one.

CARLSON SHUTS OUT REDS WITH 8 HITS

Cincinnati, May 11.—Carlson allowed eight hits today. But his control was perfect, and only one Cincinnati runner reached third base, Philadelphia winning the first game of the series, 2 to 0. Luque was hit freely, but fast support kept the score down.

DARING BASE RUNNING HELPS CUBS TO WIN

Chicago, May 11.—Daring base running by Adams and Grantham, coupled with the free hitting of "Dutch" Ruether's offerings enabled Chicago to make it two straight from Brooklyn today, 5 to 4. Elmer Jacobs allowed only two hits, both of which were made by Wheat, up to the seventh inning, when Wheat smashed his third blow and started a rally. Score:

BLADES' HOMER STARTS CARDS TOWARD VICTORY

St. Louis, May 11.—Driving the first ball pitched by Gearin into the bleachers for a home run, Blades started the scoring for St. Louis, which made it two straight from New York in the second game of the series, here today. Hard hitting by both teams and the excellent pitching of Stuart in the pinches featured the game.

EPINARD WINS FIRST RACE AS FOUR-YEAR-OLD

Paris, May 11.—(By The A. P.)—Epinard, the champion three-year-old of France last season, made his initial bow on the French turf as a four-year-old, and won in the proverbial "walk" at Longchamps in a seven furlong race. There remere statement that Epinard would face the starter caused the withdrawal of all the other entries but three.

Almaviva, ridden by Steve Donoghue, finished second. The other contenders were beaten off. Guy Garner, who had the mount on Epinard, held the colt back and trailed the field for five furlongs. All the time, although Garner was holding the colt under a yard pull, Epinard was fighting for his head. After passing the five furlong pole, Garner let down the big bay, which simply galloped over the field to win pulled up by four lengths.

The race, the Argenteuil stakes, was at about 1,500 yards. Epinard covered the distance in 1 minute 24 1-2 seconds. The race paid Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, 15,960 francs, plus a purse of 1,500 francs as owner and breeder of the colt.

Epinard was the overwhelming favorite at 1 to 10. He gave each horse in the race about twenty pounds the better in the weights.

Ponies Overcome Profs.

New Haven, May 11. — The Profs were again taken over the bumps when Springfield took today's game by a 10 to 2 run score. Both teams played an even match until the third inning when Best settled down into a pitching streak. Best, in addition to his fine twirling, brought in two runs and scored four hits. The score:

Late Rally Wins For Hartford.

Waterbury, May 11. — Hartford bunched four singles with a pass and an error by Thomas in the ninth inning, scored three runs and defeated Waterbury 5 to 4, before 4,000 fans today. The Brasscos scored their runs in the first and second innings. Shorty Long featured in the field with four sensational assists on hard hit grounders. The score:

Yantic Grainers Win.

The Yantic Grain company team won a close game from the West Ends Sunday afternoon by a spectacular ninth inning rally that netted them three runs giving them the game, 6 to 3. With the score tied in the ninth and but one out, a single by Kegler, a bunt by Adnopz, a double by Russell and a double by Swartzburg accounted for three runs and the game. The batteries were: Kegler and Beebe for Yantic, Shabekoff and Tiger for the West Ends.

A Challenge.

The athletically inclined members of the senior gym class at the Y. M. C. A. are turning their interest toward athletics at present and are desirous of forming an athletic team. They would be pleased to hear from the N. F. A. team and the Taftville Maennerchor for a three-legged meet, also the New London seniors. Please phone physical director, Y. M. C. A.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham Baseball Coach

Any inning. Fast base runner on second. Two out. Batter single to center field. Center fielder throws ball in to catch runner trying to score from second.

What infielder should cut the ball off when it is not possible to catch the runner coming home on the throwin?

The pitcher should stay in the center of the diamond and take the throw-in if there is no chance to catch the runner coming in from second. This is to prevent the batter continuing on to second base on the throwin, which he would make if the ball went on to the home plate, but if the throwin is intercepted, the batter will be held on first base.

A great many pitchers make this play wrong as they will run in to back up home plate as soon as a ball is hit into center field under these conditions.

Players should remember that a fast man on second is almost certain to score at the plate unless the ball is hit on a line drive so that the center fielder gets it on the first or second hop coming in. Many a ball game is lost because the pitcher doesn't intercept a throwin from center field under these conditions. When he doesn't the batter easily reaches second and then has a good chance to score the deciding run on an ensuing hit.

BULKELEY TO HAVE A VERY BUSY WEEK

New London, May 11.—Bulkeley's scheduled contest with the Alumni on Saturday afternoon at Morgan park had to be called off, due to the non-appearance of the graduate team. It was at first supposed that there would be little or no difficulty in gathering a team together to meet the under graduate team, but George Gadbois, who was in charge of the Alumni team stated that he could not gather nine men from the ranks of the Alumni to take the field against the Bulkeley team. The game had to be called off at 1 o'clock Saturday.

Although the state champions did not play the Alumni as scheduled, the team was sent through its paces by Coach Robert T. Aldrich. It was a very satisfactory practice session in every respect, notwithstanding the fact that the ground was wet from the recent rains. Although the ball was difficult to handle, the inner defense of the Bulkeley outfit gave a snappy and promising exhibition of infield play, to the numerous fans that were present in hopes of seeing the Alumni and Bulkeley contest.

Beginning with this week, the Bulkeley team will play from two to four contests each week until the closing of the school. Within the next three weeks, the chances of the champs for the state title will be determined. The leading high school teams will be met in that period. This week will be a busy one for the Orange and Black, with the contest with Norwich Free academy on Wednesday, the first of three. The second game of the week is with Naugatuck High at Naugatuck, but this game is pending and may yet fall through. The other contest that is definitely scheduled is the game with Torrington High at Morgan park on Saturday afternoon. This game is one of the several that have a decided bearing on the state high school title. Torrington High will come here with no defeats this season and from reports coming from that city, they expect to have an easy time sending the Orange and Black down to a defeat.

WISE COUNSELLOR FAVORITE TO WIN PREAKNESS

Baltimore, May 11.—On the eve of the running of the seventeenth renewal of the Preakness, Wise Counsellor, Mad Play, and Rustic were the names most frequently mentioned from among the twenty-one three-year-olds entered for the $50,000 classic at a mile and one furlong.

Wise Counsellor is the pride of the west. Mad Play carries the bulk of eastern hopes. Maryland pins faith in Rustic. The west is cocksure, the east moderately confident; Maryland hopeful.

Wise Counsellor's somewhat secretive preparation has suddenly turned most of the favor of horsemen toward him. The Kentucky colt has not worked sensationally, but it is now said that plans were made to prevent that. Mad Play has retained his two-year-old form and he ran the Ward thoroughbred to a neck when both were juveniles. Rustic has had one preparatory race, though only six furlongs, and that a brilliant victory.

Despite the selection of these favorites, however, the race is considered fairly open. A light rain, which began falling Saturday night, continued almost steadily throughout Sunday, and the track, already heavy, may be quite muddy by post time. Many withdrawals from the crowded field are likely.

Bracadale, who will be under the guidance of Earl Sande, is likely to have a heavy following. Revenue Agent, Nautical and Diogenes have appeared to good advantage in recent workouts. Apprehension, Sting, and the Whitney pair, Transmute and Klondyke, are the leading "dark horses" talked of.

Thirty thousand people are expected to witness the running of the classic. Fifty extra par-mutuel clerks will be on duty, and are expected to handle a million and a half dollars during the afternoon.

WILLS BATTLES WTH MADDEN THIS EVENING

New York, May 11.—After waiting three years for an opportunity to meet Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship of the world, Harry Wills will meet Bartley Madden tomorrow night in a 15 round bout, the first of a series which he hopes will place him in the ring with the champion.

Madden is not regarded as of championship calibre but is a tough fighter of experience who has been a constant stumbling block for other headliners. He is expected to afford an opportunity for a critical judgment as to whether Wills has lost ability during his inactivity and whether his hand, recently broken, will justify a championship fight.

Two additional fights of interest are on the card. Larry Estridge, a colored rival of Paul Berlenbach as a hitter, wil meet Tommy Robson of Malden, Mass., in a 10-round middleweight fracas Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, credited with a six-round decision over Young Stribling, will meet Jack Lynch of Arleone in a 6-round middleweight bout.

Promoters have emphatically denied reports that the fight would be held up by fire department officials.

Jail Hill Colonials Win Again.

The Jail Hill Colonials won a hard fought game from the Valiant, Jrs., of Lake street, Sunday afternoon, by a score of 7 to 6. This is the second game that the Colonials have won from Lake street.

ACADEMY BEATS CHAPMAN TECH BY LUCKY NINTH INNING RALLY, 6 TO 5

Ellie Segal's hit to left field in the ninth inning after Brown, the dusky hurler for Chapman Tech, had passed three men, won the game Saturday afternoon for the Norwich Free academy team, 6 to 5. It was a sensational rally for the locals who were trailing the New London boys by 4 runs as the ninth inning opened, the score standing 5 to 1 in favor of Chapman.

Coach Brigham rushed in pinch hitters, who, while not hitting hard, tended to unnerve the dusky Chapman hurler. Strickland, batting for Busch who had fanned three times, also fanned. Tombari, the second hitter, hit sharply to Ferace who fumbled. Cimikowski was sent in to bat for McGowan and drew a pass. Couture also was given a free ticket, filling the bases. Phil McNamara hit a high fly to center which Courbois gathered in, Tombari holding third, although he had ample opportunity to score. With two down the Academy prospects were indeed dark when Burke came to bat. Burke had hit safely once before and the Academy supporters clamored for another hit but Burke was not over anxious and drew a pass, the walk forcing in Tombari. Perry Hollander, who had hit Brown for two safeties, was the next hitter and the Academy hopes rose. After taking a three and two count, Perry hit weakly down the first base line and streaked it for first. Brown fielded the slow hit and threw wild to first. Cimikowski scored on the hit and Couture crossed the plate on the overthrow to first. Cruise recovered the ball and threw to the plate in hopes of stopping Couture and the ball went wild. Burke, who had been going to third on the overthrow of first, scored but Harold Hull ruled that he was only entitled to third owing to the ground rules and Hollander was held at second. There ensued quite an argument but Hull remained firm. With two out and the tying and winning runs on base, Ellie Segal, who had pitched a good game but had received very ragged support, came to bat. The first two balls pitched went for strikes and then Brown threw one wide of the plate. The next ball was to Ellie's liking and he crashed into it and drove it to left field scoring Burke with the tying run and Hollander beat the throw in with the winning tally, ending what had been a freaky game from start to finish.

Although the Academy won, it was what would be considered a very lucky break in the game that gave them the victory. The Academy played a ragged game, especially the outfield, two costly errors by McNamara and Hinricks, assisting Chapman in scoring four runs in the fourth inning.

Segal had only a slight edge on Brown in the pitching end of the game. The local hurler fanned nine of the Tech hitters and issued four passes, one figuring in the scoring. Brown made seven of the Academy batsmen fan but gave out six passes. Segal was touched for six hits, two of them going for doubles, while Brown was touched for six singles but kept them well scattered.

The Academy started off strong in the first inning by getting the jump on Tech by one run. This run was the result of a hit by Burke, another by Hollander and a passed ball by McDonald. This ended the scoring until the eventful ninth inning.

Chapman shattered the hopes of the locals for a shutout victory in the fourth and nearly gave the Academy supporters heart failure. Segal fanned McDonald, the first man up in the fourth. Courbois singled and then stole second. Ferace hoisted a high fly to right which McNamara overran and then fumbled, Courbois going to third. Hollander made an error on a throw and Courbois scored. M. Brown hit to deep left for two bases, scoring Ferace, and then Hinricks mussed up Hewitt's line drive, putting Brown on third. Segal fanned Crouch and then Cruise hit to right center for two bases, scoring Brown and Hewitt. This ended the scoring for the inning.

The other Chapman run came in the fifth inning when Segal passed Courbois, who stole second, and then scored when McGowan let Ferace's grounder bounce off his shoes and roll into left field. This was Chapman's last stand as the remainder of the game found the Academy much steadier.

By winning from Chapman Tech the Academy takes undisputed possession of second place in the Interscholastic league with a fair chance of winning out provided they can win from Westerly during the second round of the league. The score:

DUSTY LEAGUE PLAYERS TO BANQUET THIS EVENING

New London, May 11.—The banquet of the Industrial league basketball players takes place Monday evening at Room D in the Y. M. C. A. building. About forty men are expected to be present to partake of the turkey feed that will be spread before the players of the league, managers, newspaper men, and specially invited guests. The principal speaker of the evening will be Robert Coutts of New Haven. Mr. Coutts is in charge of the promotion of industrial athletics in the state of Connecticut with an office in New Haven.

It was entirely through Mr. Coutts' efforts that the recent industrial winners tournament was held in New Haven. The winning New London Ship and Engine team of the local Industrial league was one of the six teams that participated in this state tournament. Mr. Coutts is also a central board official and is one of the most prominent officials in the state.

At the banquet this evening, a question of much importance will be brought up. This question, whether the industrial shops will have a baseball league this season or not, will be decided definitely tonight. By having this basketball banquet, it will be possible to bring together the men who are in favor of continuing the Dusty Baseball league from last year.

At Monday's banquet, the cup will be presented to the manager of the league winning New London Ship and Engine team. Mr. Harry Bond, who has taken an interest in the athletic teams of the New London Ship and Engine plant in Groton, will also be one of the speakers of the day.

FOURTH ATHLETIC MEET AT FAIRGROUNDS MAY 23

An interesting athletic event is scheduled to take place at the fairgrounds Friday, May 23, when the fourth annual outdoor athletic meet will be held between the Greeneville, Broadway and Elizabeth street grammar schools. This and other athletic contests that have been conducted under the direction of the school principals and Y. M. C. A. physical director, have developed quite a little friendly rivalry among the schools, and a lively contest is expected when the boys and girls compete for school honors. The events this year are to be as follows: Boys' half mile relay race (ten boys per team); boys' potato races, tug of war (12 boys per team); running broad jump, boys' 75 yard dash, girls' 50 yard dash and girls' relay race (8 girls per team).

To show their interest in the promotion of local school sports the Norwich Bulletin has contributed a beautiful trophy cup that is to go to the school winning the contest.

Last year's outdoor meet was captured by Principal J. B. Stanton's Elizabeth street school athletes, while the recent indoor meet was won by the Broadway school by a narrow margin, with Elizabeth street and Greeneville schools tied for second place.

The coming meet will be open to the public and if spectators turn out as they did for last year's contest, the boys and girls will have a good audience to back them up in their outdoor meet.

Peck St. Sluggers Win.

BRIDGEPORT SOCCER TEAM DECISIVELY BEATS RANGERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 11. — Using a powerful and well planned attack upon the Rangers' goal, the Clan Campbell soccer eleven from Bridgeport made a successful invasion of New London today, when the famed City by the Sea scantily clad athletes gained a four goals to none victory over the New London Rangers at Caulkins park. Showing a superiority in the knowledge of soccer football that has not been duplicated to date in New London, the Clan Campbell eleven gained a decision over the Whaling City team, but not after they were forced to play their best throughout.

A team that had the soccer football game down to a scientific basis, deliberately planned its offensive or defensive tactics, and after planning the course of attack or defense that was to be followed out, found the entire eleven men joining in and executing the proposed plan with a neatness and dispatch that immediately won the admiration of the crowd. Such was the Clan Campbell eleven that came to New London Sunday to deal a newly formed team of several death blow to the aspirations of a months for the state championship. There was never a wasted movement in the Park City player's operations. The team operated as one and the passing system towards the Whaling City players' goal line was so neatly executed that these offensive drives down the field met with success—four goals resulting during the course of the afternoon. The Clan Campbell outfit lacked very little in the way of improving their play, for the afternoon's performance was perfect in every phase of the game.

After the dust of the battle had cleared away, the two outstanding stars on the visiting outfit were Pollard

The Riverview club was returned a winner in both games of the week end bill with the Willimantic Threadmakers taking a ten-inning game on Saturday at the State hospital diamond 4 to 3, and winning Sunday's engagement at Willimantic by the same score. Both battles were close and interesting, the Riverview victories coming as results of hitting by Moore, Harold and Mills. In Saturday's contest it was Moore's triple and Lefty Harold's stinging grounder that won for the Hospital in the tenth and in Sunday's contest it was Mills' homer in the eighth inning that put Willimantic down to defeat.

Saturday's game was not so spectacular as the game Sunday but it was equally as interesting, many snappy plays being executed by both teams. The work of the combination of Eddie Burns and Dinty Moore at second and short was a feature of Saturday's contest. During the game these two handled 14 chances between them without an error and it was their fielding that kept the scoring of the Threadmakers down. O'Neil also figured well in the scoring for the Hospital as it was his two timely singles that brought in three of the Riverview tallies. Moore's triple came as a fitting climax to his brilliant fielding game. Paul Zemke, veteran of many ball games, pitched good ball for nine innings and was relieved in the tenth by Lefty Harold in an endeavor to baffle the Threadmakers. Harold succeeded. Willimantic used two hurlers, Powell and Roy.

Sunday's game at Willimantic was a spirited contest throughout, neither team crossing the plate until the fourth inning when the Riverview team sent across one lone run. As the game progressed of the game approached this looked mighty big but to make Harry Mills, with Burns and [illegible] on the bases, connected for a [illegible] needed the four runs as the Threadmakers drove Davis, Riverview pitcher, to cover in their half of the inning scoring three runs. Lefty Harold was again thrown the breach and stopped all hopes Willimantic victory. The scores:

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

A CHILD'S PRAYER

Please, God I'd like to send a prayer
Way up to You in Heaven there;
No one taught this prayer to me—
It just came, God; and you'll soon see
It isn't just the kind of one
They make you say when day is done
I hope you won't be angry, God,
Or think my prayer unkind or odd.
But what I want to ask is: "Won't
You also mamma from saying 'Don't'?

It's 'Don't do this' and 'Don't do that,'
'Don't touch your face,' 'Dont twist your hat,'
'Don't wear those shoes,' 'Don't lick that stick,'
'Don't be so slow,' 'Don't talk so quick,'
'Don't eat so much,' 'Don't stand and stare,'
'Don't scratch that sore,' 'Don't move the chair,'
'Don't muss your hair,' 'Don't suck your thumb,'
'Don't answer back,' 'Don't sing or hum'
So hear my prayer, dear God, and won't
You stop mamma from saying 'Don't'"

BATTLE HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord:
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored:
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible, swift sword:
His truth is marching on.

They have builded him an altar in the evening dews and damps;
I can read his righteous sentence by the dim and flaring lamps.
His day is marching on.

"As ye deal with my contemners, so with you my grace shall deal,"
Let the Hero, born of woman, crush the serpent with his heel,
Since God is marching on.

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat:
He is sifting out the hearts of men before his judgment seat;
O be swift, my soul, to answer him! be jubilant, my feet!
Our God is marching on.

In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me;
As he died to make men holy, let us die to make men free,
While God is marching on.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE AWAKES

From the 30th day of this month we will observe Memorial day as a mark of respect to those who lost their lives in the great civil war of 50 years ago, to those who have died since the war and to the civil war veterans who are still with us. It is a day when school closes, a day when there is a general cessation of business; a day of visits to the cemeteries for the purpose of placing flowers and flags on the graves of the departed civil war veterans who fought under "Honest Abe" Lincoln to free the slaves and to keep intact the Union. Every real American is Interesting and instructive to trace the history of Memorial day. Everybody knows why Memorial day is held each year but not all know how it was originated. History shows that as far back before the close of the civil war May 30th was observed by some of the southern states to commemorate the confederate soldiers who gave up their lives in the struggle against the determination of the northern states to free the slaves. In the north there was no fixed day as a memorial day until the year 1868, when that year, on the 5th day of May, General-in-Chief John A. Logan of the Grand Army of the Republic issued to all posts of the G. A. R., a general order fixing May 30th, 1868 as a day for the strewing or placing of flowers on the graves of comrades who had fallen or died during the rebellion. Four years later, in 1872, the Grand Army of the Republic urged that May 30th of each year be observed as a Memorial day. In 1874 the state of Rhode Island made it what is known as a legal holiday. Vermont did the same in 1876 and New Hampshire in 1877. At present most of the states of the Union observe May 30th as Memorial day and as a legal holiday. Some of the southern states have a confederate Memorial day each spring...The date of the Confederate Memorial day varies in the different states. Some hold it as early as April and others around the last of May.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

WHEN THE ROBINS NEST

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story and the name of it is When the Robins Nest.

When the weather gets cold in the fall, the robins go away. All through the winter you can never see a robin. They have gone south. If they stayed here, they would have a hard time with the weather, and besides that they would starve to death, for they could not find food when the ground is covered with snow. After the snow melts, we begin to look for the robins to come back. They sometimes come, and go away again, but after a while they come to stay. They usually stay awhile before they begin to build their nests. When they do begin, we know that spring has really come.

A pair of robins will find a good place, and work very hard to build a nest. They make it of mud, and cover it outside with dry grass and straw, or twigs and line it inside with anything soft that they can find. Then the female lays from four to six beautiful blue eggs in it. After that she sits on them, and keeps them warm till the young robins break out of the eggs. The old robins then, take the egg shells in their bills and carry them a good distance from the nest before they drop them. It would be easier to throw them over the side of the nest, but the robins know that the shells would show where the nest is. After this the old robins have to work very hard to find food for the young ones. They must be very glad when the young ones can leave the nest, although they feed them after that. You can tell the robins apart by looking at them. The male bird has a black head, and a very red breast, the female has a head of the same color as the rest of the body, and her breast is not so red as the male's. The young ones have speckled breasts.

A SPRING DAY

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a beautiful spring day. The sun was shining brightly and it was warm and lovely out of doors. The trees were beginning to blossom and the flowers were already in blossom. As you looked about, you could see the boys and girls at play while every where there was happiness. Even the birds were happy for they flew about singing sweetly. I think spring is a very nice season. Don't you?

WHAT HAPPENED TO A KITTEN

Dear Uncle Jed: nOe bright, sunny spring morning a family of kittens were playing about the door of a farmhouse.

The mother had lain down, and was watching the playful tricks of her happy kittens. A large hawk, which had been searching for his breakfast, saw them. Like an arrow he darted upon one of them.

THE SHEEP RANCH

Dear Uncle Jed. In the western part of our country, there are hundreds of miles of land that is used to feed sheep and cattle. This land is called a ranch. Some of the ranches are very large. In the summer the sheep graze in the mountain, sometimes going very high for the best grass. During the winter the sheep are kept on the lowlands. Most of the time they get their own living from the dry bunches of grass. The snow gathers in drifts and does not cover all the grass. But the sheep must be fed. Then the sheep and the herdsmen are anxious for the "chinook" to blow. This is warm wind which quickly melts the snow. In the spring the sheep are separated into "bands." Each herder has charge of a band, but his shepherd dog does most of the work. These dogs obey each word and sign of the herders. They will even pick out a particular sheep when they are told and drive it in any direction.

The herder's life is very lonely. For a long while he may not see anyone but the man who brings him food. The sheep are sheared every year. In some parts of the west they are sheared in the spring and fall. The wool is shipped to be made into cloth. Besides the United States, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Spain and Argentina are sheep raising countries.

WHEN I WENT TO NEW YORK

Dear Uncle Jed: Have you ever been in New York? I have. It was last fall that I went there. You see it was this way. My aunt got married there and my mother went to the wedding. She was going to leave me home but I begged so hard to go as I wanted to see what New York was like, that she finally let me. I liked the wedding all right but it was lots more fun to ride on the subways and elevated cars and go over the river in the ferry boats. There were lots and lots of people in New York. I don't think I could ever count them all. Sometimes there were so many people around the streets that I got frightened because I might get lost and if I did I wouldn't know what to do or where to go.

I had a great time in New oYrk but was glad to get home again. We went down by train and came home by train too. t was a long ride and I was quite tired when I got off the train. Mother says she may take me again sometime. The next time I go down I want to see Coney Island. I didn't see it last time as we didn't have time to go there and it was quite far from where I stayed.

A VISIT TO THE SHORE

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a boy ten years old and I want to tell you all how much I enjoyed my automobile trip to Watch Hill. We went down Sunday in my uncle's automobile. He takes us on trips quite a lot and I enjoy riding very much. We went from here to Danielson and from Danielson to Jewett City and Jewett City to Norwich and from there went to Westerly and finally we arrived at Watch Hill. It was quite a long ride but I don't get tired riding. My sister got tired.

There were some other machines at Watch Hill but not many. Very few people were around the beach. In fact there were only three people on the beach. It was nice riding in the automobile but the wind blew pretty hard at the beach and the water was cold. It is most too early to have any fun there. We are going down again in two weeks. Maybe it will be nice there then

THE FLAX PLANT

Dear Uncle Jed: The little flax plant bears pretty blue flowers. A field of flax is a very gay sight.

When the plant is ripe for harvesting the people pull it up by the roots, and lay it in water to soak. This is done in order to dissolve the gum which holds the fibers of the bark together. The fibers of the slender stem are the part to be spun into thread and woven into cloth. When the plant has lain long enough in water, it is taken out, rinsed and dried. Then it is beaten and combed. The large comb separates the long fibers from the short ones which we call tow. The flax now looks very much like long light-colored hair. It is then spun into thread, from which linen cloth is made.

A TWO FAMILY BIRD HOUSE

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first story I have written to the Wide Awakes. I am going to tell you about a bird house that served for two families. One day last summer my father was chopping down a tree. He did not know that in it was a bird nest where there lived a family of birds. As the tree fell down the nest was thrown out and broken. Then father built a bird house to put them in. They felt comfortable and pleased with it and lived happily all summer. When winter came they flew away and left the house very lonely looking. I think they did not like to leave their happy house. Now there is another family of birds and I hope they will live as the others. Don't you?

A TIMELY RESCUE

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story and the name of it is A Timely Rescue. A lady was one day walking along the seashore, when she saw a man, lai alone on a ledge of rock surrounded by the sea. She had no idea who he was, but perceiving that he was in danger of losing his life, as the tide was rapidly coming in, she determined to try to save him.

Running quickly to some boatmen, she offered a large reward to any of them who would try to rescue the man. They hesitated for the waves were beating furiously against the rock and a boat would soon be dashed to pieces.

At last some of them determined to make the attempt. A boat was launched and succeeded in reaching the rock just as the man's strength was exhausted.

With difficulty the boatmen at last got him safely to land, when, to her great astonishment, the lady found the rescued man was her husband.

INDIAN WARFARE

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I thought I would write about Indian warfare. In war the Indians were led by their war chief and were cruel and bloodthirsty fighters. They thought it unmanly to show fear and would suffer torture by their enemies without uttering a cry of pain. When called to war they colored their faces with war paint and performed the fierce war dances. Then with loud yells or war whoops, they attacked the enemy.

They shaved part of their heads and the hair remaining on top was called the scalp lock. It was the Indian's greatest pride to take the scalp of his enemy and carry it fastened to his belt. When the war was over, or when friendly Indians met in council, they smoked together from the same pipe. It was called the "Calumet," or pipe of peace.

THE WORKERS AND THE DRONES

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story and the names of it is. The Bees, The Drones and the Wasp. Some working bees had made their comb in the hollow of an oak. The drones said, "We made that comb. It belongs to us." So the workers took the case to the Judge Wasp that he might decide the matter.

The workers and the drones settled down before him. He said: "Both parties are so much alike in shape and color that it is hard to tell which has been seen in the tree. I have a plan, however, by which we can decide the matter justly. Each party may go to a hive in which is no honey and build up a new comb. The one that makes comb and honey like that found in the tree is the owner of the tree comb."

To this plan the workers most heartily assented, but the drones said, "We will have nothing to do with such a plan." So Judge Wasp said. "It is plain to be seen who made the combs. It belongs to the workers." The drones buzzed away with anger but could not harm the workers or the judge, and the workers went back to their tree.

SPRING TIME

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you all enjoy this delightful spring weather. The feathered songsters seem to enjoy it as much as we humans do, and it seems as if they sing for the pure joy of living.

Our last snow has gone and the birds are singing and now I am beginning to hear the peep frogs. They may have been heard. The grass is beginning to look a little greener and the days are getting a little warmer and I think the dear little birds are glad that spring time is here.

THE STORY OF A LEAD PENCIL

Dear Uncle Jed: I am now an old pencil chewed at one end and worn out at the other. My red coat of paint is scratched off and I am lying in the corner of a desk. I was cut from an oak tree, then put in a machine and made round.

A man made a hole in me and poured in lead, a brass tip holding an eraser was fastened to me. I was then painted and put in a box where I laid for a long time. Then the box was opened and I was placed in a display window of a stationary shop. One day a school boy came in. He wanted a pencil so the clerk sold me. The boy used me very well at first, but he became tired of me and abused my red coat. Then he laid me in a corner where I am now.

WHAT I SAW

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm going to tell you what I saw Sunday. How surprised I was to see four pretty robins. I sat in the swing and watched what they were going to do. The first thing I knew two of them bent their heads, and plunged their beaks in the ground and pulled out each a big and fat worm. Then they flew away.

SAW ROBINS' NEST

Dear Uncle Jed: One nice sunny day while I had my Easter vacation I went out walking through the woods with my brother and my mother. We saw a robins' nest in a maple tree. What do you suppose was in the nest. There were five nice little eggs. We left the nest and eggs in the tree and went home. If we go back again mother Robin will have some little baby robins in her home for us to see.

A BRAVE BOY

Dear Uncle Jed: A little boy and his sister were playing. The shouts of some men alarmed them. A mad dog was rushing toward them. The boy took off his jacket. He wrapped it around his arm. He boldly held out the covered arm. The dog seized the arm and kept worrying at it. The men came up and killed the animal. The boy was not injured. The dog's teeth could not penetrate the thick folds. One of the men asked the boy why he did not run away. The man said the boy could have easily escaped. The brave little fellow said the dog would have bitten his sister. He said she could not run

MYSTIC

The display of some of the costumes to be worn in the musical comedy "Springtime" in the store window of F. H. Newbury, attracted considerable attention Saturday afternoon and evening, some of the boys and girls who are to participate appearing in the costumes they will wear in the play.

The residence of George Williams on Williams street is receiving renovations and painting.

Mrs. Augusta Park has returned to Stonington after a stay in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lamphere have moved into the house on Broadway.

The body of Mitchell A. Hunter was taken to New Britain, his former home, and the funeral is being held today in the chapel of Fairview cemetery, with Rev. Henry W. Maier, pastor of the Congregational church in that city officiating.

Misses Alice and Barbarba McDonald spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McDonald, at their summer home in East Killingly.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union is to meet Wednesday afternoon.

Whist was played Friday afternoon at the meeting of the Sewing Society of Charity Chapter, No. 61, O. E. S., at the home of Mrs. George D. Johnson, the prize being awarded Miss Ethel Latham of Noank.

An interested audience gathered in the assembly room of Mystic Academy Friday evening, to listen to the illustrated lecture given by Dr. Howard A. Lauthier, of the state board of health, on Preventable Diseases, under the auspices of the Parent Teachers' Association, and the address was listened to with close attention. The Parent's Teachers' association is going a valuable work in the community, and at lease once each year aims to have some well known speaker come here. At the meeting of the association last evening, it was voted to have Thomas Mott Osborne come to Mystic in November of this year and Josephus Daniels in March of next year.

A meeting of the committee of the Orientals, Order of Humility and Perfection, is to be held this (Monday) evening to consider plans for the institution of this new order

The Golden Rule Degree was conferred on a class of candidates at the meeting of Mystic Encampment Friday eening after which a lunch of roast beef sandwiches appetizingly prepared [illegible] good things, was thoroughly enjoyed.

In the announcement of those who are to read essays at the commencement exercises of Stonington High school appears the name of Miss Rosamond Holmes, a resident of Mystic, her subject being The Value of Trees. Honorable mention was given Winthrop Buckley, of Mystic, his subject being The Need of College Bred men and Women.

Mrs. Robert Allyn of Westbrook, Mrs. Avery and Mrs. Cogart of Old Lyme were guests over Sunday of Mrs. H. Emeline Allyn.

The Elephant in the Candy Store

If you ever saw an elephant
Drink soda through a straw
You wouldn't wonder that he leaves
His trunk outside the door.

The little stool on which the circus elephant sat was much too small and the thin wire legs bent under his great weight. Then, too, he was having a dreadful time with his big long trunk. It kept getting in the way as he sucked the soda through the little straw.

"What's that? What's the matter now?" asked the elephant, turning around so suddenly that bingo, went the little stool, just like that, and down fell the big animal on the floor.

"What do you want me to do?" asked the elephant.

Oh, dear me! It was an awful crash, for, as he rolled over, he grabbed the soda fountain to keep from falling and all the fizzy soda water squirted out.

"Help! Fire!" shouted the Candy Storekeeper, running into the street for the Policeman Dog.

"This elephant has broken my soda fountain!" cried the Candy Man. "Just look what he's done."

But the Policeman Dog couldn't see anything clearly for the soda water was still squirting from every spigot.

"I'll pay you the damage or build you a new fountain," said Uncle Lucky. "Let my elephant friends come with me. I need him badly."

"All right, Mr. Lucky Lefthindfoot," replied the Candy Man. "Whatever you say goes. Come in tomorrow and I'll tell you what you owe me."

As soon as the elephant had jumped into the Luckymobile, the two little rabbits started off for the Ball grounds.

"There's more trouble ahead," signed Uncle Lucky. "I was glad yesterday to give a pass to Mr. Peter Panther, but today I'm sorry for he'll scare the umpire so nobody will play, and all the people will go home."

"What do you want me to do?" asked the elephant.

"Take the pass from him," replied Uncle Lucky.

"That will be some job, but as you've just done me a favor, I'll do one for you," answered the elephant.

Dear me! the elephant had a dreadful time squeezing through the little gate to the Ball grounds, but nothing compared to that of taking the pass away from Mr. Peter Panther.

SPRING HILL

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society held recently, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. W. P. Wildes, Jr.; vice president, Mrs. H. A. Gillette; secretary and treasurer, Miss Ethel Freeman; collector, Mrs. J. H. Nichols; housekeeper, Mrs. C. C. Davis.

On Tuesday of the past week a baker's dozen of the members of the Ladies Aid society gave a surprise to Mrs. J. J. Storrs at her home. Refreshments were served after which Mrs. Storrs was presented a token of appreciation of her services as president of the society for the past two years.

Mrs. E. Jane Palmer of Manchester spent a part of last week at Almyvold returning home Sunday.

Notwithstanding the rainy weather the Ladies Aid society served a baked bean supper to about 60 at the church Friday evening. Quite a number were present from C. A. C.

Lumber has arrived and work begun on the erection of the house on the foundation put in by J. R. Beebe last fall.

EAST HADDAM

Mrs. Arthur Alexander, who has been ill, is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney E. Ackley and Miss Ida Stark of Chester, were Moodus visitors recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams H. Mack who have lived in R. R. Gladwin's house over a year, have returned to Haddyme.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Geiston were recent Middletown visitors.

OUR GREATEST ATTEMPT!

Wednesday, May 14th, at 9 a. m., our doors open to the most stupendous sale this store has ever held. Our entire stock, upstairs and down, on sale. Nothing reserved. This sale is conducted, first of all, to command your respect, to win your confidence and create friendship—and then the season has been very backward and our new spring stock has not moved as it should. After careful consideration we decided to make this our supreme effort. WE ARE DISREGARDING PROFITS AND A GREAT SHARE OF THE COST and we hope that in this way we are reciprocating the patronage and loyalty extended to us in the past.

Understand, this is not an accumulation of season to season garments nor a lot of undesirables we wish to dispose of but every article in our store is of representative make, excellent material and correctly styled, and this event is a complete overhauling of the entire brand new stock of spring and summer merchandise that has just recently arrived and the price attached to each article will speak louder than words.

This ad. is but a MERE CONCEPTION OF THE MANY BARGAINS TO BE FOUND IN OUR STORE for the next 10 days.

Be here early Wednesday morning and let your own eyes be your judge!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET REVIEW.

New York, May 11 (By the A. P.).—Bond prices slowly forged ahead last week, although the absence of speculative activity dulled the edge of trading. After the initial flurry occasioned by the reduction in the rediscount rate had subsided, a temporary reaction was considered natural, but a steady demand for high grade investment issues imparted a firm tone to the market.

Failure of new financing to develop on a larger scale was disappointing to bond circles. The number of new issues in preparation, however, was swelled during the week, and the delay in placing them on the market was said to be due to technical considerations.

Offerings aggregated approximately $50,000,000, less than half the total for the preceding week.

With the return of J. P. Morgan to Wall street, interest was revived in the German loan. While the financier declined to discuss prospects for its early flotation, his admission that he and his banking associates were making a careful study of problems connected with the operation was considered significant and lent color to reports that America's portion of the $200,000,000 total would be offered to the public before midsummer.

Discussions of South American loans monopolized interest negotiations for immediate foreign borrowings. Formation of a new banking group was reported under way to handle a $6,000,000 loan to Peru. Because of the government's recent controversy with its financial agents here over an option on future financing, this development aroused the interest of the financial district.

Arrangements, however, were not completed for the sale of this loan or of another which Bolivia has been seeking. Estimates of Bolivia's requirements were reduced from $10,000,000 to $3,000,000, the amount needed for railroad construction projects. Aside from a 30,000,000 pound loan which Argentina was said to be negotiating in London, the government again sounded out Baer here for a temporary $9,000,000 credit to finance departmental expenditures.

When the U. S. treasury enters the market in June for additional funds to retire short term maturities, it will be accommodated with the lowest interest rate since the 3 1-2 per cent. Liberty loan was floated in 1917, according to present indications. The rising of call money at 3 1-2 per cent. since the change in the bank rate and the recent shading of short time loans to below 4 per cent. foreshadow a favorable market in which the government can transact its $300,000,000 operation.

Market movements of European bonds last week failed to reflect the uneasiness over the impending French elections and the labor disturbances in Germany which caused abrupt declines in the allied exchanges. Despite a decline in Belgian currency, that government's bands manifested considerable strength, the 7 per cent. issue reaching a new high price for the year.

With easy money sweeping the bond market almost clean of high grade investments at attractive yields, many bond experts believe a favorable reception is assured for new railroad financing. One of the principal offerings due this month is a $26,000,000 "Nickel Plate" issue.

RAIN TODAY, FAIR, WARMER TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., MONDAY, MAY 12, 1924.

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin
Norwich, Monday, May 12, 1924.

WEATHER Conditions

A disturbance of increasing intensity was central Sunday night over southern Virginia, whence it will move northeastward. It has been attended by general rains within the last 24 hours throughout the Atlantic states.

Temperatures remained low during Sunday, generally east of the Rocky Mountains, in New England and New York there will be rain Monday, and fair and warmer weather on Tuesday, except that rains will probably continue along the northern border.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Northeast and east gales shifting to west and northwest Monday afternoon or night; overcast, thick rainy weather Monday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Strong shifting winds becoming westerly by Monday morning; rain followed by clearing weather Monday.

Storm Warning

Forecast

TAFTVILLE

Pomeham council, No. 34, K. of C., met Sunday afternoon in their rooms on Providence street.

Friends of Miss Louise Herrmann gave her a miscellaneous shower at her home in Lisbon, Friday evening in honor of her approaching marriage. Among those present were Mrs. Harold DeCelles, Mrs. George W. Weller, Mrs. George Herrmann, Mrs. Neil Ronayson, Mrs. William Shaw, Mrs. John Oldham, Mrs. Gustave Kaempf, Mrs. Bernard Krauss, Miss Sophie Thoma, Miss Louise Krauss, Miss Freida Herrmann, Miss Annette Herrmann, Miss Ruth Kupky, Miss Elsie Heap, Miss Melisse Shaw, Miss Irene Donnelly, Miss Kathleen Donnelly, Miss Wilhelmina Krauss and Miss Rosie M. Meyer.

Miss Dorothy Wood of the State Normal school, Willimantic, spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood and family of Fifth Second avenue.

Miss Nancy Brown has returned to New Bedford, Mass., after spending a few days with her father, William Brown of South Fifth avenue.

Rev. Frank Carey, a missionary for many years in Japan, preached at the Taftville Congregational church Sunday morning, also addressed the Young People's society in the evening.

NORWICH TOWN

In spite of the heavy rain on Friday evening there was a good audience in the First Congregational chapel to hear the lecture on the Yellowstone National Park given by the pastor, Rev. G. F. Bailey. Seventy beautifully colored views of the park were shown, with Robert Avery at the lantern. Several years ago Mr. Bailey visited the park in connection with a trip to the Pacific coast, so was able to give his hearers first hand knowledge of this wonderland of America. Since 1873 this tract of land in the northwest corner of Wyoming has been set aside for the benefit and enjoyment of the people. The regular travelled road which makes a tour of the park is 150 miles in length, and the shortest time allowable for the round through the park is five and one-half days by stage coach, or by saddle. The views shown gave a very clear idea of the snow-capped mountains in the Park, the winding rivers with boiling geysers on their banks, tall, stately pines in immense forests, beautiful lakes a mile above the level of the sea, active geysers which send columns of boiling water 200 feet in the air quiet pools of warm water carrying nearly every color of the spectrum. In fact the unquietness of the Yellowstone is to be found in the varied colorings on terraces, geysers and in canyons. The terraces which sometimes cover a space as large as two hundred acres, as at the Mammouth Hot Springs, are formed by the boiling water bringing to the surface the various minerals in the bowels of the earth and spreading them over the surrounding surfaces, and this deposit accumulates until through ages a mound of beautiful formation is built up. There are terraces at Mammouth Hot Springs, a few miles from the entrance of the park, as high as two hundred feet. Wild animals also abound in the park, antelope, deer, cinnamon bears, elk, buffalo, et al. Militia of the U. S. carefully guard the game from being shot by would-be hunters. No firearms are allowed within the enclosure of the park area. The mounted patrol also is alert for fires and to see that no one chips or marks the terraces. The climax of the scenery is at Grand Canyon, a beautifully colored chasm 1,500 feet deep and ten miles long. The Yellowstone river coming down from the lake by the same name leaps two stairways, the upper falls being 308 feet drop, and the lower falls dropping 320 feet finds its way down through the bottom of the chasm appearing like a bit of rib-

COUNTY DISTRICT LEADS IN AMERICAN LEGION MEMBER

New London county district stands second in the several districts of the state in membership gain, since the opening of the big membership raid on May 5th, said State Commander E. P. Armstrong, congratulating the boys of this county at the district meeting held Sunday afternoon at the rooms of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, on Main street.

New London county is certainly getting into the harness, said Commander Armstrong, and the showing during the first week of the drive is most gratifying, 122 members having been signed by the various posts reporting, four yet to report. I have told you before that the Legion has a great future and that any World war veteran who is not lined up with the Legion is shirking his responsibilities, is not doing what he should for those who have suffered as a result of their service.

In Connecticut we have $2,000 a week income from our state fund and we are spending $4,000 and sometimes $4,500 a week, and a large part of this money goes to aid those whom the government refuses to aid, because claims were not in within the three-year limit. Whether a man is for or against the bonus matters not, he should join the Legion and get back of that work it is doing. It's up to him to get into the inside and help get the biz job over. It is not right that 700,000 men should do the work of 4,000,000 but such is the case today and these men who are not in are neglecting their less fortunate comrades in the days he needs them, the most.

Commander Armstrong also complimented the county organization on the work done preparing for the raid and on the progress that has been made during the thirty days it has been organized.

The meeting was opened at 3:30 p. m. by County Commander Willard E. Anderson, and County Adjutant Harry House read the reports of the organization meeting held in New London on April 20. Webster [illegible] concerning the New [illegible]

PARENTS' WATCHFULNESS PRIEST'S SERMON THEME

The care of the Catholic church for the soul of the child, which begins even before birth and does not end even after death, was suggested Sunday [illegible] the sermon delivered in St. Patrick's church at the 9 o'clock mass by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. Father Galvin was continuing his instructions on the Fourth Commandment, "Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother," considering the mutual obligations of parents and children. It was the third Sunday after Easter, the epistle being 1 Peter 2, 11-19 and the gospel John 16 16-22.

It is the duty of parents, the preacher said, to care for, watch over and [illegible] them [illegible] God and an eternity [illegible] Should see that their children [illegible] and night, that they [illegible] on Sundays [illegible] that they receive the sacraments frequently and regularly. On Friday, May 30th, the scouts with bugle and drum corps will take part in the Memorial Day parade in the morning.

Applications for Camp Tippecan have been placed in the hands of the scouts and registrations for camp are already coming in. The camp committee, under the chairmanship of H. E. Prentice, is making plans to have an excellent camp this summer at Beach pond. Outside scouts have already applied for admission to camp and it is expected that the council camp this summer will be larger than ever before.

The staff has already been selected and instructors in the various activities chosen. Mr. Jordan, a Maine guide will be there to instruct the boys in making bows, arrows, pack baskets, and various other wood-craft and camp-craft matters. Swimming, [illegible] free time and the building of a log cabin will be featured.

Beginning Friday, May 16th, the Porteous & Mitchell Co. will exhibit in its windows the official scout uniform, including the new official summer uniform. This is for the purpose of giving the scouts an idea of how the official uniform should be worn.

On Sunday, May 4th, the fire warden and deputy with a detail of scouts assisted the Norwich fire department in extinguishing a large fire at Otis Hill, just at the edge of Mohegan Park. After relieving the fire department at 5 o'clock, the scouts watched for two hours until the fire was completely extinguished and two scouts remained on patrol duty during the night until 1 o'clock in the morning. This fire was stopped dangerously close to the young pine plantation that was put there several years ago.

WHAT SHALL THE HARVEST BE?

Sowing the seed by the daylight fair,
Sowing the seed by the noonday glare,
Sowing the seed by the fading light,
Sowing the seed in the solemn night;
Oh, what shall the harvest be?
Oh, what shall the harvest be?

Sowing the seed by the wayside high,
Sowing the seed on the rocks to die,
Sowing the seed where the thorns will spoil,
Sowing the seed in the fertile soil;
Oh, what shall the harvest be?
Oh, what shall the harvest be?

Sowing the seed of a lingering pain,
Sowing the seed of a maddened brain,
Sowing the seed of a tarnished name
Sowing the seed of eternal shame;
Oh, what shall the harvest be?
Oh, what shall the harvest be?

Sowing the seed with an aching heart,
Sowing the seed while the tear-drops start,
Sowing in hope till the reapers come
Gladly to gather the harvest home;
Oh, what shall the harvest be?
Oh, what shall the harvest be?

Sown in the darkness or sown in the light,
Sown in our weakness or sown in our might,
Gathered in time or eternity,
Sure, ah, sure will the harvest be.
—Mrs. Emily S. Oakey.

VELVETCHEEK.

Love me, little Velvetcheek, love me at the dawn—
Hands as soft as petals are, eyes of startled fawn.
Let whatever care beset, shall my heart be sad?
Little Velvetcheek at home loves her doting dad!

Children are the grain of life, grownups are the husk.
After daylong strife with life, what could finer be
Than this little Velvetcheek whispering love to me?

Love me, little Velvetcheek; love me till the end.
Whisper to your Velvetcheek, "Father was my friend"
Love him much as I love you—more such may be Come, my little Velvetcheek, show your love for me!
—Strickland Gillilan, in Farm Life.

A Rockland, Me., man, while staying in Boston, was afflicted one night with a nightmare, in which he laborered under the delusion that some one was attacking him. He arose and returned the blows of his fancied assailant with such blows that, striking the bureau he broke both bones of his arm below the elbow.

Albert Cornish, a lineman at Bath, Me., chased a runaway horse to a trestle where the horse's leg went through. Cornish tried to extricate the animal and was in danger of having a train come along and perhaps hit him as well as the horse and sleigh. So when he had freed the sleigh from the horse he placed it across the track so that the steel runners were resting on the two steel rails. This made an electrical connection and set the signal which would have stopped a train entering the block.

Henry II, king of France, was the first to wear silk stockings, at his sister's wedding, which was celebrated in 1559. Before he brought them into fashion people covered their legs with materials of wool, linen or silk. Afterward they were knitted on needles, and finally a locksmith in Normandy invented the manufacture of stockings. Not being able to obtain a money only from the French king he went to England with his invention and was warmly welcomed. Soon after another Frenchman went to London and saw how they were made, and returned to France in 1656 and established a manufactory in the Bois de Boulogne, where the king authorized it.

SUFFERED PAIN FOR YEARS

Howard Lake, Minn. — "I write to let you know that I have taken several bottles of your medicine in the last three months, and found it to be very good. I had pains and other troubles women have and was not able to do my work. Seeing your 'Ad.' in the paper, I thought of giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I got good results from it and feel able to do my housework now. I used to have lots of pains, but after taking the medicine I am relieved from pains that I had suffered from for years. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends, and hope this letter will be satisfactory for you to publish."—Mrs. JENNIE JAHR, R. R. No. 2, Box 81, Howard Lake, Minn.

PUTNAM

The record number of 45 cases were on the docket for Monday morning's session of the Putnam city court, Judge M. H. Geissler presiding. Excepting in two cases, where the accused were charged with having been intoxicated, those present to have their cases considered were taken in the big raid at the Polish Freedom club on School street, late Saturday night.

In each instance involving those rounded up in the raid at the Polish club, the cases were continued for two weeks. Such a large number of accused and spectators were on hand that it was found necessary to hold court in the assembly hall of the municipal building, instead of in the regular court room.

The accused presented in connection with the club raid were: Stanley Laczak and John Duda, both of this city, charged with alleged violation of the liquor laws. Their cases were continued, as were the bonds of $500 each.

Those charged with being frequenters were: Leon Mikuski, Mechanicsville; John Nawrocki, Danielson; John Kelock, Putnam; Joseph Widay, 17, Putnam; John Rucki, Putnam; Peter Kulo, Toni Holden, Danielson Nicholas Pryzyczura, Goodyear; Sam Nozuak, Goodyear; Harbid Worthington, Moosup; Leon Wheelock, Thompson; Frank Lochet, Webster; Stanley Zygment, Putnam; Walter Toper, Jewett City; Stephen Farczyeck, Putnam; Michael Arabic, Jewett City; Frederick Brillowski, Webster; Marcus Borwski, Webster; Toni Racuza, Putnam; Frank Lucks, Putnam; Frank Geryk, Putnam; Felix Yankowski, Moosup; Walter Wryeck, Joseph Merzwka, Stanley Kobek, Putnam; John Manski, Webster; John Gryubuski, Putnam; Ignacy Krol, Worcester; John Carlage, Putnam; John Leoldn, Goodyear; Michael Renycz, Mechanicsville; Albert Katmos, Putnam; Toni Klenczk, Putnam; John Sawuluski, Thompson; Phileas Young, Putnam; Wichnley Tampek, Mechanicsville; Peter Whitney, Putnam, Joseph Popwawa, Putnam.

Of interest was the statement of Phineas Young, who said he had been in the place only about three minutes when the raid started, and that when he came in he was passed by an officer on duty at the door.

Following an automobile accident in the town of Thompson, near the Massachusetts line, Sunday evening, Mrs. Helen Stamaton of Willimantic was reported Monday morning to be lying in a semi-conscious condition at the Day Kimball hospital and her condition regarded as serious. Mrs. Stamaton has a bad scalp wound, but the skull is not fractured. Mrs. Stamaton's sister-in-law, Miss Pauline Bell, also injured in the accident, is a patient at the hospital here. She has a fractured collarbone.

Costas Stamaton, a Willimantic business man and husband of Mrs. Stamaton was driving the car, but escaped without injury, as did the two Stamaton children, who also were included in the motoring party.

It is stated that the machine turned over twice and finally righted itself before it came to a halt. Mr. Stamaton, who was driving, found himself with the rim of the steering wheel in his hands after the somersaulting of the car was over. The accident is said to have been due to the slippery roadway, as it was raining at the time the accident occurred.

Another Providence rum runner has been caught in the town of Thompson and a severe penalty imposed by Justice Tourtellotte, in a court held in that town. State Officer Merrill Keith of the Danielson barracks gets credit for the capture of Mike Lubin and Mrs. Gertrude Kaufman, both of Providence, while they were transporting 40 gallons of alcohol and 17 pink bottles filled with whiskey. It is asserted that Lubin, who was driving the closed Ford that figured in the affair, was in the employ of Mrs. Kaufman as driver and that she was the actual owner of the liquor, which was being taken to some unknown destination. The fine imposed on Lubin and Mrs. Kaufman was $500 and costs, which they paid. Their load of alcohol and whiskey was confiscated.

Two automobiles with their left front wheels torn off and otherwise smashed bore evidence Monday that there must have been some crash on Sunday night, when they came together while running along the state highway between West Thompson and Grosvenordale. Leo Giraca of this city and Charles Gallagher of Worcester were the drivers of the machines. They escaped without serious injury, as did the other occupants of the car.

Giraca was coming south toward Putnam, Gallagher going north, when the accident happened. After the collision the machines ran off to the side of the highway, the Giraca car turning over, pinning the occupants underneath, but all manager to extricate themselves after a time. Giraca was saturated with gasoline after the accident, but except for a slight injury to his leg appeared to be not seriously hurt.

The damaged cars were brought to this city to be repaired.

The fact that the superior court will consider naturalization cases in Willimantic today (Tuesday) will attract a number of candidates for citizenship and their witnesses from Putnam and surrounding towns. A large number of cases will receive consideration today.

Secretary Albert S. Ralston has submitted a tentative list of committees of the chamber of commerce to the president for consideration, following last week's annual meeting. At present the chamber is concerning itself with mill affairs.

Deeds of the Manhasset Mfg. Co., and equipment have been passed, in accordance with the terms of the auction held a few weeks ago, and later approved by the superior court, to the William Muir interests of Providence. The order of the court was that the deeds should pass within 30 days after approval of the sale plan by the court and the order has been complied with.

A car driven by John Rakuza of this city plunged off the state highway bridge that is partly built out on Killingly avenue, near the David Clark place. This bridge is over a brook and was uncompleted when work on the new concrete highway was stopped last fall. During the winter traffic has passed around a fenced area in the central part of the new bridge, the fence section being protected by red reflectors. There is no railing on the south side of the new bridge and it was off that point that the car dropped, a distance of a few feet.

Farm work all through this territory is virtually at a standstill, as the result of the unusual cold weather and continuing rains. Only a small amount of plowing has been done and planting has been held up, practically, since last Thursday on account of the long drawn out northeaster, that deluged this section with rain during Monday.

At the Community house in East Woodstock, Monday evening, an institute of interest to fruit and vegetable growers was held under the auspices of the County Farmers' association, with headquarters in this city.

Monday's despatches from Washington calling attention to the advisability of buying coal now has brought out the fact that not much coal is being stored here against the coming of the next cold weather season, the general inclination being to wait until fall.

Patrols of state highways in this section were [increased] by the state police officers, who kept a careful watch on traffic not exceptionally heavy because of the unfavorable weather.

raid on the Polish club on School street, Putnam, Saturday night, had their cases continued for two weeks, in the Putnam city court Monday morning.

A car by motorman, in uniform, [pulled] along a state highway near [Danielson] automobile gave a woman [driver] of a car bearing a Massachusetts registration a fright while she was speeding. Suspecting he was a state officer she abruptly cut down the speed at which she was traveling.

An epidemic of flat tires on cars seen in this territory seems to indicate that many motorists are economizing by keeping old tires in service and risking the usual consequences.

Upwards of an inch of rain fell during Monday, another day of exceptionally low temperature for May. The heaters let out of service the last of the month are again working overtime in homes in town.

Danielson boys are interested in the fact that the "Boy" camp at Camp Woodstock—the Tri-county Y camp—opens [June] 1. This year there will also be camps for girls, the first of these opening on August 2.

In answer to many inquiries, it may be stated that no information is available for publication relative to the appointment of a postmaster to succeed Patrick Riley, democratic incumbent at Dayville, his term having expired in February.

It is a custom of school children, in some sections at least, to break the branches from partly grown trees, also to pull up and break down young trees and shrubs which have been set out in front of their property, and the schools would be doing a [great] deal if they could instill into the minds of children the right sentiment in this matter. One resident on a street much traversed by children going to and from school has set out a young maple tree eight years in succession, only to have it destroyed by passing children before it had a chance to grow to any size.

WESTERLY

Monday evening 136 members of the Westerly Masonic club sat down to their annual pig supper in the Masonic banquet room, 48 High street. The following menu was discussed:

Grapefruit
Tomato Soup Dinner Biscuit
Roast Pig
Apple Sauce
Mashed Turnip Baked Potatoes
Dressing Brown Gravy
Green Peas
Pickles Olives Celery
Clam Fritters Parker House Rolls
Assorted Cake Ice Cream
Coffee

The dinner tables were arranged in three long rows the length of the hall, with a head table at one end. Following the dinner, Rev. John La Davis, of New Britain, a well known after-dinner speaker, was heard, taking for his subject, "Psychology of Success."

The officers of Westerly Masonic club are: President, William C. Smith; vice president, Herbert W. Rathbun; secretary, Albert E. Barber; treasurer, Lewis Stanton. The board of directors consist of Thomas McKenzie, Samuel Bailey, John C. Mills, Henry A. Stahle Fayette F. Freeman and John A. Hogg, ex-officio.

Westerly fire alarm was rung at 8.30 o'clock, Monday morning by the central operator for Box 28, corner of Chester avenue and Granite street for a chimney fire in the house of Henry Walton, 8 Rocket street, known as the Bothwell house and occupied by four families. The chimney has given trouble before and as on previous occasions the department responded under Chief Egger and the fire was extinguished, there being no damage. At the time the alarm sounded the rain of the morning storm was coming down in torrents so there could be no danger from sparks.

A gang of laborers who had been at work on the new Westerly hospital for three days, stopped work Monday morning. An effort was made by them to obtain their return fares to New York from which place they came to Westerly. The Westerly railroad station was visited by a dozen or fifteen of the number as was also the office of the Westerly town clerk. The men gathered in groups on the street in the afternoon.

"The Great Adventure," a World war motion picture, is to be shown by Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion. This picture is reported as being complete in every detail covering the activities of the great war. John W. Neild, Jr., and Louis Rossi are members of Merrill post which has charge of the Westerly showing of the picture. "Powder River" was the title of a war picture shown under the Legion auspices several months ago.

Mrs. Henry C. Greene and son, F. Stewart Greene, have arrived in Westerly from Bellaire, Fla., having passed the winter months in the south.

Mrs. Philip H. Ople and daughter, Edythe A. Ople, have returned to Westerly after several months' visit with Mrs. Ople's daughter, Mrs. Roland H. Taylor, at Phoenix, Ariz.

Jeremiah Shea of the West Side has put in at 186 West Broad street, Hillcrest sub-division, the foundation for a new house.

COLCHESTER

The justice court had a very busy time Saturday afternoon, there being three cases, Justice E. E. Baker presiding. In the adjourned case of Eli [illegible] Fedus, charged with selling intoxicating liquors, Mr. Ledin pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs of $78.06, which was paid. Charles F. Brown was prosecutor in the three cases. Abraham Holtzman, who runs the bathhouse on Mill street, was charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs of $56.26. Isidore Mintz on Mill street, on reputation of selling, asked for a continuance of his case to Friday, May 16, at 2 p. m. Officer John M. Riley was assisted in his work of searching, etc., by Officers Congdon, Briggs, William E. Jackson of Willimantic, and Avery and Fitzpatrick of New London. The work of cleaning the town traffic of booze has commenced, resulting in four cases last week. It is hoped the good work will continue.

Edward M. Day of Hartford was the guest of his sisters, Misses Elizabeth and Sarah Day, of Norwich avenue over Sunday.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spalding returned to their home in Auburn after spending a week at Spaulding cottage.

A Hupmobile bearing a Massachusetts registration turned over on Spaulding Hill, Friday morning after skidding on the slippery surface of the state road. A wrecker from Danielson righted the machine and towed it to Danielson. The occupants of the car escaped uninjured.

Mrs. P. H. Coffey entertained Lillie May Young at supper Wednesday in honor of Miss Young's birthday. After supper games were enjoyed and later a birthday cake, presented Miss Young and ice cream was served. Miss Young is a class mate of Ruth Coffey at R. H. S.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Elephant and the Panther

No sooner had the two little rabbits and the Circus Elephant seated themselves at the ball game and they looked all around to find Mr. Peter Panther. But he was no where in sight, not even when the game commenced. The Squirrel Tree Toppers had taken their places in the field, the first Bunnyville Rabbit Sluggers had just stepped up to the bat, and the Umpire, a long legged Crane, was peering over the batter's shoulder, when, all of a sudden, with a terrible roar, Mr. Peter Panther, lashing his tail and showed his teeth, jumped into the Grandstand.

Of course all the people jumped up from their seats. Some ran out on the baseball field, others crowled under the grandstand, and some just [illegible] and yelled 'Murder!'

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

Brief and harmonious was the republican caucus. The absence of any contest apparently created the impression that a large attendance was not necessary, and from the men who have been endorsed for city offices there are reasons to believe that the voters of the city will agree that on this occasion at least a small caucus has picked well. At least whatever criticism may be offered must be directed to those who failed to appear and select otherwise.

For the members of the court of common council the republicans have this year named men who have not been making politics their business. They are substantial citizens, men of affairs, successful business men, men engaged in leading professions and men holding positions of much responsibility and trust. They are men who are deeply concerned in the welfare of the community, whose interests are centered here, who have a high standing among the citizens, who can be looked to for conscientious service, who have excellent records in their various lines of activity and who can be relied upon to give to the community that same careful, high grade attention that they devote to their own business.

Edmund W. Perkins, candidate for mayor, is numbered among the successful lawyers of the city, whose ability to ably administer the office is beyond question. He has all the qualifications for sound leadership.

For members of the council Messrs. Bidgersleeve, Stamm, Perkins, Zahn, Ingalls and Bode are well known citizens, popular, aggressive, efficient men of affairs, who have the welfare of the city at heart and can be depended upon to see that the city's business is run on business lines.

S. H. Reeves has demonstrated his fitness for the office of city treasurer during his years of service and for the same reason Sheriff Raynes and Cooley and Water Commissioner Hagberg have been renamed for their respective offices.

In the makeup of the republican ticket it has been a case of the office seeking the man and the ticket is one that should make a strong appeal to the lovers of good government.

FORCING A VETO.

Eyes are turned upon the conference committee which is wrestling with the features of the tax reduction measure which do not jibe as they passed the house and senate respectively. It is its duty to endeavor to iron out the differences and to remove some of the bad features. Whether it can be done is a question, but upon whether it is done probably depends the action of the president.

The conference committee which dealt with the immigration bill was disposed to heed the plea of the president for a delaying in the effectiveness of the Japanese exclusion provision. Its recommendations did not obtain approval and there is no telling whether anything that seemed to upset the action of either of the houses would fare any better in connection with the revenue bill.

Much will depend upon what the committee does as to whether the president will sign or veto it. That it is loaded down with politics is no secret. It is a measure that has been pushed through without regard for the situation in the treasury department and with equally open disregard for the effects that will be had upon business. There are features to which the president has ground for objecting quite the same as to the Japanese exclusion provision, and there is little doubt but what there is a sufficient number in congress opposed to the bill as drafted to sustain a veto.

It is a question therefore of presenting to the president a bill he can sign and one that it is known in advance he will not. A veto to a tax reduction bill based upon the grounds that are available to the president, would certainly be sustained by the country. His stand in behalf of economy and the ending of extravagance and spending which is sanctioned solely for political purposes and without regard for the revenue should have been signal enough for congress to endeavor to avoid the responsibility for forcing a veto upon a measure which is of such importance to the country.

CRIMES AND PUNISHMENTS.

In connection with the petitions for pardons from state prison which have been presented to the state board it is to be noted that all those from New London county are from individuals who have been sentenced to imprisonment for various periods for the taking of life. They are only a few of the many at Wethersfield who are seeking their liberty, and who because of the time they have served consider that they have paid for causing the death of others and should be released to again mingle with the public.

As the result of a study concerning murder cases in this country, Dr. F. L. Hoffman declares that the rate of murders in the United States rose from 9 per cent in 1922 to 10.3 per cent in 1923, and that the rate has doubled in 20 years.

Whether or not this increase in homicides has been due to an increase in leniency to those who take life, it cannot fail to be noticed that there are many behind bars now from this county, because they have caused the death of others, and that they are seeking to escape even the minimum of their sentences for the various crimes.

Much may be said in behalf of the disposition to give prisoners the benefit of parole, or to give them a chance to demonstrate that they are prepared to follow the straight and narrow path. There is a question just how far such a plan should be carried in regard to those who have actually taken the lives of others. The inclination in some states seems to be to give a murderer quite as much of a chance as those who have committed other crimes. With the doubling of the murder rate in the last two decades it is open to the interpretation that encouragement has been given to this by the impression created in the minds of those willing to commit murder that they can expect to get off with light sentences and early parole. Punishment can be such as to either discourage or encourage the violation of law.

LET'S HAVE COOPERATION.

When efforts are made for providing as much protection as possible for the woodlands of the state, as well as to encourage the planting of more trees and the utilization of unproductive land for the growing of timber, it is time for all who have a chance to do so to lend the needed cooperation. The result aimed at is a desirable one. It means much to the state and it deserves all possible encouragement.

Thus when State Forester Hewes, in his efforts to reduce the large losses that are experienced each year from the woodland fires, points to the large number of fires that are caused by railroads and indicates that there is not the proper cooperation being given by the railroads to bring about a reduction of such conditions it is a situation that does not leave a favorable impression.

That railroads are the cause of many fires, grass as well as woodland, is no secret. The railroads do not deliberately set out to cause such results, but in connection with their operation the throwing of hot cinders into the underbrush from smokestack or cab provides the firebrand that raises havoc in the vast quantities of dry grass, underbrush and leaves. Once such fires get to going it means heavy losses for someone before they are checked. Prevention is what is needed. There is quite the same demand for preventing those started by locomotives as those started by careless individuals. Fires produce the same results regardless of what started them, and if all that is needed to bring about a reduction of fires for which the railroads are responsible is cooperation let us by all means have it. The railroads seek fair play and they ought to be anxious to give it.

THE FRENCH ELECTION.

The election in France means an upset for that government. Instead of giving a vote of endorsement to Premier Poincare and his policies it has resulted in such a repudiation that it means the placing of another in the premiership and the termination of the services of the man, who only a few weeks ago, it was insisted the country could not get along without.

The French election has much interest for other countries in view of the European situation and the part which that country plays in it. The defeat of the Poincare supporters doesn't necessarily mean the overthrow of all his policies but it does mean a new man at the helm and unquestionably certain modifications. Instead of maintaining such a stiff position relative to other countries France may henceforth be found to be more willing to meet the pleas of others. It cannot be expected that the election result means any letting up in the feeling toward Germany and yet Germany is bound to get a certain degree of satisfaction out of it. It means the passing of an unyielding premier. Perhaps it means that the new government will be able to come to a better understanding with the British government.

Much interest will be manifested in the effects upon the Dawes report. It cannot be regarded as a situation that indicates antagonism to the recommendations of the special commission. Those who will have the majority in the government are favorable to that though their election shows them to be opposed to Premier Poincare. How much the situation has been really improved from an international standpoint remains to be disclosed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Old Sol always was a breeder of cheerfulness.

May seems intent upon having some of that coal burned that was intended for next winter.

Some congressmen act as if they wanted to make a speech and didn't care what they said.

Tammany has caught the spirit of the times. It is going to have three do what used to be done by one.

If half of the plans for beautification of cities made at this season of the year materialized wonderful result would follow.

The American people are said to have a daily income of $200,000,000. All of which is fine if their daily outgo isn't more than $200,000,000.

"Don't do what I've done," says the bobbed-haired bandit, but the trouble with the advice is that it wasn't applied to herself before she was headed for prison.

In spite of the demand for peace there are those who think anyone who wants to start a revolution should be supplied with all the firearms that can be bought.

The president is being made to tell the country that we have an extravagant and uneconomic congress. It is certainly not information which the country welcomes.

A large number of bad bills, totalling about a quarter of a million, have been burned in Washington. That would be a quick method of disposing of some of the proposed legislation.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, D. C., May 12.—Group government instead of party government has upset all the plans of the republicans in congress. They have fallen short of votes to carry through party measures; they have seen members of blocs running all the way from farm blocs to big and little navy blocs, ruining their program and through coalition with the almost fifty-fifty democratic representation in congress, defeat the plans of the administration. Here is the Washington viewpoint outside of congress: Many men of responsibility sigh for the old days when the floor leader of the majority party in the senate and the speaker of the house "ruled the roost" and some sort of party responsibility rested on the shoulders of men elected by party vote.

Now a handful of republican insurgents, a still smaller number of men elected as independents dominate congress, and by their united strength can force through or prevent the passage of practically any measure they desire, trading for advantage when their own pet schemes come to the front.

These men represent but a fraction of the people of the country, yet are able to rule through the lack of a working majority of either of the major parties. Unless the November election secures a big victory for one or the other of the two great major parties, the latter LaFollette group will rule the country just as surely and completely as though a member of that element was elected president. That is the view unhesitatingly expressed by leaders of both parties here. And just why a number of so-called regular republicans are forsaking the presidential preference regarding legislation when it seems evident that the president is the only man who can win out hands down, is a hard matter to understand. The president has the confidence of the country; congress has not; the president is being praised by men of various factions, congress is being blamed and condemned by those factions; and unless congress is blind in one eye and can't see out of the other, it is difficult to understand why the republicans in that body do not follow their leader in the stress of the closing days of the sessions. In the minds of many political wiseheads, outside that body of men, challenging the policies of the president and inviting his veto on measures for which the country cries, spells political death to the republican party and to many of its representatives in congress, at the coming election.

Your correspondent has recently had the opportunity to meet a number of people from the various states and sections of the country. Sounding out their views of the present situation in Washington, almost without exception the president was upheld by men of his own party and the senate and representatives condemned in no unsparing manner.

With that straw showing the way of the wind, republicans may dare to desert their colors when final votes have been taken, will have to watch their step in November and at the primaries, if the comments heard from the plain country folk is any indication of public sentiment.

Group government has so thoroughly replaced party government in congress that no one knows what results will be shown by the work of the session about to close.

The regular republicans are nominally in power, but the time has not come back when they can control legislation by work of the committees. The democrats in minority cannot govern legislation without catering to the small insurgent group that holds the balance of power, and so puts the country under the rule of a fractional number of people.

This has been shown in every instance where a party clash has come. The forming of the rules committee in the house, where serious concessions were made to insurgents to induce them to stay with the party under whose banner they were elected. They stayed just long enough to get a big committee hold, then they slipped over to the democrats and got concessions there. They are "teaching the world is round or square" just as seems to their advantage at the moment. And republicans and democrats alike have trucked, cajoled and fought them, but that little handful of men control the situation as congress draws to a close.

If the November election fails to elect a president by a big majority the same condition will exist in congress, should the election be thrown to that body as now seems not impossible. That would mean either LaFollette or Johnson, according to the present outlook—for as only three candidates of the electoral college can be voted on, the insurgent who gets the greatest number of votes would come pretty near selecting the man for the office of president, if he couldn't win himself. He holds the balance of power, as LaFollette now does, with his little band of followers.

Perhaps that is why Johnson of California stays in the ring long after his defeat at the convention is assured. He might have a running chance in congress, if LaFollette's health precludes his striving for the first place on the ticket, should such conditions arise, and the insurgents and democrats unite on him, rather than see a republican win the congressional election. The only thing that will save such a possible situation is a big majority for one or the other of the "regular" candidates next fall. Party leaders are not asleep and their efforts here are turned in "get out a big straight vote" direction.

The candidacy of Speaker Gillett for the Massachusetts senatorship has broken the ice for the incoming of Frothingham, Rogers, Dallinger and perhaps others of the Massachusetts delegation who have openly aspired to the senatorship, in case it became a free for all race as it has now done.

Every Massachusetts man of prominence on the delegation has ambitions to take the field against Walsh democrat, but with the open favor of President Coolidge, given to Gillett he will unquestionably have the backing of his state committee.

As it will devolve on President Coolidge to carry through the state ticket, men here resent the suggestion that it is improper for him to take a hand in the game by showing his reliance and confidence in Gillett as a candidate. "Coolidge must carry the party through" say the national leaders. "It is for him to say who will be the best man, if he wants to."

They have just had a peace conference in Washington, conducted by women who believe they can stop world wars. "We are going to work out a new order," said Miss Rankin, former member of congress, and who will be remembered as sobbing loud when she voted against war—which was the first vote cast by a woman in congress. "War must be made a crime," added Miss Rankin to which the ladies agreed. But the International League for Peace was Bedlam for a few hours later when a war of words followed the introduction of questions by the daughter of 1812 who stood for preparedness. Mrs. Potts, of that organization walked into the room where the ladies were meeting and listeners in found the peace meeting no place for the gentle dove of peace. Jane Addams was speaking when Mrs. Potts broke in; in a minute it was Mrs. Potts and Miss Addams who were speaking—a minute later it was the entire assemblage that was speaking at the same time, and such noise and hot arguments prevailed that the hotel management interfered and ordered quiet or disbanument.

While Mrs. Potts attempted to talk the ladies shouted. "Rave on." Hisses filled the air, the gavel of the presiding officer pounded incessantly but without avail; and the uproar lasted fully ten minutes when the manager of the hotel rushed in and insisted that either quiet be restored and the great hotel brought again to its quiet and dignity or the meeting must be broken up. Mrs. Potts, Miss Addams and the ladies fired a few more shots then the peace conference adjourned. When the turmoil ended one of the few men present was heard to remark; "Gee, put those women on the firing line, and we wouldn't need any guns or gas."

Examinations will be held on June 16, 1924, for the appointment of temporary commissioned and temporary warrant officers to bring the commissioned personnel of the United States coast guard up to the strength required under the act of congress approved April 21, 1924, providing for an increase in the coast guard to enforce the liquor, narcotic and alien smuggling laws. It was announced today by the United States coast guard.

Approximately 149 temporary commissioned officers and 400 temporary warrant officers will be appointed. formation relative to enlistments may be obtained from coast guard headquarters, Washington, D. C., or from any vessel or station of the coast guard. Applications to take the examination for appointment as temporary commissioned officer or warrant officer should be made direct to the Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, Washington, D. C. Only men of high quality and good character will be considered.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

I was awfully pleased when I received a dinner invitation from Mrs. Gooding, for I have long wished to get into the inner circles of the rather exclusive set of which she is the leader. To Aunt Rachel I bewailed the fact that I had nothing to wear worthy of the occasion. I certainly was chagrined when she offered me a silver metal cloth evening gown of her own. It was frightfully old for me.

"What can we do with it?" I asked Cousin Fannie when I displayed the inept gift. "It was all right with Aunt Rachel's white hair, but it deadens my ruddy locks. Oh, Cousin Fannie, darling, I've just thought of something. We could veil this with that delectable orchid chiffon that Aunt Rachel gave you for Christmas. How fortunate you haven't used it yet."

"But, Lucile——"

"Now, Cousin Fannie, don't you see that will be just the thing? It will make a stunning costume, and we can have it in partnership. Luckily we rarely go to the same places."

"But I prefer simple things, Lucile."

The fact is, Cousin Fannie, that you are foolish to dress so plainly. It adds to your age. I know you would look charming in the orchid over silver. It will be perfect with your slightly graying hair. You know Aunt Rachel is always wishing you to dress with more care," I urged, and she at last reluctantly yielded to my plan.

In the late afternoon of the day of the Gooding dinner, I was surprised to hear Maj. Latewood's voice over the phone. He said he was on his way west from Washington, and that he would be in town only over night. Would I dine and go to the theater with him?

"Oh, I'm simply desolated because I can't," I answered. "But you must dine with me. I'm going to a most charmingly hospitable home and my hostess will be delighted to add you to the party."

"Why, you're very kind, but I don't believe that I——"

"I shall be dreadfully disappointed if you don't come," I said. "You mustn't think it will be an intrusion. It won't at all."

"But I can't even dress. You see, my luggage has——"

"Don't worry about that. It will be quite informal," I said, and with a little more urging I persuaded him to go with me. Then I called up Mrs. Gooding an told her that a distinguished army officer had suddenly arrived in the city to see me.

"I know," I remarked, "that in your message another guest will cause no inconvenience and I'm so anxious to have Maj. Latewood meet you. Will it be all right, dear Mrs. Gooding, if I take him to your dinner?"

"Why—yes," she gasped in a sort of breathless way.

I was vexed when Maj. Latewood appeared in civies. It had never occurred to me that he would not be in uniform. I don't see why army officers are allowed to go about in mufti. He looked uncomfortable when he saw all the other men in inner coats, and Mrs. Gooding gave me a startled glance as I entered the drawing room in my simple, but beautiful afternoon frock. I could not avoid feeling that she was stiff and cold toward me all the evening.

When she refused the squab the maid set down before her, I noticed a distinct frown of annoyance. I felt from her manner that the maid had forgotten her instructions. It really was a little awkward, also, when she declined the spun candy basket of ice cream flowers. I thought how strange it was that in so pretentious an establishment there should have been no extras of those special courses. I fear that with all their money, the Goodings are not very liberal.

On the whole, the dinner was not gay, and I was sorry that I had not pleaded a headache, and excused myself so that I could have accepted Maj. Latewood's invitation, which would have been much more fun.

"For Goodness' sake, Lucille," inquired Cousin Fannie the next morning, "why didn't you wear that dress you insisted upon having? I was astonished when I saw it thrown on your bed last evening."

"Well, you see, dear, I discovered that Maj. Latewood had no dress clothes with him, so I decided not to wear an evening gown. I thought I would be kinder to him, and I——"

"So I ruined my lovely orchid chiffon for nothing," she exclaimed rather crossly.—Chicago News.

DAVISON HUNTED FOR POSITIONS

Henry P. Davison did not have a college education, his parents were dead, he was without money—and he walked the streets of New York seeking work, but without success.

He was born in Troy, Pa., his mother died when he was seven years old and he "lived around" with relatives. Leaving the Troy public school when he was 15, he became a teacher, then attended Greylock Institute in South Williamstown, Mass., working on a farm in vacation time.

After graduation, he was runner in his uncle's bank in Troy. He prepared to go to college, but did not have enough money to start.

At 21 he tried to find a position in New York but could not, then became runner in the Pequonnock National Bank, of Bridgeport, Conn. Three years later he was receiving teller.

The Astor Place National Bank of New York was to open. Two trips, in quest of the position of paying teller, produced refusals, a third brought a promise. He resigned from his Bridgeport position and prepared to begin work. Then the directors refused to confirm the promise and he had to take a lesser position and a smaller salary.

Six months later he was made paying teller. A maniac with a revolver demanded $1,000, and Davison was so cool in averting payment and death that he became assistant cashier of the Liberty National Bank.

Five years later, at 32, he was elected president, one of the youngest bank heads in the country. He organized the Bankers' Trust Company. When 35 he was vice-president of the First National Bank and when 42 accepted J. P. Morgan's invitation to become a partner in J. P. Morgan and Company.

He served on many government monetary commissions, was appointed chairman of the American Red Cross War Council when the United States entered the World War, later was elected chairman of the Governing Board of the World League of Red Cross Societies, was actively interested in many industries and benevolences, and the University of Pennsylvania conferred upon him the degree of LL.D.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Bishop Joseph F. Berry, who has been presiding over the Methodist Episcopal General Conference at Springfield, Mass., is the senior bishop of that denomination. Today he celebrates his 68th birthday and three days hence he will have completed 20 years in the bishopric. Bishop Berry is a typical Methodist, in appearance, in experience and in his platform manner. A Canadian by birth, the son of a Methodist preacher, he joined his father's church at the age of 14 and two years later began to preach. At the age of 18 he was received by the Detroit conference and for several years enjoyed a reputation throughout Michigan as "the boy preacher." His latest pastorate was in Mt. Clemens; he left in 1886 to become associate editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate. In 1890 he left for Chicago, where he became editor of the Epworth Herald, one of the most widely circulated church publications in the world. He was elected a bishop in 1904.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

FROM LATVITA TO ESTHONIA BY AIR

Flying as a passenger is itself relatively new; winging one's way with suitcase and duffel-bag from Latvia to Esthonia is doubly a new experience, for these two countries have come into independent existence only since the World war. Yet there is a regular air line between Riga and Tallinn, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society which presents notes from a member of its staff who was a recent air voyager between the two cities.

"A few bumps," says the writer, "then our left wing dips. Riga tilts up on edge with the steeples bent over, and we are off. The steeples seem to be retreating into the ground. A lake flashes under us, and what we know to be huge rafts of wood upon its waters look like matches floating in a saucer.

"Riga becomes a gray huddle beyond the green of trees and tawny sand masses. Pine forests appear and seem like the corn of our mid-west seen through dark glasses.

"Yellow sand blotches, blue spots of water and green forest mosaic scud by below. Rivers wind across the countryside like great silver snakes; caught in their meanderings are cultivated fields with large houses red tiled, and small ones inconspicuously thatched.

"We glide out over the sea; along its shore every ripple of sand beneath the brown-green water is disclosed to our vertical gaze. Tiny toy-like boats steam along with Lilliputian wakes behind them. Again we are over the land and now broken clouds stencil their patterns on green and gold of forest and sand. Now and then little towns glide beneath all surrounded by crazy-quilt fields.

"Farther on are swamps. The whole coast line is evidently soggy, but there are fine fields inside. Still farther inside are ever-green forests, and beyond those more brown swamps. The plowed fields in this moist region are marked out with crossed drainage ditches like a tablet of chocolate.

"But all to be seen as we fly over Latvia does not smack of peaceful pursuits. Below in a curve of the shore gun positions defended by trench lines are plainly visible. Now and then one catches sight of huge battlemented manor houses that might withstand a siege.

"Parnu, quite a town at the mouth of a river, slips by below and we realize that we have crossed the Esthonian frontier. Here, too, are the chocolate squares drained by tinfoil ditches; the brown swamp region, the lush green patches.

"Tallinn, our objective, shows up in the distance, a smoky pancake beyond a Lake Superio[illegible]. Spires are visible. But [illegible] are unequaled [illegible] view [illegible] with its [illegible] tain, Christopher Wren and the [illegible] le builders wrought not for the [illegible] man but for pedestrians.

"We head slowly down; we coast; we tip up a little and swing to the side. Watery trenches and a quarry seem to reach for us. But there is the open landing field. A slight bump and we are safe in another land."

For You—A Free Test
The way to prettier teeth, new safety, new delights
This offers your home something everybody prizes—whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. It has brought these benefits to millions, the world over. The results are seen in every circle now.
Make this free test. Learn what this method means to you and yours.
Film must be combated
Film is the great tooth enemy—that viscous film you feel. Under old-way cleaning methods, much of it clings and stays.
Film becomes discolored, then forms dingy, clinging coats. That is why so many teeth look cloudy.
Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.
You can better escape those troubles by efficiently fighting film.
Dental science has now found effective film combatants. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.
Able authorities have proved these methods effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.
Protect the Enamel
Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

People the world over have adopted this method, because of evident results. Leading dentists of some 50 nations are advising it today.
None who see can doubt
Pepsodent effects are seen and felt at once. It does more than fight film. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the ptyalin in saliva, there to digest starch deposits on teeth. These combined effects bring at once a new conception of clean teeth.
Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.
Then you will realize what a tooth paste should accomplish. Cut out coupon now.

BREAK OF 50 POINTS IN THE PRICE OF FRANCS

New York, May 13.—The outcome of the French elections, foreshadowing Premier Poincare's retirement and modification of France's foreign policies, today brought a sharp break of more than 50 points in the price of French francs, the most drastic decline since the collapse of the currency early in March. From Saturday's level of 6.06 cents, the rate dipped as low as 5.52 cents and then fluctuated erratically between 5 1-2 and 5 3-4 cents.

Selling of the currency originated abroad and bases there were extended in the local market shortly after the opening, while bankers and foreign exchange dealers were inclined to believe that a change in ministry would hasten rather than retard a reparations settlement, they pointed out that English and German operators embraced the opportunity to sell francs short in view of the absence of French support. Sterling was depressed more than a cent to around 4.86 and Belgian francs yielded about 50 points to 4.76 cents.

Edmund W. Perkins of the firm of Brown & Perkins, attorneys, was nominated for mayor of the city of Norwich at the republican caucus held Monday evening in the town. There were no addresses and no contests, all nominations being unanimous. It took the 75 voters present but thirteen minutes to nominate the entire ticket.

At 8 o'clock Arthur F. Libby, chairman of the republican town committee, called the caucus to order. On motion of Charles A. Hagberg, Judge Henry H. Pettis was chosen chairman and on motion of Stephen H. Reeves, William S. Elliott was the choice for clerk. On taking the chair Judge Pettis said he was not going to make a speech. After the clerk had read the warning for the caucus the chairman called for nominations for mayor.

As the candidate to head the party ticket, Ebenezer Learned nominated Edmund W. Perkins. This was the only nomination for mayor and Mr. Perkins was unanimously elected as the party candidate. Applause greeted the nomination.

The remaining nominations were put through in quick order as follows:

For aldermen, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, nominated by Frederic W. Cary; Earl W. Stamm, nominated by Judge Nelson J. Ayling.

For councilmen—John H. Perkins, nominated by George E. Fellows; Paul H. Zahn, nominated by Louis Geer; George L. Ingalls, nominated by Weston C. Pullen; William C. Bode, Jr., nominated by Howard Spalding.

Judge Ayling moved that the town committee be authorized to fill any vacancies that may occur on the ticket and the motion was carried.

The caucus adjourned at 8.13 o'clock.

MOTHERS' DAY OBSERVED BY BOZRAHVILLE COUNCIL

The Bozrahville Council of Jewish Women observed Mother's Day with an appropriate programme with the children taking part in songs, recitations and quotations from the best thoughts of great men.

The programme was opened by Mrs. Nathan Gilman who spoke on the significance of the observance of Mother's Day, pointing out that it not only sets a noble example for the children but gives expression to our love and reverence for our mothers and is morally and spiritually uplifting and inspiring. She also spoke a few words to the children, saying that we should acknowledge our great debt to our mothers, not merely by wearing the carnation, but rather by the more spiritual tokens of sincere appreciation and grateful tribute to her whose tender care and eternal faith and relentless sacrifice will make us worthy men and women.

The salute to the white carnation was given and the children presented flowers and gifts to their mothers, altogether carrying out most beautifully the fine sentiment of Mother's day.

FINED IN COURT FOR MOTOR LAW VIOLATIONS

Andrew Zawacki of 568 North Main street whose automobile was in collision early Sunday evening on North Main street at the corner of Sixth street with the machine of Arthur Lafond of Taftville was fined $25 and costs in the city court Monday morning on the charge of reckless driving. He paid $36.04.

Two men paid fines and costs for intoxication and one went to jail as he was unable to pay. Another paid a $10 fine and costs for breach of the peace.

In the court Saturday William Dealfry of Jewett City pleaded guilty to the charges of running past a standing trolley car and of driving without his operator's license. He was fined $25 and costs, making $37.50 which he paid.

Howard Wahlen, 18, of Hartford, whose case was heard in chambers, was bound over to the superior court on an embezzlement charge in connection with selling vacuum cleaners for Earl James. Bonds were placed at $1,000 which he was unable to furnish.

MISS LORETTA HIGGINS SANG IN HALIFAX

Miss Loretta Higgins, soprano, of the Opera Comique, Paris, spent the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Higgins of 228 Broadway, having just returned from two weeks in Halifax and New Brunswick, where she made a number of appearances and was heard by audiences that were enthusiastic in their applause of her singing. She returned to Boston Monday morning.

Congregationalists at Taftville

Delegates from the churches in the New London Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers will meet at the Taftville church today (Tuesday) for the association's annual meeting.

The morning address, "Education as a Means of Religious and Social Uplift in India," will be given by Mrs. William M. Zumbro; the afternoon one "Education for Peace," by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott.

A railroad company selling a through passenger ticket is not liable for an assault committed by the employe of a connecting line upon the holder of such a ticket, it was held by the supreme court in a case brought by the Missouri-Pacific railway company.

CHILDREN OF REVOLUTION HELD ENJOYABLE MEETING

The meeting of the General Ebenezer Huntington Society, Children of the American Revolution, was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy D. Judd, 116 Broad street with Junior President Emily Bidwell presiding.

After the opening with patriotic exercises, reports were made including that of the registrar which showed that the membership now had reached 43, eight having been received into membership since the last meeting. These were: Marion E. Spear, Nancy L. Greenman, Agnes L. Greenman, Donald B. Royce, Leonard Royce, John Tingley, Barbara Tingley and Sarah Tingley.

Several appropriations were voted by the meeting and the business session was brought to a close with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

The social part of the afternoon was next taken up and Marion Globe read Topsy's Lesson in a most interesting manner. Prof. William Banfield entertained the members with mystifying tricks which held their attention for some time. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Judd for a most enjoyable afternoon after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

MARKED BILL LED TO LIQUOR CONVICTION

Watertown, Conn., May 12. — A marked $5 bill given by Officer William Allen to a local man arrested yesterday morning on the charge of having liquor in his possession resulted in the arrest last evening and conviction today of Adam Dejutis and his wife on the charges of selling liquor.

Dejutis was sentenced to the Litchfield county jail for 30 days and fined $20 and costs and his wife was fined $50 and costs.

The officers raiding [illegible] home found liquor hidden [illegible] sewing machine and the marked $5 bill and roll of bills under a quart of whiskey. Dejutis had received the marked money from the man whom the police had arrested early yesterday morning. The latter was seen coming out of the house last evening and immediately placed under arrest again. A quart of moonshine was found on his person which he admitted had been purchased from Dejutis.

HISTORIC PREAKNESS IS WON BY NELLIE MORSE ON MUDDY TRACK

Baltimore, Md., May 12.—Travelling over a track almost fetlock deep in mire, Bud Fisher's filly, Nellie Morse, splendidly ridden by J. Nerrimee, defeated a field of fourteen good colts at Pimlico this afternoon to win the historic Preakness by a good two lengths, covering the nine furlongs in 1:57 1-5.

Harry Payne Whitney's Transmute beat out the Rancocas stable's Mad Play by a length for second place. Mad Paly, coupled with the other Sinclair entry, Bracadale, in the betting was easily the favorite of the dopesters.

Transmute brought his owner $5,000; Mad Play added $3,000 to his season's earnings, while Donaghee, by taking fourth position, pulled down $2,000 for [illegible] Cochran's Revenue Agent led [illegible] runs, who straggled in [illegible] lengths between them.

[illegible] the back stretch Mickey [illegible] with Sun Flag, added to the [illegible] of starters by Cochran at the last minute, set a dazzling pace, leading [illegible] eventual winner by several lengths. Donaghee was struggling gallantly but only to keep up with the leaders.

BULKELEY CONFIDENT OF WINNING FROM ACADEMY

New London, May 12.—Will Norwich Free academy receive the $5,000 offered by Charles Noyes, alumnus of the school, if this school can defeat Bulkeley High school in two branches of sport—baseball and football? As the offer made by Mr. Noyes came after the defeat Bulkeley handed the Academy in football last season, the baseball game between N. F. A. and Bulkeley on Wednesday will be the first game of the series to decide whether the Academy would receive the amount stated above or not. Bulkeley is out to keep the $5,000 safe in Mr. Noyes' pocket and judging from [illegible] tion the Bulkeley team has made the contests against the other teams in the state that the Orange and Black have met so far this season, it looks as though the Academy will have to do some tall hustling if it expects to have Mr. Noyes come across with the stated amount mentioned above.

The past record of the Academy is not as impressive as that of [illegible] that has won the state [illegible] high school title for the [illegible] years. Bulkeley has a brilliant [illegible] round team that needs no introduction in the eastern section of the state. A team composed of heavy hitters and the opposing pitching [illegible] records speak of themselves [illegible] team that literally eats up [illegible] pitcher, it is a question who Coach Brigham, the Academy mentor, will start against the champions in that game of the series between the two schools.

Surely Steinman will not get the assignment, for he is out of the question. The only pitcher the Academy mentor can turn upon is Ellie Segal. But can this diminutive twirler stop the Bulkeley batters from pounding the ball to all sections of the lot? It is not expected, but then surprises will happen. Segal, it must be remembered, lost to Bulkeley [illegible] games he pitched last season. It seems as though Segal is the only one that has experience to hold the Bulkeley batters in check. He will have to be in the best of condition if he expects to keep Bulkeley away from the plate.

EARL MATHEWSON ELECTED HEAD OF TWILIGHT LEAGUE

[illegible] Mathewson was elected president of the Norwich Twilight league at a meeting held Monday [illegible]. After the election of officers Mathewson as president he was given power to appoint the other officers. Among other matters considered at the meeting was the appointment of various committees. M. Aznopoz was appointed chairman of the rules committee, Manager King to be chairman of the schedule committee; Mr. Fenton and Goodrow were appointed to the grounds committee and J. Kozlow was appointed recording secretary. These committees will all make report at a future meeting.

One of the suggestions made at the meeting was that all the teams represented at Monday night's meeting be dropped as their presence is taken to mean that they do not care to enter the league. The vacancies will be filled by other teams that are very anxious to get into the league.

FEATURE MILE RACE PLANNED BY MILLROSE A. A.

New York, May 12.—The Millrose Athletic association, sponsor of one of the biggest indoor track and field meets, will stage an outdoor carnival September 13 at the Yankee stadium with foreign Olympic stars competing against leading American athletes.

Outstanding among the proposed features, according to announcement today, will be a race at the mile between Paavo Nurmi, Finnish distance runner, and Joie Ray, American champion at the distance. Nurmi [illegible] has accepted an invitation to come to the United States for the meet and his contest with Ray will renew the rivalry which is expected to be one of the biggest features of the Olympic games if the pair meet at 1,500 metres.

The meet also will include a marathon if the outcome of the Olympic distance classic is such as to [illegible] interest in such an event. The Millrose A. C. plans to invite at least three other foreign Olympic stars, preferably winners, in addition to Nurmi.

GODFREY KNOCKS OUT LODGE IN THIRD ROUND

Philadelphia, May 12.—George Godfrey, Philadelphia negro heavyweight, tonight knocked out Farmer Lodge of St. Paul, in the third round of a scheduled ten-round bout. Lodge had no mercy for the negro, rushing him at the start and landed telling blows almost at will.

In the third round Godfrey sent the westerner to the floor four times. The last time he knocked him through the ropes with a series of savage left and right jabs and Lodge was hanging helplessly to the ropes, unable to rise, when the referee completed the count of ten.

Godfrey weighed 205 pounds and Lodge 227.

CORNELL CREW TO BE SUBJECT TO RADICAL CHANGE

New York, May 12. — The Cornell varsity eight which will face Yale and Princeton on Carnegie lake Saturday may be either an entirely new crew or reveal a radical change in the personnel of the boat which unexpectedly lost by three lengths to Massachusetts Institute of Technology last Saturday.

The heavy varsity crew which disappointed in the M. I. T. race, is one of the two which Coach John J. Hoyle has been grooming. The other, a lighter eight, has been held in reserve but either will be used intact or several of its units inserted to the heavy outfit in Saturday's race, in the opinion of observers.

WILLS-MADDEN BOUT POSTPONED UNTIL FRIDAY

New York, May 12.—Rainfall which soaked the outdoor Queensboro stadium caused the postponement until Friday night of the 15-round heavyweight bout scheduled for tonight between Harry Wills and Bartley Madden. In accordance with the rules, however, the men weighed in today. Wills, negro challenger for the heavyweight title of Jack Dempsey, weighed 310 pounds. Madden, veteran Irish fighter, was announced at 158 pounds.

Postponement of the bout, [illegible] was regarded as the first of a series of [illegible] arranged to permit Wills [illegible] for a match with Dempsey in the fall, was announced by promoters after a conference with the boxing commission. PENN CREWS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF TRIANGULAR REGATTA ON THE CHARLES

Cambridge, Mass., May 12.—University of Pennsylvania made a clean sweep of the regatta on the Charles river today, easily winning the varsity, junior varsity and 150 pound crew races, in every case by a wide margin.

In the senior event Penn's heavy eight, stroked by Donald Irmiger of Green Bay, Wisconsin, romped over the finish line five lengths ahead of Harvard, its only competitor. In the junior varsity the Penn oarsmen had some ten lengths to the good, with Technology second and Harvard trailing. Penn's lead over Harvard in the 150 pound crew race, rowed over the Henley distance, was four lengths.

The regatta was held under adverse weather conditions. A strong northwest wind and rough water, conditions which led to postponement of the races on Saturday, prevailed again today. The first event, the light crew race, was started after six o'clock and when the varsity race, the course was all but hidden by fog and darkness. Saturday's postponement led to the withdrawal of Columbia's varsity and junior varsity crews, the faculty refusing them permission to remain over.

Penn got away more cleanly than Harvard in the senior race and won at the outset a lead that was never lost. Irmiger's crew started with a stroke of 34 and maintained it throughout, finishing apparently fresh. Parker Hamilton's Crimson crew using a faster stroke, made it close for the first half mile when a change of beat appeared to demoralize the crew for a time. Penn crept ahead steadily until the final half mile when Harvard appeared to get together, picking up a little of the lead, but the co-ordination came too late. The race was rowed over the mile and three-quarters course against a stiff breeze and the fog caused both crews to lose the course, adding to the distance at the finish. Pennsylvania's time was 9.45 and Harvard's 10 minutes.

The junior varsity race early developed into a struggle between Technology and Harvard for second place. E. H. Bennett's strong Penn eight early getting a lead the others could not hope to overcome. For the greater part of the mile and three-quarters course downstream against the wind Harvard and Technology rowed how and how, but Technology showed better strength in the final three miles. All three crews lost their course and made in too far towards the Cambridge shore. Penn finished in ten minutes ten seconds and a good ten lengths ahead. Technology's time was 10.35 and Harvard's [illegible].

DUGAS MEETS BARBER TONIGHT IN FIRST HALF

Chan Dugas of Taftville meets Frankie Barber of Danielson bowling in the first half of their match for a purse of $500 on Lucas' [illegible] alleys. Barber will bowl the second half of the match on Thursday evening at Taftville. Dugas is the present holder of the Eastern championship bowling title and will defend it against Barber who has been claimant of the title for the past few years.

Dugas will go to Danielson this evening with a strong following of backers and it is possible that the odds will be raised before the match starts. Dugas is in the best condition in several years while Barber on the other hand showed that he was not in form during the play in the Eastern championship bowling tournament.

Chapman Tech at Stonington Today.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 12. — Chapman Tech will play its second league game in four days, when the Red and Black journey to Stonington Tuesday afternoon to meet Stonington High on Owen's field. The defeat [illegible] Tech at the hands of Norwich Free Academy Saturday put the locals [illegible] place in the standing of the teams entered in the Interscholastic league. The Tech, to keep in the running, will have to win its remaining games.

Cruise is expected to receive the assignment Tuesday. His pitching in the previous contest against Stonington prompts Coach E. Stanley Taylor to favor him with the assignment.

Westerly vs. East Greenwich.

On this (Tuesday) afternoon the Westerly High school baseball team will play the East Greenwich nine at the Playgrounds diamond off High street, Westerly. NEW LONDON FIRE CHIEF'S ORDER DISTASTEFUL TO FOREMEN

New London, May 12—It will not occasion a surprise if there is a change made in the head of the New London fire department. Charles R. Rose, who succeeded John Stannera as the wearer of the white hat that is the signal of authority, seems for some reason to have incurred the displeasure of the officers of the department. He is said to have been given the place he fills with the understanding that he would resign after he had served six months, when he could retire and get a pension. He has not retired and so far as any of the officers say they know, he does not intend to quit. Then there is a report that "Rose," as he is called has given orders that interfere with the authority of the company foremen, in making the drivers of fire apparatus responsible to them. Chief Rose is said to have issued an edict to the effect that no driver shall take orders from anyone but the chief. The story goes that the chief sought the position of driver of the Kenmore apparatus for himself, though the latter was not a member of the company, and obtained it. The order to the drivers made bad feeling there and now it is said that a change will be brought about there also. So the conflict is on. Report goes that the assistant fire marshal, Thomas Shipman is slated as the successor of Chief Rose and that Foreman Thomas Gragin is booked to become the assistant chief. Friends of Chief Rose claim the purpose of the row is to secure a whole-paid department for the city and they do not hesitate to say that such a move would be in the direction of efficiency and a reduction in the cost of maintenance.

Joe Dymicky of 7 Front street, an employe of the Babcock Printing Press Works, took a chance to operate his motorcycle from a shop where it had been under repair to its home. He is not an expert at the cycle he essayed, so when State Policeman Fred Caron saw that the driver was taking up too much of the road he followed him and demanded that Joe show his authority to operate a motor cycle. Joe couldn't do it, because he did not have any such authority. He had a registration for the cycle, but he did not have an operator's license. His defense was somewhat novel when he was presented in the police court today, as he claimed he did not think it necessary to have a license "when he was not going anywhere," considering that he must be on a journey to some point when he was operating a cycle. That was a new defense in the court but Joe was fined $10.

Leon Gosset, of Providence, knows now how necessary it is to keep his eyes on the road and at work to direct him in the way in which he shall go when he is operating an automobile. Accompanied by a young lady he was in New London when the girl spied her cousin in the uniform of Uncle Sam's navy, on State street, and he stopped. [illegible] attention of Mr. [illegible] road to the sidewalk and while he was thus busy a car bumped into a silent policeman, doing about $30 of damage to the [illegible] cop escaped damage. A police officer who saw what was done insisted that Gosset should tell it to the judge in court next day. This Gosset did and Judge Comstock had evidently enough for Gosset to decide that the mishap was such as could not well have been avoided. He suspended judgment in the case.

Two drunks, both old-timers, Tom Connolly and James Morrison, were in court charged with intoxication. Each admitted—that he was rightfully [illegible] and pleaded for leniency. [illegible] what they asked for, but [illegible] for Morrison has not been in court in four years. Each said he was going to Guilford to plant tomatoes, which statement came very near getting them a jail sentence, because the court did not believe their statements. Judge Prince naively asked them how it happened that they were both bound to Guilford for the same purpose and each claimed [illegible]

Frederick Levestus of Boston, Mrs. Percy Palmer and infant son, of Noank, Miss Elizabeth Robinson of Stonington, Miss [illegible] Avenue, Allen Jones of Huntington, Irving Champlin of Westerly, Miss Mabel Lovett of Hamilton [illegible] and Miss Margaret Brown of [illegible], patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today. Miss Cathert Sullivan, of Walnut street, is visiting her brother, John Sullivan of Newark, N. J.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of James Kuvalanka, [illegible] Bank street, to be returned to the owner. The license was recently suspended Kuvalanka being arrested in the police court of the [illegible] or reckless driving. Kuvalanka's car was in collision with another machine at the corner of State and Main street.

Patrolman Henry Hick in making his rounds on Division street late last night discovered a wooden brow in damaged condition and creating a condition of danger. The matter was brought to the attention of the street department.

Mrs. Susan M. Dunbar, 81, died on Saturday night at Lawrence hospital, which institution she had been under treatment many months. She was the widow of Lemuel D. Dunbar and so far as is known her only surviving near relative, is William A. Ames [illegible] Summit avenue. Mrs. Dunbar was [illegible] of Waterford, but resided on [illegible]bridge street for many years.

Jacob Henry, 65, of 64 Benham road [illegible] at his home Sunday night. Mr. Henry, who was a gardener by occupation, had been in ill health [illegible] time and is survived by four [illegible]

Henry's death was the result of suicide for his body was found hanging from a rafter of a shed in the rear of his home by one of his sons, who went to the shed to feed chickens. The man was dead but a few hours when the body was found. Henry's act is believed to be the result of mental depression for his acquaintances declared that he had appeared to be despondent of late.

Clifford W. Thurber, 39 Thames street, this city, was in the Groton town court this morning, charged with manslaughter, in causing the death of Samuel Whipple, formerly of 38 Thames street, Groton, on the night of April 30. There was no evidence introduced to incriminate Thurber and Judge Cornelius C. Costello discharged the accused.

Mrs. Mary A. Young, 67, wife of Allen J. Young, died at her home in Waterford, death ending an illness of about a year. Mrs. Young was born in Waterford and had always resided there.

Mrs. William Nott and infant son of 25 Steward street; Colucci Arsetto of Westerly and Miss Antoinette Burgardyn, 28 Center street, were patients discharged at Home Memorial hospital today.

Reuben Lubchansky and Mrs. Lottie Usher Wilson Lubchansky, both of New London, were married Sunday afternoon at the synagogue, 110th street, New York, by Rabbi J. L. Kadushin. Mr. and Mrs. Lubchansky were the principals in a civil marriage April 3rd; that ceremony being performed by Justice of the Peace Clayton B. Smith. They will continue to make their home in New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Walker, until recently residing at 107 Federal street, have moved to the residence recently purchased by Mr. Walker at 296 Williams street. The residence was formerly occupied by the late Dr. Frank S. Norkett and Mrs. Norkett, the latter a native of Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtland R. Palmer, recently married, have returned from their wedding trip and are visiting Mrs. Palmer's mother, Mrs. Carlos C. Peck, Post Hill place. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will take up their residence next month at 83 Federal street.

William H. Jordan and Miss Olive M. Brown of Groton, were married Saturday by Rev. Sinclair Grimstead, pastor of Shiloh Baptist church, at the residence of the clergyman, 18 Shapley street. Robert Jordan of Groton, was best man and Miss Ethel Brown of New London, attended the bride.

Joseph Farina was arrested late this afternoon by State Policeman Caron and Finegan, of the Groton barracks, charged with violation of the liquor law and later was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in Waterford where he pleaded guilty to keeping with intent to sell. A fine of $200 and costs and a sentence of 30 days in jail was imposed, but the execution of the jail sentence was suspended. Farina has before been arrested for the same offense, having been taken into custody at the Ninigret house, Crescent Beach, where he was in business with his brother. At that time he received a fine of $150 and was sentenced to 30 days in jail and served the jail sentence.

Early Sunday morning Sergeant Clifford Gorgas and five officers from the state police barracks at Groton, armed with a search warrant issued by Justice Morton, swooped down upon the Farina establishment at Ridgewood Park, Waterford, a small colony adjacent to Ocean Beach and just outside the city limits. The approach of the officers was observed by some of the occupants of the building, the Kidder cottage, and it is claimed that the destruction of evidence was started and almost successfully accomplished. When the officers entered the place they claim to have found a quantity of broken bottles alleged to have contained whiskey and a quart of wine, the wine having been found in an ice box.

The Kidder cottage was acquired last week by Farina and, according to the authorities, was opened for business Thursday. It is also claimed that Farina was associated in the establishment with Edward Finn, who was with Farina at the time of the raid, but who was not arrested. The search warrant was issued in the name of Farina and he was charged solely with the violation of the prohibition law. When presented before Justice Morton Farina intended to plead not guilty and to take an appeal from any judgment meted out by the court, but finally changed his mind and accepted the penalty imposed. In the imposition of the fine and jail sentence Justice Morton warned Farina against continuing in business, reminding him [illegible] tion would result in [illegible] much more severe [illegible] than that imposed today.

Lawrence W. Easton, formerly of New London, at which time he was employed by the Structure Oil company, who was arrested by the New York police on a warrant issued by the New London authorities a fortnight ago, charging Easton with forgery, was brought back to New London late this afternoon by Sergeant Frank Howard. Easton is now at the police station awaiting trial in the police court tomorrow morning.

Easton declares that he is not wanted [illegible] and has openly stated that "someone else is doing the worrying and not me." He also stated that he was told to get out of town and did so and that things became to calm.

An automobile, bearing New York registration, 920-580 became afire while parked on the south side of State street, between Main and Bank streets, late this afternoon. Patrolman Carles Selesnitsky, who came along saw that the fire was being caused by a short circuit and had the wire disconnected from the battery and causing the extinguishing of the fire. The car was not damaged muc[illegible]

It is understood that the F. W. Woolworth company, who purchased the Garfield block on State street from Frank A. Munsey about a year ago, will shortly award the contract for the erection on the site of a two-story wooden brick structure, which, when completed, will be the location of the New London store of the company.

The household of Dr. Harold H. Heyer at 70 Colt street, was startled this evening when a crash of falling glass was heard in one of the sleeping rooms in the second story and investigation revealed that a bullet had shattered the window anw fallen upon the bed. The police were notified and Patrolman Edward Daniels was assigned to the case.

The crash was heard about 6.45 o'clock when all the members of the family were on the lower floor. Dr. Heyer went upstairs and entering the sleeping room found the window broken. The physician investigated and found a piece of a shattered bullet on the bed coverings.

Patrolman Daniels instituted a rigid investigation. The bullet was badly battered, indicating that it had struck an object in its flight, which undoubtedly changed the course of the shot. As none of the residents of that section of the city had heard a pistol shot, the officer did not obtain any tangible clues. It is believed that the bullet was fired from a revolver by a careless handler of firearms but not with intent to do bodily injury.

NORWICH TOWN

At the Sunday morning services at the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey thanked his parishioners for the birthday remembrances with which he was surprised May 4th.

At a recent meeting of the Home Missionary society connected with the church, it was suggested that some recognition be made of the pastor's birthday, which would occur on the first Sunday in May. From this suggestion there came in due time to the pastor's study, cards of remembrance, beautifully decorated boxes of chocolates, basket of flowers, generous birthday cake; and when the family sat down to their Sunday dinner, there was at the head of the table, a package containing $77 in gold and silver, with best wishes of the parish. Last Sunday in referring to the events, Rev. Mr. Bailey closed his words of appreciation by saying, "I hope I may prove worthy of your esteem and of these expressions of kindness."

In his sermon, Rev. Mr. Bailey preached from the sixth chapter of Galations, second and fifth verses: Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ. For every man shall bear his own burden.

SAYS PILES HEAL UP AND DISAPPEAR FOREVER

Seldom Fails to Give Absolute Relief from All Pain and Suffering. Guaranteed by Lee & Osgood Co. and All Good Druggists.

Many sufferers from Piles or Hemorrhoids have become despondent because they have been led to believe that their case was hopeless and that there was nothing in the world to help them.

To these people we say, "Go to your druggist and get an original box of MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES." One of these inserted into the rectum according to directions will be found to give immediate relief. They reach the source of the trouble and by their soothing, healing, antiseptic action first allay the pain and soreness and then by direct contact with the ulcers and piles cause them to heal up and disappear forever.

It's simply wonderful how speedily they act. Blessed relief often comes in two days. Even in cases that have steadily resisted all known treatments, marvelous results have been obtained. MOAVA is one of the wonderful discoveries of recent years and any sufferer from Piles or Hemorrhoids who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded.

EXTRA QUIET HOUR FOR RADIO AMATEURS

Hartford, May 12.—The changes in radio transmitting schedules caused by the observance of daylight saving time in some sections and standard time in others have prompted the American Radio Relay league at the suggestion of the department of commerce to agree to the temporary expansion of amateur "quiet hours" from 8 to 10:30 p. m., standard time, 8 to 11:30 p. m., daylight saving time. Amateurs are being advised of the expansion by the department and are asked to attack the [illegible] station licenses.

Amateur telegraph operators have been observing the period between 8 and 10:30 p. m. standard time. The new arrangement which allows the broadcast listeners an extra hour of quiet during the evening is regarded by the department of commerce and the A. R. R. L. as an emergency measure which will be in effect until October 1, 1924 and the period that daylight saving time is in force. With the resumption of the observance of standard time in the fall, the regular "quiet hours" of 8 to 10:30 p. m. will again be recognized by the department.

MONTVILLE VOTES $100,000 TO BUILD NEW ROAD

In a special town meeting Monday afternoon, called at 1 o'clock and lasting about 15 minutes, citizens of the town of Montville voted to leave it to the state highway commissioner to select which of two routes, costing over $100,000, to build in a state aid highway from Oakdale to Salem turnpike. About 50 persons attended the meeting, at which Selectman Jerome W. House presided and Town Clerk Dan D. Home kept the records.

The meeting also voted to empower the selectmen to borrow $100,000 for the construction of the road.

The two highway lines which have been plotted and from which the state highway commissioner is to choose are the following:

A line to extend from the present state and highway in Oakdale, along the line of the present highway, passing the Oakdale store, the Oakdale postoffice, the tenements of the Massasoit company, the residence of George H. Bradford, and the residence of Paul Glashrenner, and thence along the Raymond Hill road, to the Salem turnpike, the estimated cost of which is $101,750.20.

A line to extend from the end of the present state aid highway opposite the Massasoit mill; thence by said highway passing said mill and the Montville Congregational church, and from thence along Raymond Hill road to the said Salem turnpike, the estimated cost of which is $105,091.60.

BREAK IN STOCK PRICES

New York, May 12—Stock prices reacted sharply in today's market on selling inspired by unfavorable domestic trade and political news and the defeat of the Poincare ministry in the French election. While trading was more active than in the closing days of last week, the day's sales approximately only about three quarters of a million shares.

Resumption of bear pressure was encouraged by the unusually large decrease of nearly 575,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, which was about 175,000 tons more than market observers predicted; the adoption of the democratic-republican insurgent tax bill by the senate; cuts of 5 to 25 cents a barrel in crude oil prices and reports of a further curtailment of operations in some of the important industries.

Nearly two score stocks established new low prices for the year, including such popular issues as U. S. Steel common, Baldwin, Studebaker (new stock), Bethlehem, Republic and Gulf States Steels, Marland, Cosden and Stewart-Warner, the extreme losses [illegible] to nearly 7 points, however, [illegible] of the list.

Independent strength was shown by a number of the railroad shares, particularly of the investment grade. Atchison and Atlantic coast line established new high prices for the year at 103 and 125 1-4, respectively, the [illegible] of both being influenced by [illegible] of special dividend developments in the near future. Each [illegible] reacted about 1 1-2 points from [illegible] high price in the later trading.

The first sale of U. S. Steel common was in block of 5,000 shares at the "special-opening" price of 95 1-2-7-8 compared with the closing price of 96 3-4 on Saturday; the stock rallied later to 98 and then dropped to [illegible] minimum at 95 1-4, closing at [illegible]. Bethlehem sold as low as 46 3-8 and Republican at 43 1-2. Crucible closed 2 1-4 lower at 49 1-4.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 12—Reflecting the weakness caused by the defeat of Premier Poincare in the French elections, foreign bonds moved lower today in company with the currencies of the allied nations. Selling pressure was directed chiefly against French obligations, but was not heavy enough to cause serious recessions.

General weakness of the foreign list, however, tended to restrict buying of domestic issues and prices were shaded fractionally in various groups. Convertible descriptions yielded readily with the decrease in stock prices.

Unfavorable trade reports contributed to the heaviness of several industrial liens. Donner Steel 7s broke 4 points to a new low price for the year at 77, and Virginia-Carolina 7s, together with the certificates, dropped to a new minimum figure. Losses of a point or more were registered by the Wilson convertible issues, Ajax Rubber 8s and Brooklyn Union Gas 7s.

Reports that the Mexican government might find it necessary to suspend interest payments temporarily on the bonds involved in the debt agreement unless granted a new loan, elicited no comment from the international committee of bankers on Mexico. Mexican government 5s were lower, presumably in reflection of the reports.

Arrangements recently concluded for a short term credit of $5,000,000 for the Swedish government, it was indicated, might be followed by an offering of long term bonds, exceeding the amount of the temporary loan. Strength of Swedish exchange supported the view that the government might enter the market at an early date. An issue of $5,000,000 Northern States Power 5 1-2 per cent bonds, without warranted is expected tomorrow.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 12—Corn suffered a material break in price today, and unsettled other grain. Ideal weather for corn planting had a bearish effect, and so too did weakness in the New York stock market. Corn closed heavy, 7-8c to 1 1-4c net lower, July 75 1-2 a 5-8 to 75 5-8 and September 74 3-4 to 74 5-8. The finish in wheat was irregular at 3-8c off to 1-4c gain. May $1.04 and July 1.05 1-8, with oats 1-8 a 1-4 to 3-8c down and provisions at 2c to 7c decline.

General selling developed in the corn market almost as soon as trading began, and although rallies took place at times no reaction proved lasting. The fact that the visible supply showed more than 3,000,000 bushels excess over the total a year ago had a good deal to do with keeping the market depressed in the late dealings, much of the selling was due to standing orders to stop losses on declines beyond certain fixed limits. Besides there was selling of corn into store here, and shipping demand from the east continued slow.

With uncertainty acute as to farm legislation at Washington, wheat trading narrowed down to an unusually small volume. In particular during the first half of the day, business was so light that the wheat pit seemed dependent almost together on the action of corn and of the New York stock market. Later, however, some disposition was shown to regard the defeat of the Poincare ministry in France as a bullish factor, the assumption being that a reparations settlement would be hastened. In addition, the domestic visible supply decrease was larger than had been looked for and reports current appeared to indicate that this year's exports from surplus-producing countries might set a record.

Lower quotations on hogs tended to pull down provisions.

CURB MARKET

New York, May 12—Stock prices displayed a reactionary trend in today's curb market although a few strong spots developed in each group. Heavy liquidation of the oils was based on a series of crude price cuts, net lossess of 1 to 3 points being registered by cities service. Northern Ripe, Prairie Oil and Gas, Standard of Kentucky and several of the inactive shares while Standard of Ohio broke 8 points on a few odd lot sales. Magnolia Petroleum recovered its six point loss of Saturday and then forfeited all but one point of it. Gulf of Pennsylvania and South Pennsylvania Oil closed 1 and 1 1-2 points higher, respectively. Standard of Indiana and most of the other popular shares closed fractionally lower.

Glen Alden Coal, which touched 100 last week, dropped back to 95 1-4 today and then rallied a point, activity of the stock being in anticipation of the dividend meeting tomorrow. Grand stores advanced nearly two points while Kresge lost 1. Cuba Company broke nearly 2 1-2 points. Radio shares showed little change.

Swiss government 5 sto 1926 and Northern States Power 6 1-2s of 1923 were the active features of the bond list, both ruling fractionally higher.

Changes in the mining group were small and unimportant.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The spell of rainy weather during the past week has retarded building operations to some extent in Norwich and vicinity. However, in spite of the weather, a large amount of work has been done on projects where the work has reached a stage nearing completion. There is an unusual amount of building being done on new buildings outside the city. There is considerable work being done in the Norwich Town section of the town, several new houses being erected and alterations being made to other houses.

This is true in the East Great Plain section of the town where a number of new dwelling houses and garages are in the process of erection. There is just at present a large amount of new building going on in Norwich, although national building authorities predict that there will be a noticeable slump or falling off in building before the end of the year.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week there were seven building permits issued. The total valuation as placed by the owners of the new buildings is about $7,500. Among the permits is one for a bungalow in the Fox Hill section of the city and one for a large brick garage on North Main street. The remaining permits are for garages and additions to present buildings. The permits issued during the past week are as follows:

To S. S. Percy to erect a garage at 28 McKinley avenue. The garage will be 18x20 feet of frame construction with cement foundation and floor.

To Frank Lewon to build a frame garage at 48 Convent avenue. The garage will be 20x20 feet and one story high.

To Jeremiah J. Bordeau to erect a bungalow at Fox Hill. The bungalow will be of frame construction, 26x30 feet. The foundation will be of stone with brick underpinning. The side walls will be shingled and the roof will be covered in composition shingles. The interior will be finished in cypress and hardwood floors. There will be four rooms and bath.

To W. S. Spencer to build for Charles A. Hagberg a frame garage on Oak street. The work on the garage has already been started.

To W. S. Spencer to erect a brick garage on 471 No. Main street for Frank Obuchoski. The garage will be 28x46 feet. The walls will be 8 inches thick, with trussed roof. The floor will be planked. The foundation is already in and ready for the superstructure.

To George N. Zurcher to build a piazza on the present house owned by Otto Hoelck. The piazza will have a cement foundation and will be 22x6 feet of frame construction.

To William C. Young to erect a frame piazza to the present house at 109 Central avenue for Ida J. Murphy. The veranda will be placed on the rear of the house and will be 8x13 feet.

NEW LONDON.

The plans have been completed and are now being figured for a brick and steel garage for Louis Lubchansky on Howard street. The structure will be 85x150 feet, one story and basement, with tar and gravel roof. When completed the garage will have a capacity of 120 cars.

Joseph G. Mondelci has started work on a dwelling at 112 Ashcraft road. From private plans, the house will be 24x28 feet, two stories high, of frame construction. The estimated cost is $4,000.

The cellars are in for the three dwellings to be built by H. R. Griswold on Ledyard street. There will be a six-room bungalow, 24x30 feet; an eight-room cottage, 26-30 feet, and a two-family house, 26x30 feet. The latter house will be arranged for five-room flats. The contract for the plumbing for the three houses has been awarded.

Eighteen new pews are to be furnished for the Synagogue Anavedchesed of this city, and plans are being received for the required furnishings. Plans for the seating arrangement have been prepared.

The permit has been issued to the Gulf Refining Co. for the erection of a gasoline station at the corner of Bank and Truman streets. The building will be 14x14 feet, of brick and stone construction with Spanish tile roof, copper cornices and stone coping. The cost will be about $15,000.

The contract has been awarded to Edwin Cruise, 394 Vauxhall street for the bungalow and garage at 22 Fairo Harbor place, for Mansour Sabagh. The house will be 26x42 feet, and will cost about $6,000. It will be of frame construction.

Applications For Building Permits.

H. R. Griswold, three dwellings, Ledyard street, $15,000.

Jos. G. Mondelci, dwelling, 112 Ashcraft street ext. $4,000.

A. D. Forbes, garage, 9 Gorton street, $500.

Mansour Sabagh, dwelling and garage, 22 Fairo Harbour place, ..$6,000.

QUAKER HILL.

Plans are being completed by Architect L. H. Goddard for a residence to be erected for A. J. Huggard, Montville, at Quaker Hill, Waterford. The owner will receive bids for the erection of the house which will be 26x36 feet, of frame construction, arranged for seven rooms. It will be of colonial type and will have steam heat, whitewood trim, oak floors and tile baths.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 19 sales of real estate as compared to 28 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $53,050 and $70,450.

There were 12 sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 8 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $57,950 and $83,225.

BUILDING SLOWING UP.

A slowing up of building activities throughout the nation in the near future is not unlikely, according to investigations now being made by S. W. Straus, president of S. W. Straus & Co. Even such a slowing up in construction operations however, would not cheapen rents, the financier declared.

"The shortage which has existed in housing conditions for the last five years is being made up in many towns and cities," Mr. Straus declared. "In these places it is to be expected that from now on building operations will continue along normal lines. In some cities the shortage in certain types of construction has been overcome, and building activities thus will be now diverted from these types to the ones in which deficits still remain."

HOPKINTON

The town council and probate court held its monthly session at the town hall Monday afternoon, May 5th. Two hundred dollars of the annual appropriation for care of highways and bridges was allotted to each highway district in town.

Supervisors to serve at the annual election June 3d were appointed: Voting district No. 1, republican, Eldred F. Collings, Henry J. Wheeler, Leverett A. Briggs, Jr.; democrats, Homer H. Clark, Edward Murray, Martin J. Coats; voting district No. 2, republican, Clarence D. Wood, George K. Crandall, Frederick A. Bailey; democrats, Mallory C. Main, Peter P. Palmer, Arthur J. Wilcox. Bills to the amount of $2483.05 were ordered paid.

In the probate court, Emogene Woodmansee was appointed administratrix of the estate of Orrin G. Woodmansee with Henry H. Crandall, appraiser.

Three or four cases of scarlet fever have been reported in Ashaway.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Seventh Day Baptist church of Hopkinton served a fine cafeteria supper in the parish house, Ashaway, last Tuesday evening. This is the last supper of the season.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Hopkinton Baptist church served an excellent chicken pie supper in the upper story of the Lewis wagon shop in Hopkinton City, last Wednesday evening.

HEARINGS ON WHEELER INVESTIGATION CONCLUDED

Washington, May 12—Hearings by a special senate committee into the indictment returned at Great Falls, Montana, against Senator Wheeler, democrat, of that state, charging him with accepting money for appearing in cases before the interior department, were regarded as virtually concluded today, although some committee members indicated a difference of opinion on the question.

At today's hearing Senator Wheeler was the only witness and concluded a flat denial of every detail and implication of wrong doing that might lay in the government's case against him.

Senator Wheeler, reviewing his relations with Gordon Campbell, Montana oil promoter, agreed that his law firm had received $4,000 for representing his client in Montana state litigation, but declared that no part of the money was ever intended for Laredo Bru, reputed leader of the chief representing Campbell before government bureaus in leasing oil lands. He denied that letters and telegrams from Campbell's files could be construed to show that he had appeared to ask for oil permits, and declared the $4,000 paid by Campbell to be insufficient to cover fees in the court trial work in which his firm did engage for the oil man.

FRANKLYN FARMER IS INSTANTLY KILLED BY DYNAMITE BLAST

George A. Kahn, 52, of Franklin, a prosperous and well known farmer, ir. Farm Bureau activitis and a director of the New London County Agricultural society, was blown to pieces by a dynamite blast at Camp Mowgen, Red Cedar Lake, Lebanon, about 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mr. Kahn had taken a contract to clear up a section of land at the camp and the work was about completed. Monday noon with William Clark and Fred Loue of Franklin he went to the camp to blast out a flat rock.

The men laid a heavy charge of dynamite intending to use what is known as a mud blast. About a score of sticks of dynamite were laid for the blast and when it was ready to be set off Mr. Clark and Mr. Boue wnt to a spot about 200 feet away under a pine tree for safety.

Mr. Kahn, using a blow torch, was attempting to light the fuse and it is thought that the heat from the torch set off the cap. There was a deafening explosion and Mr. Kahn was buried up into the air for a distance estimated at 125 feet. Death was in[illegible] C. C. Gildersleeve of [illegible] medical examiner, was notified and after an investigation gave Undertaker C. A. Gager prmission to remove the remains to his undertaking rooms on Franklin street.

Mr. Kahn was born in Franklin 52 yars ago last JJanuary and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. August H. Kahn. His father died when he was 15 years of age. Mr. Kahn had passed all of his life in the town of his birth and was engaged in farming. He had served his town as first selectman being a Republican in his politiacl views and took a deep interest in public affairs. He was a member of the Fitchville Baptist church and superintendent of the Sunday school.

Mr. Kahn was a member of the New London County Farm Bureau and buyer for the Farmer's Exchange in Franklin. He was a member and director of the New London County Agricultural society and an annual exhibitor of cattle and swine at the county fair.

Besides his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Maude Sherman, he leaves two sons, John and Frank Kahn, and a daughter, Miss Helen Kahn, a school teacher. There are also two sisters, Mrs. George Moeller of Jewett City and Mrs. Mary Hamilton of Springfield, Mass.

SANATORIUM SUPERINTENDENTS DISAGREE WITH PROF. DREYER

At a meeting of the medical officers of the state tuberculosis sanatorium held Monday at the Norwich sanatorium there was a discussion of the so-called Dreyer treatment of consumption.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, the superintendent of the Norwich institution, reported in detail the efforts of himself and his staff to divest tubercle bacilli of their hard waxy shells in order to make them available as a vaccine according to the published formulae of Professor Dreyer of Oxford University. It was the opinion of Dr. Campbell and of most of the doctors present at the meeting that Professor Dreyer had made serious mistakes both in his technique and in his conclusions.

A number of unusual cases of cure and improvement of patients under the treatment of the institution were reported and discussed.

SEIZED STILL IN FOREST STREET RAID

A copper still, a coil and a glass jar were found by the local police Monday afternoon in a raid in the basment tenement at 9 Forest street occupied by Alex Gere. He was arrested on a charge of violation of the liquor law and locked up in default of bail. The arrest was made by Officers Smith, Keenan and Michael Carroll.

Gere was in the place when the police arrived He succeeded in smashing a jar before they could get hold of it.

MOTHER'S DAY ADDRESS GIVEN AT SHOP MEETING

Obligation to Our Mothers was the topic which Rev. Charles H. Ricketts presented to the men of the Richmond Radiator company, Monday, at the noon hour, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Rev. Mr. Ricketts spoke in part as follows:

[illegible] which [illegible] the exception. As human society becomes more complex, it also becomes more specialized. Every great idea is demanding its separate organization. This [illegible] Every idea, religious, scientific, social, fraternal, and athletic gathers around itself its [illegible] men and women. [illegible] was [illegible] Mother's [illegible] Nebr., first [illegible] He fixed upon the [illegible] May as the appropriate season for the celebration. On that day he would have every man wear a flower in memory of his mother if she were living call upon her or send flowers or send them in her name to the sick; and for her sake attend church and there thank God for her love and care.

The idea spread like wildfire. The mayor of Lincoln indorsed the idea through a fervid proclamation, and Mr. Bryan in his Commoner wrote a brilliant editorial in its behalf. A circular letter sent to the presiding [illegible] of the Methodist General Conference then sitting in Baltimore was most enthusiastically received and its recommendations adopted. This was in 1908, and with each succeeding year the anniversary has become more and more widespread.

The speaker then referred to the [illegible] which most men [illegible] mothers and the old [illegible] whose memories take the form [illegible] round gratitude for what [illegible] was and did in the period of [illegible] It was she, more than [illegible] one else, who gave in the upward [illegible] in life. 2: a feeling of intense admiration for the manner in which [illegible] managed the domestic economy. BROTHERHOOD ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

There was an attendance of 104 at the annual meeting of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church, held Monday evening at the Community House, delegations attending the meeting from the Rotary Club, [illegible] Masonic bodies, Hanover Congregational church, Park Congregational church, the Central Baptist church and several other local churches.

Shortly after 6 o'clock a fine clam chowder supper was served by the members of the Haviland class of the United church and this was followed by a business session in charge of President Walter F. Lester.

When election of officers for the coming year was called for all officers were reelected for another term as follows: President, Walter F. Lester; vice president, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell; treasurer, Joseph A. French, secretary, Albert F. Noren; committee on study, Herbert B. Cary; church attendance, Arthur M. Thompson; citizenship, E. A. Alter; finance, N. A. Gibbs; hospitality, C. S. Holbrook; library, Herbert M. Leroux; membership, Edwin V. Ross; publicity, Clarence A. Spear, social, Charles F. Wells; boy's work, Arthur L. Peale.

Announcement of winners of the pie eating contest held during the year was made as follows: First prize to Will L. Stearns and Jerry Angell; honorable mention, E. V. Ross and Walter F. Lester.

The speaker of the evening was Attorney Arthur M. Brown of Jewett City who selected for his subject, Law and the Gospel. Mr. Brown stated that the thousands of laws being passed every year in this country made it impossible for everyone to have knowledge of them, and therefore created a spirit of unrest. Every year in this country, he said, fully 15,000 laws are passed and these laws sent nearly 3,000 law books to the shelves of the libraries as no longer useful.

Because of this the average working man who has no time to study the laws does not know often times that he is violating a law. The only way to keep within the law is to use common sense, that sense which oftentimes tells a man whether the thing he is doing is right or wrong.

There are many in this country who object to laws being passed by farmers in the legislatures telling them how they shall set their clocks, or what time they shall arise and go to work. Others object to lawyers making laws that tell them what they shall drink, claiming that this law is no more right than one which would tell them what they shall eat and wear. Another law which comes in for much criticism is the law which says that every male over 16 years of age shall pay $1.25 to the town clerk for the privilege of fishing. Many believe this age old custom of freedom to fish should be allowed to continue. However, said Mr. Brown, there is a reason for everyone of these laws which to some people [illegible] and unfair. People have [illegible] privileges allowed them und[illegible] laws, and these new one[illegible] tect the citizens against [illegible] pie.

We have got to get [illegible] foundation, we need peopl[illegible] who settled our great [illegible] with a vision, and [illegible] ery citizen to obey [illegible] that others obey [illegible] way to get back t[illegible] method is through the combination of law and the gospel and men are getting more and more to realize this. Unselfish service such as is the aim of this brotherhood the [illegible] ons' club and man[illegible] tions is the best mean[illegible] and the solution to the [illegible] is found in a verse from [illegible] of Mathew "Therefore, w[illegible] would that [illegible] do ye also unto [illegible] law.

President Lester read [illegible] on holding the annual outing of the Brotherhood in June and the members voted to hold the outing at usual electing President Lester and [illegible] bert B. Car[illegible] baseball teams. [illegible] tee was left to [illegible] ident.

Following a [illegible] to Mr. Brown for [illegible] dress and after [illegible] invitation to attend [illegible] ing as guest of the Brotherhood, the meeting adjourned at 8 o'clock.

HOME CHAPTER DELEGATES TO K. D. COUNTY CONVENTION

Because of the rain, an unusually small company of members attended the May meeting of Home chapter of the King's Daughters, Monday afternoon at the Johnson Home, the leader, Mrs. William E. Manning presiding. Special business brought before the meeting was the choosing of delegates to the King's Daughters' county conference, which is to be held Wednesday, May 21st, in [illegible], when several counties will be represented.

The following are the delegates from Home Chapter: First delegate, Mrs. Andrew Prentice; second delegate, Mrs. Earle Christman; and Mrs. William Whiteman, Mrs. William Balcom, Mrs. Laura Hutchins, Mrs. Neville Blicq, Mrs. Edward Briggs, Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche, Mrs. Alfred Davis, Mrs. Edwin Hutchinson and Miss Maria Briggs. The Norwich party is to leave by Colchester bus, that morning at 10 o'clock, daylight time.

The usual refreshments were omitted Monday, owing to the fact that the dining room at the Johnson Home is being redecorated, and men were at work. Home Chapter is planning to hold a rummage sale.

POETRY

Ode to May

Bring out my [illegible] and [illegible] rubbers [illegible] dear
For this will be the [illegible] day of all the glad new year.
Of all the glad new year, Granny, the bleakest, coldest day
That ever you have seen, Granny, "I'm going to be Queen of the May."

With a wreath of paper roses upon my sneezing head,
O'er damp and boggy meadows my [illegible] steps will be led,
Where the cowslips in the pasture, boggy is the ground,
With the misery-be-anthus and the snowdrops all are found.

BISHOP MANNING EMPHASIZES TRUTH OF GOSPEL OF NATIVITY

New York, May 13.—The super-natural birth of Jesus Christ, His bodily resurrection, and His ascension to heaven are facts upon which Christianity stands or falls," Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal church insisted today in his address to the 141st annual convention of the diocese of New York.

Spurred on by two resolutions by which fundamentalists hoped to carry the fight against modernists in the church to the floor of the convention before the closing session tomorrow, Bishop Manning vigorously affirmed that any rejection of the supernatural from the gospel meant the rejection of the gospel itself.

Assuming the impression given the "truth-seeking" young men and women of today that the great facts and truths of the creed are unimportant or unworthy of belief, Bishop Manning said the clergy must teach the supreme truth in Jesus Christ.

"If some of the young people have doubts," he declared, "we shall help them by showing the full truth of the gospel not by offering them this truth in reduced or weakened form, the work of the church is to lift the thought of the time up to the level of her divine message, not down to the level of the thought of time."

The first of two resolutions, both of which were referred to a committee, was introduced by Rev. Philip Elsenteiroy of Lake Mahopac, N. Y. The resolution demanded that "those in authority in the church so exercise the discipline of the church as to purge therefrom all false doctrine and erroneous teaching wherever and in whosoever quarters, high or low, those teachings may appear."

Reading of the resolution "brought several clergymen to their feet in protest, but Bishop Manning as presiding officer, referred the question to a committee.

Rev. L. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace church, New York, in another resolution demanded that the diocesan convention adopt as its own the words of the recent pastoral of the house of bishops that "it is the deliberate and determined purpose of the church not to explain but to proclaim a fact that the Jesus of history is none other than God and Saviour on Whom and on faith in Whom depends the whole world's hope of salvation and redemption.'"

Bishop Manning in outlining plans for the completion of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine at a cost of $15,000,000 revealed that $2,581,000 already had been subscribed or pledged.

A. Van Horne Stuyvesant, Jr., Miss Catherine E. Stuyvesant and Miss Anne W. Stuyvesant, he said, contributed $3,000 for the construction of the Baptistry of the cathedral as a memorial to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Van Horne Stuyvesant.

The following contributors of $100,000 or more were announced:

Edward F. Albee, J. P. Morgan, Frank A. Munsey, Vincent Astor, Arthur C. James, F. A. Juilliard, and Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton Rice.

The convention voted to make provision in the diocese's budget for a minimum salary of $1,800 a year for clergymen.

STILL AND MOONSHINE FOUND IN BLOOMFIELD

Hartford, May 13.—State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn tonight was undecided about asking for a search warrant for Emil Smith, of Bloomfield near here, who was before a justice of the peace there today, charged with his fourth offense against the prohibition laws. He is now being held for the superior court in $5,000 bonds. When state police led a raiding party at his place in Bloomfield today they found 25 gallons of alleged moonshine, a fifty gallon still, 30 gallons of mash, 30 pound boxes of raisins and several boxes of prunes.

BOSTON BANK MESSENGER IS REPORTED MISSING

Boston, May 13.—The police were asked today to search for William D. Marden, a 19 year old messenger employed by the Old Colony Trust company. Bank officials said that he left the bank yesterday afternoon with checks to the amount of $10,000 which he was to take to other banks and had not been seen since.

His mother told the police that the boy had suffered at times from loss of memory.

DAVIS PRAISES LABOR RECORD OF COOLIDGE

Allentown, Pa., May 13. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis today defended the labor record of President Coolidge at the state convention of the American Federation of Labor.

"I will place the record of Calvin Coolidge against the record of any many who has ever held the presidency of the United States," Secretary Davis said, "or the the governorship of any state, in debate with any one, anywhere and any time."

The incident developed after the secretary had spoken on immigration problems as affecting labor, pointing out that aliens are being "hootlegged," into this country by the tens of thousands.

When a resolution expressing a vote of thanks was proposed by Thomas O. Sexton, of Philadelphia, shouts came from several delegates: "Who invited ... representative of the Coolidge administration here?"

President James H. Maurer replied that he had invited Mr. Davis together with other seven prominent in official positions affecting the interest of labor.

The objection to the resolution was small but contrary.

Secretary Davis, however, did not permit it to pass unchallenged. "I suppose," he said, "the objector has reference ... resolution of Calvin Coolidge ... WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic Rotarians and three guests from the Putnam club, "Jake" Albert, Fred Prince and Ray Bosworth, heard all about Texas and its peculiarities at the weekly session of the local organization, Tuesday noon. While the members made a delicious dinner disappear, they listened in on a vocal solo, My Wild Irish Rose, by Dr. R. Bullard Jones, an infant Rotarian. The song created such a sensation that a crew of "Wild Irishmen" was mustered and they gave a soft pedal interpretation of the piece. The honorary sergeants were J. P. Bingham, G. W. Hewes, V. L. Murphy, A. E. Green, J. F. Ahearn, assisted by A. J. Martineau and H. A. Blanchette. President Harry W. Standish presided at a short business meeting. Secretary Hill read several communications. An acknowledgment was read from the Putnam club, thanking the local Rotarians for their attendance at the first anniversary celebration of that club. Another letter of acknowledgment was read from the Dion family in appreciation of the sympathy expressed by the club at the time of the death of Mayor Dion.

The presidents' quartet made a big hit in a low and high song. The quartet consisted of President Standish and Past Presidents Mustard, Foss and Murphy.

The winning team in a recent attendance contest captained by Jim Mustard, left the room in rather high spirits Tuesday, as their captain inquired about a forthcoming dinner due the victors and received a promising reply from Val Murphy, leader of the losing outfit.

Lawyer P. Bath was then placed in charge of the meeting. At his call for [illegible] the following were summoned: [illegible] Mustard, Hickey, Parker, Ellsworth Smith, President Standish, C. [illegible] Marsh, Dr. Jones and Charlie [illegible].

[illegible] Lou Kingsbury will be in charge of the next meeting when a [illegible] program will be carried out. Judge Foss then told [illegible] some of the interesting sights he saw on his recent visit in the Lone Star State. He was roundly applauded at the conclusion of his talk. Adjournment was taken at 1.25 o'clock.

William O. Brooks, vice principal of [illegible] High school here for [illegible] years, has tendered his resignation to take effect at the close of the present school year, Mr. Brooks to be instructor in shop theory at the School of Commerce in Springfield Mass. He resigns solely because the Springfield school offer better opportunities as his stay here was a very pleasant one. He has made a host of friends both in the school and outside. As athletic director at the school, he was a strong favorite with the student body. Mr. Brooks was born and received his intermediate education in Somerville, Mass. He was graduated from Harvard in 1917 and obtained his A. B. degree there. Before the completion of his course he was engaged in graduate work at the school of education. Mr. Brooks has held instructorships in Exeter Academy, Colchester, and at Jos Rockville High school. At the latter institution he turned out what was believed to be the best all-round basketball teams in the history of the Loom City school.

Stiff fines were imposed on the two Springfield young men who were taken into custody here Monday by [illegible] the latter had been [illegible] operating [illegible] the direction of Wing [illegible] of $4 Wing [illegible] street speeding passed [illegible] the local police court to carrying a concealed weapon and was fined $50 and costs amounting to $58.62 by Judge Foss. Barnos denied that he was the man who had been arrested five times [illegible] town during 1921. He admitted however that he had [illegible] a cafeteria on Columbus avenue [illegible] Water street, but said [illegible] business [illegible] months ago.

The men were taken before Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews [illegible] Armand Polisi, also of Springfield, [illegible] of the latter was charged [illegible] reckless driving. Officers Ingram and Hardisty of the Stafford Springs barracks testified that Polisi was traveling about fifty miles an hour. They passed the car in their Ford through Eagleville and Willington, but were soon outdistanced and they then called the Willimantic police. Judge Andrews found the man guilty and imposed a fine of $75 and costs amounting to $96.35, which was paid, although Polisi insisted that he did not violate the law.

Talking with a reporter at the police station, Polisi admitted that he was the man who was overtaken and arrested on Hartford last June by Officers Smith and Hardisty. Polisi had and still owns a Bay State machine which was searched at the time and some 60 gallons of pure grain alcohol was found. Polisi was fined $500 and costs in Hartford. The chase in question led from Wethersfield to Hartford. Barnos told the court that he had the $5,500 in cash in his pocket he says he intended to purchase a farm in Providence, R. I. He said that he carried the gun to protect himself from burglary. Referring to the present liquor situation, Polisi said that good whiskey was hard to get and that much cheap liquor was being peddled around.

Thirty-four new citizens were created at the session of Windham county superior court held in this city Tuesday, Judge Frank D. Hines presiding. The session lasted two hours and was given over entirely to naturalization cases. Allan F. Church of Boston, United States citizenship examiner, was in charge. Fifty-seven names appeared on the list, eighteen being continued cases, thirty-four new cases and five soldiers' petitions for citizenship. Twelve of the number were absent, but three of these names were taken up and acted upon.

Napoleon Perreault and Eustache Joseph Beauregard, subjects of Great Britain were denied citizenship and the case of George Broderu was dismissed. The three cases were old ones, having come up several times previously. Jamie Melhan Telage, alias Namie Williams, Herman Carlson and Saverio Prezioso were denied the rights of citizenship for the reason that they filled out their questionnaires during the draft period of the World war by stating that they would no tenlist in the United States army because they were not citizens of the country.

The cases of Guiseppe Pescitello and Thomas Supina were continued, for further study had the cases of Andrew Nascin, John Haveles, John Ferdinand Gustav Reinhold, Bokiunz and Charles Jurkovics were continued to the next term. The case of Joseph Gisen was continued until 1926.

The following were admitted to citizenship: Morris Gordon, Anthony Turansky, Joseph Makard, Victor Redding and Peter Witkowsk, subjects of Poland; Mary King, Clara Minnie Cartwright, Mary Day, Ellen Day, John William Ramford, Ovila Alexandre Bessette, Florence England Noseworthy, Herbert McConnell Marriott George Bunning, Georges Henri Gregoire, Rosario Pierre Duval, Odilion Aubin, Joseph Albert Wilcott and Joseph LaBreeque, subjects of Great Britain; Gustave Nagy, Michael Peter Bujak and Gabrille Rosce Bujak, subjects of Czecho-Slovakia; Henry Travenick, subject of Austria; Ernest Duval, subject of France; Carola Rechnitzer, subject of Hungary; Edward Eastlund, Erik Axel Erickson, and Lydia Erickson, subjects of Finland; Frank Leon Leo, Louis Peters and Fred Domino, subjects of Italy and August Frey, subject of Germany.

The Windham High school nine, under Coach T. A. Eighteen members of Willimantic Ministers' union attended the May meeting held at Mansfield Center [illegible] at the parsonage Monday. Rev. [illegible] of Windham presided over the business session. A dinner was served at noon by the Ladies' Aid society of the church. The clergymen were then the guests of Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones and Rev. M. [illegible] Lawrence C. Jones at the parsonage. Mrs. Clifford resigned as president of the union as she is to leave shortly for North Weymouth, Mass. Mrs. Thomas Jones was elected to fill the unexpired term. The June meeting will be held at Hampton, with Rev. Avery Gates as host.

M. E. Lincoln presided at the May meeting of Willimantic Welfare bureau [illegible] chambers on Meadow [illegible] The report of Miss Elizabeth Anderson [illegible] been active [illegible] work during the [illegible] for the moral welfare of the city. Miss Anderson [illegible] having many cases of that nature coming to her attention.

Funeral services for John Leonard were held at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the J. C. Lincoln company mortuary parlors on Church street. Rev. A. W. Clifford of Windham, officiated. Burial was in Windham Center cemetery. The bearers were James Potter, George Potter, Charles Potter and George O. Potter.

Anson Hoxie, who died Sunday night in Providence, R. I., where he had resided for the past 20 years, formerly lived here, and was for a time member of the local police force. He was also engaged in a contracting business here. Besides his wife, Mrs. Hattie Hyde Hoxie, he leaves a son, Harry, and a granddaughter Beatrice, of Providence.

The funeral for Mrs. Bridget D. Danahey was held Tuesday morning from her home, 19 Valley street extension. Requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at 9.30 oclock was sung by Rev. O. S. Beaumister. There was a large attendance at the services. The organ music was by Mrs. E. J. Portelance. Burial was in St. Josephs cemetery, where Rev. J. E. Clark conducted the committal service. The bearers were, James Grady, James Sheehan, Maurice Carey, Patrick Danahey, James Curran and John Sullivan. Killourey Brothers had charge of the arrangements.

At the family home in South Windham, Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, funeral services for Walter Abbe, were conducted by Rev. Arthur W. Clifford. The body will be forwarded to New York city today (Wednesday) for burial in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn. The Temple Male quartet of this city sang Lead Kindly Light, Abide With Me and Savior Comfort Me. The service was largely attended. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

All members of the Grand Army of the Republic in Windham have been invited to attend a reunion of the 21st Connecticut Volunteers and the dinner that is to follow the morning session, at the town hall Friday. The campfire session in the post rooms during the afternoon is open to all military organizations.

Mary Todd Lincoln Tent, No. 15, Daughters of Veterans, had a whist party at G. A. R. hall Monday, with 22 tables in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. Harry Millburn and J. P. Bocash. Consolation awards went to Miss Evelyn McFarlane and Andrew Carey.

Adrien Lambert and Miss Clara Phaneuf were united in marriage Monday morning at St. Mary's church by Rev. J. J. Papillon, the pastor, who also celebrated the nuptial mass. Mr and Mrs. Lambert are on a short honeymoon journey.

This (Tuesday) afternoon the Eastern Connecticut Kindergarten Primary Teachers' association is to hold a meeting at the state normal school here. An illustrated lecture on bird life will be given by Wilbur Smith, of the state board of fisheries and game. The meeting is public.

BOY PUT PARIS GREEN IN MILK—COULDN'T TELL WHY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 13.—Leon Brown, the 10 year old son of Joseph Brown of Mansfield, was taken before Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews of the Mansfield town court Tuesday forenoon, charged with putting Paris green into a can of milk belonging to Edward M. Ellison, also of Mansfield, Monday, May 5. The boy admitted through his father who acted as guardian ad litem that he had committed the act. He said that he could not explain why he did it. He had found the Paris green in a shed at his home. Due to the age of the accused, Justice of the Peace Andrews sentenced him to the state reform school for boys at Meriden and then suspended execution of the sentence for one year. The boy was placed in the custody of his father through whom reports will be made of his actions to the authorities during the year. The father paid the costs of the court amounting to $12.

JEWETT CITY

In view of the fact of the increasing confusion existing in the borough because of the promiscuous parking of vehicles about the streets, the following rules concerning traffic was enacted at the meeting of the warden and burgesses, Monday evening:

No vehicle, except while the same is being loaded or unloaded, shall be allowed to remain standing or parked for more than thirty minutes on the southerly side of Soule street, between Main street and Railroad avenue within the borough.

No vehicle shall stop or stand or be parked within the intersection of any street or streets or driveways nor within twenty feet of a street corner within the borough.

No vehicle, except while being loaded or unloaded, shall be allowed to stand of park on either side of East Main street, in front of the A. A. Young, Jr., Fire Engine House within the borough.

No vehicle, except while being loaded or unloaded, shall be allowed to stand or park on the easterly side of Main street within sixty feet from the centre of the intersection of Fanning's Court and Main street in a northerly direction from said center of the intersection of Fanning's Court and Main street within the borough.

The word "park" shall be construed to mean the standing vehicle, whether occupied or unoccupied, not actually engaged in the process of loading or unloading.

The term "vehicle" shall be construed to mean all vehicles used on public highways except those which are operated upon rails or tracks.

Whoever violates any of the provisions of any of the foregoing sections shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for each offense.

STAFFORD'S CIVIC MEMORIAL

STAFFORD'S FINE MEMORIAL TO BE DEDICATED MAY 30TH

May 30th the town of Stafford will dedicate with elaborate ceremonies the handsomest civic memorial yet erected in the country. This granite pylon was given by the late Charles Warren, a veteran of the Union army, and a native of whom the town of Stafford is justly proud.

This statue is entitled America Remembers, for America remembers her sons with profound regret mingled with pride for their patriotic devotion and sacrifice.

The dimensions are 14 feet square at the base and 31 feet in height. It is made of the finest selected light blue white Barre, Vt., granite, the choicest in the country. The rounded dome on the top of the shaft symbolizing "ad astra" toward the stars and the eagle on top with wings just open for flight, symbolizing victory and aspiration. Near the top is carved the torch of knowledge and progress, while at the corners are four bronze [illegible] immortelles, symbols of preservation and immortality. On the four [illegible] inscription "One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all."

[illegible] of the bronzes, Frederick [illegible] Macmonnies Rickstall, was born in France and studied art for eight years in Paris.

The granite work is that of the McGovern Granite company of Hartford, Robert L. McGovern, president and founder who from a small beginning has built up an organization with a fine record for honorable business dealings and exceptional service.

PALACE THEATRE

Mary Pickford in Dorothy Vernon of Haddon her latest and best screen effort, will close a most successful engagement at the Palace theatre tonight. The gowns and costumes were designed by Mitchell Leisen, and he spent many months in England going over plates and wood cuts of the Elizabethan period, so as to have each and every detail at his finger tips, when Miss Pickford was ready to film Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall.

Mr. Leisen says, in order that the character of a costume will not die, the person who is to wear it must be a type suitable to the period which the costume represents. The character of a garment can be killed, if this policy is not adhered to. In Miss Pickford's Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall I designed each costume to suit the type that had been chosen and in this way the character of both the actor and the costume are dominant and realistic."

Mary Pickford in Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall will close tonight at the Palace theatre and to quiet unwarranted rumors the management begs to advise that Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall will not be shown in any other theatre in Norwich at lower prices this year. All seats are reserved for this engagement, secure yours early and avoid being disappointed or standing in line.

Ponjola Filmed in Sincere Fashion

Fiction lovers are often disappointed when they see their favorite stories on the screen. Perhaps they cannot understand the technic of the movies which makes it necessary in many cases, to change parts of a story, which for one reason or another, cannot be screened.

But those who read and enjoyed Ponjola—and all who did read it, enjoyed it—are not going to be disappointed in the film version of the famous Cynthia Stockley story, at the Palace theatre tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

Ponjola has been described "as fool proof film material," and such it is. In adapting the story to the screen First National kept to the story in its entirety. The film is the popular novel brought to life.

Telling a story of intrigue, adventure and love it centers about a young noblewoman who masquerades as a man and lives among the hardened characters of the South African veldt, fighting the curse of ponjola, the soul destroying drink of that country and fighting those who seek to destroy the man she loves.

It is a powerful picture of virile men and romantic women, of lust, hate and love—a highly dramatic picture that contains every essential of a perfect photodrama.

Its interpretation is in the hands of a most brilliant cast, including Anna Q. Nilsson, James Kirkwood, Tully Marshall, Ruth Clifford, Joseph Kilgour, Edwin Sturgis, Claire McDowell, Claire Du Brey and Bernard Randall.

Broadway Theatre.

George Melford's latest production for Paramount, The Dawn of a Tomorrow, which opens at the Broadway tomorrow, is a story of London, its slums and high society.

David Torrence, brother of Ernest, has the role of Sir Oliver Holt, the greatest money power in the London capital. He overhears a diagnosis of his physicians that he is rapidly passing into a state of decay from which there will be no recovery. Sir Oliver determines to hide his identity in the slums and put an end to everything. It is his chance encounter with Glad, the wonderful character portrayed by Jacqueline Logan, that gives him renewed hope and fresh incentive. Her audacity and her faith inspire him.

Miss Logan, Torrence and Raymond Griffith have featured roles in the production.

The feature will also be seen Saturday.

A comedy and news will be the short subjects.

Broadway Theatre.

Small is the wonder that the three-sheeted new Russian Time, based upon Natalie Goodman's play of the same name, opens at the Broadway theatre, Friday night only, May 16 after remarkable triumphs at Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia, the latter city where it played for 32 weeks and where it created a veritable furore in addition to which it has broken all known records everywhere it has played.

Breed Theatre.

Harold Bell Wright has long been considered one of the most popular authors in the world. His many novels have been read and re-read by countless millions. When announcement was made some time since that Principal Pictures Corporation would give the screen the entire series of Wright's books, movie fans anxiously awaited the first of the series and the opportunity to witness the film adaptation of it.

At the Breed theatre, beginning today, the first of this world-famous series will be presented. "When a Man's a Man" was the story chosen by the producers as the first to be given everlasting life in celluloid form. This gripping story of the great Arizona ranch country is said by those whose pleasure it has been to witness private showings, to be one of the big outstanding features of the year.

John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte, Robert Frazer, and a host of other celebrated screen artists, will be seen in the many portrayals of "When a Man's a Man." The production is in feature length, and is said to closely follow the original story.

Al. St. John in his latest and funniest comedy, Slow and Sure, and Fox News completes this big programme.

Palace Theatre

Coming four days starting Sunday May 18, one of biggest films of the year, Black Oxen, a Frank Lloyd production, released through First National Pictures, and featuring Corrinne Griffith and Conway Tearle, is to be the photoplay offering at the Palace theatre, starting Sunday and the booking is looked upon as one of the big cinema events of the season.

Miss Griffith wears more than $50,000 worth of fashionable furs and the costuming of members of the supporting cast has cost nearly the same amount.

Black Oxen will be given a fitting presentation here, an elaborate musical and short reel program having been arranged to accompany the screening of the celebrated drama.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

William S. Brown, owner of Shepard Hill farm near Wauregan, is convinced that there is every chance of potatoes remaining as a staple article of food; that no political upheaval change of dieting fashions or other passing fancies will operate in any way to change the order of things now existing, as to potatoes, during the next twelve months.

And with that idea firmly in his mind he has set out to plant one field of 20 acres of the tubers. Twenty acres in a potato county for this part of New England though it would not cause even a ripple of interest in Aroostook county up in Maine, where potato fields as large as half of some of the townships hereabouts are not uncommon.

The particular field that Mr. Brown is making ready for planting lies down near the Quinebaug river on a flat and very fertile section of his big farm. It is plowed and about ready to receive the seed. In addition to other fertilization, Mr. Brown will apply 1,500 pounds of phosphate to the acre. The cultivation of this field, as well as its preparation, will be in accord with the most modern scientific knowledge relative to potato culture. Last winter Mr. Brown took the matter up with a vegetable specialist at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs and from him obtained a series of instructions as to procedure. These he has by no means as an amateur would, but he is anxious to see what can be done on his farm under most favorable conditions.

Planting of the potatoes will begin at the end of this week. During the growing season they will be given careful attention and no effort neglected that will intend to increase the yield. With good luck, Mr. Brown hopes to harvest 300 bushels to the acre and if he does that little thing he will have produced 6,000 bushels of good potatoes, of several varieties, both winter varies and fall comes on. A little arithmetic will indicate, even at the minimum price that he may expect to obtain Mr. Brown will have a little fortune out of his big potato field.

Tuesday morning from her home in Moosup the funeral of Mary Katherine Driscoll L'Homme was held, services at St. Joseph's church in Danielson, Rev. Ignatius Kost being celebrant of the high mass of requiem many relatives and friends attending. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Thomas Darcy Clairie, Joseph Lorraine P. Loiselle, Patrick Tigue and James Carrier. Martin T. Burns was funeral director.

They have been at it again! Boys have been storing trains passing through Danielson. This is an old-time stunt, and one that never gets excitement anything certain but usually. The instance herein referred to is no exception to the rule. After some investigation, railroad police rounded up those responsible and six small boys should know better have been trying to make satisfactory explanations ever since. They may not appear in police court this time, but they have had a sorry time of it trying to convince the police and their fathers that they meant no harm. No arrests have been made in connection with the affair, which has been under consideration for several days.

Reynolds street between Main and Broad is going to be wider some day. There seems to be assurance of this. The city voted to request the railway commissioner to remove the northerly side of the bridge and when the work is done the street will be widened to the south. The bridge is to be replaced by a concrete structure and the approaches will be widened. The cost of the work is to be borne by the railroad company.

Directresses of the Benevolent so- ciety of the Congregational church are Mrs. Helen Dowe, Mrs. Mary T. E. Hamnett, Mrs. H. M. Tyrrell, Mrs. W. F. Hall and Miss Carrie Chamberlain.

Miss H. Perlett, a patient for some time past at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, is reported as slowly improving, after a very serious illness.

The annual meeting of the Windham Association of Congregational churches and Ministers was held Tuesday in Pomfret. There were morning and afternoon sessions.

With the coming of better weather, and the increasing numbers of cars appearing their appearance in this section is in the old days they hiked the roads, but there are better chances of a "life" along the main automobile roads today, so they have abandoned the iron way for the main motor roads.

Officers from the local barracks of the state police made a raid in the town of Plainfield Monday night that resulted in hearings in a justices' court at Central Village Tuesday.

PUTNAM

Gilman H. Brown, 76, for many years one of the best known citizens of Putnam, died early Tuesday morning at a hospital in Worcester. Mr. Brown had been in poor health for a long time.

Mr. Brown was born in Burrillville, R. I., September 4, 1848, a son of Charles and Sarah Adeline Ross Brown. When he was two years of age his parents moved to Waterford and four years later to Millville, Mass., where he received his early education and as a boy worked on a farm, in a mill, and in a grocery store.

Conscious that an advanced education was essential to any great degree of success, he entered Lapham Institute at Scituate, R. I., and later attended the Business college at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. On graduating from this institution he went to Pascoag and for a year and a half filled a position as bookkeeper. He came to Putnam 52 years ago today—May 14, 1872, to enter the office of the Putnam Woolen company, a concern with which he was destined to remain for 46 years and 11 months. His first position with the Putnam Woolen company was as office manager. In 1877, when the late Eugene A. Wheelock was made manager and treasurer of this concern, Mr. Brown was elected his assistant in both positions. In 1888 upon the death of George W. Phillips, he was elected secretary of the concern, for which he performed long and faithful service.

Mr. Brown was interested in public affairs and had been town and city officers. In 1900 he was elected a republican alderman from Ward 2, but at the expiration of his term declined renomination. He had also served for a number of years as town and city auditor.

In 1890, when plans were considered for the erection of a Universalist church here, Mr. Brown was made treasurer of the building committee. He continued as a member of the church society as long as it remained in existence in this city.

June 9, 1870, Mr. Brown was united in marriage with Miss Adelaide M. Smith, of Burrillville. Mrs. Brown died July 5, 1881. June 19, 1883, Mr. Brown was again married, his second wife being Miss Helen A. Tourtellotte of Providence, a cousin of the first Mrs. Brown.

Mr. Brown was a past master of Quinebaug lodge of Masons and had served as secretary of Putnam chapter, R. A. M. He was also collector and auditor for the chapter of the Royal Arcanum here.

Mr. Brown leaves his wife and one son, George D. Gilman of Park street this city. Another son, Charles Gilman Brown, died in infancy.

In view of the fact that Frank W. Buxton, managing editor of the Boston Herald, has been awarded the Pulitzer prize for 1923 for the best editorial appearing in any paper—a prize of $500—it is of special interest to Putnam that Mr. Buxton is a cousin of Treasurer Daniel J. Byrne of the Putnam Savings bank, and, by the same token, a cousin of Mr. Byrne's brother and sisters, all well known here. Mr. Buxton's mother and Mr. Byrne's father were brother and sister.

The prize winning editorial follows:

Who made Calvin Coolidge?

Margaret Foley, of course. When Levi H. Greenwood was president of the Massachusetts Senate he opposed woman suffrage. She opposed his re-election in his district and prevailed. Senator Coolidge became President Coolidge on Beacon Hill, and the signals were set clear for the road to the governorship.

Who made Calvin Coolidge?

Edwin U. Curtis, of course. When he was a sick man in that old brick building at the dead end of Pemberton square, the heedless policemen went on strike to the refrain of "Hail, hail, the gang's all here." The sick man showed the strength of the stalwart, until finally Gov. Coolidge sent a telegram to Samuel Gompers that tapped its way into National prominence, and is today a sort of magna charta of the people's rights.

Who made Calvin Coolidge?

James Lucey, the Northampton cobbler, of course. No explanation or argument necessary here, but merely a reminder. The Herald published facsimile a few days ago of Frederick Coolidge's letter to him, which said "If it were not for you, I should not be here."

Who made Calvin Coolidge?

Frank W. Stearns, of course. With as close an approximation to second sight as we may expect in these days, and with an ability to see around the corner years before Einstein told us how rays of light are bent, this substantial, self-made, self-respecting Boston merchant, with his quiet sense of obligations to the community, discerned qualities whic hhardly anybody else glimpsed. To go to the republican convention he left a governor, only to come back to pay his respects to a potential vice president.

Who made Calvin Coolidge?

Senator Crane, of course. He made Coolidge by showing him, in precept and practice, the way of wisdom and by vouching for him in high places where his chance say-so was as good as his oath and bond. To the younger man he gave that mixture of personal attachment and respect of which he was none too prodigal, but always of mighty advantage to the few who won it.

Who made Calvin Coolidge?

The Republican party of Massachusetts, of course, a canny organization, with some Bourbonism, some democracy, some vision, some solid traditions, and no end og genuine appreciation of the merits of a trustworthy man. It always lined up behind him solidly, even when he displayed that reticence which to the unknowing was some evidence of ingratitude and to the knowing was merely Coolidgeism.

Who made Calvin Coolidge?

The people of Massachusetts, of course. They took him at more than his own modest valuation, whether he wanted to be a town officer or a governor. They had that which thousands call a blind faith in him. More thousands called it a passionate institution.

Who made Calvin Coolidge?

His mother, of course, who endowed him with her own attributes: a father that taught him prudential ways with all quiet vigor of the old Greeks who preached moderation in everything; his school and his college; his classmate, Dwight Morrow, and his guest of a day or two ago at the White House, William F. Whiting.

Who made Calvin Coolidge?

Calvin Coolidge, of course! From the reflective shoemaker and the furious Miss Foley to the complacent Frank W. Stearns and the watchful and discerning Senator from Dalton, came some of the makings, but the man himself had the essentials of greatness. Give another man those same foes and friends and he might still be as far away from the White House as most sons of Vermont.

Of interest here is the denunciation of counsel for Maurice "Whitey" Diamond by Justice Cropsey in connection with the presentation of grounds for a stay of execution. Counsel for Diamond, now under sentence of death, set forth in lengthy manner grounds why they believe the sentence should not be carried into effect. In passing upon this Justice Cropsey said there was no sound basis for many of the arguments presented and that few attorneys would submit any such matter for serious consideration. Diamond, convicted with his brother and two other young men for the holdup, murder and robbery of two West End bank messengers last fall, is well remembered here because of his conviction in the superior court in this city, about two years ago, on a minor charge.

ROSELAND PARK TRUSTEES OPPOSE NON-BATHING ORDER

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, May 13—An interesting situation appears to be developing as a result of the disinclination of the trustees of Roseland Park, low not Woodstock, to comply with an order of Stanley H. Osborne, state health commissioner, to cause bathing to be stopped in the lake at the park during the coming summer. The health commissioner contends that such bathing holds the possibility of contaminating the city water supply of Putnam. During the summer there are several hundred campers near the lake and many others from this city and surrounding towns go there to bathe. It has been contended for several years that the large number bathing in the lake during the summer period was likely to prove a source of danger to the people who drink the Putnam city water. This view is not general, however, as the water comes through a modern filtering system at Harrisville before being used here.

Herbert W. Bowen, as counsel for the trustees of Roseland Park, has written Commissioner Osborne and set forth that Roseland Lake is not a reservoir, that the Putnam city water company has no pipes running into it and uses only such water from the lake as regarded as overflow. In view of this fact Mr. Bowen has requested Commissioner Osborne to withdraw his order prohibiting bathing.

MONTVILLE

A party of friends hung Mrs. Fred Green a beautiful blue, white and pink May basket Saturday evening. The basket was filled with fruit, candy and nuts. In the center of the basket was concealed in a tiny heart shaped box a ten dollar gold piece. The party was entertained with radio selections, also vocal solos by Mrs. Joseph Edwards. Ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. Green. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Pigeon and daughter, Geraldine, Mrs. Anita Bishop and Raymond Donelley of Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pierce and daughter Claudia of Westerly, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown and daughter Gloria of Norwich, Miss Bell Green, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Edwards, of Montville.

BALTIC

At the Immaculate Conception church, Baltic, Monday morning Miss Diana Arsenault and Joseph Delphis Duquet, Jr., were united in marriage by Rev. William T. O'Brien. The bride was gowned in white canton crepe, and carried a shower bouquet of carnations, roses and lily-of-the-valley. Her traveling costume was of gray canton crepe. A breakfast was served at the home of the groom. Many beautiful gifts of silver, furniture, cut glass, linen, etc., were received. Music and dancing were enjoyed. Several pleasing solos were sung by George Rigby and Paul Duquet. After a honeymoon trip to Providence, Boston and Lowell Mr. and Mrs. Duquet will be at their newly furnished home to receive their many friends.

Guard Your Mouth

Let WRIGLEY'S be the guardian of your mouth and throat.

It will combat trouble of various kinds. It helps to keep the teeth free from food particles that ferment and cause decay.

It has an antiseptic effect. It relieves acid mouth and thus not only prevents harm to the teeth, but serves to sweeten the stomach.

Read from a widely known medical work:

"Chewing gum aids tooth nutrition and the cleansing action is a definite benefit—it prevents dyspepsia. Good chewing gum is excellent for bad digestion.

Four brands—different flavors—all made from best ingredients obtainable

EARLY COAL BUYING.

[illegible] which has been given by Secretary Hoover to the coal users to [illegible] supply during the summer, [illegible] with what has been [illegible] that doesn't detract [illegible] of delayed [illegible] if they have [illegible] from early [illegible] natural [illegible] effects [illegible] placing [illegible] fear that [illegible] changes after [illegible] this is a matter [illegible] of [illegible] filled [illegible] overlooked [illegible] always [illegible] good [illegible]

LOUISIANA'S MURDERERS.

Persistent were the efforts that were made to prevent the execution of the six Italians, who were convicted of murder in Louisiana, and sentenced to be hanged. Every legal resource was exhausted during the three years since their conviction without result, and there were [illegible] pay the penalty for their crime that have resorted to threats of violence. The sentence was nevertheless carried out as ordered by the court and witnessed by the [illegible] appointed.

It was a case where this sextette had set out to rob, was caught in a bank and opened fire upon and killed the man who discovered them, or rather [illegible] the purpose they were making. It was a case of conspiracy to rob in which provisions had been made for meeting just such an attack upon anyone who dared to [illegible] and it was the view of the jury that they had armed themselves for the purpose of doing [illegible] was there to prove it because [illegible] necessary.

Whatever may be said about weapons being carried for the purpose of [illegible] intended victims or others who seem to be in the way, it was evident that a fatal shooting was in [illegible] something more than an [illegible] scare the investigating citizen. The gun was loaded for business and the business was the killing of any who might presume to [illegible] in the way of the robbery or to [illegible] their capture.

In the Louisiana case stood firmly for the enforcement of the law. The accused were not granted [illegible] were given fair and fair trials and convicted upon the evidence produced. Their execution was due to the fact that they violated the law, having by their acts displayed a murderous motive by [illegible] themselves when setting out to rob.

Louisiana, it would seem, has taken a position which would seem to be sufficient to discourage others who are engaged in that business or disposed to be. It has applied the maximum penalty for conservative purposes and it has demonstrated that the law means something.

PHILIPPINE LEGISLATION.

There are matters which are deserving of immediate attention by congress much more than legislation in behalf of the Filipinos. There is no [illegible] the agitation certain of these leaders have caused, any more than there is about the trouble they have created for the governor general at Manila, one that doesn't overcome the claims that have been persistently made by those in a position to know, that the islanders are not in condition as yet to be allowed to have independence without expectation that there would be early demands for this government to again go to their rescue.

According to the Fairchild bill the Filipinos would be granted their independence in a fixed number of years. Thirty years were at first mentioned but there have been numerous modifications in the features of the bill, even to the elimination of the proposed plebiscite, while there would be provisions for increasing autonomy.

What the Filipino leaders are demanding is immediate independence. Upon that the government has declared its opposition. It stands back of the statement of Governor General Wood that they are not in condition to maintain a stable government and there have been sufficient unfavorable conditions disclosed to substantiate the claim.

That the islanders ought to be able to manage their own affairs within a 30-year period seems plausible provided they conscientiously devote their efforts to such an end, but that isn't what they seem disposed to do. Filipino politicians are making demands which do not impress. Their very conduct operates to show what chaotic conditions might be expected to follow the placing of the reins in their hands. Island republics as a rule disclose conditions which indicate that it is for the best interests of the islands that their efforts be devoted to building up a foundation of government to which they will remain loyal and true and to showing their ability to operate it before they ask for more. They may reach such a goal in 30 years and they may get there in much less time.

CAPE COD CANAL.

Since the days of the war there has been an appeal made to congress to purchase the Cape Cod canal that it may be developed as a means of increasing the naval protection of the coast, and to give an opportunity for the use of the waterway by vessels which are now forced to take the [illegible] and treacherous course [illegible] Vineyard and Nantucket [illegible] around the cape.

[illegible] has been held up on previous [illegible] under the claim that there was more urgent ways for the use of government funds. By the action of the house in voting to purchase it would appear that that branch of congress considered that [illegible] or else it con[illegible] of the waterway [illegible] importance that further [illegible] was regarded as inadvisable.

The vote in the house to buy for $11,000,000 doesn't settle the matter. The senate must yet wrestle with the proposition and it is entirely possible [illegible] gotten just about as far [illegible] at this session congress in the manner in which the senate is dawdling and playing [illegible]

[illegible] canal is a short cut for [illegible] permits of vessels which they would hesitate about going around the cape. It eliminates the danger of piling up on the shoals where a number of vessels have been wrecked in the past few months. But it needs to be deepened [illegible] widened. The service it renders [illegible] restricted tonnage at the present [illegible] should be extended so that all [illegible] ding vessels and warships could [illegible] it whenever occasion requires.

The house has reached a sound decision and it now remains to be seen whether the senate will follow suit.

EDWARD A. GROZIER.

One of the leaders in American [illegible] New England, passes in the [illegible] Edward A. Grozier, editor of the Boston Post. Ill health had handicapped his activities for a number of years but he was one of those dynamic individuals with whom work was a desire to do something for [illegible] newspaper work and [illegible] he was a success wherever he was placed. This applied both to the occasions when he was serving others as well as during those days when he controlled and was building up his own property.

When he obtained the Post his work had carried him well up the ladder of success but he was not a man [illegible] rewards. He was confident, nevertheless, that he could do what others had failed to with the newspaper, and he convinced others through his earnestness and determination. Those others he went through those days when it was hard to tell how ends were going to meet, but he produced a paper that had a strong and widespread appeal and he succeeded in building up a property that [illegible] as a monument to his indefatigable work and his taking ideas.

He was always interested in a good cause, not for what he could get out of it for the purpose of bettering conditions, and humanity has lost a great friend in his passing. Like others who have climbed high on the ladder of success he used his opportunities for effective service to the best advantage.

WORDS OF WISDOM

"When my son grows up," said the first young mother, tucking the carriage robe more closely around her infant, "I intend that he shall be a lawyer! Why, even now he frowns exactly like a judge and I am certain he will make a remarkably dignified, clever—"

"Well," said the hopelessly flippant young parent whose child was trying desperately to swallow a large blue rubber ball, "suit yourself—but I do hope that my little Edgar will choose to lay bricks or to plumb or something like that!"

"You see," the hopelessly flippant young mother explained cheerfully, "I want little Edgar to be able to have all the advantages when he is a man and I should lots rather have him return home and peel off his overalls and toss a wad of bank bills the size of a pint measure on to the table than to arrive in a neat impeccable ready-made suit, his pale brow furrowed with care, and say the law brought him in just $15.06 the previous month and he doesn't exactly know what to do with the surplus.

"Haven't you noticed how placid and pink and white are the faces of the astute ladies who picked out husbands who work with their hands as well as their brains? Why, a boss carpenter's wife can march into a butcher shop and order six porterhouse steaks with just as much ease and grace as I employ when I ask modestly for three pork chops! Every last one of 'em can go and buy a new fur coat when she feels like. Fur coats nowadays are like eyeglasses—it is necessary to have several to fit different occasions. The last time I told my oculist what I thought of him he said cooly that in addition to reading glasses and theatre glasses I really ought to have a pair to use when I played cards or the piano and of course if I played golf it was necessary to have a special lens.

"Our janitor's wife went to Europe this summer. She is a cute little trick and when she starts out in some of the apparel she brought back I gnash my teeth in envy as I sit by the front window making over my year before last's best dress! Once when I felt particularly upset by it I told Harold that if he were real bright he would abandon the office and get a job janitoring and he admitted he had been thinking about that very thing himself. He said what he really thought the best bet was to be a plasterer, but that it was hard to get into the plastering crowd these days as it used to be to break into an old Knickerbocker club. The ones who are inside lock their trowels up with the diamonds in the family safe the minute they are through with them and have hung out an S. R. O. sign. They won't teach an applicant how to plaster and I expect when the closed corporation of plasterers dies out we'll just have to get along without plaster.

"Maybe little Edgar will be a painter and that would be grand! The building across the street was painted last fall, and I give you my word the cars lined along the curb looked like a gold coast reception. They lent much tone to the street, and if you had seen the nifty men who hopped out of them it would have gladdened your eyes. Of course, they had hid their magnificence beneath overalls before they went to work, but I'll bet a cooky the overalls were made in London by the overall-maker to his majesty by special appointment, and when noon came they departed in their cars to some place where they served nightingales' tongues on toast instead of dining from the trusty tin dinner pail of yore. Yes, I shall be a happy women when little Edgar finally decides upon a trade!"

"How glad I am you have told me all this!" cried the first fond young mother. "Goodness! What if I had let Archibald go into his grandfather's tank twenty years from now! I'm going to buy him one of those toy tool chests this very minute! Come on!"—Chicago News.

Douglas, the Boy Drudge.

Standing on a box to reach the bench in a dismal garret, to peg shoes, gathering wood for two fires, tramping two miles to school in dull seasons and being scolded and cuffed at any time—all were too much for William L. Douglas. He had endured it for four years—since he was seven—but he gave up and ran away to his mother.

Born in Plymouth, Mass., he was five when his father died at sea. His mother was so poor that she finally bound him to his uncle, and when the boy came back she still was impoverished and had to send him to his uncle for four more years.

Next he was in a Plymouth cotton mill, earning 33 cents a day. His leg was broken and he hobbled to school two miles away. The leg healed, he worked on a farm and went to school.

While making boots in Hopkinton, he heard of opportunity at South Abington. By mistake he got off the train at South Braintree. No one there wanted a boy of 16, he had no money, no home, no work. Late that night, on the way to South Weymouth, he got a job pegging boots. Later a better job yielded $1.50 a week and board.

Working his way west, he pegged shoes, then became a partner in a retail store at Golden City, Colo. Making shoes by machinery was new, he wanted to learn how, went back to Massachusetts and in five years was superintendent of a Brockton plant.

When 31, and married, he borrowed $875, rented a room, hired five men and started in the shoe manufacturing business for himself, carrying the leather from Boston, laying out the work at night and selling the shoes during the day.

In five years the output had increased from 48 to 1,800 pairs a day. He advertised. Advertising then was unusual, and he was laughed at and discredited, but results came and brought success.

Today, at 78, Douglas directs the world's largest shoe manufactory of its kind, he is a multimillionaire, and he has been mayor, state senator and governor.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John Dewey, who has been invited by Mme. Lenine, widow of the Soviet leader, to come to Russia to teach in the public universities of that country, is, in some respects, the most famous of contemporary American writers on philosophy and education. He is a Vermonter, trained at the University of Vermont and at Johns Hopkins University who began his teaching career at the University of Michigan, then had a place on the faculty of the University of Minnesota, and then was called to the University of Chicago to be director of the department of education, a position which he held for two years, during which he collaborated with Mrs. Emmons Blaine in her original and lavishly-backed experimental schools. In 1904 Professor Dewey joined the faculty of Columbia University and soon became one of the outstanding figures connected with that institution.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

"MADE FROM MILK"

"If the humble cow ever aspired to trademarke her products the average shopper would be amazed at the labels 'Made from Milk' which would adorn his purchases—purchases ranging from horn-rim spectacles to chess men, magazines to radio sets," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society's Washington, D. C., headquarters.

"Consider a debutantes' ball, which is a most inappropriate place to contemplate the unromantic cow. The occasion would lose much of its glamour if the cow didn't supply the milk which helps provide many other adjuncts than the ice cream.

"Yonder maiden's burnished golden hair is kept in place by a flaring comb, made of milk, she toys with a milk-handled fan, she made her toilet somewhat hastily with an array of articles largely made of milk, because she received her belated invitation from a procrastinating young man through a telephone receiver, made of milk. She is jotting down her dance engagements on a program, made of milk, while she chats during intermission with an escort flecking ashes from a cigarette in a milk-made holder.

"Sounds a bit far-fetched, doesn't it? But three per cent of casein in cow's milk today is the raw material for a kaleidoscopic array of manufactured products.

"Nor does this take into account that, for every six couples at the dance, somewhere in the background is one cow. For at our present rate of consumption every twelve persons consume the milk product of one cow.

"Bread has a reputation for being the 'staff of life' but milk more nearly fulfills that definition. Substitutes for our customary breads may be had; but there is no substitute for milk. Our civilization depends literally upon a plentiful supply of good milk.

"Even the elimination of the casein from milk, the element which provides most of the by-products, would be inconvenient. Chemically, casein is the principal nitrogenous constituent of milk; popularly, it is the 'curd'; and its first and principal use is for cheese.

"Our animal immigrants have been neglected. Their importance deserves a society of their descendants. Economic geography has been influenced by the animal winners of our west. When, in 1626, a packet of implements it paved the way for a principal industry of the Empire State of 1924. Economically, the New Amsterdam settlers were cheese-makers.

"After the Black Hawk war, in 1832, the progeny of these settlers shaped Wisconsin's economic destiny by driving their covered wagons up the west shore of Lake Michigan. Wherefore Wisconsin last year produced nine million dollars' worth of cheese.

"The very names of cheeses—Cheshire, Gorgonzola, Edam, Chellar, Parmesan, and many others—read like a gazetteer. The geneologist, Sherlock Holmes of the family tree, might get important clues of people's origin by the cheeses they eat.

"There is a facination, too, in the making of cheese. The spherical Edam cones are reputed to be dark red to this day because, in the days before pure food laws, a consignment was tinted with a harmless solution of carmine. Just why people like to eat in pink, rather than in yellow, is a problem for the psychologists, but that preference not only keeps the cheese red, but it has virtually eliminated yellow tomatoes from the market, and causes a heavy monetary loss to salmon shippers if, perchance, their catch happens to be white instead of pink.

"The Italian Parmesan cheeses are kept for several years and then polished with a mixture of charcoal and linseed oil until they shine like ebony. The housewife throws moldy bread into the garbage pail, but when she buys Roquefort cheese she judges its quality by the green blotches, which are developed by introducing bread mold into the sheep's milk of which Roquefort is made.

"In recent years manufacturers have become competitors of cheese-makers in buying casein. The substance is highly cohesive, and is little affected by heat or moisture. Hence it is used as glue, and also as a binder in making glazed paper, in dyeing cotton cloth, and in piecing together laminated furniture.

"If a drug store were to display on a single shelf its articles in which casein is used the exhibit would resemble a rummage sale. There would be earrings and shoe polish, oil cloth and medicinal tablets, photographic plates and strings of beads."

CHILD TRAINING

CO-OPERATIVE TRAINING

By Margaret Conn Rhoades

I was somewhat astonished at the poise of a young child who visited in my home. She had been unexpectedly left by her mother who had been called away suddenly. She had all the earmarks of an experienced visitor, although to my knowledge she had never been out of town before. When her mother returned I asked if it had been home training that had made her so careful, so observant, so much of a model visitor.

"Oh, that is a result of our neighborhood co-operative training," the mother replied. "You see there are some things children learn better in another home, so a few neighbors in our locality decided to co-operate. Occasionally one of us would invite week-end guests; these guests were the neighborhood children. They were required to pack their own bags, see that their clothes were in shape, and be prepared to visit for a day or two. We were formal in our table service during the stay of these little people and planned special entertainment for them. In fact they were treated throughout their stay as real company.

"And you know children delight in living up to an ideal. The training was splendid for them and the sightseeing trips we took about the town were instructive. There was no letting down of the [illegible] attitude with them and today we feel sure these little folks understand wonderfully well all the simple rules for model visitors.

"The co-operative plan did not stop with visiting either, but we had sewing classes where each child demonstrated the making of a simple garment. This idea of [illegible] thing first and then teaching [illegible] od was very inspiring. They did this in [illegible] that the group idea worked out well, and one mother's [illegible] stimulated other mothers' children to real endeavor.

"Many things are made possible through the co-operative training plan. A chosen [illegible] meet in a neighborhood living room to study the Sunday school lesson on Saturday night will put renewed zeal into the heart of a Sunday teacher the next day when she realizes that home effort is uniting with hers in teaching spiritual truths.

"The talent of one another often finds a quicker response when shared with the child of another. Co-operation in child training is a worthwhile experiment as we have proved."

I felt sure she was right. As my little guest bade me a cordial goodby she told me she had enjoyed her visit "besides learning a new desert."

Stories That Recall Others

O, These Economies.

A young man had been giving some time to a young woman who was somewhat back in her studies. She liked to talk about other things than her studies, and he had a hard time to hold her to the point at issue. On one of these restless occasions she tried to obtain some information about it.

"And you went to Yale?" she asked. "What did you study as specials?"

"Sociology and economics," he replied.

"Oh, you mean cooking?" the girl asked.

Cleaning Day.

Daddy had been engaged in a task that covered his overalls with dust, and Doris, two years old, plied her little broom vigorously to remove all the loose dirt. Noticing Doris' soiled face daddy inquired:

"What's the matter with your face?"

"Dirty! You sweep it daddy," and the little girl proffered her broom.

JAIL SENTENCES FOR FOUR PLAINFIELD YOUTHS

With Judge John P. Kellogg presiding the May term of the New London county superior court began this morning in New London. Ten prisoners were in the pen, and there were also 40 cases on the docket. Judge Kellogg was assisted by the Rev. Myron E. Gordon, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church.

In the absence of Hadlai A. Hull, the state was represented by Attorney William L. Burrows. Attorney Burrows' first case on the docket was that of Bruce Bruce, colored, of Plainfield. Attorney Burrows informed Judge Kellogg that Bruce had been arrested on a charge of breaking and entering the store of Victor Tessier in Plainfield and stealing a quantity of goods. Bruce pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to serve from one to two years in the state prison.

Sentences of four months each in jail were then imposed upon Edgar Gardner and Sylva Desjardins, colored, of Plainfield. Both men, after they had entered pleas of guilty to a complaint charging statutory rape on a 14 year old girl, said the offense was committed in the town of Lisbon on July 4. Attorney Thomas Shannon, counsel for the defendants, entered pleas for leniency and asked probation for the accused, stressing their youth, and claiming that the girl was of bad character and had been as much responsible for the case as had the accused. Acting State's Attorney Burrows strongly opposed probation, pointing out that the statute was made to protect unfortunate girls from themselves as well as from others. Before sentence Judge Kellogg inquired as to the recommendation of Mr. Burrows.

Other jail sentences were imposed by the court this morning. Wilfred Jodoin, after pleading guilty to a charge of fornication, was sentenced to six months in jail. Execution of the sentence was suspended for one year, and he was placed in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. He is married and has two children, and one of the conditions of the suspension of sentence is that he provide for them. The alleged offense was committed in the town of Griswold March 20, last.

Nolles were ordered entered upon recommendation of the acting state attorney in three cases. Those against George H. Babcock, et al. and Mrs. George Beckwith, both of East Lyme, charged with assault and battery, were nolled for lack of evidence. They had been continued from the last term of the court. The third charge nolled was that against Joseph Glowacki of Griswold, a liquor law violation. The accused was convicted on a similar charge at the last term and had only been released from jail a few days when he was again arrested. Assistant State's Attorney Burrows was satisfied that the evidence upon which the second charge was made, was in the residence of the accused from the time of his first arrest.

Pleas were taken in a number of cases on the docket.

TOWN MEETING NAMES COMMITTEE TO WORK ON EQUITABLE TAX PLAN

A special town meeting held Tuesday evening in the town hall appointed a committee of five to analyze the prevailing tax system in Norwich and to report at a future town meeting with recommendations, the investigation having as its object the bringing about of an equitable taxation system in the town. The committee appointed Tuesday night is the same committee appointed at the recent citizens' tax meeting in the town hall held under the auspices of six prominent organizations of the city and town. The attendance numbered about fifty.

The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock, daylight time, by First Selectman William S. Murray, who said, if there was no objection, he would ask Henry H. Pettis to preside, and Mr. Pettis took the chair. The warning for the meeting was read by Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook.

Charles V. James briefly explained the purpose of the meeting. He said that six organizations, the Manufacturers association, the Merchants Bureau, Norwich Building and Loan association, Norwich Rotary club, the Lions club and the chamber of commerce, were back of the movement for equitable taxation. Each of these organizations, he said, had appointed a committee of three and that the joint committee had nominated a committee of five to analyze the tax situation. The committee referred to by Mr. James was favorably acted upon at a recent citizens meeting. Mr. James then presented for action by the town meeting a resolution as follows:

Resolved, that a committee consisting of Grosvenor [illegible] John T. Rogers, D. T. Slack, James L. Case and Arad R. Manning, be and hereby are appointed to examine the present tax assessment and to make recommendations to the town of Norwich for the establishment of an equitable tax assessment plan or system; said committee is hereby authorized and empowered to increase its membership by its own selection not to exceed seven in number.

G. Warren Davis said he would like to ask a question before the resolution was voted upon. He said that he had appeared willing to comply with the wishes of the committee and the amendment to the resolution was then voted upon and the special meeting adjourned.

the score tied each skipped a score in the third, in the fourth Academy held the lead until the W. H. S. seemingly placed the game on ice by adding four runs in the fifth and one in the sixth and blanked their opponents until the East Greenwich players collected four runs in the first of the eighth and the score remained tied until an extra inning was played and in the last period the Westerly High added the run which finished the game.

The Academy boys hit the ball oftener than their opponents but the strikeout ability of Pitcher Smith offset this advantage at critical times, having 16 fan to Godreau's five. For a short time Godreau was given a rest at shortstop but was soon sent back to the mound. The Academy wanted to save their pitcher for next Friday's game with Providence Technical High of Providence, but they also wanted the game. Costly errors by the Academy's first baseman and also their shortstop marred their chances for victory at critical times. The hard hitting for Westerly were Salemano, Meikle and Payne, for the Academy Money, E. Shogren, Adair and Shogren. The score:

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May —Lawrence W. Easton, accused forgery, appeared in the police to answer for his offense. He was for it when he reached New London from New York last night in the custody of Sergeant Frank Howard, but he lost some of his independence when was continued to Thursday he went to jail, in default of a was in the to attorney for the state represents he was told to get out or take the consequences for embezzlement, but when an audit of his accounts was made it was found that he was short some $7,000. Then his employers took a different view of the crime of Easton and a complaint was entered and a warrant demanded. In New York, when Easton was arrested and was confronted by Detective Cronin of that city and by Detective Howard of New London, he remarked to the officers: "You are pretty big and husky of course to take a man of my size! What would you fellows do if I should attempt to get away?" Detective Cronin replied to Easton to the effect that city police did not make a practice of shooting a fellow who someone else would be in custody and he would be set free. He didn't do that sort of stuff when given a chance. It has now been disclosed that Easton had an assortment of pieces in his trunk that would lead to the belief that his mind is weak in some particulars and that he should be incarcerated for the protection of mankind. That is the story being told about Easton now. There seems against him for sending pictures through the

It is claimed there are many vacant tenements in this city at present. Many railroad men have been transferred to runs that took them away from New London, so some of the vacant homes can be accounted for in that way.

An automobile owned and operated Harold N. Horton, 8 Fowler court, struck Evelyn Duquette, aged about on Jennison avenue. The child was knocked down but sustained only minor bruises.

John O'Brien, one of the three charged with the larceny of gasoline from the garage of George Shellutt, at Niantic, and who were sentenced to terms in jail, has a long police record, although O'Brien is but 20. O'Brien denied to the local authorities that he had been arrested prior to his New London escapade, already hanging over the young man at present. When arrested in Norwich, O'Brien admitted having deserted from the navy a week after he enlisted and to having served four months in confinement for the offense.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Clifford W. Thurber, 39 Thames street, this city, to be suspended. Thurber was the operator of an automobile that struck and inflicted fatal injuries on Samuel Whipple, of Thames street, Groton, on the Groton approach to the Thames river bridge a fortnight ago. Thurber was presented in the Groton town court yesterday on a charge of manslaughter and was acquitted.

The funeral of Mrs. Susan M. Dunbar, widow of Lemuel D. Dunbar, was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the residence of her nephew, William A. Ames 46 Summit avenue. Rev. Joseph R. Elder, pastor of the Huntington Street Baptist church, officiated. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Jacob Henry was held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at his home, 54 Benham road, Groton. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. The bearers were members of Herwegh lodge, of London. Burial was in Groton tery.

Tuesday morning, at 9 o'clock, the funeral of Daniel Boyle was held at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many mourners. A of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. The bearers were William Boyle, John Daly, Sylvester Perkins, Thomas Henry, Edward Boyle and William Tate. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Francis Martin of Norwich, Mrs. John Parisett and infant son, of Groton, Mrs. William Bera and infant son, of Cedar street, Mrs. Fred J. Howard and infant son of Niantic, Mrs. Anthony Barbera and infant daughter of Ashcraft road and Mrs. Island, Bayside of Eastern Island, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

The estate of James D. Lynch has sold a building lot on that section of Hillside avenue known as Jerome place, to Laura J. Bathgate, of East Lyme.

Mary P. Crandall has sold to Peter Bell a lot on the corner of Otis and Bragaw streets.

Archer Beckwith of Waterford, was arrested this morning by State Policeman Thomas J. Henry of the Groton barracks, charged with non-support by his wife, Nellie Beckwith. The was taken before Justice of Thomas F. Morton and the who furnished a surety on his bond for his appearance in court. It is alleged became possessed of $5,000 as a result of the maturity of an insurance policy last October and then deserted his wife.

New London is to have steamboat service, for the boat will bring about 300 visitors from all along the island to Brooklyn, including newspaper men and representatives of business generally, and with a band the visitors will be met at the boat and parade through State street to the Hotel Mohican where a banquet will take place and there will be speeches by representatives of this city and of Long Island towns. The city council will meet the visitors and will escort them to the hotel. The parade will be at 1 o'clock. During the summer excursions will be frequent from Long Island, so that New London and Norwich will be benefitted in trade.

The city council has granted the privilege of fruit and vegetable stands outside of many stores on the principal business streets of the city. City Manager Holt regards the matter as one of police jurisdiction and has announced that he proposes to have the officers regulate the distance the fruit stands shall occupy. There is an ordinance which provides that no fruit stand shall occupy any portion of the sidewalks of the city. Under old building lines the property owners have not taken advantage of their possessions in all cases and thus have had the privilege of putting the stands on the sidewalks, as long as they did not encroach on that portion of the walk which did not belong to them. Others have been encroaching and it is these encroachments that have directed attention to the matter. Neither the police nor the city manager nor the city council has any right to give permission to any one to encumber the sidewalks and no one will likely assume that right.

The name of Tilley street is not to be changed at the request of residents on that street. The name has attached to the street more years than the memory of man runneth back. It was so christened to honor a citizen who did much for New London. The street will be improved, however, by the removal of all telephone poles and the wires that have been carried by the poles will be put into conduits.

It is altogether likely that a petition will be presented to the city council asking for the removal of the watering trough and fountain at the junction of Bank and Truman streets, as a needless obstruction in the highway and the occasion of wet streets during the summer season. There are so few horses to use the trough now that the fountain is regarded as a nuisance. The fountain is surmounted by a statue of Hebe, but that does not warrant the existence of the fountain.

Lawrence hospital has just completed its patients. The patronage of the hospital comes from all the section about New London, as far easterly as the town of Westerly and as far to the westward as Saybrook.

Brainard Masonic lodge held a stated meeting this evening at which candidates were balloted on.

Simon Reheisar, 3 Mountain avenue, Irving Shapiro, 28 Truman street, Charles Dionne, Westerly, and Mrs. Frederick Levicsky, 78 Washington street, were patients discharged from Home Memorial hospital.

Funeral services for Mary A., wife of Allen J. Young, were held this afternoon at her residence, Mullen Hill, Waterford, Rev. Geo. H. Strouse, the pastor of Jordan Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The New Haven police requested the local authorities late this after automobile stolen from the streets of New Haven earlier in the day. The stolen car is a Ford coupe bearing registration number 14899.

Col. William A. Mercer of Channing street, and his niece, Miss Eleanor Mercer, daughter of Frederick W have nes afthe city who joined where Miss friends. Harold avenue and Mrs. T. P. Fox of Neptune park, are spending a few days in Hartford.

The condition of Miss Hester Farrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Farrell of Linden street, is much improved at Home Memorial hospital. Miss Farrell underwent an operation for appendicitis at the institution last week.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Frederick J. Butler and Miss Alice Lois Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Chapman, all of Waterford.

The price of tickets on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad observation train this year for the Yale-Harvard boat race will be $4.50, the same charged a year ago. The increase in price will enable the railroad to net $1.15 more than the amount received a year ago, for the transportation of each passenger.

The personnel at the United States Coast Guard Academy will be increased 50 before the expiration of the present week. Thirty additional cadets have already arrived at the academy and another group of 20 are scheduled to arrive tomorrow or Thursday. The students will undergo a three years' course of training.

Mrs. Eli Fellman, 299 Huntington street, who underwent a serious operation at Home Memorial hospital a few days ago, is reported today as being considerably improved.

NORWICH TOWN

The funeral of Mary Hallisey, wife of William A. Murphy, was held Tuesday morning at 8:15, from her late home, 81 West Town street. At 9 o'clock in Sacred Heart church, the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan celebrated a requiem high mass, which was attended by relatives, friends and neighbors. The musical part of the service was under direction of the organist, Miss Elizabeth A. Malone. At the offertory, Miss Mary Buckley sang Pie Jesus, and for a waiting hymn Beautiful Land on High was sung by Mrs. Morgan Cronin. As the body was borne from the church, the choir sang Lead, Kindly Light. There were beautiful floral pieces.

The bearers were John McKenna, James Mara, Timothy Fields, Jr., James Hallisey, Michael Murphy and Thomas Mara. Burial was in the where Rev. Father Brennan read the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery. committal service. Relatives were present from New York, Hartford and other cities. Included in the large attendance was a delegation from the Catholic Ladies of Columbus, of which Mrs. Murphy was a member.

..Herbert L. Yerrington is the delegate appointed from the First Congregational church, to attend, with the pastor, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, the Ecclesiastical Council to be held Friday May 23rd, at 2:30 p. m. (Standard Time.) at Mystic Bridge Congregational church. At this time the examination and ordination of George L. Farnham of Yale Divinity school, will take place, he having accepted the call to become pastor of the church.

It is expected that several members from the Congregational Young Peoples' Christian Endeavor society, will attend one or more sessions of the thirtieth state convention of the Connecticut Christian Endeavor Union, to be held in Hartford, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

I

Like Crusoe with the bootless gold we stand
Upon the desert verge of death and say:
"What shall avail the woes of yesterday
To buy tomorrow's wisdom in the land
Whose currency is strange unto our hand?
In life's small market they had served to pay
Some late-found rapture could we but delay
Till Time hath matched our means to our demand.
But otherwise Fate will it, for behold,
Our gathered strength of individual pain
When Time's long alchemy hath made it gold,
Dies with us—hoarded all these years in vain,
Since those that might be heir to it the mould
Renew and coin themselves new griefs again.

II

O Death, we come full-handed to thy gate
Rich with strange burden of the mingled years,
Gains and renunciation, mirth and tears,
And love's oblivion, and remembering hate.
Nor know we what compulsion laid such freight
Upon our souls—and shall our hopes and fears
Buy nothing of thee, Death? Behold our wares,
And sell us the one joy for which we wait.
Had we lived longer, life had such for sale,
With the last coin of sorrow purchased cheap.
But now we stand before they shadows pale,
And all our longings lie within the Keep—
Death, can it be the years shall naught avail?"
"Not so," Death answered, "they shall purchase sleep."

Portland cement is a process not the patented name of any particular brand of product, as is generally supposed. This process is about a hundred years old, and although the first American plants for its manufacture were not opened until forty years ago, the country now produces more cement than all the rest of the world combined. Portland cement was invented by an English mason in 1824. He called it "Portland" because when hardened it resembled an English building stone quarried on the Isle of Portland.

The busy bee may not be so busy as she is supposed, says the Insects' Companion. Entomologits who have been checking the flights of a number of marked bees have found that each insect makes on an average only five or six trips a day for honey, and that each trip lasts only about fifteen minutes. Between trips a bee spends half an hour or more in the hive and gives at least half the day to uninterrupted rest. Moreover, it appears that the hardest workers live about three weeks whereas some of the lazier ones survive for five months. The discovery will be a great comfort to members of the Sons of Rest everywhere.

By DAVID CORY

Invited to The Circus

Ding-a-ling, ting-a-ling! went the telephone bell in the Old Bramble Patch. The little canary in her cage on the front porch of the little white house began to twitter and the cricket on the hearth in the kitchen commenced to chirp.

"Hello, hello!" shouted the Little rabbit standing on tiptoe to reach the telephone.

"Why, yes, oh, yes," answered the little rabbit. "But who are you?"

"I'm your friend, the Circus Elephant."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the little rabbit, "are you with dear Uncle Lucky's circus?"

"Yes, come down and see me," answered the elephant. "I can't talk on the wire any longer. I must go into the ring and carry some little boys and girls around on my back."

"All right, Ill be there," answered the little bunny boy, hanging up the receiver and hopping into the kitchen where Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother was baking lollypop pies for supper.

"Hold on!" shouted the little rabbit. "I'm going to Turnip City to see the circus.

Kissing his mother [illegible] jumped up beside the Old Dog Driver and away they went, [illegible] Shady Forest, until by and by the stage coach stopped at the River Sippi and the little rabbit hopped on a ferryboat. Once over the river, it was only a few hops to Lettuce Square where stood the big circus tent. The little rabbit felt very happy until the big man at the gate wouldn't let him in.

Oh dear and maybe oh, dear three times again, if just then the Circus Elephant hadn't looked out through the big curtains at the entrance to the tanbark.

"Hello, hop right under the brass rail You don't need a ticket!" shouted the big kind animal, and in less time than I can take to tell it, the little rabbit was sitting in a box watching the three big rings all at once, which is a mighty hard thing to do let me tell you, unless you have two extra eyes, one on each side of your head.

Pretty soon he almost hopped out of the box for there on a wooden platform were the Big Brown Bear's two little cubs, Bouncer and Buster, each riding a bicycle.

Then, all of a sudden, Danny Fox jumped through a hoop of fire without singeing a hair on his long bushy tail, and the circus elephant came running down the tanbark ring with a load of happy boys and girls on his great broad back.

Now, this is all for tonight, but in tomorrow's story you shall hear more about Little Jack Rabbit at the circus.

VITAL FACTS FOR WOMEN

Sooner or later almost every woman is brought face to face with the fact that she is a victim of some weakness or ailment peculiar to her sex. It may be the young woman suffering from pain or irregularities, a mother who has brought on some weakness or displacement from overwork, or the middle-aged woman passing through the most critical period of her life. For each of these trying periods Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved the greatest boon ever given to women, and there are women living in every town and city in the country who testify to its value.

FORESTRY TALK FOR ART STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION

The regular monthly meeting of the Norwich Art Students' Association was held in Slater Hall annex, Monday evening, May 12, when the members and their friends were given the opportunity of hearing Professor Ralph C. Hawley of the Yale School of Forestry speak on "Trees of the Future." Through an unfortunate combination of circumstances, the film which was to have illustrated Professor Hawley's lecture was not available, but preceding his talk a few slides illustrating good and bad conditions in forestry were shown through the courtesy of Mr. Stocking, assistant state fire warden.

Speaking of the subject assigned to his talk, Professor Hawley expressed the opinion that it was open to question if the trees of the future would be of such size that they would deserve the name of forest trees as our forefathers knew them. The science of forestry is comparatively young in this country and is the product of the necessity of doing something to remedy the harm already done by improper cutting. Connecticut is about 50 per cent. forest land, that is, land which can be used profitably for growing except growing trees. This does not mean that the state is 50 per cent forests, as witness a drive through any section where growth is often seen to be less than 20 years old, having been cut again and again.

Proper cutting does not disfigure the landscape, for a proper woodland is one in which there are trees of all sizes, so that it is a source of annual income like any other industry. But because, unlike the ordinary farm crop which matures in one season, it takes from 40 to 80 years to bring a tree crop to maturity, it is a good deal to expect of the private owner to reforest. Hence, the state is taking over the work more and more in its state parks and state forests.

After Professor Hawley's remarks, Ozias Dodge spoke of the meeting on May 24, at the Devil's Hop Yard, of the State Forestry Association, and extended a cordial invitation to all to attend.

Then Rev. F. S. Robbins, called upon Mrs. Hetherington and with great [illegible] presented her a purse of money. She also made an exceedingly appropriate reply.

After a few remarks by Brother Robbins the company gathered around a well fadened table where all were liberally served with good things for the inner man. Then after a very social time, with many handshakes and "God bless you," the crowd went home.

WESTERLY

Reginald R. Peck arrived in Westerly Tuesday noon from New York en route to Watch Hill, where he will make his home for the summer. Mr. Peck enters actively into summer affairs at the Hill, not only those of a social nature, but he is also a worker for the Watch Hill Yacht club and an engineer in the Watch Hill Fire department. Mr. Peck's winter stay in New York was broken only by a trip to Bermuda.

Mrs. Irene Howland Nicol, a well known New York concert singer, whose home is in California, left Monday night for New York, after being the guest of relatives and friends in Westerly. Mrs. Nicol's return to the Pacific coast will be by way of Florida, thence by boat to New Orleans, where she will take a train for Los Angeles where she will meet her husband. They will make a short visit there before returning to their home in San Francisco.

[illegible] last of the recently organized St. Michael's council, No. 2497, Knights of Columbus, Grand Knight Daniel M. Cogan, was brought to a successful close Monday night at Masonic hall, Coggswell street. The attendance generally has been large on fair nights which have been featured by street parades of St. Michael's Boy Scout Fife and Drum corps. Boy and Girl Scouts paraded Monday night. On the closing night the various prizes were given and the interest shown was demonstrated by those in attendance remaining until midnight. Dancing was enjoyed to music by the Hyperion orchestra.

Raymond C. Neild left Westerly on Tuesday night for New York city, where he expects to be employed for over a year before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Barber have returned to Westerly from a winter's visit in Florida. The trip north was made by the Savannah line steamship, City of Savannah, from Savannah to Boston, where they arrived on Monday, the return to Westerly being by train.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Martland (Miss Harriet Crandall of Ashaway) now residents of Newport, R. I., have been visitors with Ashaway and Westerly relatives and friends for the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Tingley Wall, who left the latter part of January for Europe, residents of Providence and summer visitors at their Watch Hill cottage, Green Shutters, sail today (Wednesday) from Southampton on the steamship Olympic on their return trip. During their absence they have visited in South America.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 13—Bond prices lagged in today's desultory trading which was featured principally by heaviness in French, Japanese and Mexican issues, reacting on political ... in these countries. Prices ... liens were variable and ... to establish a definite trend.

Upsets in the French and Japanese elections, which were reflected immediately in the action of the exchanges, seemed to bring more general liquidation of the bonds today. French 7 1-2s lost a point and the new Japanese 6 1-2s dropped back to near the year's ... level. The controversy raging in Mexico city over the terms of the debt agreement and the failure of the government to obtain a loan contributed to declines of a point in more in Mexican government 4s and the 5 per cent. certificates conspicuous weak spots in the domestic list were Ajax Rubber 8s, which dropped 3 1-4 points to 73 1-4, and Minneapolis and St. Louis refunding 5s, which fell back more than two points to 15, both new low prices for the year. Weakness of the Ajax bonds, however, was not communicated to other rubber issues although shares of these companies moved lower on fresh cuts in tire prices. Liberty bonds and railroad mortgages were shaded fractionally.

New financing today was well received. Recent dullness of trading, ... asserted, indicated that the ... market was fairly well drained of attractive securities and that the future demands would have to be met by new offerings.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 13—Enlarged estimates of European import requirements did much today to bring about higher prices for wheat. The market closed firm, 1-2c to 3-4c. Net higher, May $1.04 5-8 to 1.04 3-4 and July 1.06 1-8 a 1-4 to 1.06 1-4, with corn 5-8 to 1c up. Oats at 1-8 to 1-4c advance and provisions ranging from a shade decline to 15c gain.

Price upturns in the wheat market began soon after the opening, and apparently at first had no better basis than opinions that something of a rally would ensue after declines the last two days meanwhile, selling was checked by the big decrease of Canadian stocks and by uncertainty about farm legislation at Washington. Then, attention shifted to a report that the loss of wheat acreage in Illinois had been the heaviest in years and that the aggregate crop in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and IMssouri would be only 117,000,000 bushels compared with 175,000,000 bushels in 1923. Later came word that a leading authority had raised his estimate of European requirements 52,000,000 bushels increase made only a short time ago by the same authority. Under such circumstances, speculative purchasing here became more active in the last part of the day, and the market finished at virtually the top figures reached. Wintry weather in Canada and frost predictions for domestic wheat from Nebraska to the Ikes tonight were contributing factors.

Corn as well as wheat responded to unfavorable weather. Cash demand for corn, however, remained slow, and some corn was said to have been brought back here from Boston. Oats receipts were lighter.

CURB MARKET

New York, May 13—Stock prices moved irregularly higher in today's curb market with chief speculative interest centering in Glen Alden coal, directors of which today declared a semi-annual dividend of $2.50. The stock, which opened at 97, jumped to 99 following the announcement and then eased to 98 1-2 where it was up 2 1-4 points on the day.

High priced oil shares made good recoveries from recent heaviness. Standard Oil of Ohio jumped six points and gains of one to 3 points were recorded by Prairie Oil and Gas, Illinois Pipe, Standard Oils of Kansas, Kentucky and Nebraska, and Swan & Finch. Standard Oil of Indiana and most of the other active issues improved fractionally, Woodley Petroleum duplicating its previous high record.

Lehigh Valley coal certificates improved moderately in sympathy with the strength of Glen Alden. Borden Rights and R. E. Thompson Radio certificates were admitted to trading for the first time.

Copper and silver shares were the active features of the mining group.

PLAINFIELD

..A large company of Lincoln club members assembled with guests Monday evening, to observe the third annual ladies' night of that club. At 7 o'clock about one hundred and fifty gathered in the vestry of the Congregational church, and, after a blessing had been asked by Rev. William C. Prentiss, and one stanza of America had been sung, seated themselves for a delicious banquet, prepared by a special committee, with Clarence Winsor, chairman. Music was furnished by an orchestra of men in and about the parish. The banquet menu was:

Grapefruit
Potato Salad
Cold Ham Cold Roast Beef
Creamed Peas
Pickles Rolls Coffee
Ice Cream Wafers

Following the banquet, the guests assembled in the auditorium above while the men removed the tables from the vestry, and arranged chairs to seat all present during the entertainment which followed. The musical part of the program was in charge of the entertainment committee, Sidney Mathewson, chairman, and consisted of violin solos by Miss Florence Leach, of Wauregan, accompanied by Miss Mildred Leach, reading by Mrs. Ernest Wilde, vocal solos by Mr. Downes of Wauregan, piano duets, by Miss Helen Gallup and Mrs. Elton Nolan.

The addresses of the evening were delivered by Dr. William Wilson and Miss Dorothy Atwood of Wauregan. Dr. Wilson speaking on his visit to Florida this past winter, and Miss Atwood's subject being her trip to Alaska. A report on the trees in memory of Henry Dorrance and George Tyler, who were members of the Lincoln club to whose memory trees were set out by a committee from that club, and the third tree by the teachers of the Plainfield Grammar school in memory of Mrs. Henry Dorrance, the three trees being furnished by Nathan Exley, was made by Harold Lewis, chairman of the welfare committee. The evening was concluded with a stanza of the Star Spangled Banner, sung by the assemblage.

Rev. A. Avery Gates, of Hampton, will be the guest and speaker of Plainfield Parent-Teachers' association, when it observes its second annual fathers' night, this (Wednesday) evening. There will be a musical program, and refreshments will be served, the fathers of the school children of this town to be the special guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan and son Elton, and Mr. and Mrs. Provost, were in Stamford Tuesday, visiting the son of Mr. and Mrs. Provost, Richard Provost, who is employed there.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Richardson, of Moosup, attended the Lincoln club Ladies' night.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant of Hartford have been in town a few days visiting Mrs. Nellie Smith.

The following delegation from the Congregational church attended the 62nd annual meeting of the Congregational church and ministers of Windham county Tuesday at Pomfret. Rev. William C. Prentiss, Mrs. Edward Hall, Miss Ruth Hall, Miss Mina Wright and William Inglis.

At the Congregational parsonage, Monday at 3 o'clock, John P. Bishop and Annie H. Weaver, of Springfield, were united in marriage by Rev. William C. Prentiss. Cecil Bradford and Mrs. Nelli Smith, the latter the sister of the bride were witnesses. The groom resides in Springfield, where he was a former assistant city treasurer and the bride is a native of Pomfret. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant of Hartford and Mrs. Nellie Smith attended the banquet of the Lincoln club Monday evening, guests of Mr. Bishop.

DIVORCE IS GRANTED FOR INTOLERABLE CRUELTY

Ida Brown Smith of Groton was given a divorce without alimony from Joseph W. Smith of the same town by Judge John R. Booth in the superior court here Tuesday on the opening day of the May additional session. The ground of divorce was intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1919. The mother was given the custody of a son 14 years old. The couple was married Jan. 13, 1892.

The plaintiff, who lives in Mystic, took the stand in her own defense and told a story of abuse from her husband who was contesting the suit, and the injuries sustained by her at his hands.

Mrs. Smith said that she and her husband were married in 1892 in Westerly by the Rev. D. C. Stone. Since then she had had six children three of whom are alive today. The last alleged offense of her husband was during the first part of August, 1923, when she received a blow on the back from which she never completely recovered and which has since then caused continual medical attention.

On the 26th day of that month, Mrs. Smith declared that she left her husband and never returned to him. The petitioner also introduced as witnesses Bessie Brown, a neighbor of Mrs. Smith in Mystic, and Mrs. Freida Harvey of Mystic, her landlady during the six weeks following the separation from her husband.

Following a short recess the defense announced it would withdraw opposition to the suit, provided that the court stipulated that the defendan be not required to pay alimony or money for the support of the children. Judge Booth gave the plaintiff the decree with the requested stipulation.

A deposition from Magnus C. Hendrickson of Kansas City was put into the record of the case in which the affiant stated that he had seen Joseph W. Smith strike the petitioner with his fists and at one time he saw Joseph Smith threaten to put gasoline in the stove for the purpose of setting fire to it and blowing up their home. There was also a deposition from Abbie May Hendrickson, daughter of Ida M. Smith, in which the affiant stated that Joseph Smith was inclined to complain about everything and was dissatisfied and that Ida Smith always tried to get along and treated him kindly.

The contested divorce suit of Hertha Vivian Norton against Harold H. Norton went off, as did the appeal from probate in Mary Bassette vs. Emma Morrissey, executrix of the will of Dennis Morrissey.

Flowers for Judge Booth

Judge Booth sat for the first time on the superior court bench here Tuesday having just come to the bench through the recent death of Judge Webb. A huge basket of flowers graced Judge Booths desk Tuesday, a present from the members of the Danbury bar association. Judge Booth received his superior court appointment last fall to succeed Judge Webb upon the latter's retirement next December, but the death of Judge Webb called his successor to the bench earlier than had been expected.

EVANGELINE BOOTH COMING HERE ON MOTOR TOUR

Commander Evangeline Booth, leader of the Salvation Army in America, who is conducting a motor tour in New England, is to visit Norwich on Friday, May 23, from 9.10 to 10.00 a. m., and will be accompanied by the New England Staff Band from Boston.

The New England Staff Band ranks with the finest bands in this or any other country. Every bandsman is a skilled instrumentalist, playing one or more instruments. The band also comprises a well trained male chorus.

Under the director, Staff Captain Robert Young, this band has made remarkable progress during the last few months, and recently Envoy Erik Leidzen has been attached to the band as assistant director. Envoy Leidzen is a musical professor of considerable attainments, and is a pianist of remarkable ability. The band has recently secured a clever base drummer, which adds to its attraction.

The playing of this fine musical combination has elicited the highest praise, and wins commendation and approval from all classes.

On Fishing Trip to Maine

Lewis M. Young of Broadway and Joseph W. Curtis of Huntington Place are to leave Thursday for Rangeley lakes on a trout fishing trip. While there they will be joined by Edward L. WESTMINISTER ABBEY TABLET IN HONOR OF NATIVE OF NORWICH

During their recent tour of Europe [illegible] Jr., and Edward [illegible] visited the memorial in Westminster Abbey, London, to Colonel Joseph Lemuel Chester, a native of this city.

There are memorials to only five Americans in Westminster Abbey. The five Americans thus honored are Henry W. Longfellow, Walter H. [illegible] Russell Lowell, George [illegible] Joseph Lemuel Chester. [illegible] brought home with him a [illegible] of memorial tablet erected [illegible] of Col. Chester and a [illegible] duction appears on this page.

Joseph Lemuel Chester was born in [illegible] 30, 1821, and died in [illegible] 882. He was en[illegible] in Philadelphia until [illegible] a frequent contributor [illegible] ginally under pen [illegible] then became connected with Philadelphia press [illegible] England. He compiled an abstract of the registers of Westminster Abbey and collected from other sources much valuable material for local and family histories. In 1869 he assisted in forming at London the Harleian society for the publication of inedited manuscripts relating to genealogy and heraldry and was chosen a member of its council.

In 1870 he was made one of the council of the historical society of Great Britain. He published "Greenwood Cemetery and Other Poems" (1843); "A Preliminary Treatise on the Law of Repulsion" (1853); "Educational Laws of Virginia, The Personal Narrative of Mrs. Margaret Douglas" (1854); "John Rogers" with a genealogy of the family (1854) and numerous papers in historical and genealogical journals.

The "Marriage Registers of Essex" and "Parish Registers of the Collegiate Church, or Abbey, of St. Peter, Westminster" [illegible] biographical notes by the editor, was published in London in 1876.

CHARLES E. PRIOR, JR., GOING TO BRIDGEPORT

Charles Edward Prior, Jr., until recently associated with investment brokers of Hartford, was elected treasurer of the North End Bank and Trust company of Bridgeport on Tuesday. He was also made a director of the bank, and plans to enter on his new duties with the Bridgeport institution immediately.

Mr. Prior was born in Jewett City in 1875 and his first banking experience was with the Jewett City Savings bank. He went to Hartford March 25, 1895, and became affiliated with the Security Trust company, his first position being that of a runner.

Farrond-McFarland Wedding.

Miss Dorothy McFarland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer G. McFarland of Hartford, formerly of New London, was married to Frank Farrond of Hartford last Tuesday at the Episcopal church in Hartford. Miss McFarland is a granddaughter of Mrs. George W. McFarland of Starr hill, Groton, and up to Nov. 20 last was a student at Connecticut college. Had she continued her studies she would have graduated in June, 1925. Mr. Farrond and his bride are to reside in Bridgeport.

EAGLES ENTERTAIN WITH CARDS AND DANCING

Members of Norwich Lodge, No. 357, F. O. E., entertained their wives and sweethearts at the Eagle's home on Shetucket street Tuesday evening, the affair being one of the most enjoyable held by the Eagles in many months.

It was the first ladies' night held by the Eagles in their new rooms and the committee in charge, comprising William R. Hastedt, R. A. Krohn and E. J. Mullins arranged a pleasant and enjoyable programme.

There was a short talk by members of the lodge who welcomed the ladies to the Eagles Nest after which whist and pinochle was enjoyed until shortly before 11 o'clock. Prizes were awarded as follows: Pinochle, ladies' first, Mrs. John Leirich; second, Mrs. Henry Bamber; consolation, Mrs. William R. Hastedt; gentlemen's, first August Hastedt; second, Alfred Steinke; consolation, John Hawker. Whist, ladies' first, Mrs. James Manning; second, Mrs. A. W. Bell; consolation, Mrs. August Hastedt; gentlemen's first, E. P. Mullins; second, A. W. Bill; consolation, James Yalen. The special floral prize, donated to the lodge by Hawkins the Florist was won by Mrs. John Leirich.

Following the card playing refreshments of ice cream and cake were served after which dancing was enjoyed until midnight. The party was a success throughout and members are looking forward to many more such enjoyable gatherings in the future.

FIND BURMA PREFERABLE TO DEPRESSED INDIA

Writing from Burma, which he has [illegible] voyage around the world [illegible] Julius W. Cadden, Misses Carrie and Minnye Cadden, all of this city, Rutherford G. Plaut declares that it is a pleasant change to leave India for Burma, as the light-hearted Burmese present a pleasant contrast to the depressed and oppressed people of India.

March 29, 1924.

My dear Ones All: It seems to me and I suppose I [illegible] that I am spending most of my time writing letters home, trying to make this trip interesting to you, but perhaps some day I can read them over and then [illegible] make my pen weep. I cannot convey to you in any way what the heat here is. You must come for yourself. I always prided myself on the fact that I could stand heat and that the cold weather would get me, but now I reverse it. Last night I awoke about 11 o'clock. I had gone to bed early because I was a bit sleepy and thought I would drop off easy. However, I awoke at 11, as I said before, and all about me—on the pillows, sheets and myself—was wringing wet. Passengers who had good sense decided to sleep on deck. Cots were prepared and they were all right. This morning we have a monsoon against us that stirs the breezes on our side of the boat, which is the port side and it is a wee bit better. Mr. Cadden is ill in bed. He has a bad throat, [illegible] by Monday [illegible] more. I [illegible] regret when he could not resist the delectable strawberries that were served [illegible]

Credited to J. W. C.

I must tell you right here that I am enclosing you a copy of the Wireless, a paper that is published daily aboard this boat. It is entitled Reflections of the Morning After. Rumor has it that it is from the pen [illegible] I [illegible]

[illegible]

"Reflections of the Morning After"

Ceylon, the [illegible] gem island! As all of the passengers on the Empress know, the principal products of Ceylon are Tommy Lipton's tea, sapphires and intense salesmanship. There are several well known schools of salesmanship and several standard books on salesmanship in America, but the gentle (?) art of getting a man's money away from him is in its infancy in America as compared with Ceylon. It is conservatively estimated that the customers on the Empress bought thirty dollars worth of good tea and thirty thousand dollars worth of worthless sapphires. (This being written on St. Patrick's Day, that "Irish" is permitted to pass). However, not all the sapphires now aboard the Empress are worthless, some of them being very good examples of that beautiful gem, the best being a dark rich blue of even color throughout, unclouded and brilliant.

Precious stones range in hardness from one to ten, the sapphire and ruby being nine in the scale, the diamond being ten and the emerald eight. While the emerald is but little harder than the zircon, garnet and peridot (seven in the scale of hardness) and the sapphire and the ruby but little harder than the emerald, it is a big jump from the hardness of the sapphire to that of the diamond, the diamond being ten times as hard as the sapphire.

The star sapphire holds but little place in the affections of some, but it is one of the most interesting and wonderful of gems, being far removed from the moonstone with which some compare it. Moonstones come at so much a handful, the size of the hand not making much difference, while star sapphires come by the piece, the price of those seen by the writer at Ceylon ranging from $2 to $15,000, the latter in its extreme beauty and brilliancy sending cold chills up and down the spinal column.

Cruise Is Half Over.

I think I wrote you before that Cadden bought some very rare stones for the store. He wears himself out for other people, in an effort to procure for them their money's worth and a good selection.

In point of time, the cruise was just half over at about 12.45 this morning. That was when I was awake [illegible] wondering if it could ever get any hotter, and when the Empress of Canada was just 103 miles south of Rangoon. The scheduled sailing distance from New York to Vancouver is twenty-three thousand five hundred five miles. When at Rangoon, 11,684 miles had been traversed. Burma is to the east of the Bay of Bengal and is bounded on one side by China and Siam. On the other she has the great Irrawaddy river, which is navigable [illegible] about three hundred miles. Its [illegible] supposed to be in Tibet [illegible] explorers are not sure. The river takes you from Rangoon to Mandalay, the exact spot that I have heard about on the Victor record (in [illegible] Road to Mandalay Where the Old Flotilla Lay). Being original, isn't the description right. Read the poem or listen to the record and you will gather a bit of color as it were from us.

Beautiful Burmese Silks.

The quality and beauty of the Burmese silks kept the women folks of our party busy. To use their vernacular, they never dreamed of finer or more lustrous silks than they saw in Rangoon." They claim they never wear out but that remains to be seen. The Burmese are short and thickly built. The men wear their hair long and resemble the Chinamen. Eighty per cent are Buddhists and nearly all are superstitious. They worship "Nats," the spirit of the mountains. The monks are the school masters of this country and they are held in great respect. The pagodas and monasteries are, of course, the chief things of interest. The pagodas nearly always have a "ti" (the sacred umbrella) over them. The pengyi (priest), who is always dressed in yellow, and whom I described in another letter, dwells in a little building called a monastery, but it is only one story high and built of teakwood. It would be an insult to have anyone above or over his head.

The approach to Rangoon is a very dangerous one, as the current of the river is so rapid. It is estimated that one man loses his life each day in this current.

The morning we landed in Rangoon, Carrie remained in bed. She did not feel well and she had a temperature, so Cadden, Minnye, a lawyer from Hartford by the name of Matson, and myself, made up our party. I should have told you that Rangoon is the British capital of lower Burmah, the city celebrated for the famous pagoda, the Shrve-Dagon. Our first visit was to that, but we were instructed not to enter unless we took off our shoes and stockings and went barefooted. With leprosy and cancer all through these hot countries, and the bubonic plague right here in Rangoon, we said "Nay, Nay," but Matson shed his shoes and stockings and entered. The rule to bare feet is only a recent one and is not an ancient custom. It is due to the silliness of an English lord who became so enthusiastic over the pagoda that he pulled off his shoes and stockings and walked through it in his bare feet to do it honor. So now the native priest makes it an ironclad rule. The Shrve-Dagon is the finest, the most venerable and the most universally visited pagoda in Indu China. It takes, we were told, an hour and a half to walk around the interior. It is two thousand years old and is said to contain eight of Gautama's hairs. In Ceylon we saw where Gautama's tooth was.

Elephants at Work.

One of the sights here was the elephants at work in the timber yards. They draw the logs which are often [illegible] feet long. A man sits on ten with a stick and prods them with the sharp point on the end and directs them. Several of our party had their pictures taken aboard one of these ungainly animals, and besides getting their persons, they likewise got infested with fleas. Oh! What joy then.

As I have said before, we only saw the Shrve-Dagon from the outside. At the entrance are two gigantic leographs—queer looking objects resembling colossal lions.

It was a relief, after having traveled in India, to see the gay-hearted Burmese, a strong contrast to the depressed and oppressed people of India. These people are cheerful, happy and contented looking. The women are pretty and some are actually beautiful. They are yellowish of tint. The women are coquettish, often wearing flowers in their hair, but they look so funny smoking their enormous cheroots. The women here all smoke. The largest cigar I ever saw man use is small compared with Burmese ladies' cheroots. Earrings are used a good deal, and one of our party saw a woman with a thimble in her ear pass by. One evening on board our steamer we had a Prve—a native dance. Men, women and children were there. Their fingers were decked with all fashions of rings. Around their necks were all sorts of jewels. A [illegible] instrument was played by an artist who banged the keys as the spirit moved him. About eight other instruments accompanied him. It seemed to me that the title should have been "Hit or Miss," as that is the way it sounded, and it was "miss" more often than it was "hit." The flute player was very loud and apparently an artist—I don't think. Well, the girls gave us a long drawn out dance, which was like a walking match, but one chap could dance. I did not stay until it was over.

Cadden and I visited some wonderful temples which I will describe when I see you. The pond where the sacred fish are was amusing to me. We went there twice. We bought some popcorn balls and threw them into the lake. A myriad of fishes would appear to devour them.

The drives and homes and flowers were very nice here, but we were all glad to leave at 5 o'clock, because it was so terribly hot.

Going to Alaska.

You may all be surprised and shocked to hear that it is our intention to take a trip to Alaska before we come direct home. The ship we have booked on is scheduled to leave Vancouver on May 28th, just four days after our boat [illegible] at Vancouver. We saw on the [illegible] a [illegible] named by the name of Shuttleworth, who [illegible] Norwich. It seems he [illegible] several thousands of dollars on a deal he [illegible] with taking over the Ironsides [illegible] company of Thamesville. If [illegible] should think, Ed, that we had better come home and not go to Alaska, don't hesitate to say so. It [illegible] to get to Norwich, you can tell the whole world.

Well, I'll say good night to you all and mail this.

Regards to all.

Rheumatic Pain Quickly Relieved by New Discovery—No Medicines to Take

"Cured Me Of Inflammatory Rheumatism of 8 Years' Standing," Writes Man After Using Two Boxes

A startling new treatment for rheumatism, discovered by Alessandro Volta, the eminent Italian physicist, has now reached this country. Here it is repeating its amazing success in relieving rheumatic suffering—in many stubborn cases succeeding where years of internal dosing treatments have failed. This new remedy, called Volta after its discoverer, is in the form of a fine powder, which is not taken internally but is shaken in the shoes. The principle of this new method of treating rheumatism is Medication by Absorption. Volta powder is intended to be absorbed through the myriad pores in the soles of the feet, to eliminate excess Uric Acid. By this method rheumatic pain is relieved, and the stomach is saved the risk that accompanies the old-fashioned dosing. Thousands of grateful users of Volta have already testified, in writing, to the amazing benefits they have received from this discovery. So remarkable and rapid have been the results from the use of Volta Powder, both in this country and in Italy, that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense Volta with an unqualified guarantee of relief from the use of the very first box or your money will be refunded. If you suffer from rheumatic pains, sciatica, lumbago, gout or neuralgia, you owe it to yourself to try this startling scientific treatment. It is absolutely harmless and will not cost one cent if you do not receive wonderful relief. You can get Volta Powder from all good druggists everywhere.

WHEN YOU WANT to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through the advertising columns of The Bulletin.

WHEELER EXONERATED BY SENATORIAL COMMITTEE

Senator From Montana Was Vindicated of Charges of Accepting a Fee From Gordon Campbell, a Montana Oil Operator, to Prosecute Oil Land Claims After His Election to the Senate—Vote in the Committee Was 4 to 1.

[illegible]ington, May 14—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, Montana, is [illegible]day in the senate by Senator Republican, Idaho, chairman special committee which [illegible] charges that Senator [illegible]epted a fee from Gordon [illegible] Montana oil operator, to [illegible] oil land claims before the [illegible]partment after his election [illegible] senate.

[illegible]n the committee was four [illegible] Senators Borah and McNary, [illegible] Oregon, and Swanson, Virginia, and Caraway, Arkansas, democrats, [illegible] the majority report, but [illegible] republican, South [illegible] the right to submit [illegible]ews. He expects to do this [illegible] next few days and, meanwhile, did not assume to pass [illegible] the guilt or innocence of [illegible]

[illegible]es investigated by the [illegible] previously had been made [illegible] basis for an indictment returned [illegible] Senator Wheeler by a federal [illegible] jury in his home state. There [illegible] that indictment is [illegible] here reference to [illegible] activities in Montana of Blair [illegible]. Cox testified he had been sent [illegible] by Secretary Lockwood, of the [illegible] committee, and [illegible]ormation which was [illegible]ng the indictmen[illegible] Wheeler.

[illegible]ority report held that the [illegible] authorized to inquire [illegible] question of whether Senator Wheeler agreed to receive or had [illegible]ney for prosecuting [illegible] government depart[illegible]ation of the statute. The [illegible] that he "neither requested nor agreed to request any compensation whatever, directly or indirectly, for any service rendered, or to be rendered, to any person, either by himself or another," in relation to any proceeding before any department of the federal government.

Moreover, the committee held that "In its opinion Senator Wheeler was careful to have it known and understood from the beginning that his services as an attorney for Gordon Campbell, or his interests were to be confined exclusively to matters in litigation in the state courts of Montana, and that he observed at all times not only the letter but the spirit of the law."

Senator Sterling, who took the lead in cross examining witnesses before the committee, said he had a different conception of the functions of the committee than did the other members; that in his judgment the investigators were not to undertake to pass upon either the guilt or innocence of the senator, but to determine whether the grand jury was justified in returning the indictment on the evidence presented to it and whether the indictment was the result of a "frame-up."

Department of justice officials declined to comment on the report filed by Chairman Borah or to indicate what, if any, effect this might have upon their plans to bring the senator to trial in Montana, a warrant already has been served on him here and he has furnished bond for his appearance at Great Falls, Montana, for trial.

Senator Wheeler declined to comment on the report, other than to say that it spoke for itself. He remained in the senate while it was read and later received the congratulations of his friends on the outcome of the investigation.

HOUSE COMMITTEE TO REPORT ON LANGLEY TODAY

Washington, May 14.—The report of the house committee authorized to investigate criminal charges against Representatives Langley, of Kentucky, and Zihlman, of Maryland, both republicans, probably will be submitted tomorrow to the house. It will cover both phases of the inquiry, committee members said, but they declined to give any inkling as to findings.

Mr. Langley, who was convicted several days ago in federal court in Kentucky on charges of violating the prohibition law and was sentenced to two years imprisonment, resigned to Washington late today. He immediately made arrangements to confer with Speaker Gillett and Chairman Burton of the investigating committee.

It was said that Mr. Langley might decide to notify the speaker that pending final court action on his appeal he would absent himself from the house and take no part in the proceedings of the public buildings committee of which he is chairman. Mr. Langley declined to comment on this possibility, but his friends in the house have urged him to pursue this course, confident that it would prove acceptable to prove the investigating committee and the membership of the [illegible]

In the event the Kentucky representative should determine on such action, it was predicted that the committee probably would recommend suspension of further inquiry into the charges against him until the higher courts have passed on his appeal.

The committee has devoted itself entirely to examination of witnesses for and against Mr. Zihlman. Chairman Burton recently issued a statement in which he declared he had found no evidence to sustain the charges against Mr. Zihlman. The two other republicans on the committee, comprising, with Mr. Burton, a majority, said they concurred in this view.

FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS IN ANNUAL SESSION

Meriden, May 14.—Several hundred delegates were present at the opening session of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, which opened here today. There were sessions in the morning, afternoon and evening, devoted chiefly to reading of reports, and the addresses of Miss Charlotte E. Owen, of New Haven, C. Gridley Adams, of Hartford, and Frederick A. Wallis, of New York, who spoke on Immigration, Americanization and Economic Problems.

During the afternoon a memorial service was held for the late Mrs. William H. Phipps, of Waterbury. Mrs. Thomas K. Nobie, of Bridgeport and Miss Stone Pigneo, of Norwalk, all of whom were formerly officers of the federation, and who died during the past year.

The sessions will be continued tomorrow and Friday, with the annual election of officers Thursday morning and the annual banquet at the Highland Country club, Thursday evening.

ACCUSEDM AN CHARGED WITH DESTROYING RECORDS

Washington, May 14—John L. Phillips, of Georgia, on trial here on charges of conspiracy in connection with sale of government surplus lumber stocks was accused today by J. L. M. Wilson, a prosecution witness, of destroying certain records which Wilson brought to Washington in June 1922 before he was summoned by the grand jury investigating the charges.

Wilson who testified yesterday that he paid Philips $4,500 as a demanded bonus for signing a lumber contract, declared he took his records to a hotel where he was visited by Phillips. Together they examined Wilson's documents and from the batch Phillips selected a number, announcing he intended to destroy them, Wilson testified.

Government counsel summoned a bell boy and negro fireman employed by the hotel and they testified Phillips had burned a bundle of papers in the hotel furnace.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The senate oil committee tentatively closed its hearings.

The revenue bill conferees disposed of a number of non-controversial amendments voted in by the senate.

Witnesses voiced opposition to modification of the prohibition laws before the house judiciary committee.

Republican and democratic house leaders at a White House conference agreed to work for adjournment of congress June 7.

The Daugherty committee ordered the warden at Atlanta federal penitentiary to produce George Remus, an Ohio bootlegger, as a witness.

Secretary Hughes declared to be "absolutely false," the statement that he had anything to do with the sale of the steamship Martha Washington to its former owners.

The rate-making section of the transportation act was assailed in the house while the senate debated application of the long and short haul provisions of the interstate commerce act.

HELD ON CHARGE OF DRUGGING MRS. JOHNSON

New York, May 14.—Henry Edham, an Englishman of, chalf a dozen aliases and a suspect in several of this city's most sensational unsolved crimes, was in custody tonight on an alleged confession that he drugged Mrs. Howard Johnson, wife of the playwright, and robbed her of $9,000 worth of gems at the Hotel Alamac last Monday night.

Arrested on a clue furnished by a bottle of cough medicine and identified by numerous witnesses, the prisoner was reported by Inspector Coughlin to have admitted he and a woman companion robbed Mrs. Johnson and that he and two gunmen recently invaded the apartment of Mrs. Mildred Monroe, a former Follies dancer, and robbed her of $200 worth of jewels, overlooking several thousand dollars in jewels and money.

Witnesses were summoned to his cell tonight to see if they could identify Edham as a participant in the drugging, robbing and murder of Dorothy King Keenan and of Louis Lawson, police declared they also had clues linking him with a Broadway shop silk robbery of two weeks ago.

The prisoner is known to the police under the aliases of Harry Lasser, Deham, Wilson, Phillips, Brent and Roth. He is alleged to have confessed he "stole the stones to get enough to pay my mouthpiece in Washington" to pay a lawyer at Washington, D. C., where he recently was arrested for burglary and released on bail.

FOR CRITICIZED BY HERMAN BERNSTEIN

Detroit, Mich., May 14.—Henry Ford, was criticised here tonight by Herman Bernstein, New York author and journalist, in an address before the Beth El Temple club at Temple Beth El.

The speaker charged that Russian monarchist anti-semetism had influenced Mr. Ford in his attitude toward the Jews. The motor manufacturer, the speaker said, has fired the imagination of Americans because of his material success, but pointed out that America was founded on Justice and fairness, religious liberty and tolerance.

Mr. Bernstein asserted that anti-semetic propaganda was not a Jewish issue but an American issue because it was "in direct conflict with the loftiest traditions of the American spirit of Justice and fairness."

Temporary Chairman G. O. P. Convention

Klan Not in Politics, Grand Dragon Says

Declares Underwood Statement Was Made to Divert Attention From His "Wet" Record.

Atlanta, Ga., May 14—N. B. Forest, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia, declared in a signed statement today that "the statement issued by the Underwood committee in Washington was inspired by an effort to divert attention from their candidate's wet record and obscure the real issue of the campaign."

"The real issue in the campaign for the democratic presidential nomination is the prohibition question, the statement said. "Senator Underwood of Alabama is just as 'wet' as Governor Al Smith of New York.

"The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan is a fraternal patriotic order, and it is not in politics, as its members well know. In the presidential preference campaign in Georgia, Senator Underwood went out of his way to attack and abuse the klan, and klansmen naturally welcomed his overwhelming defeat at the polls."

NINE OF NEW YORK'S BEST KNOWN CABARETS PADLOCKED

New York, May 14.—Padlocks and deputy marshals tonight barred entrance to nine of New York's best known "White Light" cabarets.

All members of the chain of resorts owned by the Thompson-Salvin corporation, their doors were sealed and placed under guard for a year under the padlock provision of the prohibition law, invoked today by the United States district attorney's staff.

A special grand jury which had been impanelled to consider indictments against them was dismissed when the corporation consented to go out to the padlocking.

Wealthy patrons of metropolitan night life with their expensively gowned and jeweled companions were turned away from their favorite rendezvous by the hundreds tonight. Big-lettered placards and uniformed officers warned them away, and their taxicabs were kept on the move.

The high-salaried jazz orchestras, whose programs nightly had been broadcast from the cabarets to radio listeners-in throughout the land, were billed to twang their lyres elsewhere.

Eight of the resorts under the prohibition ban are in the heart or just on the fringe of the theatrical district. They include the Pabais Royale, The Plantation, The Moulin Rouge, The Montmarte, The Club Royale, The Balmoral club, the Barn club and the 400 club.

SUMMER SESSION AT YALE IN GRADUATE LAW COURSE

New Haven, May 14.—A graduate course in law, consisting of a summer session for teachers of lay and lawyers, in which special advanced and research courses will be given, will be inaugurated this summer by the Yale university school of law. The first term will be from June 19 to July 26 and the second from July 28 to September 3.

The work will constitute four courses, two in the first and two in the second half of the summer session, and will be conducted entirely by members of the regular teaching staff of the university. The graduate courses for 1924 will include Roman Law and Modern developments, problems in the Conflict of laws, legal history and legal analysis.

The courses are open for the self improvement of both teachers and lawyers and for the extension of the [illegible] educational facilities to those who can devote the summer to study.

The courses will run for three years and thereafter if the experiment proves its worth.

TWELVE ARRESTS MADE IN RAIDS IN SOUTHINGTON

Southington, May 14.—Twelve men and women were arrested for alleged violation of the prohibition laws, and eight others were held as frequenters in a series of raids conducted here early this evening under the personal supervision of Prosecuting Attorney H. D. Fitzpatrick, assisted by County Detective Edward J. Hickey and the members of a private detective agency.

Numerous complaints to the local and county authorities are said to have preceded the sweeping visit to the various establishments throughout the town. All of the defendants were rounded up within an hour, and were held in the town court room until they secured bonds for their release. The liquor violators had to post $200 each and the frequenters $10 each. Several of those arrested today are second offenders, and two of them have been convicted twice previously.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE AT WEDDING

Washington, May 14—President and Mrs. Coolidge attended today the wedding of Miss Mary Wallace, daughter of secretary and Mrs. Wallace to Dr. Charles Bruggman, first secretary of the Swiss legation in Paris. The wedding took place at the New York avenue Presbyterian church, with Dr. Wallace Radcliffe officiating. Dr. and Mrs. Bruggman will sail Saturday for Europe.

MISS ROCKEFELLER FOUND GUILTY OF SPEEDING

New York, May 14—Miss Abby Rockefeller, 21-year-old daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was found guilty of speeding in traffic court today. Sentence was suspended. Miss Rockefeller was not in court but was represented by counsel. The motor-cycle policeman who gave her a summons said she was going twenty-nine miles an hour.

This is the second time Miss Rockefeller has been charged with speeding. The first charge, was dismissed.

OBITUARY.

Greenwich, May 14.—Dr. Carl E. Martin, prominent in music circles both here and in New York city for over fifty years, died at a hospital here tonight in his 74th year. Dr. Martin was director of music in the Greenwich schools and was actively interested in concert work throughout the country. For 20 years he was soloist at Christ Episcopal church, Greenwich, retiring about three years ago. He leaves a wife and adopted daughter.

15 More Vessels to Hunt Rum Runners

Thirteen Reserve Destroyers, a Mine Sweeper and a Sea Going Tug in the Allotment.

Washington, May 14—Thirteen additional reserve destroyers, a mine sweeper and a sea going tug were ordered turned over to the coast guard today by Secretary Wilbur at the request of Secretary Mellon to be added to the coast guard fleet for hunting rum runners. Seven destroyers were turned over similarly some time ago. The group ordered transferred today includes five 1,000 ton destroyers rated as fire line craft of the navy, although they were built before the war and are not of the type or speed of the more recent ships. The destroyers designated are all tied up at Philadelphia navy yard.

CONGRESS TO ENDEAVOR TO ADJOURN BY JUNE 7

Washington, May 14.—Adjournment of congress by June 7 is the goal toward which the democratic and republican organizations in both the house and senate are striving, President Coolidge was told today by a group of house leaders. They expressed confidence that the legislative program would be in shape to permit a get-away despite increased talk, particularly in the senate, that this is a remote possibility.

During a White House conference, Representative Garrett, the democratic leader and Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking democrat on the ways and means committee agreed to do their utmost to bring about adjournment before the June political conventions. Their views on the wisdom of such a policy coincided with those previously expressed by President Coolidge and Representative Longworth, the republican leader, who participated, with several other house republicans in the discussion.

The president was informed that senate leaders, democratic as well as republican, were in sympathy with the June 7 adjournment program and were hopeful that it could be carried through. It was admitted, however, that demand is growing for action on certain legislative prospects, and that a last minute hitch is plans might keep congress in session through most, if not all of the summer.

PRESIDENT TO SEND BONUS MESSAGE TO THE HOUSE

Washington, May 14—President Coolidge today began preparation of the message he will send to the house, in explanation of his veto of the soldier bonus bill.

While no official announcement has been made that Mr. Coolidge will veto the measure, persons close to the executive have made no attempt to conceal his intentions. The fact that he began preparation today of a message to the house was considered positive proof of his decision to return the measure without his signature.

The president's message may be sent to the house tomorrow or it may be delayed until Friday. The ten day period during which the executive must act on the bill will expire at midnight Friday.

The message is expected to be somewhat similar to that sent the senate by Mr. Coolidge in vetoing the Bursum pension bill, in that it probably will cite the drain the measure would impose on the treasury. Director Lord of the budget in a report submitted to the president along with reports from the treasury department and the veterans bureau as understood to have presented an estimate that the bill would cost $152,000,000 the first year, $146,000,000 for cash and insurance payments and $6,500,000 for administration.

The treasury in its report is understood to have presented an estimate as to the total cost of the measure, figuring this cost at $6,700,000,000 over a sixty year period. The veterans' bureau report dealth merely with administrative provisions of the measure.

WORK OF CONFEREES ON TAX REDUCTION PLAN

Washington, May 14.—Conferees on the tax reduction bill today cleaned up a long list of non-controversial amendments added by the senate and clear the way for work soon on more important senate proposals. New printed copies of the bill, available today showed the senate actually made 250 amendments. The large majority of these, however, were of a technical nature.

While house republican insurgents made known a desire today to stand by the senate amendments for full publicity of returns and for a substitute corporation tax imposing levies on undistributed profits, Representative Garner of Texas, spokesman for the house democrats on tax legislation, indicated no movement was on foot to bring about a coalition in the house with the insurgents for gaining approval of these two amendments.

BISHOP CANNON DEPLORES AMERICAN MORALS OF TODAY

Hearing Before House Judiciary Committee on Bills to Legalize 2.75 Beer Was Diverted by Statement of Bishop Cannon That There is "More Immorality Than Drinking" Among the Younger Generation.

Washington, May 14—Testimony before the house judiciary committee today at hearings on pending bills to legalize 2.75 per cent. beer was momentarily diverted to the question of present day American morals when Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, told the committee he thought there was "more immorality than drinking," among the younger generation.

The bishop's opinion was given in reply to a question by Representative O'Sullivan, democrat, Connecticut, as to whether he did not think there was more drinking among young men and women under prohibition.

"An alarming and inexplicable attitude," the bishop asserted, "has developed among women toward morals, and things are done now which would not have been tolerated several years ago."

Bishop Cannon declared the "free moral life of France" had made its impression on American morals and that the young men who served overseas during the war had been different since their return. From his observation when he was sent to France by [illegible] the bishop said the [illegible] were confronted with conditions of vice such as they had never before seen.

Asked for his opinion concerning stories of high school boys carrying flasks in their hip pockets, the bishop said there probably were exceptional cases where boys might do this out of a spirit of adventure.

In response to questions concerning the intoxicating effect of beer, the bishop said that he had been somewhat out of contact with beer drinkers "since his college days" but added that some of his classmates "used to get drunk enough" off of beer.

Harry S. Wagner, general secretary of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association testified that the "students of 1924 certainly are not drinking more than students of past years, and they do not favor modification of the law." Such drinking as is found he said, "is spectacular, exceptional and [illegible] publicity."

SURROGATE FOLEY CHOSEN CHIEFTAIN OF TAMMANY

New York, May 14.—Surrogate James A. Foley tonight was elected successor to the late Charles F. Murphy as leader of Tammany hall. But two of the seventy members of Tammany's executive committee voted against him.

Earlier reports had said that Surrogate Foley would refuse the leadership but he was believed to have been persuaded to accept by a committee of three who visited his home before the meeting of the executive committee of Tammany Hall where the election was scheduled to take place.

Those believed to have been responsible for persuading Mr. Foley to accept were William Allen, chairman of the executive committee; Frank J. Goodwin, chairman of the sub-committee created last week to manage Tammany until a successor was chosen and Daniel L. Ryan, secretary of the organization. Mr. Foley, who is a son-in-law of the late Mr. Murphy, it was understood hesitated to accept the post largely because of family reasons.

First indications that he had agreed to accept were given when the three committeemen returned from his home. All wore broad smiles and answered queries with the remark that "It's all right."

The executive committee, upon the return of its three members to the hall immediately went into session.

The surrogate had been urged as leader because it was understood he knew the [illegible] believed to have been made by the late leader to secure the democratic presidential nomination for Governor Alfred E. Smith at the convention here next month.

PILGRIMAGE WILL DEPICT EARLY DAYS IN NEW YORK

New York, May 14.—A pilgrimage of early days in New York will be enacted next Sunday when 20 French athletics will walk barefooted from New Rochelle to [illegible] New York city over the twenty-one mile route followed years ago by the entire colony of New Rochelle in going to Manhattan each Sunday for workship.

The pilgrimage will be a feature of the Huguenot-Walloon-New Netherland [illegible] which will continue during [illegible] American, French and Walloon flags will be carried by the barefooted athletes, who will walk to the French Evangelical church in West Sixteenth street, where a special Huguenot service will be held.

Lineal descendants of the [illegible] also plan to make the journey in bare feet. The old Boston post road will comprise most of the route. Several stops will be made for coffee and sandwiches. The pilgrims will be accompanied by an automobile carrying a stretcher, as a precautionary measure, it was announced.

He was accompanied by his chauffeur, Stecher and another man.

WOULD INCREASE NUMBER OF ARMY NON-COM. OFFICERS

Washington, May 14—A senate bill proposing an increase in the number of army non-commissioner officers available for duty with the national guard, organized reserves, and reserve officers' training corps was passed today by the house and now goes to conference. No increase in the total enlisted strength of the army is called for and the total possible increase in non commissioned officers of all grades is 1,987. Reenlistment of three years in the national guard, instead of the present one year period, would be authorized.

INVESTIGATING MAYFIELD CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES

Washington, May 14—Departing almost entirely from the Ku Klux Klan issues, the senate committee considering the contest against the seating of Senator Mayfield, democrat, Texas, directed its attention to details of campaign expenditures in the Texas 1922 election.

J. L. Hunter, of Austin, who made somewhat of a single handed campaign for Mayfield, and whose campaign fund collection had previously been mentioned, took up most of the time, although one minor official of the national klan was called in furtherance of the announced purpose of officials of the order to throw open their books insofar as campaign fund expenditures are concerned. The committee then adjourned until Friday to allow the inspection of the accounts of the klan by attorneys.

To the questions of Luther Nickels, counsel for George E. Peddy, republican who is contesting Mayfield's election said he collected or provided something like $4,500 for the election. Mayfield did not know of his work, he declared, and much of the money was spent in printing and distributing campaign literature which he got up on his own account. Hunter said he was working apart from Mayfields regular campaign organization, because he felt he could do more good that way, especially in rounding up "anti-prohibition" and "anti-klan" votes for Mayfield [illegible]withstanding the latter's dryness, and his membership in the organization.

In a brief executive session after the hearings, the committee arranged to take statements from a number of persons in Texas who were reported to have made small contributions to the Mayfield campaign.

BILL TO INCREASE SALARIES OF ALL FEDERAL JUDGES

Washington, May 14—Salaries of supreme court and other federal judges would be increased under a [illegible] Graham of the house judiciary committee. The measure provides the following schedule:

WILLIMANTIC

John Reilly and Raymond A. Parker were elected members of the town school committee, to fill the unexpired terms of the late Mayor Hormisdas Dion and Postmaster Walter R. King, respectively, at the May meeting of the board, held in the town building Wednesday evening. Mr. Reilly was nominated by William J. Sweeney and the name of Mr. Parker was presented by Dr. W. P. S. Keating. Both selections were unanimous. The vacancies in the board were caused by the recent death of Mayor Dion and the resignation of Walter R. King, who was appointed postmaster of Willimantic in March. Mr. King's resignation was read and accepted at the meeting. The members expressed regret in his leave-taking and accorded him a hearty vote of thanks for his cooperation as a member. Dr. F. E. Guild of Windham presided at the session.

The reports of Truant Officer Jean M. Paulhus and of School Physician Dr. W. P. S. Keating were read.

A beautiful hand embossed resolution in commemoration of Mayor Dion will be delivered to the bereaved family by Committeeman L. Leo Thompson.

At the graduation exercises next month diplomas will be presented by the following board members: Windham school, Dr. F. E. Guild; Patchaug grammar, George W. Hickey; Windham street school, L. Leo Thompson; Georgia Windham, H. C. Lathrop; Windham Center, W. J. Sweeney; North Windham, Mrs. R. H. Fenton. A new steel flag pole has been awaiting placement on the Windham Center school ground for some time and Chairman Guild was authorized to see that it is erected. The pole and the flag of silk or bunting are provided by the town, according to statute.

The Odd Fellows' annual ladies' night was held in the town hall Wednesday evening with an attendance of about 250 members and their women friends. The D. and M. minstrels were the principal source of attraction of the evening's program, which also included round and square dancing and refreshments. The arrangements committee comprised Joseph Hornet, chairman, Charles Jones, refreshments; Hayward Millard, hall; Charles H. Beebe and Lester French, assistants. The high lights of the minstrel were the premiere, Hayward Millard and Joseph Berset. The all-round end men were Forrest Richards, Edward Curran, Allan Rose and Roy Hewlett. The Powell Sisters and Miss Ada Howlett were roundly applauded for vocal numbers. Patrick Haggerty was interlocutor.

Two cases resulting from automobile collisions were taken up at the session of the Windham county superior court, held in this city Wednesday. The case of Joseph C. Keegan of this city vs. Joseph McFatridge of Eastford resulting from a collision of cars owned by the respective parties in East Hartford November 3, 1923 was settled out of court. The occupants were unhurt although both cars were damaged. On the grounds that he had the right of way and was in no way responsible for the accident, Mr. Keegan brought a suit for damages. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney S. B. Harvey of this city and the defendant by Attorney Markham of Hartford.

The case of William Allen versus Stanley Toper, both of Killingly was brought up for trial. It was charged that January 28, 1923, automobiles owned and driven by Allen and Toper collided at what is known as Woodyear's Corner near Danielson and both machines were damaged. The occupants escaped injury. The plaintiff testified that he was coming out from his employer's yard in a Dodge car and while turning the corner mentioned above the Toper machine, a Buick, came into view, traveling at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour. He alleged that the Toper car was in the middle of the road and crowded his machine into the gutter, where the crash took place. Allen's attorney, Harry Back of Danielson read a bill for repairs on the car which amounted to $134 of which $113 was for wages at the rate of one dollar an hour.

The defendant's testimony was in every way contradictory to that given by the plaintiff. Toper denied traveling as fast as twenty-five miles an hour and said that it was his machine which was run into. The car was badly damaged. He stated that he was in no way responsible for the accident, further explaining that on the day of the collision the road was in a very icy condition. Attorney C. L. Torrey appeared for the defendant. Judge Haines took the papers in the case and will render his decision later.

Court was then adjourned until today (Thursday) morning at 10 o'clock when two cases will come up for trial to court. One is that of Mike Wallas of Chaplin against Jan Matic, also of that town, a case involving alleged trespassing. The second case is that of William Mathieu of Columbia vs. Daniel Duquette of Willimantic, the case resulting from an alleged unsound bill on a horse sale.

Speeding, spelling and athletic contests for Columbia schools were held at Yeomans' Hall and on the campus, Tuesday afternoon. The contests were for the purpose of selecting representatives of the Columbian schools at similar contests to be held later in this city. Through the process of elimination the winners of the Willimantic contest will be eligible to enter the state contest to be held at Hartford.

One representative from each of the six schools in the town appeared in the speaking and spelling contest and in the athletic tests the contestants were teams of six representing each school. Supervisor E. S. Russell was in charge. The judges of the speaking contest were D. A. Lyman, Mrs. Mary W. Hutchins and Mrs. Lillian P. Rice and in the spelling contest the words given out by Mrs. Cora L. Hutchins. Following were the winners in the various events. Speaking: Barbara Whitney, Center school; Gussie Kaplan, Chestnut Hill school second. Spelling: Martha Crowence, Old Hop River school, first; Barbara Whitney, Center school, second. Athletic, boys, Paul Berman, Pine street school, first Emile German, Pine Street school and Herman Slater, Old Hop River school; tied for second. Girls: Laura Halbrook, Pine Street school first; Lillian Myerson, Pine Street, school second. The various schools represented were rated in the contests as follows: Pine Street, first; West Street, second; Hop River Village, third; Center, fourth; Old Hop River, fifth; and Chestnut Hill, sixth.

LIBERTY HILL

Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Woolworth are on a two weeks' vacation. There will be no services at the church for several Sundays as the interior of the church building is to be repaired. Mr Woolworth will return with his family about 30th or 31st of May.

The C. E. society is to hold its Sunday evening meetings at the church rooms for the present, also the midweek prayer meeting.

The service Sunday had reference to Mother's Day in the pastor's sermon and decorations.

The Men's club met Tuesday evening. One of the instructors of Storrs college was present to speak on Forestry.

A tree in Liberty Hill cemetery was struck by lightning Tuesday night of last week and the top was broken off and thrown a distance and the [illegible] was split in two. Then the lightning went around the chain that encircles the yard and burned the grass, leaving splinters all about the enclosure, ploughed a furrow in the gutter in the road and went to a telephone pole.

Miss Marion Cleland of Hartford was the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird, over the week-end.

The C. E. society is to have a social this (Thursday) evening.

YANTIC

Gustof, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fishbone, observed his fifth birthday Monday, having a party at his home on Main street. His little guests were: John Gibbs, Ralph Jazwik, Chester Swatsky, Anthony Swatsky, Gertrude and Arthur Shaw, Stashia Jazwik, Stashia Douglas, Abraham and Rose Fishbone. Games of various kinds were enjoyed by the children. May baskets filled with goodies were the favors. Cakes, ice cream and soda were served.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jones and daughter, Shirley of Oakville, Conn., have been spending several days with Mr. Jones' father, Edward Jones.

The Yantic baseball team appeared for the game Saturday afternoon on the local grounds in natty suits of gray with green stripes and green trimming. The blouses were lettered A. W. Co., and there was a Y on the caps. They have red and white striped stockings. The uniforms were furnished on a 24-hour notice by the Ailing Rubber company of Norwich at a cost of $96, raised Thursday by a popular subscription. The team played the Maples of Norwich and defeated them 18 to 1. Sunday they defeated the Harddigs of Norwich Twilight league, 8 to 4, overcoming the Harddigs' lead in the sixth inning, when the score was 4-3 in their favor. The batteries for Yantic were Lamphere and Lane and for the Harddigs Ranklin and Coughlin. A return game will be played the Harddigs on the fair grounds Saturday afternoon. Sunday there is to be a game on the local grounds with the Yantic Grain and Products company team.

The son, Elwood Merrill Jr., born to Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Merrill Carley of Waterbury (Bertha Schlouah of Yantic), is great-grandson to Edward Jones of this place.

Under the direction of its specialist in commercial education, the Bureau of Education will hold its third annual conference of business men and teachers in conjunction with the Eastern Commercial Teachers' Association in New York City on April 18. Prominent speakers will discuss commercial occupations, preparation, and placement.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Back From the Circus

Now, let me think what was going on when we left Little Jack Rabbit at the Circus. I think Danny Fox had just jumped through a hoop of fire and Bouncer and Buster, the Big Brown Bear's little cubs, had won the bicycle race and the big kind elephant, the little bunny's friend, you know, had run around the ring carrying three [illegible] on [illegible] load of happy children on his great broad back. Yes, that's where we left off. I'm sure, for the little rabbit was clapping his paws and shouting:

So you are Uncle Lucky's little nephew!

"Hurrah hurray, Oh, isn't it grand
To hear the wonderful circus band.
To see the elephants in a row
Doing the tricks they all must know.
To laugh at the clowns who misbehave
And hear the funny policeman rave
The chariot race with horses, four,
In a cloud of dust and the wheels wild roar,
Make me hold my breath as they sweep around.
O, my! there isn't a place I've found
Where I can forget all trouble and care
As down at the circus in Lettuce Square

"Well, well, well!" said a voice all of a sudden, just like that, right in front of the little rabbit's box. Now would you believe it if I didn't say it? There stood a man in a beautiful [illegible] coat and a diamond stud[illegible] shirt front, looking up at the rabbit.

"You are Uncle Lucky's little [illegible]." Glad to see you," and he [illegible] hands while all the little rabbit [illegible] and bunny girls in the boxes [illegible] about shouted and clapped their hands, for he had spoken right [illegible] and they, of course, [illegible] word.

"Now, when you go home, tell [illegible] that if he'll sell me his [illegible], I'll buy it."

"I'm sure Uncle Lucky will [illegible] that," answered Little Jack Rabbit. "You see, he sends his show to all the little towns in the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow. First Rabbitville, then Bunnybridge, Carrot City and Lettuce Town. Oh, he'd never sell his circus."

"Well, give him my regards," and off walked this millionaire man.

Later soon when the circus was over the little rabbit hopped back to the show boat. When it had crossed the river, the stage coach was waiting to take him back to the dear Old Bramble Patch.

"Home again, home again, from the circus town!" sang pretty Bobbie Redvest as the little rabbit hopped into the kitchen where Lady Love, his pretty rabbit mother was stewing pink and yellow lollypops for supper.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

The main screen feature at the Breed the last part of this week is the photoplay adaptation of Harold Bell Wright's well known novel, When a Man's a Man, which is a First National attraction. The plot concerns the adventures of an indolent clubman who goes west after the girl of his heart throws him down. He lands in the cowboy town of Prescott, Arizona, and goes to work on the Cross Triangle ranch as an ordinary ranch hand. Here he loses his identity and becomes known as Honorable Patches. His daring and willingness to work and likeable personality win him many friends on the ranch, but there are several chronic cranks that are suspicious of every stranger, and so Patches comes in for his share of suspicion. He does not improve his position any when he takes up with Yavapai Joe, a cattle rustler, whom he realizes at once is simply a poor boy in a bad environment. How the tenderfoot is caught with the cattle rustler, pursued by a lynching party, accused of shooting the ranch foreman, and finally vindicated by the poor boy he had befriended, only to lose his right to happiness with the girl he loved when she comes west on her honeymoon trip married to his rival, make up one of the most fascinating photoplays to come to the screen in a long time.

Broadway Theatre.

"Blossom Time" the charmingly quaint operetta based on the music and life of Franz Schubert, which has been drawing large and enthusiastic crowds everywhere it has played, is now in its third year, and will be seen under the direction of Messrs. Schubert at the Broadway theatre, Friday night, May 16.

The story is built on the life of the famous composer and tells the tale of his devotion to his art-music—and his attempted deviation from it. He loses, by his own timidity, and shyness, the daughter of the jeweler to the court.

The action of this production is interpreted very uniquely through the appropriate use of some of the most charming melodies of the famous composer, interwoven with the action of the piece; leaving the audience captive to its symphony of music, action and words.

"Blossom Time" was seen for two years in New York at three different theatres, for six months in Chicago, and Boston. This is the "Blossom Time" that ran for thirty-two weeks at the Lyric theatre in Philadelphia.

Vaudeville at the Strand.

The last vaudeville show to be presented at the Strand theatre will be the best which starts today and will be shown Friday and Saturday, also.

An all comedy programme is promised with, of course, a little singing and dancing and music to round it out.

The last word in life and action is presented by that foremost colored dancing aggregation, Helena Justa and Boys in "Keep Dancing." You haven't seen real dancing until you've seen them.

Homar Coghill, the versatile chap, combines personality, songs, stories, one string violin and saw music in a novel offering.

An excruciatingly funny offering by Collins and Hart must be seen to be appreciated.

The photoplay is Damaged Hearts. Here is a picture for ever member of the family to see! It has unusual adventures, fast action, tense drama, beautiful romance and a climax that will take your breath away! It has everything that you're to realize the greatest pleasure when you see the very clever bits of characterization in the hands of such artists as Mary Carr, Tyronne Power, Edmund Breese, Effie Shannon, Sara Mullen, and other well known picture people.

Broadway Theatre.

A Paramount picture of exceptional merit which comes to the Broadway theatre for four days beginning Sunday next, is "West of the Water Tower." This is a superb picturization of Homer Croy's sensational novel of the same name which has scored the biggest literary hit of the year.

Glenn Hunter, who is starred makes his debut as a Paramount player following his signing of a long-term contract, in this picture. Ernest Torrence, who served heavily in a leading role in the James Cruze production of "Ruggles of Red Gap," Mary McAvoy, George Fawcett and Zasu Pitts play featured roles. Mr. Hunter plays the role of Guy Plummer, the leading male character in the story.

Arranging For Dance.

Mrs. Charles Kaufman of New London is arranging an invitation subscription dance to be held in the ball room of the Mohican hotel for the purpose of financing the basket booth at the Lawrence and Memorial Hospital Bazaar. Mrs. Kaufman is chairman of the basket booth. Her patrons and patronesses are Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, Dr. and Mrs. Jos. M. Ganey, Dr. and Mrs. George P. Chenev, Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hirsch, and Mr. and Mrs. John K. Foran. Mrs. Kaufman was formerly Ida B. Slosberg of Norwich.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Four days starting Sunday May 18 matinee daily thereafter one of the year's best pictures, Black Oxen.

One of the most important branches of the cinema's pictorial work is that of those mute, immovable impressionists—the backgrounds, the settings.

It might be possible to say that the demands of the screen have brought about a greater improvement in architecture and interior decorating the past five years than was known in the previous fifty, and legitimately so, for the buildings and interiors of the screen are seen daily by 20,000,000 people of many different nationalities and tastes, and furthermore, because the movies are such an influence in our modern life, the details of their production must be the more carefully and accurately handled.

In Black Oxen, which Frank Lloyd has made a First National picture, with Corrine Griffith and Conway Tearle in the leading roles, the interior settings are the most gorgeous seen on the silver sheet in some time. The nature of the story requires a dignified, artistic background for nearly each sequence, and because most of the action transpires within New York homes, even though old architectural lines were followed, it was necessary for each set to have certain modern treatment.

Mr. Little chose, as the color scheme for Mary Odgen's boudoir set, pale lavender. The color scheme for Janet's boudoir was pale lavender and green.

PALACE THEATRE

She went into the Rhodesian gold field alone—with just one purpose in mind.

This girl, once the idol of London left behind her everything that could connect her with her scintillating past.

Disguised as a man she plunged into this veritable hell upon earth. Where men worked, fought and drank with no thought of the morrow.

And as a man she worked, and fought with these hardened characters of the veldt, that she might save "her man" from the curse of that arid land—ponjola, the poisoning, moral-destroying drink of the flotsam and jetsam that lived its monotonous life beneath the torrid African sun.

This is Ponjola, Cynthia Stockley's stirring, exciting story of South African gold field life which opens today at the Palace theatre and a stay of 3 days.

AUCTION OF D. GOFF & SONS

The old established firm of D. Goff & Sons, Inc., is being liquidated, and the property will be sold at public auction on Thursday, June 5th, and Friday, June 6th, 1924.

The business of D. Goff & Sons, Inc., was started by Darius Goff in 1840. In 1861 the firm name was D. Goff & Sons. D. Goff & Sons was incorporated in 1884; it was reorganized in 1919 under the name of D. Goff & Sons, Inc.

The output of the plant in late years has been bolivia cloth for cloakings, wraps, and capes, tropical cloth and worsted yarns for the knitting trade.

The property consists of a group of manufacturing buildings containing approximately 330,000 square feet of floor space, with about 170,000 square feet of land and a water privilege developing 703 H. P.; there is no power taken from this privilege until this amount has been supplied to D. Goff & Sons, Inc.

The location is within 350 feet of the business centre of Pawtucket, and it is possible that the property is more valuable today as a real estate investment than for its present use—textile manufacturing.

The real estate will be sold in three parcels, and the equipment in about 2200 lots.

The property is being sold by order of Robert N. Smith, John E. Martin, and Robert S. Emerson, Trustees in Bankruptcy of D. Goff & Sons, Inc. G. L. & H. J. Gross, Providence, R. I., are the auctioneers. They will send descriptive catalogue on request.

Broadway Theatre.

Paramount promised us, and George Melford in his latest production, "The Dawn of Tomorrow," which opens at the Broadway today, has given us an even greater success than both "The Light That Failed" and "Flaming Barriers."

He has produced the picture with an all star cast, headed by Jacqueline Logan and including David Torrence, brother of Ernest; Raymond Griffith, leading men; Guy Oliver popular character actor, and Marguerite Clayton, one of the most beautiful blondes in pictures. Miss Logan, Torrence and Griffith have featured roles.

A comedy and News are the short subjects.

PUTNAM

Something of the volume of business that the Rheabat corporation has in sight for the plants it and its subsidiaries are to occupy in this city—at the former Manasset Manufacturing company plant—is indicated by a statement that has come to hand.

This statement sets forth at length the financing arrangements that have been made, the agreements that have been entered into with the Putnam Land and Mills company, owners of the former Manhasset property; and lists at length what the subsidiary corporations are and what they are to manufacture and the business already booked for the Rheabat corporation's yarns spun from fibre.

The spinning mills already have on hand contracts that call for a supply of 200,000 pounds of spun yarn per month. Considering that such a contract has been closed prior to the beginning of operations will indicate what an immense demand is in sight for this fibre yarn.

The subsidiary companies that are to operate here in the former Manasset plants are the Putnam Shoe Thread company, which has been incorporated under the laws of Rhode Island. This company has taken over the Powell Shoe Thread company of Westfield, Mass., and will bring the business to Putnam. At present this company is earning at the rate of $85,000 a year. It is working with cotton yarns until it is located here and the Rhea yarns made available.

The National Rhea Spinning company and the American Rhea Spinning company are the other subsidiaries that are to be located in Putnam. Both have been incorporated in Rhode Island. They will spin the fibre into soft wool-spun yarns as required by the commercial trade. The American Rhea company will buy part of its machinery in Germany and already has acquired a complete set of German made machinery from the Nashua Manufacturing company, and this unit is now being moved to Putnam and will be immediately put into operation when installed.

The subsidiary companies have a contract with the Rheabat corporation under which they are sold [illegible] specific and exclusive uses. The Rheabat corporation receives for the cost, including all overhead, [illegible] per cent dividends on outstanding preferred stock. In addition, the corporation reserves for itself the exclusive rights to sell the degummed fibre to manufacturers of absorbent cotton, bandages for medical purposes, etc., and to the firms that can use the degummed fibre as it leaves the Rheabat degummed fibre as it leaves the plant at East Pepperill, Mass. One medical supply house has agreed to take 20,000 pounds of the fibre per day. Another order is for 10,000 pounds per month for the remainder of the year.

The Rhea fibre when converted into yarns will meet a great number of needs and uses, and there appears to be an unlimited market for it.

Contending that the State Commissioner of Health Stanley H. Osborne should withdraw his order prohibiting bathing in Roseland lake in Woodstock, Herbert W. Bowen, counsel for the trustees, has made the following interesting statement:

Mr. Stanley H. Osborn,
Commissioner of Health,
Hartford, Conn.

Dear Sir:—

Your notice of the 5th inst. forbidding bathing in Roseland Lake and its tributaries was evidently issued by you while under a misapprehension in regard to the character and history of Roseland Lake, for, your notice is expressly declared by you to be based on Section 2544 of the General Statutes of Connecticut, Revision of 1918, which refers exclusively to the pollution of reservoirs and the tributaries of reservoirs. Roseland Lake is a natural pond or lake, and has been such from time immemorial. It is not a reservoir, or reserved body of water, and never has been, and the rights of the Putnam Water Company to any waters flowing from Roseland Lake are exclusively rights to the overflow at the dam at Harrisville, somewhat over a mile from Roseland Lake. There has been a dam at Harrisville for a century or more, and it was erected there to supply water power for a grist mill. The Putnam Water Company bought the mill property and rights to the overflow of water there more than ten years after Roseland Park came into existence, and has never claimed any rights to Roseland Lake, and has never expended a cent to improve Roseland Lake or any of the property abutting thereon. When the company bought the property and rights at Harrisville it was well aware of the fact that bathing had always taken place in Roseland Lake.

For the very reason that Roseland Lake was no ta reservoir, or a body of water reserved for a specific purpose, the late Henry C. Bowen, Esq., bought about sixty acres of land on the western side of the lake, and at the expense of much over one hundred thousand dollars transformed those acres—many of them only marsh land—int on Park, which he named Roseland Park and for which in 1880 he secured a charter that established it as a public park under the control of trustees. That Park has been used every summer since 1880 up to the present time as a resort for the people of Woodstock, Putnam, Pomfret and other neighboring towns, and every summer the bathing house has been used by the public for bathing in Roseland Lake. As your notice implies that bathing in Roseland Lake pollutes the water I desire to call your attention to the fact that the Putnam Water company has made repeated tests of the water and some of them only last year, and has just as repeatedly announced that the tests showed that the water supplied to the people of Putnam was perfectly pure. Private tests of the water of Roseland Lake itself have also been made by direction of one of the trustees of Roseland Park, the samples of water being taken near the bathing places on the Eastern, as well as on the Western side of the lake, and the reports of the New Haven chemists left no doubt as to the entire purity of the water of the lake.

It is a well-known fact that the trustees of Roseland Park and the other riparian owners have always taken every reasonable precaution to keep the lake clean and attractive and it is also a well known fact that the excellent modern filtering plant of the Putnam Water Company at Harrisville serves as a constant guaranty that the supply of water to Putnam shall be pure. The trustees of Roseland Park and I am sure the other riparian owners also have been and always will be ready and anxious to cooperate with the State Board of Health to maintain sanitary conditions in and about Roseland Lake, but they expect and have the right to expect, that the State Board of Health will not try to apply rules and regulations to Roseland Lake, which is not a reservoir, as if it were a reservoir. Reservoirs can not be created by notices nor can property rights be taken away from riparian owners by notices. Even the government of the United States (see Art. V. amendments of the Constitution of the United States) is forbidden to take private property for public use without just compensation, and the State of Connecticut (see its Constitution Art. I. Sec. 11.) also is so forbidden. The term, "Private Property," means (see the Century Dictionary) "the property and rights of persons, natural or artificial, in their individual, personal, or private capacity." Thus the riparian owners of the real estate surrounding Roseland Lake, which is not a reservoir, own not only that real estate but the right to use the lake for bathing purposes and for boating, and it is those rights that make their real estate valuable. To deprive them arbitrarily of those rights for public use would be to make them incur a very serious financial loss. The law takes that fact into consideration, and so provides that whenever property is taken for public use condemnation proceedings shall be instituted and the owners shall be compensated (see Chap. 232 on Eminent Domain, General Statutes of Connecticut.) So jealous is the State to maintain that law regarding compensation that it expressly inserts in the charters it grants to Water Companies some provision that indicates that the company can only obtain rights from the riparian owners by granting the owners suitable compensation either by mutual agreement or by reason of condemnation proceedings.

That both the state and the Putnam Water Company clearly understood that Roseland Lake is not a reservoir is conclusively proved by the provision in the charter granted by the state to the Putnam Water Company that the company may construct a reservoir provided it complies with the law regarding compensation. (See the charter granted to the Putnam Water Co.)

No authority is given by the [illegible] to the Connecticut Board of Health to transform Roseland Lake which was never a servoir, into a reservoir, nor in any way to deprive the riparian owners of their property rights, and I am sure that you, as commissioner, make no claim whatsoever that the Board possesses that [illegible] naturally conclude, the [illegible] were misled into believing that Roseland Lake is a reservoir, or body of water reserved for a specific use, and that you will now reconsider your [illegible] lake, and will withdraw the notices you sent to the riparian owners to desist from bathing therein. I am

Yours very truly,
HERBERT W. BOWEN
Counsel for the Trustees of Roseland Park.

In medical education in America the truly excellent is still exceptional; we are still near the beginning, in the opinion of Abraham Flexner, secretary of the General Education Board. Nevertheless, no nation in the world has within the past 10 or 12 years made such progress in the organization, improvement, and financing of medical education as the United States.

STATE COMMERCE CHAMBER ANNUAL IN BRIDGEPORT

The annual meeting of the Connecticut chamber of commerce to be held in Bridgeport May 21st and 22nd is looked upon by many prominent business men as the important meeting of the year.

Robert S. Hilliard, vice president of the committee on public relations of eastern railroads has as his subject, The American Citizen and His Railroads, and on Wednesday afternoon will address a meeting of delegates and members pointing out the influence that can be brought to bear upon the general public and upon manufacturer and business men through their associations upon the general policies and decisions of railroad officials as they affect transportation.

In the group meetings of departmental organizations held on Thursday afternoon there are a variety of subjects offered. At a luncheon of the mercantile interest of the state held at 1 o'clock, Charles R. Shipley, vice president of Lord & Taylor, New York, will present the subject, Modern Day Merchandising, a discussion of methods and principles applicable to the smaller establishments as well as the larger stores in the training and handling of the sales force, the control of stock, and the merchandising of goods especially applicable to the particular problems of the present day.

Dr. O. E. Klingaman is especially capable of presenting his subject "The Economic Place of the Retailer" from his strategic position as the director of the bureau of research and information, National Retail Dry Goods Association.

A "brass tacks" discussion will be led by Isidore Wise of Hartford on How to Offset the Rising Cost of Doing Business.

Important Result of Scientific Lecture Series

To provide facilities for study by physicists of the United States and other countries at the research laboratory of the University of Copennagan the Rockefeler International Education Board has given $40,000 for the enlargement and further equipment of the university's institutes for theoretical physics. The award followed a series of six lectures at Yale University by Dr. Niels Bohr, director of the institute, in which he presented his views on the nature of the structure of the atom and the conditions of the electrons within the atoms.

Edwin C. Dickinson, of Hartford, Judge of the court of common pleas for Hartford county was endorsed for appointment as a judge of the superior court in a petition signed by the citizens and nearly all the prominent members of the Hartford county bar association.

In Their Own Words . .

Only five years ago the first package of Rinso was made in Cambridge, Mass., put on a grocer's shelf, sold to an American housewife, and used in place of bar soap, to do a weekly wash. Today over a million packages of Rinso are sold every week. What is it about Rinso that has given it this sweeping success?

The following letters, a handful only of the many received by the makers of Rinso, tell in the simple, sincere language of the women themselves just what it is that Rinso does and why it comes as one of the greatest practical discoveries of recent years to the American housewife.

"I SAW AN AD in the street car"

"Not long ago I saw an ad in the street car 'Soaking takes the place of rubbing.' The next day I sent for a box of Rinso and tried it. I was delighted with the result and now wash my children's clothes without any effort whatsoever. I just had to write and tell you how 'wonderful' I think Rinso is and have told several of my friends to try it.

"It is wonderful for scrubbing floors. Without a doubt the best thing I have ever used. I also cleaned my enamel sink with it and it is wonderful."

"MY CLOTHES used to come out so yellowed but now they are snowy white"

"I always had trouble with my clothes—they used to come out so yellowed. Then a friend told me about Rinso. I found it makes a wonderful soap solution I couldn't get any other way. This soapy solution just removed every bit of dirt and then it all rinsed out completely. There was nothing left to yellow the clothes—there couldn't be, because there was no soap to stick—it was all dissolved.

"I am now delighted with my wash—my clothes are always snowy white."

"NO HELP did I get"

"I am doing washings for people who are not able to do it. At first I tried everything. I would say to my husband, 'I hope this helps me, but no help did I get.'

My grocer said one day, 'Why don't you try Rinso?' At first I washed from 7 o'clock in the morning until noon. I got so tired, I could not sleep. Now I am through washing and ironing in one day.

"At a demonstration at our store not long ago, I bought a case of the large size package of Rinso. The lady who lives above me asked if I had a machine. I showed her my two hands. I cannot give Rinso enough praise and I would walk a mile for it."

"BOUGHT thirteen boxes at our church fair"

"I bought a package of Rinso just to try it out and used it according to directions, and really the results were marvelous, and I have bought since at our church fair 13 boxes and I have recommended it to my neighbors who are using it with good results.

"Then I found that Rinso is excellent for removing finger prints from white paint and for washing all woodwork. It has cut my housecleaning troubles in half. I will never use anything else, because it is both labor-saving and time-saving."

"THE CHILDREN get ink and shoe polish on their hands"

"Rinso made my clothes clean without rubbing them to pieces on the board. It proved such a help in the laundry that I experimented on the walls and woodwork and now use it for general cleaning. The children get ink and shoe polish on their hands and they take Rinso to wash their hands. I call it Rinso the Universal Cleaner!"

"The MAGIC-LIKE way it cleans paint"

"I feel that my clothes are not clean if I use any other soap or soap powder, but what I particularly praise Rinso, for is the magic-like way in which it cleans paint."

"A RATHER Pretty Compliment"

"The other day, after she had finished hanging out her washing, my neighbor remarked, 'There's no getting away from it, that Rinso is the stuff to wash with!' That coming from the mother of two boys who has a none too small washing, is rather a pretty compliment."

A NEW KIND of LAUNDRY SOAP that simply SOAKS dirt out

RINSO is a new kind of soap that dissolves completely—makes a rich soapy solution that gently soaks out all the dirt.

It does away with rubbing soap on the clothes to get them soapy and then rubbing the soapy clothes to get them clean.

Then it rinses out thoroughly leaving no soil in your clothes to make them gray and dingy. No bits of soap to turn them yellow under the iron.

Just shake some Rinso into a saucepan, add hot water, and you'll get the wonderful soapy solution that is the only soap you need for your set tubs, your boiler, your washing machine.

Get Rinso from your grocer today regular size or big new package. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

AUTOMATIC TRAIN CONTROL.

Opposition is being shown by the heads of the country to an order [illegible] requiring a certain portion of the [illegible] systems to be equipped with [illegible] stops before a certain date. This order extends the requirements made in a previous one.

Certain of the roads do not appear to be balking so much at the requirements insisted upon by the commission as they do to the large outlays [illegible] required for the installation which in their opinion [illegible] reached the state of perfection that makes it possible to determine which is the best. It has been claimed that more deaths occur at railroad crossings than because of accidents which automatic stops would prevent, but in each case it is the failure of the human element to properly sense the danger. Possibly the next step will be an automatic stop for the motor vehicle whose driver fails to give proper concern to the danger of crossings.

SAFETY AND EFFICIENCY.

The deadly monoxide gas does not come entirely from the exhaust of internal combustion engines, but they are responsible for much of it and many lives have been snuffed out quickly in garages where engines were being run with the doors closed.

It is always possible to provide protection against this swiftly acting danger by insuring a sufficient supply of fresh air, but the traffic jams in the vehicular tunnel at Pittsburgh recently, caused by the strike on the electric lines which increase the number of motor vehicles, revealed a situation that was alarming. Many were those who narrowly escaped death from the fumes of the exhaust in this Pennsylvania city.

In view of this condition there cannot fail to be hailed with a high degree of satisfaction the announcement which is made by Dr. Hutchison of New Jersey, who claims to have perfected a chemical mixture, which when placed in the gasolene tank of an automobile makes more perfect the combustion and not only prevents the carbon deposits in the engine but eliminates the poisonous fumes.

That there is need for such protection has been repeatedly demonstrated. Had it been available for the use of those stalled in the Pittsburgh tunnel, there would have been none of those narrow escapes and rescue parties would not have been needed. There have been elaborate claims made for compounds to do one thing or another. Some make good and others fail. Inasmuch as Dr. Hutchison is chief engineer of Edison's laboratories there are reasons to believe that he is dealing with the facts and not making promotion claims.

Automobiles are rapidly increasing. The volume of poisonous gases that they are emitting every minute is enormous. [illegible] should taint the great outdoors to the point of saturation is not to be expected but the discovery of something that will neutralize the poison and render it harmless is a cause for gratification. With [illegible] combustion making engines more efficient it should be desirable [illegible] safety purposes.

BASKETRY CLASS MET TO CLOSE SEASON'S WORK

The basketry class of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women held a social Wednesday evening at the council rooms to mark the close of the work of the class for the season. The program for the evening consisted of games and dancing, after which refreshments of ice cream, cake and punch were served.

The rooms were tastefully decorated, the work finished by the class members during the year being the main attraction. The year has been most successful and a large amount of work has been done, much to the satisfaction of the members, who are looking forward to continuing the class next fall.

Sunday School Class Met

The regular meeting of the G. G. G. Sunday school class was held Monday evening at the Central Baptist church, eleven members being present. Miss Alma Carpenter was appointed chairman of a feast committee. The resignation of Mrs. Daniel Wadsworth as chairman of the visiting committee was read and accepted. Miss Beulah Whitley was elected to fill her place. The class voted to hold its meeting the first Monday in each month at the church unless invited out elsewhere. Refreshments were served by Miss Harriet Williams and Miss Helen Christ after which an enjoyable social hour was spent.

GAVE DRAMA UNDER MEN'S CLUB AUSPICES

Under the auspices of the Men's club of Park Congregational church, a three act drama, A Regiment of Two, was presented Wednesday evening in the Osgood Memorial parish house before an audience of about 100, which gave enthusiastic applause to the amateur actors who repeated the success they scored when they first gave the play two weeks ago at the Yantic Engine Co. entertainment.

The following was the cast:

Arthur Sewall, a theoretical warrior — Chas. Bentley
Ira Wilton, his father-in-law, another — Fred Manning
Harry Brentworth, Arthur's friend — Walter Hitchon
Reginald Dudley, an Englishman — James Wells
Jim Buckner, known as "the Parson" — Robert Lyon
Conrad Melzer, a plumber — Eugene Manning
Eliza Wilton, Ira's better-half — Lois Manning
Grace Sewall, wife of Arthur — Florence Sterry
Laura Wilton, daughter of Ira — Marion Gibbs
Lena, a German maid — Mary Flynn

The synopsis—Scene—The drawing room of the Sewall residence, New York city. Act 1, "In time of peace prepare for war." Act 2, "Off to the Front." Act 3, "Behold the Conquering Heroes Come."

Between the acts Harry Spicer was heard in a well rendered solo and selections were given by an orchstra consisting of Kirk Ricketts, piano, Bruce Rogers, saxophone, David Lyons, violin and George Gaskell, drums.

At Baptist Woman's Board

Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve and Miss Alice M. Dean left Wednesday morning for Waterbury where they were to attend the board meeting of the Woman's Connecticut Baptist Missionary society in the evening. Mrs. David A. Pitt left here at noon and will have charge of the devotional exercises at noon Thursday and Mrs. Ida L. Richardson and Miss Anna Storms leaves Thursday morning to attend the services.

Genuine Panama hats are made of the young, unexpanded leaves of the seamless screw pine, sometimes called the "jipyapa," a plant common in the tropics. The best Panamas are made in Columbia and Central America and require fully six months for completion. After special treatment to remove the soft part of the jipyapa leaf, the fiber is soaked to make it pliable. The weaving is done entirely under water. Fine quality Panama hats at one time sold for as high as $100 to $120 each.

DECLARES FAIRVIEW EQUAL TO BEST RESERVOIR WATER IN THE STATE

For a long time it has been a popular belief that Fairview reservoir was just teeming with fish, and tales have been told of the wonderful catches that might be expected if it were not forbidden waters to fishermen.

But that theory was exploded Wednesday morning when the nets were drawn in the fight draught made by employees of the state fish and game commission, who are hoping to transfer fish from the reservoir to lakes and ponds in this vicinity. Only 264 bass, bullheads, perch and pickerel with a quantity of roach, or "punkin seeds," were pulled up, and Winthrop Cone of Norfolk, who is in charge of the work, stated Wednesday night that this was a pretty fair indication that there would be no great lot of fishes to be taken out of Fairview. The expectation had been that there would be from 1,500 to 1,800 fish caught the first time the nets were drawn.

But Mr. Cone was enthusiastic in his praise of the reservoir as a water supply for Norwich. Not one person in a hundred in the town, he said, appreciates what a remarkably clear, clean body of water the community has in Fairview reservoir. For a long time, said Mr. Cone, Ridgefield reservoir has been given the palm for being the cleanest body of water in the state, but Fairview is its equal. In fact the bottom of the Fairview pond is so clean and the water so free of plant life that would make fish food that this furnished the explanation of why the quantity of fish falls so far short of expectations. Mr. Cone has been at the work of transferring fish from Connecticut reservoirs for about three years and in that time has had plenty of experience with many conditions of water supplies. In some reservoirs where he has put nets and traps down they would be covered with an accumulation of slime within a few days and the nets would have to be raised every few days to clear them as the fish will not go into the traps if the nets become foul. But at Fairview, he said Wednesday night, the bottom and sides of the reservoir are so free of plant life or any accumulation of mud or muck that nets could stay down a month without needing to be cleaned.

In the work that he is doing the first haul of fish is usually the best, he said. The fish taken Wednesday included 50 bass, 55 bullheads, 174 perch, 6 pickerel and half a bushel of "punkin seeds."

At the suggestion of Arthur E. Story of the board of water commissioners the "punkin seeds" were all put into the Mohegan park lake where they will provide good sport for children who want to fish. All the others were taken to Lantern Hill pond. The bass caught averaged about three-quarters of a pound, and a few of the largest were nearly two pounds in weight.

Another haul of the nets is to be made at an early hour this (Thursday) morning and the results from this will largely determine whether the work will be continued any longer. Twelve nets are set at different points in comparatively shallow water at the upper end of the pond, as the fish at this season of the year are working out of deep water into the shallow where there is more food to be found.

The transfer to other ponds is effected by the use of galvanized iron ash cans. The five men who are doing the work came equipped also with big rectangular galvanized iron tanks, which are used in case fish of such size are caught as would be too big to swim comfortably in an ash can, but so far it has not been necessary to use any of the tanks.

Mr. Cone expressed the opinion on Wednesday night that it would hardly be worth while to do this work at Stony Brook reservoir as he did not believe an artificial pond like this, of comparatively recent formation, would have any great accumulation of large fish in it.

Connecticut has been a pioneer in the work of transferring fish from reservoirs to ponds and lakes, accomplishing two desirable ends at the same time by relieving reservoirs of any oversupply of fish and supplying to ponds and lakes a large stock of adult fish that will propagate and be a more effective means of improving fishing than by stocking with fingerlings or fry of which probably a very large proportion perish when placed in ponds for stocking.

ST. PATRICK'S BOY SCOUTS MINSTRELS AT SANATORIUM

Wednesday evening the Boy Scouts of St. Patrick's church repeated for the entertainment of the 165 patients at Norwich State Tuberculosis Sanatorium the minstrels which they so successfully gave in the church hall May 6th. About forty boys went down, in cars loaned by Bernard Coyle, John H. Cunningham, Fred Aldi, Leonard Suntheimer, James J. Casey and James Purdon.

The Scouts gave the following program, there being many encores and the local hits going big with the delighted listeners:

Opening chorus, Oh! Black Joe; My Pal, James Casey; Blue Hoosier Blues, William Brewer; Oh, Susanna, James Nickerson; Little Pal of Long Ago, Rev. Rocco J. Guerriere; William Shannon [illegible]; Rainy Any More, Jane Moore; I Love You, Walter LaFontaine; If the Rest of the World Don't Want You, Go Home to Mother and Dad, Raymond Cote, Daniel Mack, James Nickerson, Raymond Coyle; I'm Going South, Raymond Coyle; Down in Kokomo, James [illegible]; chorus. The end men were James Casey, John Marks, William Shannon and James Moore. One of the features was a banjo solo by Robert Kirkup.

Later the boys visited the different wards, to entertain the patients there. The orchestra also played additional numbers for their pleasure.

The scoutmasters are: Leonard Suntheimer; Fred Aldi and John Hill. The minstrels were directed by Rev. Rocco J. Guerriere, who was assisted by John P. Corcoran.

Before the visitors returned to town Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent of the sanatorium had light refreshments served to the company.

SHOWERS GIFTS PRESENTED IN PRETTY MAY BASKET

A pleasant evening was spent by members of Division No. 54, Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., at A. O. H. hall on Main street when a miscellaneous surprise shower was given in honor of one of the members Miss Mary Roche, who is to be married on May 26th to Lawrence Connell of this city.

The committee in charge of the shower had prepared the numbers and arranged an entertainment in honor of the bride-to-be, which included songs, dances, and instrumental numbers. For dancing Mrs. Charles O'Neil was at the piano, and Mrs. Margaret McCarthy and Miss Mary Shea favored with vocal selections. One of the most enjoyable numbers of the evening was a group of accordion numbers by Mrs. Margeret McCarthy. Miss McCarthy also played [illegible] and the members executed a Scotch schottish, danced Irish jigs and Irish reels.

Later in the evening a huge May basket trimmed with pink, white and blue crepe paper was brought into the room and Miss Roche was asked to open the May basket, and upon doing [illegible] filled with gifts of [illegible], and household articles, for which she expressed thanks to the members of the auxiliary for their thoughtful acts.

The activities of the evening closed after 11 o'clock when refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the committee, as follows: Mrs. Nellie Fitzgerald, chairman, Miss Eva Hyde, Mrs. Nellie Woodmansee, Mrs. Julia Pratt, Mrs. Mary McCaffery, Mrs. Margaret Peterson and Mrs. Julia Brack, president of the auxiliary.

OLD PACKER MANSION FOR SUMMER BOARDERS

Packer, May 14— 4

Mrs. Max Linderman and Paul Mazkowitz of Madison Avenue, New York, city have rebuilt the Packer mansion, the ancestral home of the many Packers for over 75 years, and are opening it as "Hotel Packer" along up-to-date city lines for the accommodation of New York city boarders.

The home was built early in the last century for a summer home and was rebuilt and relayed in 1874 and has been the scene of many gatherings of notable people besides the immediate Packer family.

During the early presidential campaigns following the civil war Daniel Packer was an ardent supporter of Greely, Elisha Packer as enthusiastic for Grant and John Braleman, son-in-law of Stephen Packer being a powerful member of Tammany Hall in New York city, was of course intimate with democratic chieftains and the air was at times blue around the old Packer mansion.

All of these have long ago passed beyond the veil. The family occupied the home until all were gone. Following its closing it became the home of late Hiram Handy and his daughter Grace who was married to C. B. Montgomery in the old guest room nearly eight years ago and that family resided there until they moved away to Ohio.

Many New York and even Paris and London people have been guests at the old mansion home in its almost century of life and perhaps as a summer hotel under modern management this pretty spot may be a popular place again.

EASTERN CONN. BRANCH MEETING AT STONINGTON

(Special to the Bulletin)

Stonington, May 14—The spring meeting of the Eastern Connecticut branch of the Woman's Board of Missions was held at the Second Congregational church here today with an afternoon session only. The devotional service was based on thoughts obtained from daily Bible readings during Lent and prayer was offered by Mrs. Nellie Geer of Ledyard.

There were the reports of the treasurer and assistant treasurer and one by Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee of New London on the annual meeting of the New Haven branch.

An interesting talk was given by E. Curtis Guise of the American college of Madura, India. The collection was for the work of the board. There was prayer and benediction by the pastor, Rev. D. C. Stone. A lunch served by the ladies of the church preceded the meeting. Eight were in attendance from Norwich.

Fined in City Court.

In the city court Wednesday morning Deputy Judge Henry H. Pettis fined Gregory Bekris $5 and costs, amounting to $20.75 for intoxication and breach of the peace. The man could not pay and went to jail. Another man charged with intoxication was fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $14.30, which he paid.

ELEVEN E. CONN. PRISONERS PETITION FOR PARDON

Ninety-four from the state prison in Wethersfield have petitioned the board of pardons to be liberated. Their petitions will be heard by the board at its semi-annual session on June 9 at the state prison.

Only one woman petitioner is on the list, Mrs. Mabel Kenyon, who is serving a sentence of from 10 to 15 years for manslaughter. Mrs. Kenyon, who has been at the prison since 1920, was convicted of killing Dr. Henry Tetlow of Pawcatuck, Stonington. It was alleged that she went to his office armed with a gun for the purpose of shooting him, but the defense claimed she planned to commit suicide.

The petitioners from eastern Connecticut counties, are:

Windham County.

Edward Shackett, serving from four to 10 years for theft, two counts; convicted Jan. 12, 1921; fourth petition; claims son, age 9, needs his care.

Arthur Eldridge, serving from four to seven years for assault on female child under 16 years; convicted January 20, 1922; first petition.

Frank Duziak, serving from one to three years for attempt to rob; convicted May 19, 1922; first petition; claims he has been unable to obtain a parole.

Tolland County.

Charles Henry Bishop, serving life sentence for murder; convicted Dec. 20, 1906; eighth petition; claims he has been sufficiently punished, that he has been an "outside trusty" for over eight years; that a brother offers him a home and employment.

New London County.

Joseph Toscano, serving life sentence for murder, convicted Nov. 11, 1904; tenth petition; claims he has been sufficiently punished; that his aged mother in Italy needs his support; that, if pardoned, he will return to Italy.

John G. Bogardus, serving life sentence for murder; convicted February 9, 1909; second petition.

John Yurasz, serving life sentence for murder; convicted Feb. 25, 1909; fifteenth petition; claims his wife and son need his support, and that he has been sufficiently punished.

Frank Land, serving from four to 13 years for theft and attempt to escape from jail; third petition.

Simon A. G. Salsbury, serving life sentence for murder; convicted Oct. 9, 1918; seventh petition.

Mabel Kenyon, serving from 10 to 15 years for manslaughter; convicted Oct. 22, 1920; first petition.

How You Can Have "Naturally Curly" Hair

Follow the simple plan here suggested and you will be surprised beyond words to see the beautiful curl and lively lustre your hair will acquire. Merely apply to the hair before doing it up, a little liquid simerine, using a clean tooth brush for the purpose. The delightful wavy effect will suggest to any stranger that your hair is "naturally curly." The effect will last many days. Liquid simerine costs not to exceed twenty cents an ounce at any drug or department store, so it is quite economical to use. It leaves no sticky or greasy trace and cannot harm hair or scalp in any way. The hair will be quite manageable, whether long or bobbed—even on damp or windy days.

BULKELEY SMOTHERS ACADEMY TEAM WITH BOMBARDMENT OF HEAVY HITS

New London, May 14.—The Bulkeley High school baseball nine pounded three Norwich Free academy hurlers at Morgan park this afternoon for 17 runs and 19 hits, making the game a runaway affair from the very beginning. The final score of the game was 17 to 4 in the state high school champions' favor. When the ancient rivals opposed each other this afternoon there was a crowd present that will not be duplicated both in color and numbers for some time to come. Norwich was well represented among the spectators. It is thought by many that the girls from Norwich and New London outnumbered the male sex in attendance.

Although the score would indicate that the contest was slow and a drag-fest affair it was far from it. There were good hits and good fielding features for Norwich. Every attempt of the other team made to enlarge the score or make a good play in the field met with either a vociferous applause or a jeer.

Norwich Free academy was never a match for the Orange and Black for the first seven innings it was merely a procession around the bases for the Bulkeley team. Three pitchers, Segal, Steinman and Couture, made attempts to stop the hitting of the state interscholastic champions but to no avail. Segal, the ace of the Academy twirlers, lasted but three innings and then Steinman replaced him. Steinman was both wild and ineffective as his predecessor. He was allowed to linger on the mound until the eighth frame, when Couture took up the pitching burden. Segal was credited up for eight runs and eight hits. Steinman was also an easy mark for the Bulkeley batsmen and allowed nine runs and nine hits. Couture was on the mound but a short time and what he really could do against the Orange and Black if he was allowed to stay the route, one could not say for he pitched but one frame.

The Bulkeley pitching was good, although with the way the boys were hitting the ball the pitching did not have to be so good. Coach Robert T. Aldrich surprised everyone present by sending in Montali against the Red and White. Montali's pitching experience does not date so very far back. This is the first game that he started for the Orange and Black and did a fine job of it. He allowed but two hits in six innings and except for an error would have kept the Academy players away from the platter. Tillie Daniels, who relieved Montali in the seventh, came in at a time when the Bulkeley players were getting some him baseball out of their system. He allowed three runs and as many hits. It was off Daniels' delivery that McNamara got a three base hit and scored two of the Academy three runs in the last three innings he was on the mound.

Montali started off strong and struck out the first two men to face him the third batter was retired easily and then Bulkeley took its turn at the plate. Hutchison singled as a starter, a base on balls to Gaetano, Rice and Booth's line singles brought over two runs. In this inning Rice was nipped at the plate. But Bulkeley did not stop here and in the following inning four runs crossed the plate in a twinkling of an eye it seemed. Tombari fumbled on Tuttle's fly, Montali doubled to right Hutchison walked, two sacrifice hits and Booth's single with Mansfield's double were the ingredients needed for the four runs.

Bulkeley did not get its runs on errors, far from it, clean hits accounted for a majority of the tallies. However, Segal was liberal with his base on balls and when the Bulkeley players found they could get to first base without any effort on their parts to hit the ball they did so. The four base on balls Segal issued were quickly manufactured into runs. After the two runs were made in the third inning by Bulkeley, Segal was forced to retire and Steinman went into his position. The fourth found Steinman hitting Shefiott by a pitched ball, Mansfield followed with a double and Shefiott hoofed it home.

The remaining Bulkeley runs were made as the result of hard and timely hitting. The four runs made by Norwich Free academy were well scattered throughout the game. The first run in the third came as a result of an error and a steal of second and Kilroy's single. Singles by Segal and Hinricks in the seventh scored the second run and in the eighth two runs were scored on Barry's muff of Burke's grounder and McNamara's triple to right field. McNamara completed the circuit when a poor return was made of his hit. The score.

YANKS BEATEN BY WORST SCORE THIS SEASON

New York, May 14.—The New York Yankees suffered their worst defeat of the season here today, losing to the St. Louis Browns, 11 to 1. Hoyt was knocked out of the box in the fifth inning when St. Louis scored five runs. Pipgrass, a youngster was hit hard in the sixth when five more runs were scored. Shocker held the Yanks hitless until Pipgrass singled in the sixth. At bat Shocker drew four bases on balls.

The game was preceded by a parade and the raising of the world's championship pennant won by the Yankees last October. Judge Landis presided at the ceremonies. Babe Ruth was presented with a diploma for having selected the most valuable player in the American league series.

TAFTVILLE A. C. OPENS AGAINST THREADMAKERS

The Taftville baseball team will open the season Saturday afternoon at the Providence street grounds against the fast American Thread company team of Willimantic. The Threadmakers will use the same line-up in Saturday's game as will be used in the games in the state league. This should prove to be a real baseball attraction as it is reported that Taftville will put on an exceptionall fast team this season.

Connors Goes Under Knife.

New Haven, May 14.—George Connors, coach and trainer of the Yale track team and of the Yale football team, was taken to the hospital tonight and will be operated upon tomorrow for appendicitis and another minor ailment. It was learned tonight Connors will be laid up about four or five weeks and will probably be out of track events this season.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

Any inning. Any score. Runner on first base. No one out. Ball is grounded to first baseman.

How should first baseman throw ball to the shortstop who covers second in order to make a double play?

This is one of the most difficult plays the first baseman has to make as he has to throw the ball high in order to be sure and not hit the base runner going into second also to prevent throwing the shortstop off his stride as he runs towards second to take the throw. If a low throw is made the shortstop rarely recovers his balance in time to complete the double at first. When the first baseman throws the ball to the shortstop he must run over to first base and get in a position to take the return throw in order to catch the batter.

BRAVES HIT HARD AND BEAT LEAGUE LEADERS

Cincinnati, May 14.—Boston pounded Sheehan hard in the first inning today and assisted by a wild throw in the fifth inning, with a double play in sight, secured a lead which Cincinnati was unable to overcome. The final score was 8 to 2. Genewich pitched strong after the second inning, not a home player reached first base in the last five rounds. The score:

WILLS-MADDEN BOUT HAS AGAIN BEEN POSTPONED UNTIL MAY 26TH

New York, May 14. — The heavyweight match between Bartley Madden and Harry Wills arranged for tomorrow night at the Queensboro A. C. but postponed when the outdoor stadium was declared hazardous by fire officials, will be held there on Monday, May 26, if Fire Chief Kenlon approves alterations now being made.

Simon Flaherty, president of the Queensboro A. C., said tonight that all instructions suggested by the fire officials to make the structure safe in the matter of exits would be followed and that such changes would be completed in time to stage the battle May 26. The promoters will confer with Chief Kenlon when he returns tomorrow from Atlantic City.

The Queensboro officials also are interested in the promotion of fights at the Dreamland A. C. in Newark and if no agreement is reached with the fire department here it is understood that the fight will be staged in Newark.

CARPENTIER LEAVES FOR SCENE OF HIS BUTTE

Chicago, May 13.—After spending a day fighting crowds that followed him everywhere, Georges Carpentier, ring idol of France, departed tonight for Michigan City, Ind., for a few days' rest before starting training for his 10-round contest with Tommy Gibbons there May 21.

Carpentier was accompanied by Jack Curley, his American representative; Francois Descamps, his manager; Trainer Gus Wilson, Paul Fritsch, European lightweight, and Bartholome Molinero, a French-Italian middleweight.

There is a vast difference in the Georges Carpentier of 1924 compared with the Carpentier of 1921, who came to America to fight Jack Dempsey for the world heavyweight championship. Carpentier today appeared to be bigger, more robust, and more healthy and weighs about eight pounds more than he did three years ago.

Manager Descamps said Carpentier would go through with his match with Gene Tunney on any date agreeable. He said if the match could not be arranged for the week of June 16, Carpentier would remain until after the Fourth of July to accommodate Tunney.

Descamps, exhibiting a copy of the contract for the Tunney match, said there is nothing in the document that forbids the Frenchman in engaging in a contest before June 16 and that the only clause that is binding, stipulates that Carpentier must be in this country before May 26.

ENTRIES CLOSE FOR NATIONAL OPEN WITH SMALL FIELD

New York, May 14.—Entries for the national open golf championship closed today with 282 players listed by the United States Golf association for the sectional qualifying tournaments to be held May 27 and 28 at Worcester, Mass., and Oak Park, Ill. The finals will be held at Birmingham, Mich., June 5 and 6.

The entry falls considerably short of the expectations of officials who had prepared for about 400 starters but delayed entries, which will be accepted if mailed by today, are expected to put the field over the 300 mark. Of those received, the eastern qualifying section has a slight majority with about 150.

All of the leading professional stars and, with a few exceptions, the most prominent amateurs are entered. Outstanding among those absent from the list are Jess W. Sweetser, of New York, and Francis Ouimet, of Boston, former amateur champions, and the latter an ex-open titleholder. Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, the open king, is exempt from the qualifying tests.

GIBSON SILENT ON NEXT MOVE AGAINST CARPENTIER

New York, May 14.—Billy Gibson, Gene Tunney's manager, refused today to reveal his next step in the controversy over the services of Georges Carpentier, French light heavyweight. Gibson "marked time" today at the advice of his lawyers but said action would be started soon to prevent Carpentier's engagement with Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, at Michigan City, Ind., May 21 before the Frenchman meets Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion.

Gibson received a letter today from Francois Descamps, Carpentier's manager, explaining his sudden departure for Chicago without keeping his appointment to meet Gibson in a hotel here on Tuesday. Descamps said the Chicago promoters had insisted that he leave for Chicago immediately without lingering in New York. He concluded by saying that Carpentier would be ready to meet Gene Tunney as soon as he had "disposed of Tommy Gibbons."

DUGAS MEETS BARBER AT TAFTVILLE TONIGHT

As a result of his victory over Frank Barber of Danielson Tuesday evening Chip Dugas of Taftville goes into the second half of the twenty-string match at Taftville this evening with a lead of 31 pins. In Tuesday's match Dugas showed that he was hitting the pins getting an average of 111 for the match while Barber had a fraction over 108 average.

The match is attracting no little interest and it is expected that a large crowd of bowling fans from all parts of the county will be present at the encounter. Dugas goes into the match as the favorite by virtue of his lead and also by his impressive showing in his recent matches. Barber has been going bad during the past few matches but he is a bowler that is very liable to do the unexpected and win.

AMERICAN TENNIS INVASION OF EUROPE HAS STARTED

New York, May 14.—America's 1924 tennis invasion of Europe got under way today when the two top-ranking women's star—Helen Wills, national champion, and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, who lost the title to the California girl after having won it seven times—departed for abroad. Miss Wills sailed on the Berengaria and Mrs. Mallory on the Paris.

Upon the sturdy shoulders of Miss Wills rests the country's chief hope of international laurels, for the western star plans a campaign which she hopes will lead to a match for world honors with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French wonder-woman of the courts, in the Olympic games at Paris.

WISE COUNSELLOR SHOWS POORLY AT JAMAICA

New York, May 14.—Wise Counsellor, crack Kentucky colt which has ruled among Kentucky derby favorites, was badly beaten today in his first start as a three-year-old in the Stuyvesant handicap, $6,000, feature of the card at Jamaica track. The race, at a mile, was won by Ordinance.

Wise Counsellor finished fourth in a field of six three-year-olds that went to the barrier. The western star never was a contender and finished far back of the leaders.

Laurano was second and Samaritan third. Sherman and Swing Along also ran. The time for the mile was 1.38.

After the race, J. S. Ward, trainer and owner of Wise Counsellor, announced that the colt would not be shipped to Louisville for the derby.

Profs Nose Out Albany.

Albany, N. Y., May 14.—Successive singles by Graham, Ball and Wilson gave New Haven the winning run of today's 2 to 1 game with Albany in the ninth inning. Both Loftus and Odenwald pitched good ball. Three players were injured. Pitcher Colwell of Albany was hit in the mouth by a batted ball in batting practice, Shortstop Gallagher of New Haven was spiked in a play at second base and forced to retire and Outfielder Altenburg of Albany wrenched his right leg in sliding into second base and was carried off the field. Altenburg was hurt in the last play of the game.

Score:

Baltic All Stars Challenge.

The Baltic All Stars would like to arrange a game with any amateur team in Eastern Connecticut for Sunday afternoon, either in Baltic or away. They would like to hear from Fitchville, Yantic or any other team. Answer in Friday's paper or write James Stewart, Box 131, Baltic, Ct. They pay their own expenses and expect the other teams to do the same. This is an amateur team averaging 18 years.

Spalla on Way Here.

Rio Janeiro, May 14.— Erminio Spalla, the Italian heavyweight boxer, who delayed a projected trip to New York to fulfill an engagement at Sao Paulo, sailed for New York today on the American Legion. He is under contract with Tex Rickard for bouts in the United States.

Benedicto Santos, whom Spalla knocked out at Sao Paulo Sunday, was reported today to be seriously ill as a result of the Italian's blows.

Tigers Meet Yale in Polo Finals.

New York, May 14. — Princeton and Yale will meet Saturday in the finals of the eastern intercollegiate polo tournament by virtue of victories in the semi-final round of play today.

Princeton defeated Harvard, 7 to 4, while Yale triumphed over West Point by the same score.

Millies Smother Coal Heavers.

Pittsfield, Mass., May 14.—Pittsfield scored 13 runs in the first three innings and defeated Worcester, 15-5, here this afternoon. Baker hit a double and three singles out of his first four times at bat. Cousineau was put out of the game by Umpire Stafford for protesting a decision on a third strike in the second inning.

The score:

Pittsfield 7 1 5 1 0 0

WESTERLY

Mrs. Charles Warren Lippitt of Providence was an automobile visitor in Westerly and a business caller in Mystic Wednesday. Her chauffeur, David Mellow, driving a Pierce Arrow limousine, was the noonday guest of relatives in Westerly, where he formerly resided.

Mr. and Mrs. John Catto, who sailed from Havre, May 3d on the French line steamship Paris, arrived in New York Friday last and were guests of their daughter, Mrs. Paul Bottinelli, in Hoboken, N. J., where they formerly resided before leaving for Italy. Mr. and Mrs. Catto arrived in Westerly Tuesday, after an absence of five years and went to Bradford, to be the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Victor Gervasini. Mr. Catto's brother, Jacob, whom they left in Italy, a former Westerly resident, was reported again in the best of health.

H. E. Litchfield, of Boston, accompanied by James Smith, arrived in Westerly by automobile Tuesday evening. Mr. Litchfield will now make his summer residence here, as he has done in seasons past. During the winter he went as far south as Savannah, Ga., and passed considerable time in Washington, D. C., and Cleveland, O.

Westerly town tax assessors, Walter C. Hiscox, Howard E. Thorp and William H. Ledward, will shortly issue their yearly warning that, following the vote taken in the town of Westerly financial town meeting Feb. 5, 1924, at which a tax of $2.50 was voted, they will close their books on a date in June.

Simon E. Kinney of the West Side was a business caller in Providence Wednesday.

Milo M. Champlin was in Boston on business Wednesday.

Miss Susan H. Keith of Greenwich arrived in Westerly Wednesday en route to Watch Hill to get her cottage in readiness for occupancy during the season.

David Novogrod was a Boston business caller Wednesday.

George Gagnon of the West Side, who for the past several years has been convalescing from being gassed in the World war, was in Providence Wednesday for examination by a medical officer of the veterans' bureau to determine his fitness to take up vocational training.

Palestine temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. band of more than fifty pieces, of Providence, R. I., is to come to Westerly next Tuesday evening, under the auspices of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. and A. M., to give a concert.

Lewis Matthews of the Maxson Machinery Co. of Westerly, was a business caller in Boston on Wednesday and today (Thursday).

The pay car of the New Haven railroad, which has been run as a special train up to a short time ago, was attached to the 8.10 accommodation train stopping at the Westerly station Wednesday morning.

Judge Edward W. Blodgett will preside at the Westerly session of the superior court for Washington county which comes in this (Thursday) morning at 10.30 o'clock at the court house on Union street, following adjournment from the Kingston session held at the court house at West Kingston. Thirty-three cases are on the Westerly trial calendar.

In attendance at the annual convention of the grand chapter of Connecticut, Royal Arch Masons, held in the Masonic temple, Hartford, Tuesday, from Palmer chapter, No. 28, R. A. M., of Pawcatuck, were High Priest John A. Hoge, King Arthur E. Thompson, and Past High Priest Samuel Girven, delegates. Past Grand High Priest Arthur N. Nash of Pawcatuck also attended the session of the grand chapter, being accompanied to Hartford on Monday by Mrs. Nash, and participated in the pre-convention banquet Monday evening. Palmer chapter has a membership in Westerly and Pawcatuck of 341 which represents a roll number of 662, and April 20th, 1925, will hold its 60th annual convocation. Connecticut Grand chapter, R. A. M., has a membership of 15,978 in 44 subordinate chapters.

The funeral of George Fortin, was held Tuesday morning at 8.30 o'clock from his home, 196 Main street. Requiem high mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception at 9 o'clock, was sung by Rev. Daniel F. Sullivan, S. M. Burial was in St. Sebastian cemetery, the committal service being read by Father Sullivan. The bearers were Charles White, Edward Dennett, William Cardinal, Fred Morey, Mitchell Roberts and Joseph Lamoureux. Mr. Fortin was born in Bath, Me., April 27, 1859. He came to Westerly about a year ago, moving from North Adams, Mass. Besides his wife, he is survived by five daughters, Misses Ledowina, Lavina, Ella and Alma Fortin and Mrs. William Gregory, all of Westerly, three sons, Albert Fortin of Westerly, George Fortin of North Adams, and Eugene Fortin of the U. S. army barracks at Vancouver, Wash., a step-son, William Bishop of Westerly, and three sisters, Miss Mary Fortin and Mrs. Lydia Jette of Lawrence, Mass., and Miss Amanda Bedford of Danvers, Mass.

Mrs. Edward Congdon, of Maple avenue, was taken Wednesday noon in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps to the Homeopathic hospital in Providence, to undergo treatment.

Rhode Island State Council of the Knights of Columbus, in annual convention at the Columbus Club, Providence, Tuesday, adopted a resolution to participate in a monster parade in Providence on Columbus day, Sunday, Oct. 12. The 30 councils in the state will be represented. The convention passed a resolution suggesting to the supreme council, which will meet in annual conference in New York in August, to institute action leading to the observance of Columbus Day as a national holiday.

The state body approved a suggestion to the supreme council that the appointment of Charles P. McAlevy, of Pawtucket as a supreme director for three years be confirmed at the August meeting. An appropriation of $2,500 for the fourth scholarship fund at Providence College was made. The state council voted to hold its annual convention in Newport next spring.

The convention opened at 10.45 on Tuesday morning with preliminary remarks by State Deputy George B. Clegg, who was re-elected. Other officers elected are: Secretary, William P. Nolan of Providence; treasurer, James Hennessey of Edgewood; advocate, James E. Brothers of Providence; warden, Richard Herrick of Woonsocket; auditor, James E. Lyons of Newport.

The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. William Clark and Mrs. Karl Bishop.

MYSTIC

At the annual meeting of the Visiting Nurse Association of Mystic, Monday evening, reports of officers showed another very successful year for the association. The president, Mrs. Julia Coates, in her report spoke, particularly in regard to the generous sum resulting from the lawn party given last summer by St. Patrick's church for the benefit of the organization; also stated that it is the custom of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., to send out a representative periodically who visits different places to see what kind of work the visiting nurses are doing and that this representative has specially commended the work of the local visiting nurse, Mrs. Hilda Davis, and said that her record is one of the best she had seen.

The secretary in his report spoke of the active work done by the members of the board, who are all business men, and of the great interest they have manifested in the work, even taking time from their business affairs to participate in the yearly canvass for memberships. The annual canvass for memberships will start at once and it is earnestly hoped that all present members will renew their membership and that many new ones will be added. It only costs about one-quarter of a cent a day to become a member.

Men in the employ of the Mystic Valley Water Co., have been moving the main pipe at the corner of Broadway and East Main street, and water in the surrounding territory was shut off several hours Wednesday afternoon.

Invitations have been received here by several women of St. Mark's Episcopal church to attend a meeting of the committee on women's work in the diocese of Connecticut, to be held in Norwich today (Thursday) at Trinity church, the morning session beginning at 11 o'clock and the afternoon session at 2. The invitation is sent out by Mrs. E. C. Acheson, wife of Suffragan Bishop, E. C. Acheson, of Middletown. Those from here who expect to attend are Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Beauchamp, Mrs. George D. Johnson and Mrs. Eliza Denslo.

WESTMINSTER

On account of the funeral of Chauncey Frink, the meeting of the W. C. T. U. appointed for Wednesday was postponed to Thursday of the 15th at 2.30 at the home of Mrs. Hale Bennett.

Mrs. Wm. Greenman died at 4 a. m. Monday. She had been a semi-invalid for years, but accomplished a very surprising amount of work in her home. Her last illness was short and she had every possible car from her family with assistance at night from neighbors. Burial is to be at Westerly.

PLAINFIELD

A delegation of ten from the First Congregational church attended the Conference of Six church, held at Hanover all day Wednesday and felt privileged to enjoy the fine addresses delivered and to partake of the hospitality of the Hanover church. Among those who attended were Walter Kingsley, Mrs. Robert Generous, Mrs. Everett Dawley, Miss Helen Dawley, Mrs. Arthur Moffitt, Mrs. Eva Pike, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. William Harvey.

On Railroad avenue Wednesday afternoon a Buick touring car, owned and operation by a man from Moosup, and occupied by five people crashed into a large truck which was parked in front of Betterman's. According to what information could be obtained, the car was proceeding down the street toward the railroad crossing, when, without warning, one of two cars which were parked in front of Seney's store, drew out from the curb, and started up the street, the driver apparently not noticing that another car was coming toward him. The truck to hitting the other automofour cars to come abreast, there being another car parked across from the truck, and the driver of the car which was wrecked preferred hitting the truck to hitting the outher automobile and therefore crashed into the tailboard of the truck. The damage was slight, the right front mudguard being dented, and the hood and radiator cap suffering some damage. Arrangements were made to settle the matter out of court. Although there were other passengers in the machine beside the driver, there were no injuries.

Mrs. Robert Sykes of the Old Village, who is planning to sail for England in several weeks, received a handbag and several other useful gifts, presented her by friends from Pawtucket recently. She plans to leave May 24 with her daughter, Boston being the point of embarkation.

An enjoyable party was held at the home of C. L. Butler, Friday when the members of the eighth grade of Plainfield grammar school hung him a beautiful May basket. The evening was made enjoyable with games and other diversions, light refreshments being served.

A bazaar, entertainment and dance are planned for the benefit of U. H. S. Athletic association, to clear off the debt which has accumulated during the past year. Committees of the alumni and other of the townspeople have been working faithfully for some time to make this bazaar a success.

The cottage service is to be held at the home of Miss Helen Gallup, this (Thursday) evening. The subject of the meeting will be Homes Fires. Miss Helen Gallup will be the pianist, and there will be a violin solo by Miss Blanche Starkweather, and a vocal solo by Clarence Jeffers.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

The continued case of Aldo Bernarda, charged with keeping a slot machine and punch boards, came up in the borough court Wednesday morning. Mr. Barnarda stated that all of the bar and saloon equipment had been removed and the placed had been closed for several days.

Judge Heald imposed a fine of $100 and costs of $26.41, which was paid.

Papers have been filed in the office of the secretary of state Incorporating the McLaughlin Printing company. The officers are Lewis McLaughlin, president and treasurer; and Herbert L. Richard, vice president and secretary. The directors are Lewis McLaughlin, Carrie B. McLaughlin and Herbert L. Rickard. The corporation will take over the publication of the Stafford Press heretofore conducted by Lewis McLaughlin.

The borough officials have been assured by the Connecticut company that they will relay its track on Main street before the new road is built. The water company also has promised to replace the present six inch main with an eight inch pipe. Preliminary arrangements are being made preparatory to letting the contract for the building of the road.

ROCKVILLE

Mrs. Delia Dolloff entertained a few of the young people Thursday evening, when a surprise shower was given Miss Ada M. Woodmansee, who received a large number of presents. After a social time with instrumental music and singing, a collation was served.

Mrs. D. Alva Crandall and infant daughter were guests last week of friends at Groton.

Mrs. Albert S. Babcock and daughter, Mrs. Carlton Irish visited friends in Westerly Wednesday of last week.

Frank M. Hill was a recent caller in Boston.

Stephen J. McNaugh at one time well known as the financial backer of John L. Sullivan in the earlier period of that champion's career, died at his home in Providence, in his 53rd year.

GOSHEN

At the meeting of the Goshen Community club, May 7th, a very pleasing tableau was given.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Randall spent the week end with Lisbon friends.

This community was shocked and grieved to learn of the sudden death of George A. Kahn, of Franklin, Monday afternoon, the terrible accident occurring here at Camp Mowsen, through the premature discharge of dynamite while Mr. Kahn was doing a contract of blasting.

At Maple Hill, the air is fragrant with buds of Balm of Gilead. A handsome sight is the delicate pink peach blows this week.

On a recent day the crowing of a pheasant was heard. The sound of the first whippoorwill was noted on the evening of May 6th.

FIVE BOTTLES BROUGHT COMPLETE RELIEF

Hartford Lady Was On Strict Diet For Long Time—Then Turned To Tanlac.

Adding her voice to the thousands who are praising Tanlac for the return of their health and strength, Mrs. Emma Yockell, esteemed resident of 99 Hudson St., Hartford, Conn., says:

"After having to live on a strict diet for a year or more on account of stomach trouble and getting so nervous, weak and dizzy that I would have to remain in bed two or three days at a time, I determined to try Tanlac and that is the reason for the good health I now enjoy.

"Taking Tanlac was about the wisest thing I ever did. Five bottles have not only stopped the troubles that made me miserable, but I have gained nine pounds and have health and strength that make life a pleasure. Tanlac is better than good, it is wonderful."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

An Unusual Investment Opportunity for Persons Who Desire to Become Stockholders in the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company.

Limited Number of Shares of This Company's Capital Stock Is Still Availoble. Limit: 1 to 5 Shares to a Purchaser

SUCH an opportunity is seldom offered to the general public. It is made possible only by the Company's belief that a wide distribution of its stock will be mutually beneficial to the community as well as to the Company. The offer is extended for a LIMITED TIME ONLY to residents of Rhode Island and the towns and cities bordering on Rhode Island, even though they may not be served directly by the Company.

Demand for Shares in Past Has Always Exceeded Supply

Previous offerings of the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company's stock to the public have always been eagerly purchased by persons desiring to become part owners of this successful and prosperous business. Not only heads of families have become shareholders, but also wives, children and other relatives until today the Company's list of stockholders numbers 11,500 of whom 90 per cent. live in Rhode Island and vicinity.

Remarkable Dividend Record of the Company

The Company offering these shares has for the past 37½ years paid dividends regularly year after year without interruption, at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum on the par value ($50) of its stock. In addition to the 8 per cent. dividend, valuable "rights" have accrued to shareholders at times of new issues of securities, making the investment even still more attractive.

Stock May Be Purchased Under the Following Conditions

(1) Applications will be accepted for from 1 to 5 shares from any person not now a shareholder.

(2) Applications will be accepted until the available supply of stock is exhausted and allotments will be made strictly in order of their receipt.

(3) The price is $65 per share, payable in cash; or equal quarterly installments, beginning June 1st, 1924. Interest will be paid on installments from date payment is due until the stock is fully paid for.

(4) Those who pay in full on or before June 1st, 1924, WILL BE ENTITLED TO THE JULY 1ST DIVIDEND OF $1.00 PER SHARE.

Fill out the coupon and mail it to Mr. Franklin L. Hall, Treasurer, Narragansett Electric Lighting Co., 812 Turks Head Bldg., Providence, R. I., or write him for further information.

Ride in this world-famous Six

—the outstanding car in the $1000 field

POWER, luxurious roominess, low upkeep and long life at low price! . . . . a world-famous Six, the outstanding sensation of motordom today at $1045.

Now ride in it. Feel the thrill of its powerful six-cylinder L-head motor. Note that it embodies features found only in the most expensive cars. Consider that it is a product of a $90,000,000 company with 72 years of fine vehicle-making to its credit.

Compare it with competitive cars at near its price; then with cars that sell for several hundred dollars more. Compare it for beauty, comfort, roominess, upholstery, for obvious refinements.

Compare it, too, for ease of handling, flexibility, power, quietness and lack of vibration. Don't take anyone's word that this car or that car at its price is "just as good." Find out for yourself.

Studebaker will place a Light-Six at your disposal for this purpose any time you name.

Being the world's largest producer of quality automobiles, Studebaker is thus in a position to give the utmost for the least.

Buy no car at $500 or more without making this test. Don't buy blindfolded.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, May 14.—Stock prices moved irregularly high in today's early trading and then turned reactionary when bear traders renewed their pressure against the steel, sugar, motor accessory and oil shares. Thirty-one stocks established new low prices for het year while seven mounted to new high levels.

Weakness of Baldwin, which dropped 2 1-2 points below 106 to a new 1924 low, was one of the day's features. New minimum prices also were established by Dupont, General Motors, Studebaker, Willys Overland preferred, Stromberg Carburetor, Punta Alegree Sugar, Anaconda, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Montgomery, Ward, Sears Roebuck and Gulf States Steel.

Unfavorable steel trade reports, which included the statement that the industry was working at only 65 per cent. of capacity, probably inspired the selling of the steel shares. Republic and Gulf States Steels closed at net losses of 1 and 1 1-2 points, respectively, while most of th others declined fractionally. U. S. Steel closing practically unchanged at 96.

Heaviness of the sugar shares was in reflection of the weak tone of the raw and refined markets. Declaration of the [illegible] American Sugar Refining [illegible] dividend, which was believed in some quarters to be in danger, [illegible] a somewhat firmer tone to the [illegible] trading in the group. Coalers turned heavy in response to the easing of the meatal [illegible] a point or more in the early dealings being generally reduced to fractions before the close. Bad weather, which has resulted in reduced gasoline consumption has been an important factor in the recent selling of the oil shares, brokers reported.

Several stocks stood out against the [illegible] trend. Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron jumped six points on buying undoubtedly based on the possibilities of early dividend action. The recent increase in the Glen Alden rate has drawn attention to [illegible] Reading climbing three points and Lehigh Valley "rights" 1 5-8. New York Dock issues also developed strength on speculative expectations of increased earnings likely to result from the port development programme.

Atlantic Coast Line and Louisville and Nashville, which moved up three points each to 126 and 94 1-2 respectively, their best prices of the year, were the outstanding strong spots in the rail group. Buying of these issues was associated with expectations of special dividend developments at tomorrow's meeting of the board of directors.

Chesapeake & Ohio, which had been bought in some quarters on the theory that the dividend rate would be increased, fell back more than a point when only the regular dividend was declared but soon made up most of its loss. Norfolk & Western closed 1 5-8 lower at 119 3-8.

Call money ruled unchanged at 3 1-2 per cent. Business in the time money market was quiet with loans up to ninety days available at 4 per cent, while 4 1-4 was asked for the longer maturities. The bulk of the commercial paper business is still done at 4 1-2 per cent., although prime names are available below that figure.

Brisk recovery of the French and Belgian francs featured the quiet foreign exchange market. French francs rallied just under six cents and Belgian francs were [illegible] about five cents. Sterling held fairly steady around $4.36 3-4.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 14.—Renewed activiey in United States government issues today imparted a firmer tone to bond trading, although some of the early gains were lost in the final hour under the influence of a reaction in stock prices.

Accumulation of idle funds by banks and other institutions, hesitating, brought a resumption of Liberty bond buying. Two issues sold at the year's highest levels—the 3 1-2s returning to par and the third 4 1-4s touching 100 25-32nds. The treasury 4 1-2s established a new high record at 100 6-32nds.

Wall street's optimistic view of the foreign political situation was reflected in [illegible] tendencies of the French obligations, which improved with the recovery of the franc to around 6 cents. Liquidation of industrial liens in the late trading cancelled an early advance of almost 2 points in Ajax Rubber 8s and caused sharp declines in Wilson & Co., Virginia-Carolina, American Cotton Oil and Gray & Davis issues, the latter falling 3 3-4 points to a new 1924 low price at 80 1-4. With prices of raw and refined sugar declining, weakness also croped out in bonds of the sugar companies, including Punta Alegree and American Sugar Refining. Most of the railroad mortgages were in good demand.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 14.—Adverse crop reports fom Illinois and other soft wheat states together with less favorable conditions northwest were effective in making the wheat market today average a little higher in price. Closing quotations for wheat were unsettled, May $1.04 5-8 to $1.04 3-4 and July $1.06 1-8 to $1.06 1-4, with corn at a shade to 5-8c up, oats at a shade to 1-8c advance, and provisions ranging from 7c decline to a rise of 2 cents.

With the season at hand when crop complaints are an important factor, the wheat markket immediately showed itself sensitive to reports that throughout a large section of Illinois the crop was below normal and that many fields had only half a stand. Scattered reports of damage to various districts elsewhere in the winter wheat belt were also received, and with unseasonably cold weather retarding growth of spring wheat, commission houses leaned noticeably to the buying side of the market, conflicting advices, however, regarding the Argentine labor situation deterred buyers, and so, too, did uncertainty over the outlook for farm legislation at Washington.

At times, some standing orders to sell on advances tended to ease down the wheat market, but the effect of such selling proved transient. The fact that world stocks showed a decrease of 10,500,000 bfiushels for the week was a late restimulating influence. On the other hand, export demand was rather slow, and receipts in this country were somewhat larger than a while back.

With the weather too cold for corn planting and for sprouting, the corn market displayed a little more firmness than wheat. Oats were dependent on the action of other grain.

CURB MARKET.

New York, May 13.—Extreme irregularity characterized today's curb market. Heavy selling of Durant Motors, which broke 2 1-2 points to 12, a record for all time, and then recovered its loss, and the strength and activity of Lehigh Valley Coal, "rights," which closed 1 3-4 higher at 30 3-4, were the outstanding features.

Northern Pipe broke 7 1-2 points to 85½ on a reduction in the semi-annual dividend from $5 to $3; Standard Oil of Nebraska dropped 3 points and Prairie Oil & Gas and Standard Oil of Indiana, each fell back about a point. Other active oils held relatively steady.

Ford Motor of Canada broke 12 1-2 points to 441 1-2 in sympathy with the weakness of other motors on both the curb and the "Big Board." Radio and Chain Stores issues eased slightly. Chief interest in the public utilities group centered in the listing of new Southern Edison 6 per cent. preferred, which slipped from 90 1-2 to 90.

Copper shares were heavy in sympathy with the declining tendency of commodity prices.

HANG-OVER COUGHS

Now is the time to get rid of that stubborn cough which has been "hanging on" all winter. A few doses of the good, reliable FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND will speedily relieve same. Mrs Sarah Hock 241 St. Paul St., Memphis, Tenn., writes: "I have been wonderfully benefited by FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND. The first dose stopped my cough. It was a stubborn cough and I had been troubled with it since the first cold spell." Best for coughs and colds.

HUSBAND SAID WHY NOT TRY IT

Wife Said She Would. Result, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

East Hardwick, Vermont.—"Last winter I was not able to do any work at all. I had backache, headache, sideache, and was sick all the time for six months. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers, and my husband said to me, 'Why don't you try it?' So I said I would, and he went and got me a dozen bottles. It has done me more good than I can ever tell, and my friends say, 'What have you done to yourself? You look so well.' I tell them it is the Vegetable Compound that makes me so well and strong. There is no use to suffer with backache and pains. I will tell every one what it has done for me."—Mrs. FRED. PRIMO, Route No. 2, E. Hardwick, Vermont.

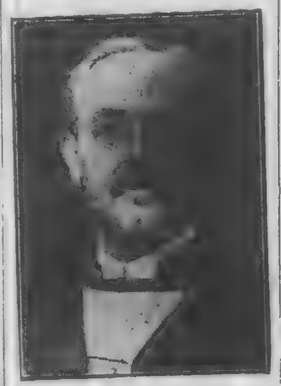
EPISCOPAL LAYMEN IN SECOND ANNUAL ARCHDEACONRY BANQUET

Two hundred clergy and laymen from the Episcopal parishes in New London county gathered Wednesday evening at the Wauregan house for the second annual dinner of the Laymen of New London Archdeaconry. Parishes represented were Norwich, Yantic, Poquetanuck, New London, Danielson, Putnam, Willimantic, Pomfret, Hebron, Colchester, Stonington, Mystic and Plainfield. The gathering had as guests and speakers Rev. E. Campion Acheson, suffragan bishop of Middletown, and Rev. Robert W. Patton, D. D., campaign director of the field department, National Council of the Episcopal church. Shortly after 8 o'clock the following menu was served, grace being said by Bishop Acheson.



REV. E. CAMPION ACHESON
Suffragan Bishop

Geer's orchestra furnished a concert programme during the banquet and Frederick H. Prothero was the song leader. Mr. Prothero kept things moving along and there was not a dull moment throughout the entire evening. There were songs by the single men, married men, the married men with one child, the married men with more than one child, the married men who have twins in the family and the married men with no children, and as a final feature of the song programme Mr. Prothero called on the various groups for songs.

Vocal selections by Mrs. W. Russell Baird, with violin obligato by Tyler Gilbert and a bass solo by Rev. T. D. Martin of Hebron, were greatly enjoyed by the gathering. Both Mrs. Baird and Rev. Mr. Martin were heartily applauded and were forced to respond with encore numbers.

Telegram to Bishop Brewster.

Raymond V. Congdon was toastmaster of the evening, and following his opening remarks, Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity church, this city, offered the following resolution which was unanimously adopted:

That John W. McKinley, secretary of the committee for the dinner, be instructed to send the following telegram to Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster

A large and representative gathering of laymen and clergy of the New London Archdeaconry assembled in Norwich for their annual dinner send affectionate greetings to their beloved bishop and sincere regrets at his inability to be present with them at this time.

Address By Dr. Patton.

The speaker of the evening, Rev. Robert W. Patton, D. D., campaign director of the field department, National Council of the Episcopal church, was introduced by Toastmaster Congdon.

It is a very great pleasure to be here at this remarkable representation of men, gathered not only to have a good time, but to think of some of the great things that concern the Kingdom of God, said Rev. Dr. Patton. His address dealt largely with the nation-wide campaign.

When we start an undertaking for the church we must first have a clear idea of what we are driving at, he said. Second, we must have a high sense of the value of the thing we are to achieve and the third thing we must do is to devise a correct method. These are, the fundamental principles of the nation-wide campaign. The nation-wide campaign is just the method. The church's programme is the objective.

It started as a national movement in 1919, but it really was started back in 1909. Speaking of his missionary efforts throughout the southern states when he was provincial secretary of the south he said it took ten years to get Richmond, Baltimore, New Orleans and Atlanta to understand this thing and to get together and work. At that time the church in he south was vastly more disjointed than the diocese of Connecticut, for instance. Dr. Patton spoke of his appointment in 1946 as provincial secretary of the south and of the rather vague duties he was to perform. He told of his many visits to parishes throughout the south, of the thousands of miles he traveled and of the many mission addresses he made. He spoke of the little he felt he had accomplished in eighteen months of such work and said he was on the point of resigning when it was suddenly brought home to him on a railroad train that it was organization the parishes lacked.

Fine Spirit In Connecticut

The men who accomplish great things are those who inject their personalities into organized workers, he said. There is one [illegible] only why men and women give of their time, their money and their prayers. They give because they are interested and they give in proportion to their interest. There is no place, east or west, north or south, where there is finer spirit among the laity that there is right here in Connecticut. Speaking of the value of organized effort back of any movement Rev. Dr. Patton said. Imagine General Pershing going across to the other side and trying to stem the army of Germany with a corps of officers. That is what the church is doing. The church expects the bishop and his clergy to do the impossible. The speaker said in effect that the bishop and clergy need the cooperation of organized parishes to bring success to their efforts. God never attempts to do anything except through organization, so far as we know, he said.

There is a difference between organizations and organization. The church has too many organizations and it has not one-tenth of the organization it ought to have. Nine men out of ten will believe and do what the 10th man tells them to do if the 10th man is carefully selected and educated to lead the other nine.

The gospel of Jesus Christ was from the beginning a world gospel. Read your new testament over this week See how often He talks of the world and never mentions Norwich or Richmond. I am the light of the world. He said, and then, Ye are the light of the world, the salt of the earth. Jesus said, I pray Thee ,Father that they may be one in order that the world may know that Thou hast sent Me.

Speaking of the miracles of Jesus, Rev. Dr. Patton said, I am not a modernist enough to question those natural facts of a supernatural being (Applause). Your parish is not your field. Your parish is your force for world service.

Before bringing his address to a close the speaker made reference to the great earthquake in Japan which destroyed the Episcopal church building there. Beyond the scene of greatest tragedy of Christian history. A whole self-supporting diocese has been destroyed over night. With reference to the great influence of Japan over the yellow race he said, As goes Japan in the coming generation so goes Asia. We can't let the church stay in ruins in Japan.

Bishop Acheson Speaks

Following a delightful solo by Mrs Baird with violin obligato by Mr. Gilbert, Toastmaster Congdon presented Bishop Acheson who said he would speak very briefly on account of the lateness of the hour. Bishop Acheson said Bishop Brewster would have been present if he could, but that his preparations for the coming convention made it impossible for him to come. Bishop Acheson said he was greatly impressed by the manner in which the nation-wide campaign had been put before the gathering by Dr. Patton and expressed the hope that those present would carry the speaker's message back with them to their parishes.

We have no finer body of laymen anywhere than we have right here in Connecticut, said the bishop, but the fact is they are not coordinated. Any individual that tries to separate himself from the church weakens himself and weakens the world.

Speaking of the Japan earthquake as an awful disaster Bishop Acheson went on to tell of the splendid spirit shown by the Japanese toward the church. He said that just before the earthquake came plans had been completed for the consecration of two bishops in Japan. After the earthquake the plans were carried out and the two bishops were consecrated without even a roof over the ruined church. They are going ahead as if nothing had happened. The call to us to rebuild the church is a great call. If we put before out people the issue and give them all the information we will have a response.

At the close of the bishop's remarks a vote of thanks was extended to the committee in charge of the table decorations which were arranged by Miss Mary Richards, Miss Mary Osgood, Miss Martha Osgood and Mrs. J. Eldred Brown under the direction of Francis Gilman.

The clergy and laymen of the out of town parishes extended a vote of thanks to the Norwich and Yantic parishes which parishes had charge of the supper. The singing of the Star Spangled Banner and the Doxology brought the banquet to a close shortly after 11.30 o'clock.

The committees in charge were as follows:

TALKS TO ROTARIANS ON JAPANESE QUESTION

Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, was the speaker at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. Dr. Pitt, who for many years was a resident of California, took for his subject the Japanese Problem in California and treated it strictly in a neutral way. The speaker has made a deep study of the situation and together with first hand knowledge of the situation, due to his residence in California, his talk was extremely interesting and instructive. Dr. Pitt spoke as follows:

There were very few Japanese in the United States before 1890. Probably not more than 2,039. In the next ten years their number greatly increased so that by 1900 there were 24,326, but the increase wave of immigration reached its height during the next decade. By 1910 the Japanese in the United States numbered about 100,000, having quadrupled in ten years.

The [illegible] immigration from Japan was greatly augmented by the Indictment [illegible] Hawaii, Mexico and Canada. Many Japanese who had come to Hawaii to work on the sugar plantations felt that there were better wages and greater opportunities for them in the United States, so they left the islands and came to the mainland. They were encouraged, especially by the [illegible] of Seattle and San Francisco who were desirous of attaining cheap labor. Some of these contractors were represented by [illegible] Sometimes they advertised [illegible] Japanese papers published [illegible] Cheap rates of passage were secured and in some instances all other assistance was given to those wishing to reach the mainland.

Later when the Japanese government discouraged immigration direct from Japan, many went to Hawaii as a stepping stone on their way to this country, so that from 1902 to 1907 the indirect Japanese immigration to America was nearly as great as the direct.

Most of those who came were young men. Over half of them were [illegible] years of age and only five in every hundred were 40 or more. Some came to obtain an education. Some were merchants, others came seeking an opportunity to better their industrial condition. Nearly all of these represented the most ambitious and the most intelligent classes.

California is especially concerned with the Japanese problem because the majority of the Japanese in the United States are in California. Only one other state, Washington, has any considerable number and she has but one-sixth, whereas California has three-fifths of all the Japanese in the United States. Not only are most of these aliens in California, but most of them are concreated in certain sections of California. Not quite half of them are located in certain cities and a little more than half in country districts where intensive farming is carried on.

In the cities they have been especially welcome in domestic service and as householders, day workers and help in hotels. They have organized to supply the demand for temporary and irregular service and live as near the homes [illegible] service as possible. In no other way have the Japanese contributed more to the comfort of the [illegible] than by this temporary [illegible] They are not employed in factories to any [illegible] to the objection [illegible] which have [illegible] employment is with [illegible]

The [illegible] Japanese have [illegible] Several things have [illegible] them into business [illegible] that they were discriminated [illegible] for the whites and another is that the Japanese are very ambitious and are desirous of not working for others always. Indeed, the chief objection to the Japanese in business [illegible] has been getting a foothold in American trade. They are accused of [illegible] made possible by cheap labor, longer hours' work and their willingness to accept a lesser profit than the white competitors.

Because of all this there was organized the Anti-Japanese Laundry leagues which have been very active in their opposition.

Chief Problem in Country.

The chief problem in California, however, is not so much in the cities as in the country. Sixty-five per cent. of those gainfully occupied were engaged in agriculture. These may be divided into laborers and farmers. The number of Japanese laborers in intensive farming is very large, in the sugar fields, in the berry patches and in grape picking they predominate in most communities.

The [illegible] commissioner of labor [illegible] predicated on analysis of [illegible] and requirement but the positive expression of the majority of the growers of fruits and such products as are effected by the demand that this labor must continue to be drawn from sources beyond the Japanese races. The competency of both Chinese and Japanese to meet all the requirements in these industries of the orchard, the vineyard and the field is unquestioned and unquestionable." The anti-Japanese feeling was so strong that this report was never published and the [illegible] passed a resolution disapproving [illegible] favor the farmers of California who regard Asiatic labor as essential [illegible] for in favor of any greater immigration of Asiatics than we now have.

The advance of the Japanese as farmers has been very rapid. They are ambitious and are desirous of being independent. It is an honor among them to own land and they have been willing to pay the highest rent or price for it. This rapid advance of Japanese farmers led many in California to fear for the future and this led to the anti-Japanese legislation passed in 1913.

First Demand For Exclusion.

The first organized demand for exclusion occurred at a mass meeting held in San Francisco just twenty-four years ago this month. A resolution was passed, urging the adoption by act of congress for the total exclusion of all classes of Japanese other than members of the diplomatic staff. The state legislature shortly afterward appealed to congress to extend the Chinese exclusion law to all Asiatics. A year later the San Francisco "Chronicle" took up the matter and conducted a successful campaign against the Japanese. In May of that year there was organized The Asiatic Exclusion League, consisting chiefly of the trade unions which in an earlier day had bitterly opposed the Chinese. Those who were the leaders in this exclusion league were also the leaders in the government of San Francisco and they were the ones who were responsible for passing a resolution in the board of education, May, 1905, in favor of seperate schools for Chinese and Japanese pupils; but nothing further was done with this until after the great fire when a separate school order was carried.

Now it was this school question which made the Japanese question of international interest and caused President Roosevelt to invite the San Francisco board of education to a conference in Washington. Out of his grew the Gentlemen's Agreement in 1907 to the effect that "the Japanese government shall issue passports to the continental United States only to such of its subjects as are not laborers or are laborers who are coming to the continent seeking to resume a formerly acquired domicile, to join a parent, wife or children residing here or to assume active control of an already possessed interest in a farming enterprise in this country.

After the president's order of March 14, 1907, these provisions were applied in the granting of passports to Hawaii also. This agreement has been faithfully lived up to by Japan and accomplished what it was intended to do in restricting Japanese and Korean laborers to this country. Our commissioner general of immigration testifies that this agreement is far more effective in regulating Japanese immigration than is the exclusion law in regulating Chinese immigration.

From 1907 until the present, the Japanese question is not so much a question of their coming to the United States as to their life and work in this country and to the treatment they have received.

Their right to the land was questioned before 1913 by the state legislature but a large majority decided against Japanese ownership. Indeed the decision was against them even in the matter of leasing for the lease can be for only three years and for berries and asparagus this is altogether too short a time.

Up to 1913 a republican government in California was under the influence of a republican government in Washington but by 1912 all was changed and then it was that a progressive republican government in California began to resent the intereference of a democratic government in Washington. From 1913 to the present the Japanese question in California has not seemed so acute.

Center of Stage Changes.

The Japanese question at the present time is unique in this, that the center of the stage has changed from the Pacific coast to Washington. It is well, however, to remember that Representative Johnson, who fathers the present immigration bill is a Pacific coast man. Anyone who understands the question cannot help wondering if Mr Johnson did not take advantage of the present temper of the people against immigration to put over this discriminatory legislation against the Japanese. Whatever we may think of that, nearly all are agreed that it has not been done in a way conducive to the development of friendship and good-will between Japan and the United States. Anyone who dares to look into the far future must hope that President Coolidge will be successful in asking for time so that the whole matter can be adjusted in a way acceptable to Japan and for the best interests of the United States.

Too often the Japanese question has been made the football of politics. Every forward-looking citizen should rejoice that we have a president who refuses to make it the football of politcis even on the eve of a primary election: and his victory over Senator Johnson in California is a fine testimony to the balance of the American people even in the presence of a race issue like that of the Japanese on the Pacific coast.

Dr. Pitt was given a hearty vote of appreciation at the conclusion of his most interesting talk which was heard with close attention.

At the business session President Hugh B. Campbell presided and Richard L. Tarrant acted as song leader. There was a large numoer of visiting Rotarians present and they responded gracefully to a request to sing. There was a political duet by Mayor Milo R. Waters and George L. Ingalls with Mr. Ingalls as soloist.

Several announcements were made by Secretary J. Nelson Weymouth, one being the tentative date for the contest dinner to be given the Norwich club by the Meriden club. The date was set as June 10th. It was announced that the Ladies Night of the New London club would be held on next Wednesday evening and a large number of Norwich Rotarians signified their intention of being present.

Secretary Weymouth also read an invitation for club members to be present at the forestry meeting at Devil's Hop Yard on Saturday, May 24th

Baseball matters were discussed and E. LaRue Bliven was chosen manager of the team for the year and Ed Harris will act as captain. Practice will begin next week in preparation for the summer schedule which will include a series with the Lions club and with other Rotary clubs in the state.

SMYRNA COLLEGE GRADUATE WAS CONFERENCE PREACHER

The conference of the six churches was held at the Hanover Congregational church Wednesday, one hundred and fifty-eight being present. Rev. Roderick MacLeod, pastor of the church presided, conducting the opening exercises. The choir sang an anthem, and prayer was offered by Rev. Maurice Reynolds, chaplain of the Artillery School at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, who is on a 45 days' leave, visiting his father, Rev. W. J. Reynolds in Lisbon. Mr. McLeod appointed Miss Lucy Baldwin, Rev. J. P. Richardson and Rev. Wm. Muttart as resolutions committee. Mrs. Francis G. Way of East Glastonbury sang Open the Gates of the Temple as a solo. The sermon was by George P. Michaelides of New York city, a graduate of Smyrna college. His subject was Christian Internationalism, which he said is to be brought about by brotherhood, peace, love, esteem and sacrifice—no man living unto himself or country living to itself. Christ did not discriminate. He was interested in men. Place humanity above all nations, and the cross of Jesus above all. Is it God or Mammon which shall rule? Is America to be noted for things that in years to come will have perished, when she should be bending her efforts to promoting peace and brotherhood?

After the benediction dinner was served by the women of the church in the parish house.

The business session was held at the opening of the afternoon service. The clerk, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, read the report of the last conference, which was accepted. The roll was called showing from the churches present, from Pauchaug to be 5; Plainfield 11; Preston City 29; Jewett City 22; Newent 11; Hanover 50 and visitors 30.

The resolutions recognized the preparations which had been made for the conference in the decorations of roses, the music and the excellent dinner. Particular pleasure was expressed in having at the conference Chaplain Maurice Reynolds, representing not only the American army, but also the family of Rev. William Reynolds. Esteem was expressed for the inspiring and instructivxe address of Mr. Michaelides. Mention was made of the keen anticipation of hearing the afternoon speaker.

The song service was led by William G. Park. Mr. McLeod read the scripture from Hebrews 11. After an anthem by the choir, an address was given by Rev. Harold Phillips of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., pastor of a Baptist church. His subject was A New Earth—an unfulfilled and as some think an unfillable prophesy. The hope of a bright future is what inspires the Christian to press on. Who is to bring the new world and by what agencies? It is to be done by getting human action and agencies. Each person will have to help God bring it about. Righteousness is something people must live—God cannot live it for them. We need personal [illegible] and international righteousness. Christianity, democracy and science cannot [illegible] about, without God, beyond [illegible] on the part of men. The new earth will come when we get [illegible] to live up to the doctrine [illegible] brotherhood of man, love the good things in this and every other country, and hate the evil. The [illegible] closed with the benediction by the pastor of the church.

JAIL AND FINE ON CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

John Rydel of New London, driver of an automobile which struck a fence and turned over on the Norwich-Westerly road in the town of Preston near the Norwich city line in April pleaded guilty to manslaughter when presented on the criminal docket in the criminal superior [illegible] New London Wednesday. A man and a girl were killed in the accident. Judge John P. Kellogg imposed a fine of $400 and sentenced Rydel to six months in jail.

William E. Wilson of this city pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor law and was fined $200 and costs which he paid.

John P. Onderduck of Waterford pleaded guilty to theft of poultry from William Caldwell on April 19 and was fined and given a three months jail sentence. John Billsellg, 15, who was with him in the theft was given a jail sentence of three months which was suspended and he was put on probation.

John G. Cheneski of this city, who is charged with embezzlement in connection with the sale of steamship tickets, had his case continued to the September term. His bonds were raised from $500 to $1,000.

Mortimer Conley of this city, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, had his case continued to the September term.

Henry Gladewski and Frank Antonias, both of East Lyme, charged with statutory burglary, were each given four months in the county jail with a suspension of sentence to the January term of the court.

Salvatore Sabillio, charged with attempting to influence a juror, pleaded not guilty and his case will be heard later.

When court opened Wednesday morning it was learned that State Attorney Warren B. Burrows, who [illegible] Tuesday got out of bed to attend to his duties at the court had suffered a slight relapse and was forced to remain at home. His case was [illegible] by Thomas [illegible] Stanton [illegible] was assisted by Attorney Russell [illegible] Burrows, Attorney Hall [illegible] still [illegible] New London.

PROSPERITY RESTS ON TAX REDUCTION, PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TELLS CONGRESS IN VETOING THE SOLDIER BONUS BILL

In Returning the Bill to the House, the Chief Executive States That He Can Seen No Justification For Its Enactment—Would Cost Each Individual in the Country $35, the Average Family $175 With an Expenditure of at Least $3,145,000,000 Over a Twenty Year Period—Informs Congress That an Insurance Provision Has Already Been Provided, and That We Owe No Bonus to Able Bodied Veterans—Declares We Must Abandon Patriotism or Abandon the Bill—Leaders of Both Houses Predict That the Veto Will Be Overridden—Votes May Be Taken Saturday.

[illegible] May 16—The soldier [illegible] was vetoed by President [illegible] on the grounds that it [illegible]ly unsound and morali[illegible]

The bill, he [illegible]d commit the country for [illegible] of twenty years to an ad[illegible]erage annual appropriation [illegible] and at the end of that [illegible]e necessary to sell to [illegible] and a half billion dol[illegible]t major operation in [illegible]e said might be dis[illegible]

[illegible]e asserted that the dis[illegible]non-being given treat[illegible]insurance had already [illegible]d for all veterans.

Claim Veto an Insult

[illegible]e veto message was read in the [illegible]on its being receiv[illegible]e and as the reading was con[illegible]d "vote, vote," rang [illegible]confusion Represen[illegible]fourth, the republican [illegible]ward unanimous consent that [illegible]e voted upon for re-passage [illegible]day. This and a simi[illegible]ed to delay a vote until Mon[illegible]ntered to.

[illegible]entative Rankin," democrat, [illegible]demanding an imme[illegible]aracterized the message [illegible] to the world war vet[illegible]ers of both parties man[illegible]er, to delay the vote [illegible]day. This decision was [illegible] a vote of 179 to 171, advo[illegible]ter their ranks would be [illegible]d through return of ab[illegible]e for a vote of a later date.

[illegible]ntative Longworth and Rep[illegible]ve Oldfield, of Arkansas, [illegible]wald, both predicted the [illegible]ers would easily be passed in the [illegible]e over the veto by the necessary [illegible]majority.

TEXT OF THE MESSAGE VETOING BONUS BILL

[illegible] of Representatives:

[illegible]d, without ap[illegible]n 1922, a bill 'to provide [illegible]ensation for veterans of [illegible] war, and for other pur[illegible]

"It provides a bonus for the [illegible] the World war and de[illegible]who fell. To ever[illegible]ose maximum [illegible]owed $30, this [illegible]is to be paid immediately in [illegible]To each of its beneficiaries [illegible]ho not to receive such immedi[illegible]cash payment, there is to be [illegible]ded free insurance under a 20-[illegible]month plan. The face value [illegible]e to be based upon the [illegible]the average amount [illegible]ha, due at the ex[illegible]ion or at death [illegible]the issue of two [illegible]the holder of a policy may bor[illegible]row thereon from banks at reasonable rates of interest if amounts so borrowed are not repaid by the veteran the government is obligated to pay to the banks his indebtedness which ultimately reduces the maturity value of the policy.

Money Requirements.

"An appropriation of $146,000,000 for the fiscal year 1925 will be required to provide the prorated annual cash payments to those not receiving cash of the insurance, and to meet such insurance. This does not include administrative costs, which will amount to approximately $6,500,000 the first year. For the fiscal year 1926 an appropriation of $155,500,000 will be required and the annual appropriations for the twenty-year period will aggregate, according to the lowest estimate, $2,280,758,542. These and the other figures herein are from the veterans' bureau, but the treasury estimates are materially more.

Lowest Estimate $3,145,000,000.

"That part of the annual appropriation not required to meet the cash bonus or to pay policies maturing on account of death will be invested in government bonds. The face value of the bonds thus acquired plus the interest thereon reinvested will equal during the 20-year period the maturity value of the insurance policies, aggregating at the lowest estimate $3,145,000,000.

"The money spent for the acquisition of these bonds manifestly cannot be spent for any other purpose, no matter how urgent our other requirements may be. In other words, we will be committing this nation for a period of twenty years to an additional average annual appropriation of $114,000,000. This of itself, should require most serious reflection, but if we are to have such commitment it should be in some form which would be in harmony with recognized principles of government finance. The provisions of this bill are not so in harmony. Under it the government will not have in the fund in 1945 two and a half billions of dollars. All it will have will be its own obligations, and it will owe two and a half billions of dollars cash. It will then be necessary to sell to the public this two and a half billions of bonds—a major operation in finance which may be disastrous at that time and may jeopardize the value of federal securities then outstanding.

Nation as Whole Our First Concern.

"We have no money to bestow upon a class of people that is not taken from the whole people. Our first concern must be the nation as a whole. This outweighs in its importance the consideration of a class and the latter must yield to the former. The one compelling desire and demand of the people today, irrespective of party or class, is for the tax relief. The people have labored during the last six years under a heavy tax burden. This was necessary to meet the extraordinary costs of the war. This heavy assessment has been met willingly and without complaint. We have now reached a financial condition which permits us to lighten this tax burden. If this bill becomes law, we wipe out at once almost all the progress five hard years have accomplished in reducing the national debt. If we now confer upon a class a gratuity such as is contemplated by this bill we diminish to the extent of the expenditures involved the benefits of reduced taxes which will flow not only to this class, but to the entire people. When it is considered that less than $40 a year would pay for the average policy provided by this bill, there is strong ground to assume that the veterans themselves would be better off to make that small payment and be relieved of the attendant high taxes and high living costs which such legislation would impose upon them. Certainly the country would. We have hardly an economic ill today which cannot be attributed directly or indirectly to high taxes.

Prosperity Rests on Tax Reduction.

"The prosperity of the nation, which is the prosperity of the people, rests primarily on reducing the existing tax burden. No other action would so encourage business. No other legislative enactment would do so much to relieve agriculture. The drastic executive campaign for economy in government expenditures has but one purpose—that its benefits may accrue to the whole people in the form of reduction in taxes. I cannot recede from this purpose. I am for the interests of the whole people. The expenditures proposed in this bill are against the interests of the whole people. I do not believe they are for the benefit of the veterans.

"The running expenses of the government for services and supplies must be met. Certain other obligations in the nature of investments for improvements and buildings are necessary, and often result in a saving. The debts of the nation must be paid. The sum of all these is a tremendous amount. At the present rate it is nearly $35 for each resident of our country, or $175 for each average family every year, and must be for some time. This bill calls for a further expenditure in the aggregate of nearly $35 for each inhabitant, and Insurance Already Provided.

"If this bill be considered as insurance, the opportunity for such a provision has already been provided. Nearly $3,000,000,000 of war risk and government life insurance is now outstanding, and over $500,000,000 has been paid on such policies. When this provision was made in 1917 it was on the explicit understanding of the congress that such insurance was to relieve the government of subsequent contributions. The then secretary of the treasury said in relation to the proposed insurance act: 'It ought to check any further attempts at service pension legislation by enabling a man now to provide against improvement through old age, partial disability or death resulting from other causes, and to give all this protection to those kindred who may be dependent upon him and who do not share in the government compensation.' This opportunity was afforded all those who entered the service. It was distinctly understood that it covered every obligation on the part of the government. The intent of this bill now to provide free insurance lacks both a legal or moral requirement, and falls into the position of a plain gratuity.

Owe No Bonus to Able Bodied.

"Considering this bill from the standpoint of its intrinsic merit, I see no justification for its enactment. We owe no bonus to able-bodied veterans of the World war. That is the duty of every citizen is to the nation. The veterans of the World war performed this first duty. To confer upon them a cash consideration or its equivalent for performing this first duty is unjustified. It is not justified when considered in the interests of the whole people; it is not justified when considered alone on its own merits. The gratitude of the nation to these veterans cannot be expressed in dollars and cents. No war exists by which we can either equalize the burdens or give adequate financial reward to those who served the nation in both civil and military capacities in time of war. The respect and honor of their country will rightfully be theirs for ever more. But patriotism can neither be bought nor sold. It is not hire and salary. It is not material, but spiritual. It is one of the finest and highest of human virtues. To attempt to pay money for it is to offer it an unworthy indignity which cheapens, debases and destroys it. Those who would really honor patriotism should strive to match it with an equal courage, with an equal fidelity to the welfare of their country, and an equal faith in the cause of righteousness.

Provisions For Disabled Veterans.

"I am not unmindful that this will also embraces within its provisions the disabled of our veterans and the dependents of those who fell. To state that the disabled veterans and these dependents are entitled to this additional gratuity is to state that the nation is not meeting its obligation to them. Such a statement cannot truthfully be made. The nation has spent more than two billion dollars in behalf of disabled veterans and dependents of those who died. It is now spending for compensation, training, insurance, and hospitalization more than $400,000,000 annually. Solicitude for the disabled veterans and the dependents of those who lost their lives is the nation's solicitude. To minister to their every need is a sacred obligation which will be generously and gratefully met. The nation stands ready to expend any amount needed for their proper care. But that is not the object of this bill.

Abandon Patriotism or Abandon Bill.

"America entered the World war with a higher purpose than to secure material gain. Not greed, but duty, was the impelling motive. Our veterans as a whole responded to that motive. They are not asking as a whole, they do not want as a whole, any money recompense. Those who do seek a money recompense for the most part of course, prefer an immediate cash payment. We must either abandon our theory of patriotism or abandon this bill. Patriotism which is bought and paid for is not patriotism. Our country has maintained the principle that our government is established for something higher and finer than to permit those who are charged with the responsibility of office, or any class whose favor they might seek, to get what they can out of it. Service to our country in time of war means sacrifice. It is for that reason alone that we honor and revere it. To attempt to make a money payment out of the earnings of the people to those who are physically well and financially able is to abandon one of our most cherished American ideals. The property of the people belongs to the people. To take it from them by taxation cannot be justified except by urgent public necessity. Unless this principle be recognized our country is no longer secure, our people no longer free. This bill would condemn those who are weak to turn over a part of their earnings to those who are strong. Our country cannot afford it. The veterans as a whole do not want it. All our American principles are opposed to it. There is no moral justification for it.

Good Will The Only Assurance of Peace

Declaration Made by Secretary Hughes Before National Institute of Social Sciences.

New York, May 15.—Cultivation of international good will is the only assurance of peace, Secretary Hughes declared here tonight in an address delivered in accepting the gold medal awarded him by the National Institute of Social Sciences.

Touching upon the foreign relations of the United States, Mr. Hughes mentioned specifically only Central American matters and the reparations problem. He made no direct reference to the Japanese exclusion situation. In setting out the role of the nation among world powers as "a disinterested lover of peace," however, he said:

"But all this depends on making the cultivation of friendships a distinctively American policy to be furthered by the demonstration of our sense of justice and by the respect we show for the feelings of others."

The first object of foreign policy is security and "so far as we can see into the future we are safe from the slightest danger of aggression," Mr. Hughes said.

"We know that in no power or possible combination of powers lies any menace to our security," he continued. "There is no occasion to vindicate our proper authority for no other challenges it. There is no reason to demonstrate our ability to take care of ourselves for no one doubts it.

"It should be easy for us to cultivate friendships. That is the way to gain the opportunities of intercourse which we seek throughout the world. We are a peaceful people and it is well for us to remember that we rely on friendship and good will, not on force or threats of force, to extend our influence and win adherence to our international proposals.

"But there is more involved than the adoption of suitable methods to protect our own interests, important as these are. How can we promote the peace of the world? The most promising way is to preserve the opportunities of conciliation and adjustment, which naturally belong to us, by fostering a friendly disposition.

"Turning to the reparations question in Europe, Secretary Hughes said that there was "the promise of a new era" in the recent experts' report. With solution of the problem, he said, would come opportunity further to limit armament and expenditures, "which are induced by distrust."

"In these efforts," he added, "there is simple assurance of American capacity and disposition to be helpful.

LATEST REPORTS OF ARMY PLANES ON WORLD FLIGHT

Cordova, Alaska, May 15.—(By the A. P.)—A sixty-mile gale at Attu Island forced the coast guard cutter Haida, which was guarding three army world flight planes there, to put to sea yesterday, word received here today said.

Although the weather had moderated somewhat, it was considered improbable here that the planes had been able to depart today for Paramashiru Island, Japan, a jump of 878 miles.

LONE BANDIT GETS PAYROLL ESTIMATED AT $16,000 TO $20,000

Gainesville, Fla., May 15.—A lone bandit today entered the office of the American Railway Express company at High Springs, near here, and escaped with the payroll intended for the Atlantic Coast Line shipmen, estimated at between $16,000 and $20,000. J. T. Pendleton, company agent, said the bandit drove away in a small touring car.

Sheriff P. G. Ramsey and a force of deputies gave chase but early tonight found no trace of the bandit.

The money represented time-monthly payroll of the Atlantic Coast Line shopmen employed in a large relay and emergency shop for several Florida and Southwest Georgia divisions.

5,000,000 PIKE PERCH EGGS PUT IN FIELD HATCHERY

Hartford, May 15.—Five million pike perch eggs from Mississquoi Bay, Lake Champlain, Vt., were put in a field hatchery of the Connecticut state board of fisheries and game in a tributary of Zoar lake, near Stevenson today. The work was done under the personal supervision of Superintendent John W. Titcomb, who said that the lake would abound with large wall-eyed pike in about three years. The waters of the tributary met exacting requirements of the state board. From time to time, quantities of pike will be distributed from this point to other lakes in the state.

GOMPERS DEPRECATES RAILROAD LABOR BOARD

Washington, May 15.—A statement to refute the contention of opponents of the Howell-Barkely bill, proposing abolition of the railroad labor board, that the public interest would not be protected in the wage adjustment machinery to be substituted, was issued here by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"The board of mediation," Mr Gompers said, "which is the most important body to be set up under the Howell-Barkley bill, is to be made up of five members, none of whom shall be connected with the railroad industry in any manner. These men are to be appointed by the president. That insures a protection for the rights and interests of the people in general far greater than is now provided."

SEIZURE OF DRUGS VALUED AT $75,000 ON SHIP IN BOSTON

Boston, May 15—Drugs valued at $75,000 were seized and six men and two women arrested when eleven federal agents raided th Italian steamship America which docked at Commonwealth pier today. Among those placed under arrest was Vincent Fegero, quartermaster of the ship.

Slump in Textiles Cause of Idleness

Department of Labor Finds it the Outstanding Factor in Employment Situation.

Washington, May 15.—The slump in the New England textile industry was an outstanding factor in the employment situation during April as reviewed in a report today by the department of labor. Increase employment in the building trades, on the other hand, was said to have decreased unemployment in many sections, notably in the middle and south Atlantic sections.

INDUSTRIES IN CONN. ON PART TIME BASIS

Boston, May 15.—Considerable unemployment in the New England states during the month of April due to part time operations in many manufacturing lines, particularly textiles, is noted in the monthly report of the federal industrial survey, made public tonight. Building operations continued active. The report for Connecticut says:

"Practically all industries throughout the state are operating although some are in part time basis. Small surplus of workers in the metal trades exists in certain parts of the state. Printing press and book bonding plants are working overtime. There is a fair sized building program under way, affording employment to many tradesmen. Farm labor situation considered normal for this season of the year."

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

President Coolidge vetoed the soldier bonus bill.

The house rules committee worked out a plan to bring the McNary-Haugen bill up probably next Tuesday.

The house and senate adopted the conference report on the immigration bill with its July 1 Japanese exclusion section.

The department of justice announced it would proceed with the Montana case against Senator Wheeler, democrat, of that state.

A house committee investigating charges against Representative Zihlman, republican, Maryland, reported the evidence did not establish the truth of the charges.

Alien Property Custodian Miller testified before the Daugherty committee on the activities of Jess W. Smith and others mentioned as friends of H. M. Daugherty.

EUGENE O'NEILL'S PLAY VIEWED BY CRITICS

New York, May 15—Eugene O'Neill's play, "All God's Chillun Got Wings," was given its premier showing before an invited audience and newspaper critics in a down-town theatre tonight. The first scene of the first act, which required eight children, was read and the actual play began with the second scene. This substitution was made necessary by an order issued by Mayor John F. Hylan forbidding children to take part in the performance.

The play was accorded an enthusiastic reception, and there was no evidence of the feeling aroused in some quarters when it was announced that the leading male character would be played by a negro and the principal female role by a white woman. Action in the play called for the woman to kiss the negro's hand.

CUMMINGS RE-ELECTED AS NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN

Bridgeport, May 15.—Homer S. Cummings, was re-elected to a seventh term as national committeeman by the democratic delegation to the national convention in caucus here this afternoon. With Norman Mack, New York, he is now the oldest in point of membership on the committee. Miss Caroline Ruutz-Rees, Greenwich, was also renamed.

James J. Walsh, Meriden, was elected chairman of the state delegation. All committees and officers were named, delegates announced, and much time spent on the plan of the tenth floor of the Hotel McAlpin, allotted to the Connecticut delegation.

Sentiment among the delegation seemed to be largely for Governor Smith, but Mr Cummings stated that he had no reason to alter his opinion, expressed after the election, that he was greatly pleased with the results.

SHOT GIRL COMPANION, THEN KILLED HIMSELF

Bangor, Me., May 15—Ellison St. Louis of Old Town drove to within a few yards of Main street here tonight, parked his machine by the curb, shot his companion, Miss Elsie Hildreth and then turned his revolver on himself. He died instantly. Miss Hildreth who also lived in Old Town, died ten minutes later. A passerby, who heard the shots reached the car just as St. Louis fell from the running board. The motive of the double shooting is not known.

St. Louis was 26 years old and Miss Hildreth four years his senior. Both were dead when police reached the scene.

PARASITE GRUBS TO COMBAT JAPANESE BEETLE

Harrisburg, Pa., May 15—A 7-ton shipment of parasite grubs to be used in combatting the Japanese beetle is expected to reach Philadelphia late in June or early in July, Dr. C. H. Hadley, director of the bureau of plant industry, department of agriculture announced today.

The parasites are being shipped from that part of Japan where the climate closely corresponds to that of New Jersey and southeastern Pennsylvania, Dr. Hadley said.

HOUSE PASSED AN URGENT DEFICIENCY BILL OF $2,217,000

Washington, May 15.—An urgent deficiency appropriation bill carrying $2,217,000 the bulk of it for federal court expenses, was passed today by the house and sent to the senate. The measure would provide $200,000 to defray the costs of senate investigations and $300,000 for prosecution of war frauds.

CONGRESS DISREGARDS PRESIDENTIAL ADVICE IN PASSING IMMIGRATION BILL

House and Senate Yesterday Adopted Report of Their Conferees Providing Japanese Exclusion After July 1, 1924, and Cutting the Quota of Other Nations—Vote in House Was 308 to 58, in the Senate 70 to 9. Authoritative Announcement Has Been Made That President Coolidge Had Not Determined Whether to Sign the Bill or Veto It.

Washington, May 15. — Congress, disregarding the desire of President Coolidge that the Japanese immigration problem be adjusted through diplimatic channels, adopted today by overwhelming vote in each house the conference report on the immigration restriction bill which provides for Asiatic exclusion after next July 1.

The measure will not be sent to the president probably bfefore the end of this week. Congressional leaders generally expect him to sign it, but it was stated authoritatively at the White House that he had reached no decision in the usual course the bill will be sent to th state and labor departments for a report before final executive action.

On the basis of the balloting today in both the house and senate there would be votes to spare to repass the bill over a presidential veto. The vote in the house was 308 to 58, or 64 in excess of the required two-thirds majority to over-ride a veto, and in the senate it was 69 to 9, or 17 more than two-thirds.

Despite the big majorities finally rolled up in its favor, the conference report did not meet with smooth sailing in either house, though no objection was raised to the final action of the conferees on the Japanese exclusion provision. House members who voted and spoke against the report practically without exception, were those who opposed the bill on original passage.

There was a different story, however, in the senate. Objection there first came on the departure from the original senate bill aginst making any exceptions to the two per cent. quotas for European nations based on the census of 1890; and then on the alien seamen's provision, which were construed by some senators as tending to weaken the La Follette Seaman's act.

Heretofore party lines were [illegible]ly submerged in the voting but [illegible] democrats joined with five [illegible]cans and one farmer-labor [illegible]te in opposing the report. Those voting inopposition were Coll. Bronson Rutland; Frazier and Ladd, North Dakota; McLean, Connecticut, and Sterling, South Dakota, republicans; Gerry, Rhode Island; Owen, Oklahoma, and Walsh, Massachusetts, democrats, and Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota.

Administration leaders in both the house and senate voted for adoption of the report. They had contended from the first that the immigration problem was a purely domestic one and thus within the control of congress and not the executive department of the government under the constitution.

There were reports in both houses to recommit the report with instructions. That in the house, which was sponsored by Representative Sabath, of Illinois, ranking democrat on the immigration committee, was voted down, 246 to 35. Senator Shipstead moved to recommit in the senate, but his motion was ruled out on a point of order raised by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, chairman of the conference managers on the part of the senate.

Both houses moved with unusual celerity in disposing of a conference report. House action consumed only a little more than an hour and within twenty minutes after the final roll call the report had been transmitted to the senate, where it was called up immediately by Senator Reed. A vote was had there within less than three hours.

Having failed in his effort to postpone the effective date of the exclusion date of the exclusion provision, the president, it was indicated today, is giving thought to three courses of action:

Signature of the bill without any statement or declaration.

Signature with an accompanying statement disapproving the exclusion clause in such a manner as to mollify offended Japanese sensibilities.

Return of the measure to congress without signature with [illegible] containing message approving all of its provisions except the exclusion section.

Complicating factors in the situation are the expiration of the present restriction bill on next June 30, and the probable adjournment of congress early in June before the national political conventions.

REPRESENTATIVE ZIHLMAN WAS FOUND GUILTLESS

Washington, May 15—[illegible] charges that Representative [illegible] republican, Maryland, accepted a bribe was not established by evidence presented to the house investigating committee, the house was today informed.

All five members of the committee concurred in a report which said that "no further action is required or should be taken by the house" with regard to Mr. Zihlman.

"The evidence is conflicting and sharply contradictory," said the report, "and the question of the credibility of the individual witnesses have frequently arisen."

The report touched also on the charges against Representative Langley, republican, Kentucky, who is under a two-year prison sentence as a result of his conviction for alleged violation of the prohibition law. The committee said no further action on its part for the present at least was advisable in view of Mr. Langley's announced intention of absenting himself from the capitol until his appeal has been passed upon by the higher courts.

The purpose of the committee inquiry was to determine whether either Zihlman or Langley, mentioned several months ago in the report of a federal grand jury at Chicago, had been guilty of wrong doing warranting forfeiture of their seats in the house.

INCREASED DIVIDENDS BY SOUTHERN RAILROADS

New York, May 15 Increased dividends were today declared by directors of two important southern railroads—the Atlantic Coast Line and the Louisville & Nashville, which it controls—permitting stockholders to share in their steadily expanding earnings.

An extra dividend of one per cent was voted on Atlantic Coast Line's common stock in addition to the regular semi-annual payment of 3 1-2 percent, while capital stock of the Louisville & Nashville was placed on a $6 annual basis, as compared with $5 previously paid. Atlantic Coast Line directors specified that the extra dividend was to be paid out of non-operating income, derived principally from returns on about $60,000,000 Louisville & Nashville stock. The increase in the latter's dividends virtually provides for payment of the parent road's extra.

Indicated earnings in excess of 18 per cent on Atlantic Coast Line's common stock last year were among the best of the first-class roads. At the same time Louisville & Nashville reported the largest earnings in its history, equal to more than 10 percent on its capital stock which was increased during the year from $[illegible] 000,000 to an authorized total of $12[illegible] 000,000 by declaration of a 62 1-2 per cent stock dividend.

ENDEAVORING TO LOCATE GANG OF COUNTERFEITERS

Schenectady, N. Y., May 15.—The arrest today of Walter Treichel on suspicion he was a member of a gang passing spurious bills in this city, Utica, Geneva, Binghamton and other New York state cities, led to increased efforts tonight to locate the gang believed to be operating from Schenectady.

Treichel, arrested by federal agents and arraigned before United States Commissioner Charles N. Palmer, was released upon his own recognizance, owing to lack of definite and convincing evidence. Treichel said his home is in this city, but police and the federal authorities say he resided formerly in Newry in New Britain, Conn., and that he is the owner and driver of a car employed by members of a gang of counterfeiters recently driven from Long Island cities.

An Amsterdam store proprietor and his son today identified Treichel as one of a number of men who entered the store recently and passed a dollar bill which had been raised to a $50 bill, but neither could say Treichel was the man who passed the bill.

VICTORY LEAVES FRENCH SOCIALISTS IN QUANDARY

Paris, May 15.—(By the A. P.)—The socialists are beginning to wonder what they fought for in the recent elections, and what good their victory is going to do them. The radical leaders are holding quite aloof from them, and divisions are breaking out in their own ranks over the future policy of the party.

Paul Boncour, who was minister of labor once, and Pierre Rendaudel, who succeeded M. Jasers as leader of the party and was beated four years ago, have now returned to the chamber and have ministerial ambitions. They are opposed by what are called the "pure socialists," who stick to the theory that the socialists are the party destined to fight the battle of the classes.

They point to the case of Millerand Briand and Viviani, who after a taste of power ceased to be socialists in the extreme acceptation of the term.

FORMER SAILOR SAVED SON FROM DROWNING

Westport, Conn., May 15.—Attracted by the cries of three youngsters, who were trying to swim ashore from a rowboat, which was pinned under the Saugatuck river bridge by the rising tide, Ernest Allen, a former sailor, tonight saved the life of his son.

The three youths, Lester Fenton, James Felite and Allen's son, all under 12, were riding about the river and the currents aided by the rising tide, swung their boat under the bridge. After many attempts to free the boat the boys decided to swim ashore. Fenton and Felite held the Allen boy between them, but became exhausted and cried for help. The elder Allen hearing the cries, dove off the bridge and brought his son to shore.

JURY FAILED TO FIND TRUE BILL AGAINST MRS. TELL

Middletown, Conn., May 15.—The grand jury called in session today by Judge Arthur F. Isham in the Middlesex county superior court, to consider the case of Mrs. Johanna Teil, alleged slayer of Charles F. Blair of Killingworth, tonight failed to find a true bill in either first or second degree murder and was dismissed by the court.

The decision of the jury was announced by Foreman Thomas C. Flood after the court had been asked three times for instructions. The talesman were charged by Judge Ellis shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. It is believed tonight that a new jury would be selected but not before the September term of the court as the court adjourns tomorrow for the summer with the exception of a special session in June.

Mrs. Teil, who was brought from Haddam jail this morning to attend the court was returned to prison tonight and unless a new jury is drawn before fall will be confined until that time in the institution.

WILLIMANTIC

After a day of automobile cases Wednesday, the topic of testimony given at the session of superior court held here Thursday concerned horses. Parties interested in the cases came from Chaplin, Columbia and Windham. The trespassing of a horse on a featured garden and the kicking of another horse by the first so that the value of the injured animal dropped from $100 to $5 were the allegations made in the first case heard. The suit was brought by Mike Wallas against John Matick and was for one hundred dollars. Attorney S. B. Horsey represented the plaintiff and Harry E. Gaucher the defendant.

The Wallas and Matick families are neighbors in the Cheewink district in the town of Chaplin. In the morning of August 9, 1923, a horse owned by Matick came down the road, walked through two lots into the Wallas garden where he kicked at the cabbages, tomatoes and other growing vegetables and refused to budge when Wallas attempted to get the animal away. The trespasser then walked to another lot where he found Wallas' horse and gave it a good kick in the leg. After it roamed about the farm for some three hours, Mrs. Matick was called and she got the horse away.

On cross-examination, plaintiff testified that the damage to his garden amounted to $1. Dr. B. K. Dow, veterinarian paid one visit to the injured horse and charged $3.50 for that and $2 for medicine. The horse could not work after being kicked and plaintiff sold it for $5, having previously refused $100 for the animal. Wallas said that he had to hire another horse for forty days to do the farm work. This was at the rate of $1.25 a day besides the feed. Wallas said that when Mrs. Matick came for the horse and she was approached on the matter of damages she left a dollar bill, which, according to Wallas, is still on the mantel shelf. Mrs. Wallas, Frank W. Chappell and Miss Emma Sank testified to the injury to the horse. The last named hired out a horse to Wallas.

John Matick, his wife Mary Matick and their little son Jan Matick and Anthony Kowlingiski testified to having seen the horse drawing loads of hay a few days after the kicking affair. They also testified that the dollar given by Mrs. Matick had been accepted for the alleged damages. The attorneys announced that they did not care to argue the case. Judge Haines took the papers and will render his decision later.

The second horse case was that of William Mathieu, of Columbia versus Daniel Duquette of this city in which the plaintiff sought to recover damages of $60 alleged to be due on a horse sale last September. Mathieu said that when Duquette came to his home to buy a horse he sold him for $75, an eleven year old, for which he had paid $125 five years ago. The animal was a good worker and sound in every way having only one bad habit, that of being a "cribber." He told Duquette all about the animal and the latter paid down $30 and took the horse away. Duquette later returned and complained that the horse was balky and he did not think a great deal of it. Mathieu said that he could not understand this situation, but if it was so he would take the horse back. Duquette said that he was willing to keep it and that it was his wife who did not want the animal.

A little over four weeks after the sale, the horse was brought back to Mathieu and he refused to accept it, as so much time had elapsed. Mathieu now has the horse, having secured it through arrangement last January. Florimond Mathieu, son of the plaintiff testified to the worth of the horse and said that when he went to the Duquette home to determine the trouble with the horse he found that it acted as though it had been whipped. The horse was nervous and fidgety but under soft treatment started to act natural again. Miss Eileen Mathieu, Frank P. Potter, Linwood Schoville and Herbert Clark said that they knew the horse in question and had never known it to balk. Daniel Duquette, the defendant said that as the horse continued to balk he tried to have Mathieu take it back and refund the $30 deposit but was unsuccessful. Other witnesses for the defendant were his wife, Della Duquette, Charles Ives and Edward Coutu. Judge Haines took the papers and reserved decision.

Court was adjourned until this (Friday) morning.

Mrs. Helen Brown, of 64 Maple St., reported at police headquarters Thursday afternoon that while wheeling her child in a baby carriage on Valley St., near the junction of Bank street, an automobile which was backing around in the street mounted the sidewalk and struck the perambulator, damaging it to some extent and throwing the child out, on the sidewalk. Becoming excited over the safety of the baby she cried to the driver of the car but he paid little attention to the mishap and drove off down the street. She secured the registration number of the machine, 8080-2 and unless the driver reports the affair to the police, it is likely that he will be notified to appear in police court.

A youngster who said that he came from Lebanon and attended school in this city was taken to the police station here Thursday afternoon by another boy of larger dimensions who accused the former of fighting with a knife. Captain Grady questioned the boy who said that when he engaged in a fight with another boy his accuser and two or three other schoolboys joined in, and finding that he could not whip the whole bunch he drew a jackknife. He was given a reprimand and warned not to carry his knife to school with him.

BRICK & SULLIVAN, SHOEMEN, SATISFY FOR NEARLY TWO GENERATIONS

Quality, service, and margin profits, when adopted as a policy for doing business will go a long way toward making friends and holding them. A strict adherence to this policy is in a large measure the secret of the remarkable volume of business being done by the Brick & Sullivan Company every year. The firm is an old one and can safely be attributed with having been the leading shoe establishment in Willimantic for the past thirty years and judging from the present extensive trade which it controls it promises well to retain that enviable position in years to come. Transient purchasers have been made steady customers by the disposal of such quality merchandise as the Arch Preserver and Walk Over shoe for men and women, the famous Kahler shoe for women, the Heywood for men and the widely known Buster Brown shoe for children.

The Brick & Sullivan Shoe Company is a great favorite not only in the city of Willimantic but in all the surrounding districts. Heavy working shoes sold at this store offer comfort and durability and are much in demand by farm laborers. Street shoes include the latest in dainty styles for women and the newest cuts for men. As for the Buster Brown Children's shoe it needs no introduction in these parts. It should always be remembered that when good quality products and reasonable prices are sought in the shoe line, both can be found at the Brick & Sullivan store, 738 Main street, Willimantic.

Simple Spring Dresses
ONLY $15. EACH
The new models of Spring and Summer Dresses for Misses and Ladies are arriving daily. Some of silk, some of linen, some of voile and some of printed voile. The names of the cloth may sound more or less familiar to you, but the dresses themselves are quite unusual both in lines and in treatment, so much so that they are quite unlike any other dresses you ever saw.
We speak particularly of dresses at $15.00, because that is a popular price; but we also have dresses at a lesser price as well as others more expensive. Come in and look them over.

Brooklyn Center: Mabel M. Ennis Ella E. Lawton, Bertha G. Sapiding.

Bush Hill: Elizabeth Loonan.

Gilbert: Kathryn M. Hammond.

Music: Emma A. Burbank.

The following teachers will not return next September: Robert G. Bruce, Edith M. Baker, Agnes W. Jacobs, Mary B. Russ, Thelma Bruice, Elizabeth Loonan and Kathryn M. Hammond. Miss Jacobs has been granted a year's leave of absence by the Killingly school board and she will spend the period in California. Miss Baker was a member of the high school faculty for one year, while Miss Adah Danielson was spending a leave of absence in California.

Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin has been re-elected.

Henri T. Ledoux, of Nashua, N. H., president-general of the Union St. John Baptist, will come here Sunday to preside at a district meeting of the organization to be held in the town hall. It is anticipated that the attendance at this meeting will be well in excess of 500, and will be representative of every community in eastern Connecticut where there is a large proportion of French speaking people.

In addition to President General Ledoux a number of orators well known in the Union St. John Baptist will be here and will deliver addresses at the meeting.

A class of 50 is to be received into the order. All the members of the men's council are to meet at their hall and march to the town hall, escorted by St. James' band.

A membership drive that has been underway in Danielson for some time has been remarkably successful, and is largely due to the efforts of Alfred A. Beaudet of Woonsocket. Mr. Beaudet in his work here had had the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Cleophas Beauvais, Mrs. Joseph Halle, Miss Laetitia Halle, Oscar Normandin, Mrs. Auguste Menard and L. J. Fournier, chairman of the local committee.

All the members of the order and the general public have been invited to attend Sunday afternoon's meeting. A special musical program will be a feature of the gathering.

June 2 has been set as the date for a meeting, at Grange hall in Brooklyn, of the Danielson Farmers exchange. A special effort is being made to get out a large attendance for this meeting. It has been announced that members of the exchange who bought grain in the eastern states are to receive a rebate of 50c per ton at this meeting.

...ot much has been heard recently about the long-talked of sidewalk building campaign in Danielson but that is bound to be one of things attracting attention during the warm weather period.

Oil on the state highway, freshly applied, between Danielson and Attawaugan, Thursday, gave motorists their first experience of the year with this annual worry. The oiled sections of roadway were quickly covered with gravel, lessening in great degree the danger of skidding. Tractors were in use Thursday, in connection with the oiling operation.

With the coming of warmer weather the pout fishermen are again having their innings and some good catches have been reported during the past 48 hours.

There was a long conference Thurs- day between representatives of the Crystal Water company and representatives of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, relative to the injunction proceedings instituted by the water company and which temporarily has tied up the work of putting in a high pressure gas main between Morin avenue and Elmville on the Danielson-Putnam route. It is believed that progress toward an adjustment was made at Thursday's conference, but no definite statement was given out relative to the matter. In the meantime, a long stretch of trench remains open on the westerly side of the state highway between Morin avenue and Judd avenue. It is amply marked by red lights at night and watchman are on duty there.

Fix definitely in your mind that your taxes are due in six days and payable to James R. Walsh, tax collector.—adv.

Danielson people will be intedested in the fact that Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation army and the New England staff band of Boston will be in Putnam next Friday at 11 a. m., when the band, one of the best in this part of the country, will give a concert in the square.

A committee in charge of arrange- ments by patriotic societies for the observance of Memorial day in Danielson held a meeting Thursday evening to consider final details.

St. Alban's church of Danielson was represented by an attendance of 26 at the Laymen's banquet of the New London archdeaconry at the Waureagan hotel in Norwich Wednesday evening.

Students graduating from Killing- ly's schools next month will be amazed upon investigation to learn of the opportunities Connecticut has provided them, without cost, in learning practical trades at the State Trade school in Putnam, an institution finely equipped and having a splendid faculty. What applies to next month's graduates in Killingly also is equally applicable to graduates coming out of schools in other town in this end of the state.

Thursday morning the funeral of Miss Rose Ouimette was held from her home on Dyer street, with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S. Rev. Charles Kirby, M. S., and Rev. Ignatius Kost were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. James' cemetery. The bearers were Eli Gaudette, Alphonse Champagne, Arthur Mathieu, Eli Martin, William Morin and John Leonard. Martin T. Burns was the funeral director.

Henry A. Holbin of Pawtucket was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

Reports Thursday from Charles H. Pellett, ill at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, were that his condition has come to be regarded as critical. Mr. Pellett is one of Danielson's best known business men.

Many members of the order from Danielson and their wives and young women friends will be in Putnam Tuesday next for the annual Ladies' night of Putnam lodge of Elks.

Leon T. Wilson, Putnam, deputy collector of internal revenue, was in Danielson Thursday interviewing persons having business with his department.

Further progress has been made during the week on the new pavilion at Wildwood park, and such an advance has been made that the new structure will be ready for use on Memorial day, which each year really marks the opening of the season at this popular resort.

County Game Warden Charles H. Letters, of Putnam, has produced a trout, caught in Snake Meadow brook, east of here, that weighed one pound six and one-half ounces. This trout is entered for an award offered by the Danielson Rod and Gun club of which Warden Letters is a member, for the largest trout caught during the opening season in a county stream by a member of the club.

PUTNAM

The current issue of the Journal of Social Forces contains an article entitled William Jennings Bryan as a Social Force, written by Malcolm M. Willey and Stuart A. Rice, both of the faculty of Dartmouth college. It is an analysis of the effects upon student thinking of the doctrines of Mr. Bryan, and is especially interesting in view of the fact that it shows the reactions to college students, all of whom have had a required course in evolution. The current issue of Mental Hygiene also contains an article by Messrs. Willey and Rice, Dartmouth Charts Mr. Bryans Arguments. This originally appeared in the New York Times, but because of its interest was reprinted by the editors of this magazine.

The discussion that has developed relative to bathing in Roseland lake, Woodstock, during the coming summer has stirred up very general interest in Putnam and all the surrounding communities. Frankly, sentiment on the matter is seriously divided. There are those who hope that Herbert W. Bowen's request of Health Commissioner Osborn that his non-bathing order be withdrawn will be respected, as there are many others who hope the order will stop bathing there so long as water from the lake finds its way into the Putnam water system. Many viewpoints are finding expression as to whether the bathing has any effect, untoward, it may be said, on the Putnam water supply. Some contend that the water, as filtered, is perfectly safe to drink, while others hold a diametrically opposite view.

From Paris, Attorney Charles L. Torrey has received a communication from Andrew B. Hyde, formerly resident in Putnam, relative to a number of things. Mr. Hyde tells of having been granted a United States patent on a fountain pen that is so improved as to do away with all leaking and consequent blotting of the ink. Mr. Hyde describes his invention in detail, setting forth that a feature of his pen is an 'overflow" reservoir near the base of the pen, that takes care of the ing. In connection with other special devices, in such a manner that is practically impossible to get any surplus ink on the pen point, though always assured of a steady, even flow.

Mr. Hyde went to England from the States last fall. He found too much fog and damp weather in England to suit him, so went over to Paris. The weather there was better, but not entirely to his liking, so he moved on to Avignon for a stay of a few weeks. Later in the winter he went to the southern coast of France, thence to Algiers and on into the Sahara desert as his roaming instinct called him. Of special interest was his visit to the ruins of the ancient city of Carthage.

A delegation from this city will be in Danielson Sunday to attend a district meeting of the Union St. John Baptist that will bring together 500 members of the order and their friends at the town hall. Officers high in the order are to attend this meeting.

Everybody for an automobile, an automobile for everybody! This possibly is a crude way of expressing a half-formed idea, but back of it lies the fact that a dealer here has 25 cars "of a well known make," on hand, and they are available for buyers at $50, $75 and $100 each. These cars really are serviceable and in running order. Those whose minds reach back a score of years will recall that these cars are selling as cheap as were bicycles in the early 90's—and the price of a bicycle was much harder to accumulate in those days than is the $50 that will buy an automobile today. Verily, the end of the walking age seems near at hand. And another thought is that the happy, complacent-minded man might get as much joy out of one of these old flivvers as does the plutocrat out of his glittering limousine. Anyway, the man with $50 and an inclination has his opportunity to find out. At the bargain price about everyone who cares to may own a car.

Of interest is announcement of the coming here Friday of next week of Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army and the New England States Staff band of Boston. Advance notices indicate that the famous commander and one of the best bands in New England will arrive here about 11 a. m. and that a concert in the square may be anticipated. Commander Booth and the band are on a tour of New England at present.

One of the best agricultural meet- ings that the Windham County Farmers' association has arranged in the different towns held at Scotland this week.

There were 55 present, who not only enjoyed the following program, but voted at the end of the meeting to hold another in July. Arrangements for this meeting were made by Charles Brenn, Farmers' Association town director for Scotland, and Frank L. Davis, county agent.

The program included: Call meeting to order, Charles Brenn; Dr. G. P. Perley, The Purpose of the Windham County Farmers' association; Frank L. Davis, county agent, How the Windham County Farmers' Association Functions; A. H. Gallup, The Pure Bred Bull Idea; A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist, Breeding Better Dairy Cattle; David Warner, poultry department, Storrs, Breeding and Raising Better Poultry.

Dr. G. P. Perley, president of the Farmers' association, called the meeting of the directors of the association together at 2:15 in the afternoon. Among other things a constructive plan was adopted for letting the farmers of the county know more about the work of the Windham County Farmers' association.

The following officers and directors were present at this meeting: Dr. G. P. Perley, president; John Z. LaBelle, Killingly; Alexander Maitland, Thompson; L. H. Lindeman, Woodstock; Adelard Laframbolse, Canterbury; Thomas Mars, Windham; C. B. Jewett, Hampton; Charles Brenn, Scotland, and F. L. Davis, county agent.

Next Tuesday evening will be Ladies' night at Putnam lodge of Elks. This is an annual event that attracts attendance from all the territory within the jurisdiction of the lodge. A special program of entertainment has been arranged and there will be dancing, these features of the program in St. Onge's music hall, Livery street.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, of Norwich, will be here next Tuesday to hold a clinic at the Day Kimball hospital, as is his custom.

John Reardon, agent for the Grosvenordale company, has been elected president of the Legion Fathers, a new association of World war veterans organized in North Grosvenordale.

No real effort is being made here, in connection with the country-wide drive, to increase the membership of Anselm Mayotte post, American Legion.

Stanley Kelly as at his camp for boys at Crystal Lake, Eastford, and will remain there during the entire summer period. Mr. Kelley expects a large number of boys there during June, July and August.

About 40 members of the public re- lations board of the S. N. E. T. company in the New London district were at the Pomfret Manor inn Thursday for a regular meeting and banquet.

James J. Charron of this city, at the state convention of the Knights of Columbus in Hartford this week, was elected an alternate of the Connecticut delegation named to represent the state at the supreme convention of the order, to be held in New York in August. Mr. Charron and Frank Sherlock were delegates from Cargill council of this city to the state convention. Other Putnam men who attended were State Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne, District Deputy Edward W. Mullen, Michael Daigle and Arthur Duvert.

Miss Albina LePine of Lee street and Joseph Dumont of Battey street were united in marriage at St. Mary's church Monday morning.

The Connecticut company is engaged with its tie replacement and general roadbed improvement work of the season on the Putnam lines.

Advance guards of the camp organizations that have plans in Woodstock and Eastford are arriving here to make ready for the opening of the

THE BONUS VETO.

The action of President Coolidge in vetoing the bonus bill was awaited with expectation. It is consistent with his declarations in the past and it was in harmony with his repeated statements concerning the financial situation of the country. When the president says that there is no such thing as paying those who served in the war in defense of principles and voices the sentiment of the country, and he sends [illegible] when he declares that is bought is not [illegible] the president has taken to deal with this matter [illegible] length. He has viewed [illegible] angles and what he has to [illegible] reasons for vetoing the measure [illegible] we not only the courage of his convictions but a careful study of the [illegible] such a raid upon the treasury of the country. He is outspoken in his presentation of the [illegible]. In certain respects he [illegible] similar view to that of [illegible] college when he stated his [illegible] of the unjustified drain upon [illegible] ernment funds without provision [illegible] ears of meeting it. President Coolidge points out that it is not only a direct contradiction to the government's policy of economy but [illegible] the abandonment of [illegible] ments of tax reduction for a long period of years.

The president's message in explanation of his unwillingness to sign the bill is deserving of careful reading. What congress will do with the [illegible] bill remains to be seen. Good and sufficient reasons have been given both for the sustaining of the veto, even though it means a rightabout face on the part of some who have heretofore been supported the gratuity.

MARTIN REMAINS COMMANDER.

General satisfaction will be felt over the decision to retain Major Martin in command of the expedition to circle the globe now underway. The unfortunate accident that [illegible] to interrupt his flight in Alaska, [illegible] resource and resourcefulness [illegible] in escaping from the [illegible] he found himself [illegible] colliding with a mountain in the fog that enveloped an almost uninhabited coastline.

Nothing probably [illegible] could have served him better than to have provided another airplane and been permitted to resume the flight immediately in order to catch up with the three other machines. But such would have involved a long delay [illegible] would have interrupted the others for [illegible] subject to [illegible] might have been a [illegible] advantage of the first [illegible] days in order to permit the [illegible] to overtake them.

[illegible] unfair to the others to subject them to such [illegible]. They have been making progress of a satisfactory nature without [illegible] record. Getting across the Pacific in a roundabout way seems entirely feasible and with similar success in their hops over Asia and Europe they will have gathered much experience by the time base [illegible] is reached where it is planned to [illegible] Commander Martin to join them for the flight over the Atlantic.

While the trio of mechanics will not be under the guidance of their commander for some time, the plan to have the commander participate in the finish of what will be the first globe-girdling flight if it is completed seems that he will not be denied the honors to which he is entitled. It seems a bit strange that the commander of the group of flyers should be the one to experience such serious trouble so early in the flight, but the attitude of the army air service planners shows that it was through no fault of his own. Otherwise the idea of removing him in command would not have been considered.

DR. SUN YAT SEN.

By the death of Dr. Sun Yat Sen at Hong Kong, China has lost one of its great men and one who has devoted a large portion of his life to the establishment and development of a republic in that country.

When the Manchu dynasty was overthrown and Dr. Sun Yat Sen was put at the head of the government for which he had been striving for so long, there were great expectations for that country. It soon became evident, however, that China was wrestling with a big problem. However beneficial a republic might be for that country, it was not overlooked that conditions in China were not such as to give it the greatest encouragement. The people of that country had been used to a monarchy and they knew little or nothing about a republic and were unprepared to assume the responsibilities that go with it. They had not had a preliminary training that would make a republic appeal quite the same as it might with some others. For the most part they were not ready for it.

Much reliance was placed in Sun Yat Sen and had he remained at the head of the government even different results might have been obtained. There existed the great struggle of educating the people up to a republic and it still exists. Changes followed that did not strengthen the republic. Leaders took a different view than had been intended by the father of the republic and he was even obliged to leave the country for a time until he returned to establish the rather uncertain republic of South China.

Sun Yat Sen was a well educated, clever Chinaman. He had great ambitions for his country and it may be in time that they will be realized. Certainly he cannot figure that they have been in his lifetime, though he has made a beginning and taken a stand that can be pointed to in the future as an ideal to which others may be drawn. He was so far in advance of his people that it will be a long time before the great mass will appreciate his worth.

THE TILDEN CASE.

Not a little interest has been created throughout the country as the result of the decision by the United States Lawn Tennis association that members of the association could not retain membership therein, or could not [illegible] amateurs if they [illegible] in connection with [illegible] tennis matches.

It was a decision that was all but unanimous at the time it was reached, for it was one of the best, if not the best tennis player in the country and the one upon whom the country has depended for the retention of the [illegible] cup. Naturally it was not a popular decision to William T. Tilden, 2nd, though recognition was given to the fact that he was under [illegible] making the rule [illegible]. He was not shown the consideration with favor the contest had entered. He [illegible] was outside the [illegible] on of his writ- [illegible] st of next year he [illegible] now. He even went [illegible] ced from the organ- [illegible] ion went others.

[illegible] not result [illegible] others a chance to gain similar [illegible] to what he has won [illegible] announced willingness [illegible] to recommend [illegible] amateur writers [illegible] for ruling has [illegible] and that effort [illegible] it are bearing fruit. Whether it will be a capitulation on [illegible] of the association or some [illegible] remains to be determined [illegible] hasn't indicated any opposition to deviate from his position but the criticism that has been created by the rule involves many more than Tilden. Just why the fact that he writes about the very thing [illegible] to preserve [illegible] ranks of the [illegible] governed by a [illegible] pure. If it [illegible] the public [illegible] demanded it.

FRANCE'S CHANGES.

[illegible] election means [illegible] There will [illegible] the government [illegible] and for the time being [illegible] uncertainty regarding [illegible] international [illegible]

[illegible] there seems to be nothing to [illegible] that France will not support [illegible] plan it remains to be determined [illegible] that attitude it is going [illegible]. It had been felt that much [illegible] be settled at the conference which had been arranged between Premier MacDonald of Great Britain and Premier Poincare on the [illegible] of this month. Both will be in office, but inasmuch as the latter is on the eve of his departure there is no likelihood that he will do otherwise than deal with routine matters. It could not be expected that he would [illegible]

What fun would those Filipino politicians have between the time they might get independence and the time it would require to start trouble at home.

President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard says prohibition is not a failure, and then he might point to the increase of over $500,000,000 increased savings in the past year.

A Wisconsin professor says radio will extend the university extension work of the nation. As long as it doesn't extend certain brands of Wisconsin politics the country can stand it.

Don't let it be imagined that the president is responsible for congress. He has done his best to guide right and there are many signs to show that he has got the endorsement of the country in so doing.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

"Don't you wish to give first aid to the injured?" I asked Dexter Haines when I called him up to congratulate him on his new car, which had just been delivered. I helped him choose the model at the motor show, so, of course, I was particularly interested.

"Have you been injured? I trust it's nothing more serious than your feelings," he returned with a laugh.

"That's just it, Dexter. Mother and Cousin Fannie are going to have a church guild quilting bee here day after tomorrow and, I suppose it's foolish of me, but the fact is an affair like that gets on my nerves horribly. I am simply longing for some legitimate means of escape."

"Let's see, day after tomorrow? Why, yes, Lucile. That will be a capital date for a day [illegible] in which to christen Dulcibel. You see, I have already chosen her name. You may break a bottle of fruit juice over her, if we go away somewhere for a picnic."

"Splendid Dexter! What an old dear you are! Let's go to the dunes and may I tell mother that you really won't take no for an answer.

"Most assuredly, and do you wish to invite any one else to go along, Lucile? How about Ursula Moore and John Fenwyck?"

"They're both delightful and it would be lovely to have them, but, you know, Dexter, Ursula isn't very strong, and I should think it hardly wise for her to go picnicking in such uncertain weather. I should feel dreadful if she went and took cold. But you and I are such hardy ruffians that wind or rain, snow or sleet, won't hurt us." I answered, and it was decided that we should just make it a twosome.

We had the jolliest kind of day and I enjoyed every minute. I guess the most fun we had was taking pictures.

I had borrowed Louise Erwin's camera and Dexter snapped me over and over again, climbing Mount Tom, stirring our coffee on the camp fire, swinging on a grapevine and a dozen other poses. I took a few of him, too, and my only regret was that there wasn't some way we could snap the two of us together. When we were passing the Prairie clubhouse I saw a young boy and I hailed him and asked if he would take our picture, and he said yes.

"Give him the camera, Dexter, and show him how it works," I said.

"Why, I haven't it, Lucile. I thought you were carrying it."

"Good gracious! I must have left it where we were resting on that log down by the beach." I no sooner spoke than Dexter ran down to the shore, but he quickly returned empty handed.

"Not there, but I'm sure that's where you left it, for I know we had it there. Some one must have come along and picked it up. I'm sure there's no use looking further. It's too bad, but—"

"Oh, Dex, do you really think it's lost? I—I—" tears stopped my speech when I thought how awkward it would be to explain to Louise.

The very next evening Dexter brought me a perfectly gorgeous camera with all the latest improvements. I am simply delighted with it, for I have long wanted a really fine camera, and this one is beyond my fondest hopes. Of course, after that is was impossible for me to tell him that the lost one belonged to Louise Erwin Fuller. It would have been a fearful dash to his wonderfully thoughtful generosity.

This morning I went to see Louise and told her how unfortunate I had been in losing her camera. I told her that we were sure it had been stolen and that, of course, I should like to replace it, or pay whatever she thought a camera as old as hers was now worth. I said I would try to make amends by doing anything she wished.

"You don't do anything, Lucile," she said stuffily. Really when I come to think of it I consider it my own fault."

"You are wonderful to take it in this way, Louise, dear," I said affectionately, but she was so cold in her demeanor that I soon left, and I was glad that she did not wish me to buy her a new camera, for I would rather spend my money for more friendly people.

Dexter, now that she is married, she can get herself a better one than [illegible] to purchase. I wonder though, what she meant by saying [illegible] was her own fault.—Chicago News.

His father desired that he [illegible] preacher and entered him in Madison University but it was found [illegible] was too young, and [illegible] changed to Brown University.

Graduating with honors [illegible] he went to Delaware, Ohio, [illegible] Dean, N. Y. to catch his breath while he studied law at night at Columbia Law school in New York. He was admitted to the New York [illegible] soon after he was graduated.

Then he was a clerk in a law office teaching at Columbia and tutoring [illegible] night, but the long hours proved too exhausting and he taught at Cornell University.

Again in New York, he was a member of a law firm, and the [illegible] legislative committee [illegible] New York gas and electric [illegible] companies chose him as [illegible] counsel. He was little known and his appointment was greeted with sneers, but his achievements were so great that he was chosen chief counsel for the committee investigating the life insurance companies.

Once more successful, he was nominated for Mayor of New York [illegible] declined, then was chosen to run for Governor. The old-guard politicians did not want him he was an amateur in politics, but he was the only one of his party who won.

He was re-elected to become Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. He was wanted as a candidate for President of the United States, was chosen for the nomination, and he declined. His campaign was strenuous [illegible] presidential [illegible] unusually bright [illegible] of a factional fight in one state.

He returned to [illegible] law practice [illegible] was a private citizen until President Harding appointed him Secretary of State. And [illegible] are considered to be his greatest.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Success of the plan for a reunion of the Northern and Southern Methodist churches, due in no small measure to the efforts of Bishop McDowell, who has served as chairman of the committee on unification. Bishop McDowell is an Ohio man, educated at Ohio Wesleyan and at Boston University, Boston, Mass. He has had a varied career in the church, the chancellorship of the University of Denver following work in the pastorate. Then he became administrator of the educational board of the denomination, and then, in 1904, a bishop. He has broadened the scope of this activities far beyond those of a mere ecclesiastic and denominationalist, and has done his part in influencial positions in civic and non-sectarian organizations. Like other bishops of his denomination he has seen the world at large, owing to his official visits to conferences in Europe and Asia.

PERENNIALS

It seems just like a miracle to see them pushing through—
The brave old-fashioned flowers that our grandmas loved and knew!
Don't you feel that you're beholding a gracious promise kept,
As through the kind brown earth they come, where safe from storms they've slept?
The tiny, tender shoots and leaves, don't you love to call by name,
Knowing htat when they blossom they'll blossom just the same
As through the centuries they've bloomed, always quite true to type,
And make the dooryard beautiful whene'er the time is ripe?
The snowdrops and the crocuses—the stars of Etehlehem;
How they tnke you back to childhood—don't you love the names of them?
Boy's-love nnd Johnny-jumps, and lark-spur leaves, and rue,
And rosemary, and honesty, and ragged sailor, too;
Garden "heelyatrope," and "pinoys," and bleeding-hearts, and phlox;
Foxgloves, and black-eyed Susans, and monk's-hood leaves, and stocks;
Sweet marjoram, and columbine, and Helen-by-the-walk;
Don't all those blessed flowers to your spirit seem to talk
Of dear home-loving women who, with gentle hearts aglow,
Watched for other flowers like them in the springs of long ago?

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Such stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis and sometimes followed by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Pulverized Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, sweeten and bloat right out of the body, relieve the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who eat their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

OBITUARY.
Patrick J. Harrington.

The death of Patrick J. Harrington occurred Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock at his home, No. 354 Franklin street, after an illness of two years, due to the infirmities of old age.

Mr. Harrington was born in County Kilkenny, Ireland, March 16, 1841, the son of James and Mary Carney Harrington. He came to this country in 1864 and for nine years resided in New London, where he was employed by the United States government.

About fifty years ago he moved to Norwich, where, shortly afterwards, he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Ryan, the service taking place in the old St. Mary's chapel. Mr. Harrington was by trade a stonecutter and worked for several years for a local yard, entering business for himself 40 years ago on Franklin street, and continuing in this business until his retirement several years ago owing to failing health.

He was a member of St. Patrick's church, of Division 1, A. O. H., and of the fraternal order of Heptasophs. A man of quiet habits, Mr. Harrington loved his home and was a loving husband and father and a true friend. He will be missed greatly by all who knew him and his family has the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

Surviving Mr. Harrington besides his wife are five sons, James J., Edward P., John T., William H., and Frank Harrington, all of Norwich; two daughters, Mrs. Nicholas Sullivan and Miss Nellie Harrington, for many years bookkeeper in the selectmen's office in this city, and one grandchild.

FUNERAL.
George A. Kahn.

Funeral services for George A. Kahn were held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Fitchville Baptist church. They were conducted by Rev. J. F. Specht, pastor of the church. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends from Manchester, Hartford and other places and a delegation from the New London County Agricultural society. The floral tributes were many and most beautiful. During the service the choir of the church sang the following three selections, Lead Kindly Light, Some Sweet Day and Nearer, My God to Thee.

Burial was in the Johnson cemetery where a committal service was conducted. The bearers were W. W. Bentley, Elisha Waterman, Fred Loule, Ray Beckwith and John and James Sherman, brothers-in-law of the deceased.

Arrangements were by C. A. Gager. Besides relatives already mentioned Mr. Kahn leaves two brothers, Clarence E. Kahn, of Denver, Col., and William H. Kahn of Torrington, Conn.

Mrs. William Greenman.

Funeral services for Frances Ella Greenman, wife of William Greenman of Canterbury, were held Thursday morning from the parlors of George G. Grant in Taftville. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and many beautiful floral tributes were received.

The service was conducted by Rev. C. W. Ruoff, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, Baltic, who also conducted the committal service at Riverbend cemetery, Westerly. The bearers were Howard and Oscar Olson, Messrs. Dubuque, Coles and Bingham and George G. Grant.

Mrs. Greenman is survived by her husband, two sons, Louis and Frank Greenman of Canterbury, and three daughters, Miss Mary E. Greenman of Windham, Mrs. Frances E. Lovett of Glasgo and Mrs. Harris L. Hymon of Groton.

HIT ROADROLLER; CARS CRASH AT SANATORIUM; ROADSTER STOLEN

Two collisions and the theft of a roadster made up the unusual automobile events for the day Thursday in the city.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon Robert Kelly, 38, employed as a salesman in this city, ran a new Star sedan into the steam road roller as it was standing on the dirt portion of the road off the concrete on North Main street between Sixth and Seventh. Kelly was reported to have been seen driving down the street with his head bowed over on his chest while the machine wobbled from side to side in the road and eventually brought up against the three-ton road roller. The roller stood the shock with scarcely a tremor but the sedan had its bumper ripped off, right axle bent back, radiator driven in, headlight broken, and the steering wheel was broken off. Mr. Kelly was arrested by Officer Luke Riley on the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Bonds were given for him later for his appearance in the city court.

Two machines were crippled in a crash that occurred about 5.30 in the afternoon in the driveway on the grounds of the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium, not a great distance from the front door of the main building. Dr. C. R. Chamberlain of 239 Laurel Hill avenue was driving away from the main entrance to pass around to the rear, where cars circle around when his machine was run into by a truck from the Hoxie milk farm in Lebanon, which was driven by Abraham Aspinall. The force of the blow carried the dentist's car across the road and came near toppling it off the steep incline at this point. The truck had a wheel broken and the other machine was so badly damaged that it could not be driven away under its own power. The truck was leaving the sanatorium after having delivered a load of milk at the rear and was on the left side of the road as it came out and struck the doctor's car.

Both drivers reported the accident to the police.

A Dodge roadster, SX-2045, owned by Gus Heber, was stolen from his yard at 526 Main street Thursday night about 11 o'clock. Mr. Heber left the machine in the yard and had retired for the night. He was awakened by an unusual noise and looking out of his window saw the roadster being driven towards Franklin square at a fast rate of speed. The person who drove the roadster away knocked down the fence near the driveway as he was turning into the street.

Mr. Heber immediately went to the police station where he reported the theft. The police in surrounding towns were notified to be on a watch for the roadster.

NORWICH LIONS GUESTS OF SECRETARY CARPENTER

The members of the Norwich Lions club were guests Thursday evening of Secretary C. E. Carpenter at the Carpenter Manufacturing plant on Newton street. The Lions met at 7 o'clock and were served the following menu at attractive tables in the plant:

Grapefruit
Meat Pie
Mashed Potatoes — Green Peas
Olives — Celery
Apple Pie
Ice Cream
Coffee

President George A. Finn acted as toastmaster. In behalf of the club Max Hanover presented Mr. Carpenter a fountain pen and note book. In his presentation address Mr. Hanover mentioned the philanthropic work which Mr. Carpenter is doing in a quiet manner. Mr. Hanover said that the first note in the note book presented Mr. Carpenter should be a memorandum of the Newington Home entertainment which netted that institution about $400. Mr. Hanover said the idea for the entertainment originated with Mr. Carpenter. Mr. Carpenter accepted the gifts in brief but well chosen words.

A feature of the evening was a mock police court trial of a prisoner charged with speeding. The prisoner was Harlow Bogue, with Rev. R. B. Day as the judge. John Barry acted as the prosecuting attorney while Max Hanover was counsel for the defense. Witnesses for the defense were George Madden and Thomas Savard, while the witnesses for the state were George Fullerton and Dr. Kopland Markoff. Frank Sisk was foreman of the jury and the rest of the panel included Abner Schwartz, William O'Neil, Edward Rich, George A. Finn and Walter Block.

After hearing the evidence the jury returned a verdict of guilty and the prisoner was sentenced to be hung for the good of the community.

Vocal solos by Miss Gordon added much to the pleasure of the evening and there was a delightful concert programme by Thumm's orchestra—Fred Thumm, piano; Fred Freeman, saxophone; David Lyons, violin; Chester Parker, banjo and Roy Grover, drums. William O'Neil was the song leader.

The two prizes were awarded to David Disco, a statue of a lion and George Madden, a nursing bottle filled with milk. With the nursing bottle went directions for using. The prizes were provided by Tyler Stanton and Frank A. Sisk.

Following the supper the 45 Lions present were taken on a tour of inspection of the plant which proved very interesting and instructive.

The supper was prepared by Mrs. Florence Maynard, Mrs. Ella Barber, Mrs. Gertrude Amburn, Mrs. Florence Benjamin and Mrs. C. E. Carpenter. Those who acted as waitresses were Miss Bertha Roessler, Miss Jennie Hafner, Miss Levina Meehan and Mrs. Harold E. Carpenter.

The flowers for the decorations were loaned by Louis Hawkins and the electrical effects were arranged by William O'Neil.

The convention was the 24th annual one and about 300 delegates from subordinate courts attended.

Death of James O'Grady
(Special to the Bulletin)

Springfield, Mass., May 15—James O'Grady, aged 86 years, one of the oldest members of St. Michael's Cathedral parish, and a former armorer and optometrist in this city, died early on Wednesday morning at his home at 56 James street, after a short illness, although he had not been in the best of health since the death of his wife last July. He is survived by three daughters, Misses Mary E. and Eleanor P. O'Grady and Mrs. J. J. Haggerty, all of this city, and a brother, Martin O'Grady who lives in Norwich, Ct.

Mr. O'Grady was one of the pioneer Irishmen of this city, having come here in 1863, two years after his marriage in Claremont, N. H.

Superior Court Motion List

There were four cases assigned for trial here Thursday in the superior court before Judge John R. Booth, but all went off the list and there was no business for the court. Judge Booth will preside at a motion list and short calendar session today (Friday), with four uncontested divorces to come before him.

MANY APPLY TO TAKE FREE SWIMMING LESSONS

Judging from the boys that are applying at the Y. M. C. A. for admission to the course of free swimming lessons that are to be given next week there will be one grand week of splashing and fun in the big "Y" pool.

The slogan for the week is "the more the merrier" and Physical Director Fritz is anxious to see every youth between the ages of 11 to 18 come over to the "Y" and register for the lessons, and all who apply before Saturday are sure of being assigned to a suitable class.

There will be lots of fun connected with the lessons and various contests, games and stunts will be executed while the beginners are making their initial attempt at trying to feel at home in the water.

The principal classes are to be the "Pollywogs" meeting at 4.30 and which will include the schoolboys, while at 7.20 the "Wiggleworms" are scheduled to make their entrance into the water, including mainly the older boys who are employed. These classes will meet daily during the week, and all those who register for these classes are to attend each day, so as to make satisfactory progress.

As announced this course of lessons will be open to all boys in Norwich, for which there will be absolutely no charge, the only requirement being that each boy bring a towel and attend the lessons with reasonable regularity.

Owing to the call coming from men for beginners swimming lessons, it is planned to start a men's swimming class to open the week of May 26th.

ALUMNAE NURSES MADE $125 FOR SICK FUND

The regular meeting of the Nurses' Alumnae association of the William W. Backus hospital training school was held at the nurses' home Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 p. m., the president, Mrs. William A. Pitcher presiding. Reports from the food sale committee, Miss Julia Lynch, chairman and of the rummage sale committee, Mrs. Witter K. Tingley, chairman, showed the sum of $125 realized for the benefit for the nurses' sick fund.

The programme consisted of a report of the state convention of the League of Nursing education, by Miss Kathleen Dowd, superintendent of nurses, and a very instructive talk on Mental Hygiene, by Miss Betsy Mitchell, social worker of the neuro-psychiatric clinic of the United Workers. Refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed.

ELECTED PRESIDENT OF WOMEN'S MISSION SOCIETY

At the annual meeting of the Women's Universalist Missionary society in Hartford Wednesday, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Maude B. Foster of Norwich; vice president, Mrs. Maude Pickett of Berlin; secretary, Mrs. Louise Marble of Meriden; treasurer, Mrs. Emma K. Hubbard of New Haven; chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Janet H. Blackford of Bridgeport; elective member for three years, Mrs. Annie L. Quick of Stamford. After the election of these officers for the coming year and the reading of the official reports the Rev. Dr. Thomas Van Ness, formerly pastor of the Old Second church in Boston, told of his extensive travels in the Orient and described conditions there as he had found them.

DESTRUCTIVE SMALL BOYS BROUGHT BEFORE POLICE

About a dozen small boys were on the carpet before Captain D. J. Twomey early Thursday evening for damage which it is alleged they have done to new houses being erected on the battlegrounds off Main street, East Side. It is claimed that the boys have done considerable damage to the houses in the past few weeks by climbing over the roofs, pulling off shingles, clapboards and mixing up the paint.

Early Thursday night some of the boys turned on the water in the cellar of the houses. They were gathered in and taken to police headquarters. Their matter will be taken up later.

Second Haul of Fish

The second haul of the nets Thursday morning at Fairview reservoir by employes of the state fish and game commission produced about the same small number of fish as the haul Wednesday morning.

The results of the two days' work have convinced Mr. Cone and his assistants of the state fish and game commission that it will not be worth while to do anything more here and they will move on to other reservoirs nearby. Ponds and lakes in this vicinity, however, will benefit by the fish they expect to get there for they will bring these fish back here for stocking purposes in lakes and ponds near Norwich.

WAUREGAN BOY'S SHIP RESCUED MAJOR MARTIN

Ovid A. Baribeault of Wauregan, who is storekeeper, third class, on board the U. S. S. Hull has sent the Bulletin an account of the rescue of Major Martin, the round-the-world flyer, in Portage Bay, Alaska, in which his boat participated.

"Storekeeper Baribeault wrote from Seward, Alaska, giving the account of the rescue that appeared in the Seward Getaway as follows:

About 4 p. m. Tuesday, April 15, inst. after passing over Kodiak Island Major Martin's plane, number one, the flagship of the U. S. Army Air Service Around the World Flight developed engine trouble which caused the loss of the fuel in the crank case and forced him to land shortly afterward on the west side of Shelikoff Strait in Portage Bay, on the east coast of the Alaskan Peninsula. Other planes proceeded to Chignik Bay, one hundred miles south and broadcasted the accident to all the naval radio stations of southwestern Alaska.

The destroyers Hull and Corry of the battle fleet were headed back to Seattle, having sounded the ocean bottom from Seattle to Seward with the Sonic depth finder, the survey to be used by the army signal corp and cable ship Dellwood in laying the new government cable from Seattle to Seward.

At about 6.20 p. m., Alaskan time, the Corry, guarding the distress radio wave picked up message via Cordova, from Lieutenant Smith at Chignik bay, announcing that Major Martin was down near Cape Skagnik and last seen headed west, making a force landing. The Corry commanded by Lieutenant Commander B. H. Bieri, U. S. navy, headed west at once and relayed the message to the Hull, commanded by Lieutenant Commander, J. C. H. Hilliard, U. S. navy, commanding the sounding detachment. Both ships made all possible speed at once on two boilers and promptly lighted off the other two to give full power. In ten minutes they were making 26 knots, and within and hour they were making between 30 and 31 knots. They started from a position 312 miles from the scene of Major Martin's landing, made top speed for over ten hours throughout the night and arrived off Portage Bay at 5.30 a. m. the sixteenth. The Corry proceeded a few miles farther on to search Kialagvak bay, just south of Cape Igvak and the Hull proceeded into Portage Bay to send rescue party ashore in charge of an officer, hoping that the people of the tiny settlement of Kanatak could give them information about Major Martin.

The people had waited most of the day to see the planes pass, but gave it up shortly before plane number one was forced. Only an Indian, with a couple of natives had seen Major Martin's plane go skimming by eight miles to the south, to disappear quickly behind a small promontory.

The searching party returned and the Hull got under way to proceed slowly out of Portage bay, skirting within two miles from shore. Meanwhile the Corry had sent a boat party of searchers into Kialigvak bay, behind the small islands to hunt for the machine.

About three miles north of Cape Igvak, the plane was discovered by the Hull. It was anchored close inshore and its lines blended closely with the rocky shoreline. The Hull promptly anchored and sent a boat in charge of an officer to the plane. Both Major Martin and Sergeant Harvey were sitting calmly in the plane, having spent a night of bitter cold and hunger under the shadow of the snow and ice-covered cliff of the mountain. Brief but heartfelt greetings were exchanged between the flight commander and the lieutenant in charge of the party. The latter remarked, "Sir, as long as you were forced to come down, I am glad to see you here and alright."

Major Martin replied, "And believe me, Sir, I'm glad to see you." As soon as the naval officer saw both occupants safe and sound and the plane apparently undamaged, he signalled the ship, and the glad news was instantly broadcasted to Seward, Kodiak, Chignik and Dutch Harbor. The anchor of the plane was quickly recovered by the destroyer's boat and the plane was towed out to the ship and the hungry fliers eagerly received by the commanding officer of the Hull. Major Martin with his mission first always in mind, sent radio orders to Lieutenant Smith at Chignik, and Lieutenant Bissel at Dutch Harbor, as to the needs of the plane. At first he requested that the destroyer tow him to Chignik, but the distance being 90 miles and the speed limited by the frailness of his pontoons, it was decided to tow him into the sheltered village of Kanatak, ten miles north of Portage Bay. Here the Standard Oil company has a radio plant and shops so that communication could be had with the outside world and work done on the engine.

The essential details of the finding were broadcasted by the destroyer and Major Martin and Sergeant Harvey were landed at Kanatak, to where the plane was towed. Prompt replacement of the engine parts, is expected from Chignik or Dutch Harbor and the plane should proceed in a few days.

Before noon the destroyers had completed their usual and exciting task which they had been glad and proud to be able to do for the Armys Around the World Flight, and headed for Seward to obtain fuel oil preparatory to sailing for Seattle early on the morning of the 18th.

STATE ASSOCIATION HONORS VETERAN NORWICH PLUMBER

The year book issued in connection with the 34th annual convention of the Master Plumbers' association, held Wednesday at New Britain, gives a feature place to John Troland, the veteran Norwich plumber, now retired from active business.

A full page is given to a picture of the Troland shop in West Main street, along with pictures of James, Archibald and John, accompanied by a sketch of the business that was begun in 1857 by James and Archibald Troland.

The picture page is given the title "Trade Loyalty Exemplified" and the story of the firm is introduced by the caption, "The story of a successful business career stretching over sixty-six years in the same family under the same name. Told by the sole survivor, John Troland, dean of the plumbers in this state, a shining example in helpful trade fellowship and a steadfast supporter of the Master Plumbers' Association from its inception to the present day."

Will Attend Class Reunion

Miss Rosa Wilcox, a teacher at the Norwich Free Academy, Miss Irma Hutzler, social worker with the bureau of welfare, Willimantic, and Miss Clementine Jordan, a teacher at the Academy, will be among those to attend the reunion of the class of 1919 of Connecticut College which will be held June 8.

A WORD TO WOMEN

A hundred and twenty-one thousand women would comprise a vast army. Yet a canvass was recently made among more than that number of women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for feminine ailments. The result proved that ninety-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use. This is most remarkable evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of womankind, and should influence every sick and ailing woman to try it.

Quick Relief for RHEUMATICS

Local Druggists Sell Rheuma On Money-Back Plan

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, swollen, twisted joints, and suffer intensely because your system is full of uric acid, that dangerous poison that makes thousands helpless and kills thousands years before their time, then you need Rheuma, and need it now.

Start taking it today. Rheuma acts at once on kidneys, liver, stomach and blood, and you can sincerely exclaim: "Good riddance to bad rubbish."

Many people, the most skeptical of skeptics right in this city and in the country hereabouts, bless the day when Lee & Osgood Co. and other good druggists offered Rheuma to the afflicted at a small price and guaranteed money refunded if not satisfied. If you have rheumatism get a bottle Minn., 48 years ago today.

ARCHDEACONRY COMMITTEE FOR WORK BY WOMEN

In Trinity Episcopal church Sunday school room Thursday a gathering of women delegates from the parishes of the New London Archdeaconry was held under the leadership of Mrs. E. Campion Acheson of Middletown. The purpose of the meeting was to have a conference and heart to heart talk by the various organizations of women in the churches of the New London Archdeaconry in its various branches.

Mrs. Acheson, who is president of the Church Service league of the diocese of Connecticut, conducted the conference which was opened at 11 o'clock in the morning with prayer by Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown. This was followed by a discussion by the women of the church work that is being done by the women in the parishes. At 1 o'clock a basket lunch was enjoyed, tea and coffee being served by the women of Trinity church.

The discussion was taken up again in the afternoon with a view to forming a parish council in every parish, consisting of representatives from every organization or committee for work done by women in the parish.

The meeting also elected an Archdeaconry committee of three, consisting of a chairman, vice chairman and secretary, with Mrs. Reed of Danielson as chairman.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

The Harold Bell Wright fans are turning out en masse this week to see the screen version of his most popular novel, When a Man's a Man, which is showing at the Breed theatre. Harold Bell Wright is America's most widely read author. Statistics from libraries all over the country prove this, and the sale of his books verifies the statement. "When a Man's a Man" alone sold over two million copies. Publishers figure large readers to each purchased book, which makes six million people that have read When a Man's a Man.

An idea that has been chosen to portray the well-known character in the book, with John Bowers heading the list as the Honorable Patches, Marguerite de la Motte plays Helen Wakefield of Cleveland, and Robert Frazer is Wild Horse Phil. [illegible] Robinson is the Dean of the town. Triangle Ranch with Stella, the waif, being played by Elizabeth Patterson. Georgie Harmstone handles with [illegible] parts generally the role of backseat [illegible] the cattle rustler, and Fred Stanton plays his accomplice.

Other pictures on the bill includes Ruth Roland in Ruth of the Range the Pathe news and a roaring two part comedy.

Strand Theatre

[illegible] last vaudeville show of the season to be presented at the Strand theatre proved to be one of the best if the applause of the capacity audience yesterday is any criterion.

Homer Coghill, the versatile chap, opened the program. His personality combined with song, one string violin and saw music, and dancing made his offering one of merit.

"Weary-Walkers," have been a stage character ever since there has been a stage. But it takes Billy Baker and Eddie Rogers "Just a couple of Hard Men" to put over the characterization of the tramp.

America's foremost colored dancing stars, Helena Justa and Boys, in Keep Dancing, is the last word in life and action.

You'll travel along the laugh and fun road to a delightful finish with Joe Holland and Cathleen O'Deu in a comedy skit called "Ain't Nature Grand."

There has seldom been seen on the stage a more delicious bit of travesty than that offered by Collins and Hart in Red and Blue. They are very funny and make an exceptional closing number.

The photoplay attraction is Damaged Hearts.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Homer Croy, author of West of the Water Tower, the novel of small town life which rivals Main Street as one of the most popular books of its kind, visited Paramount Long Island studio recently and watched the process of putting his story into screen form. After witnessing Robin Sturgeon film several scenes for the picture and after talking with Glenn Hunter, who is starred in the picture, May McAvoy, Ernest Torrence, George Fawcett and Zasu Pitts, the featured players, he expressed himself as being highly pleased with the production so far as it had gone.

Brimming over with enthusiasm Director Sturgeon gave his story, Croy left the studio, and was a frequent visitor until the picture was finished. West of the Water Tower will be on view at the Broadway theatre Sunday. It is said to be packed with thrills and humor.

BROADWAY THEATRE

"Blossom Time," without exception the most exquisite musical offering the stage has ever had, will be seen at the Broadway theatre tonight only at 8:15 (D. S. T.) under the direction of the Messrs. Shubert.

Blossom Time is a Shubert production, a play that registered a two-year hit in New York and praised by such critics in the following manner, cannot fail to outlive others with such drama and music:

Blossom Time is charming with its Schubert melodies.—New York Herald.

Immortal melodies of a beauty that often lies near to tears. Songs of passionate longing that illuminated Blossom Time like a Christmas Book.—New York Times.

Palace Theatre

"Peg o' My Heart," First National's picture version of Cynthia Stockley's widely read story of the same title, which opened yesterday at the Palace theatre for a three day engagement, is as near to picture perfection as any photoplay that has been seen in this city for many months.

Sam E. Rork, who produced the play, has adhered faithfully to the original tale, and under the direction of Donald Crisp he has given to the screen a masterfully constructed film.

Those who enjoy exciting drama, thrills and romance, blended in the proper proportions, have a treat in store for them in this powerful, pulse-quickening story of the African veldt.

Its story treats of an English noblewomen (a part played by Anna Q. Nilsson) who, heartbroken, seeks to hide her identity by masquerading as a man. She goes into a mans world, among the gold miners of Rhodesia.

The part of Ludi Druro, the drink sodden hero, is admirably played by James Kirkwood, who has proved himself a master in the portrayal of such parts. Joseph Kilgour is excellent in the "heavy" role. The other parts are capably done by Ruth Clifford, Edwin Sturgis, Claire McDowell, Claire Du Brey and Bernard Randall.

Success doesn't turn a man's head [illegible] he has a hard [illegible]

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

The Dawn of a Tomorrow, a new George Melford production for Paramount, featuring Jacqueline Logan, David Torrence and Raymond Griffith, was shown for the first time in Norwich at the Broadway theatre yesterday.

The story, by Frances Hodgson Burnett, differs from all other successful plays that have been picturized in that it underlines the importance of one's own intellectual attitude toward life, and the effects of things unseen and only thought.

Miss Logan's role as the London waif, Glad, who makes things come right by the strength of her 'wishin' and 'hopin' we regard as one of the greatest attainments of her phenomenal career. She has some very excellent assistance from Torrence and Griffith, the two featured players, and from several members of the supporting cast, Alma Bennett and Guy Oliver in particular.

A comedy and Kinograms rounded out this program.

Same pictures will be seen tomorrow for the last time. Don't miss it.

BIRD LIFE TALK FOR KINDERGARTEN MEETING

An interesting annual meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Kindergarten and Primary Association was held on Wednesday afternon in the high school auditorium at Willimantic with an attendance of about 100. An instructive and entertaining part of the programme was an illustrated lecture Wilbur Smith of the state fish and game commission.

An interesting report of the Minneapolis convention of the International Kindergarten Union was presented from Miss Helen I. Royce, of Akron, Ohio, a former Norwich teacher, who attended the convention as the representative from the Eastern Connecticut association.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Miss Matilda Stapfer, Taftville; vice president, Miss Annie Oates, Willimantic; recording secretary, Miss Helen Coast, New London; corresponding secretary, Miss Luelle Mathews, Norwich; treasurer, Miss Maud Pettigrew, New London; members of executive board, Miss Gertrude Gallup, Miss Sadie Kilroy, both of Norwich.

It's all right to dream of the great things you are going to do, but don't forget to wake up in time to begin work.

WESTERLY

After several postponements, the April term of the superior court for Washington county came in at Westerly Thursday morning, for consideration of the Trial Calendar for Westerly, with Associate Justice Edward W. Blodgett of Pawtucket on the bench. There were also present Clerk W. Herbert Caswell and assistant Clerk Miss Edna Haloran of Narragansett and court stenographer, Mrs. Elizabeth O'Keefe. Sheriff of Washington county, John R. Wilcox and deputy sheriffs Fred T. Mitchell of Westerly and George S. Phillips of Kingston were in court. There were few absentees from the Westerly bar and jurors and witnesses in some of the cases on the calendar filled the court room on Union street.

When Judge Blodgett took up the calendar Assistant Attorney General John P. Hartigan of Providence appeared and said that the State was ready to proceed on three charges of assault with a dangerous weapon against Thomas Fisher, of Providence, and that the witnesses were present in the court room. Judge Blodgett said that will be continued until Monday at the court's direction. Attorney Hartigan requested and the court directed that all witnesses in the Fisher case be notified to appear Monday morning next without further summons. It was said that Attorney Edward H. Clarke, Jr., of Providence, who appears for Fisher in this case was unable to appear in court Thursday morning.

The indictments were returned by the grand jury at the February, 1923, session of the court and allege that Fisher assaulted John I. Way, Federal prohibition agent from Providence, [illegible] McDonald and Theodore Lawton, both of Wickford, last August.

In the District Court at Wickford [illegible] Fisher held up the [illegible] they were waiting to ambush to prevent the landing of a load of liquor.

The January 1924 session of the superior Court, Judge Capotosto assisting, was the first one on the docket of the April term. Indictments were filed, Benjamin Clarke, counsel for Fisher, filed a petition for a change of venue to the Kent County Superior Court, setting forth that stories in the Providence Journal and Evening Bulletin were prejudicial and that it was impossible for him to get a fair trial. On May 5 Judge Blodgett denied the motion.

Following the assignment of the Fisher case to Monday, Attorney Hartigan stated that it had been a practice in the court and he wished to ask for a day certain" for the assignment of one of his cases. Judge Blodgett said he wished to know how long a session he had before him—in fact if the presiding justice had asked him to do so and he wanted to get an idea. Attorney Roche said that 27 cases were marked "trial" and he thought that after the four or five week session Judge Blodgett said that the assistant justices have to go where they are ordered to go. Attorney Rathbun thought the session might be for two or three weeks.

At the conclusion of the calendar consideration Judge Blodgett said: "I presume, gentlemen, everything will go over until Monday. The sparo [illegible] assigned until Monday morning.

PLAINFIELD

The attention of the baseball enthusiasts of the village is focused upon the next game played by the high school which will be the game with Norwich Free Academy, at Norwich, Saturday afternoon. This game promises to be a tussle. Although the poor showing made by the Plainfield team against Putnam does not speak any too well for Plainfield, nevertheless, the hopes of the team and its supporters are high, and the rooters of the high school will be at Norwich in full force Saturday.

Bibeault of the Plainfield team, who threw his arm out in the game with LaSalle some time ago, has been using his arm carefully, and giving it light workouts during the past few days, and pitched a fine game while he was in against Putnam. An injury to his hand in that game, necessitating his removal from the game, may impair his delivery some, but DeMoranville, who, in event of Bibeault's removal, will replace him on the mound, is fully capable of stopping any attack which the Norwich team may start. DeMoranville pitched an excellent game against Pomfret last week, striking out twelve of the Pomfret men, and allowing them only six hits, although Plainfield lost by a one point margin. Allard will be behind the bat in Saturday's game, and the rest of the lineup has been tentatively arranged as follows: Pitcher, Gallup; 2b, DeMoranville or Peloso, Fritsch ss, Williams cf, E. Gallard, Tyler or Wallace lf.

The first night of the bazaar at the high school proved a distinct success, a large number being present, and an enjoyable evening passed. There was dancing throughout the entire evening, with music furnished by Woods Orchestra, and encouraging business was done by the several booths about the hall.

There was an attendance of about sixty-five at the annual Father's night, held at the community house, Wednesday evening, by the Parent-Teacher association, the fathers of the school children being the especial guests of the club. After the business meeting the following program was presented under the direction of Miss Margaret Sullivan, and Mrs. Raymond Lathrop:

Tries Kellogg's Bran—restores health after 12 years of intense suffering

Mr. Firth writes that he suffered for 12 years from constipation and his friend for 10 years—a total of 22 years' suffering permanently relieved by Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled.

Gentlemen:

For 12 years I had been troubled with indigestion caused mostly by constipation. Until about a year ago, I would suffer from 4 to 20 weeks at a time.

I happened to see your Krumbled Bran in a store, purchased a package and got almost immediate relief. I am still eating the Krumbled Bran every day.

The most wonderful results obtained with your Krumbled Bran I will now relate. A gentleman who has been taking medicine for about 10 years for constipation could not find anything to give him relief. Three weeks ago I advised him to try Krumbled Bran, as I had told him what wonderful results I had gotten from it. The gentleman in question purchased a box, and he told me that for the first time in ten years he is regular without taking medicine.

Yours for success,
William Firth, Jr., 56 Volea St.,
Merchantville, N. J.

Eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to relieve the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. The flavor is delicious. Try it in the recipes on every package. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

LOCAL GRAMMAR SCHOOL BASEBALL LEAGUE GETS UNDER WAY TODAY

The grammar school baseball league will open at the academy field this afternoon when the Broadway team meets the Greeneville nine. All the teams look good this season, and there is no question but that there will be some lively playing before any of the teams cinch the Evening Record trophy cup. This afternoon's game will begin promptly at 4.45 p. m. and the public is invited to watch the young athletes. There will be no charge. C. LaVarge, a former league umpire, will handle the indicator.

The season's schedule is as follows:

Friday, May 16 — Broadway vs. Greeneville.

Monday, 19—St. Patricks vs. Elizabeth St.

Wed. 21—Town St. vs. Broadway.

Mon. 26—Elizabeth St. vs. Greeneville.

NEW LONDON RANGERS TO PLAY SO. MANCHESTER TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 15.—The New London Ranger soccer eleven will tackle another fast team when the Whaling City outfit travels to South Manchester to oppose the state champion South Manchester team on Sunday. It will be the third hard contest in as many weeks for the New London team. The South Manchester team is an outfit of unusual calibre and recently defeated the Clan Campbell eleven from Bridgeport for the state title three weeks ago.

The compliment that Joe Booth paid the Rangers when he said "that the Whaling City team was in his estimation the third best in the state," is bearing fruit by the signing up of the South Manchester team to have the Rangers play in that city on Sunday. If the latter can defeat the state champions, there will be no need of seeking games by the manager, Jack Cruise, of the Rangers, in the future, the managers of the other teams will be coming to the Rangers' manager for a game.

INDUSTRIAL BALL LEAGUE FORMED IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 15.—A meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. this evening for the purpose of discussing an industrial baseball league situation. The outlook at present is a four team league for the coming summer. The teams that have entered are the Robert Gair, New London Ship and Engine and the Connecticut Power. A team will be made up from the J. J. Lapointe, Whiton and Babcock mills and will be the fourth entry in the league. There will also be a Post team.

The majority of the managers present here this evening seemed to favor Saturday games. However, the team may not be able to secure grounds Saturday afternoons and it is possible that the Industrial league will play twilight ball. The reason the Lapointe, Whiton and Babcock teams were allowed to combine their baseball material into making one team was to make the teams appear about evenly matched on paper. A meeting will be held some time next week to draw up a schedule.

Those present at the meeting were Ralph W. Fistere, James Doyle of the Robert Gair, Steve Miner of the Whiton Co., William Ferrand of the Connecticut Power and Albert Risch of the New London Ship and Engine.

WILLS-MADDEN BOUT MAY BE HELD ON MAY 23

New York, May 15. — The Wills-Madden heavyweight match, twice blocked by the weather and the refusal of a license to the club due to the fire laws, will be held in the Queensboro stadium in Long Island City on Friday, May 23 if the promoters can satisfy fire inspectors. Otherwise the match will be shifted to Newark where it will be held on Monday, May 26.

This decision was reached today by promoters of the Queensboro club after complying with unofficial recommendations made to them by members of the Long Island City fire department. The official inspection of the stadium will be held tomorrow upon the return of Fire Chief Kenyon from Atlantic City and if it satisfies the department officials an application for a new license will be made to the state athletic commission at its meeting next Tuesday.

In the event the bowl does not get the official sanction of the fire department, the match will be moved across the Hudson river to Newark, N. J., where it will be held in Dreamland park. Promoters of the National Sportsman's club of Newark, who have acted with the Queensboro officials in arranging the bout for the Long Island bowl, will promote the match if it is shifted to New Jersey.

WINDHAM WINS EXTRA INNING GAME FROM MANCHESTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 15.—In a thrilling ten inning battle, Coach T. A. Callaghan's Windham High athletes came from the rear at Recreation park yesterday afternoon to defeat Manchester High, 2 to 1. The Silk Cityites were in the fore by virtue of a counter chalked up in the sixth. When the fans were beginning to lose hope and were leaving the field the locals staged a rally in the ninth which netted them a run, Gadarowski's double scoring Burr who had scratched a hit. Storr's single and a series of bunts brought over the necessary run in the tenth. Miela and Mullens hooked up in a wonderful pitching duel, the former having the edge. Miela also scored the winning run. Dazzling fielding plays by members of both teams featured. The score:

FOURNIER'S HOMERS HELP DODGERS TO BEAT CARDS

St. Louis, May 15.—Jack Fournier, Brooklyn first sacker, increased his home run string to seven today, two less than Babe Ruth, and the Dodgers defeated the Cardinals, 6 to 3. Fournier hit a homer in the second with no one on, and repeated in the seventh, scoring Wheat. Stuart was off form and was replaced by Bell in the second. The score:

KAMM'S HITTING AND BASE RUNNING WINS FOR CHICAGO

Boston, May 15.—Kamm's double in the fourth scored two Chicago runs and he later scored from second on an infield out, these three runs being the deciding factor in Chicago's victory over Boston today, 4 to 2. The visitors made only four hits but all were made to count. Joe Harris made the first home run of the Boston major league season, his drive clearing the left field fence. He also doubled twice. How It's Done in the Majors

By Frank Frisch, Captain New York Giants

Any inning. Runner on first base. None out. Ground ball is hit to right or left of the shortstop.

How should he make throw to second base in order to make sure of a double play?

When a ball is hit to the right of the shortston he should make a quick underhand throw to second base to reach there about shoulder high. He makes a similar throw to second when a ball is hit to the left of him but on balls hit to his left time can often be saved if he runs with the ball to second himself and then pegs it down to first. When he makes the latter play he should always yell to the second baseman so the latter will not get in his way and block the play.

YOUNG STRIBLING MAY BOX IN DANIELSON

Frankie Barber of Danielson is negotiating with Young Stribling to appear in an exhibition match at the Danielson arena some time the last of this month. Stribling is booked for an exhibition in New Haven the latter part of May and will go to Danielson direct from New Haven. If the plans go through as it is expected the Eastern Connecticut boxing fans will have an opportunity of seeing the Georgia sensation and his noted family, for Ma and Pa Stribling will be present at the ringside.

Chapman Plays Windham Saturday.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 15. — Chapman Tech will invade Willimantic Saturday afternoon in an attempt to break into the winning column again. The Red and Black will oppose Windham High at Recreation park at 3 o'clock. The Tech have found it a difficult proposition to keep winning games and has once again got into the losing habit. This time the losing streak of the locals is two straight and both games were lost by 6 to 5 scores. Chapman Tech is running into some tough luck and unexpected opposition. Windham has a team that is to be feared and it is feared that the losing streak of Chapman Tech will be extended one more game.

Hardigs to Play Double Week End Bill

The snappy Hardig team will play the fast Yantic Woolen mill team at the fairgrounds Saturday. In last Sunday's game the Hardigs held the woolen men 4 to 3 till the last inning when an error spoiled the chances of victory. Manager King will have the same lineup in Saturday's game as he had in last Sunday's game, excepting a change on third. Sunday the Hardigs will play the Daredevils of Taftville.

Attention, Baltic All Stars!

Marquard's Operation Successful.

Cincinnati, May 5. — "Rube" Marquard, Boston Braves pitcher, who was taken to a hospital here late yesterday suffering from appendicitis, was operated on today and it is believed the operation was successful.

SPORTING NOTES

Molly Craft, veteran pitcher, has joined the Memphis Chicks. He was out of the game last year with a bad arm.

New Orleans has purchased Catcher Frank Witherow from the New Haven Club of the Eastern League. Witherow was formerly a member of the Philadelphia Nationals, and should fit in nicely in the Southern.

Boston asked for waivers on Utility Infielder Johnny Kelleher and Pittsburgh claimed him. It is not understood what use Kelleher will be to the Pirates as they have Johnny Rawlings and Eddie Moore to step in and fill any emergency in the infield.

Fred Blake, the pitcher sold to the Chicago Cubs, along with Elmer Jacobs, on trial, has made good. The Cubs have notified Seattle that Blake would be kept and payment made at once. The Cubs had until May 15 to complete the deal.

Manager Hendricks explains the reason for Eddie Roush hitting in seventh place after returning to the game with the statement the star outfielder desired to hit there. He consulted Eddie about hitting in second place and the player said he thought it would be better for him to stay away from the top of the batting order until he regains his customary stride.

Billy Sunday, the Evangelist, played an umpire role during the opening game in Memphis. Billy is conducting a revival there and accepted the arbitration assignment at the personal invitation of President John D. Martin of the Southern League and President Tom Watkins of the Memphis team. The preacher worked behind the bat for two innings and after a couple of more on the bases retired in favor of the regular umpires, McGowan and Pfenninger.

The Boston Braves have sent [illegible] Baseman Wade Lefler to W[illegible] the Eastern League.

Babe Ruth made his hundredth [illegible] of his 16-year major league [illegible] also made the same game.

FARMERS MUST WORK THEIR WAY OUT

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

I don't suppose any important legislative body in the pages of history was ever less efficient, less competent, or less truly representative than the present congress of the United States. There are several good men in it. But they are a helpless minority. They are submerged under the sprawling and squalling mass of time savers, demagogues and partisans who are so busy concocting schemes to fool the people that they can't give an hour's thought to serving the people.

One of the worst features of this sad condition is that this riff-raff which makes a mock of representative government was freely elected by the very people whom it has betrayed.

The very worst feature of all is that the crankiest and wildest and most demagogic of the lot were elected from farming districts of the west and south. Presumably by farmer votes.

This is something which we farmers of the east can't help but deplore. It blackens our faces, as well as those of our fellow craftsmen who are directly responsible. However firm we may be in our own demand for good government, the outside public isn't slow to charge us with being tarred by the same stick. Even Dog Tray got into trouble when he was found in bad company.

A veteran paragrapher of the middle west expresses the feeling of many of us when he writes:

"God bless the farmers who farm the farms. Devil take the politicians who try to farm the farmers!"

We will all say Amen to that. "Amen," we are told, means "So be it." There is, however, as some of us have noticed, a big difference between saying, "So be it," and acting to make it be so. There were many who were willing to call, "Lord, Lord," but less to do the things He said. There are plenty who would like to have good government from congress but are too shiftless or lazy or selfish to make any effort towards securing it.

Don't forget, too, that there is a big and mighty active minority which doesn't want good government: which wants something entirely different. This includes all the place-hunters whose mouths yawn endlessly for government pap; all the partisan politicians who want government conducted for the benefit of sharks who want capital protected regardless of wider human interests; all the labor blocks which want "labor" coddled at the cost of the rest of the country; all the farm blocs which want special favors shown to farmers.

Take all these divergent but invariably selfish and wholly unpatriotic cliques together, and they make a formidable army in the aggregate. When by secret pacts among themselves they combine to act together, first for the benefit of one bloc, then for the behoof of another, they make a formidable cabal. Just at present, aided by the spite of a mob of blind partisans which borders nearly on treason, they are either controlling congress, or stubbornly blocking its road to any serviceable action. And the so-called "farm bloc," from which western farmers hoped for help, is as deep in the mud as any of the others.

Some time ago a prominent western editor, who has lived long enough in Kansas to know something about prevailing sentiment, issued a warning that the west and southwest were "on the rampage." He explained that they are sore because things weren't coming their way; because they thought they were being impoverished for the enrichment of speculators; because they felt they weren't being given a "square deal." This editor remembered that they had been that way, before, in the times of the anti-railroad crusades. And, remembering those strange eruptions of popular passion and unreason, he warned that similar passion and unreason might be expected, now.

It looks as if he was something of a prophet.

And yet, those whose ears are kept close to the ground think they hear something stirring in the grass-roots even of such states as Dakota and Kansas, which suggests a new spirit among the farmers of those and similar states. There are evidences that the real farmers are getting tired of bunk and buncoing, and are beginning to move for their own salvation along hopefully promising lines.

Take, for illustration, the case of one Nevada county whose principal market crop is alfalfa hay. The growers used to sell this hay to a presser company, their average haul being thirty-five miles each way, and the average price they received being less than the cost of production and haulage. A year ago they got together and decided to stop working for the profits of the presser company and try methods for their own advantage. They found that the big mining towns which lay near them were importing all their butter from distant dairy centers and paying whacking prices for it. So these farmers got some cows, started a co-operative dairy under the guidance of the state agricultural college, fed their alfalfa to the cows in their own barns, saved the resulting manure to grow more alfalfa, and sold the butter to the miners. In less than a year they were selling a thousand dollars worth of butter a month at profitable prices, and the demand was 'way ahead of the supply, even at that.

The farmers of that part of Nevada are no longer loafing around the stumps of political demagogues and cheering when these squarkers howl for government pap. Instead, they are so busy hunting up milk cows and experimenting on better feeding methods and seeing to it that their dairy out-put keeps up to standard butter percentage that they haven't time to waste on side shows.

Through such state as Wisconsin and Minnesota, where the demagogues have been wildest and, apparently, most successful, reports indicate that there has been a very considerable diminution in the areas sown to wheat, and a notable increase in the acreage devoted to other crops. Some, as in Nevada, have gone in for dairying; others, whose land doesn't fit that industry, have planted diversified crops. The old plan of putting all their eggs into one basket and then hoohooing for government charity when the eggs and basket go smash, is being abandoned for the system of putting the eggs into half-a-dozen baskets and sending them to different markets by different routes, so that, if one is lost, the others will afford some income.

They are farms which are made for wheat-growing. There are other farms where wheat-growing is naturally unprofitable. In a recent survey of wheat-growing costs, the department of agriculture found that some farmers produced the grain at a cost of forty cents a bushel while other farmers couldn't get a bushel for less than $4. Yet they all had to sell at the same price. It is evident enough that the farmer whose wheat cost him only forty cents a bushel to raise could sell it for a dollar and make something worth while. It is equally clear that the farmer who paid out $4 to produce his bushel was $3 "in the hole." The department's survey showed that forty-cent wheat usually came from farms which produced thirty or more bushels per acre, while the $4 wheat came from farms which managed to eke out only seven or eight bushels per acre. Yet only one-quarter of the wheat farms investigated yielded as much as nineteen bushels per acre and six per cent actually did only seven bushels or less.

Now, there's nothing government can do which will make seven-bushel land grow thirty-one bushels. Perhaps a good farmer could.—And perhaps it would cost him more to bring up the yield than the increase would be worth. That is something which only the individual farmer, by practical home-applied tests, can find out. On general principles, it would seem as if it was mighty poor farming to keep on sowing wheat, year after year, on land which wouldn't grow enough wheat to pay the plow-bill. That same dirt might grow something else to better profit.

That is just what some farmers in these hitherto wheat-ridden states are beginning to find out. As their number increases and their wisdom is made manifest to their neighbors, they'll be imitated. And when that happens the "rampage" which Editor White predicted will calm down to a gentle zephyr.

We farmers of the east have our own problems and bear our own burdens, and suffer under various local injustices. We can sympathize with those of the west who, to judge from the volume and vehemence of their bellowings, are even worse off. But there are fortunately few of us who think that we can get rich by borrowing money and paying interest, or who believe that an act of congress will make our old apple orchards bear high-priced oranges.

The farmer who wants to make profits by farming must first find out what crops his particular farm will produce at lowest possible costs for seed, fertilizer and labor. Next he must find out what of these crops his most available market will demand most greedily. Then he must put mind and muscle, brains and brawn both to work at their fullest capacity to turn his crops into the market's maw when that market is howling hungriest for them.

He may not be a nincompoop, but he's surely a very unsagacious person if he raises wheat, year after year, when it never pays him—or potatoes or oats or eggs or butter or hay or apples or cabbages or any other stand-by crop.

It would be a poor farm, indeed, on which there aren't fields which will grow something or other which is in profitable demand. To find out what this something is may take some pains and cost some labor, perhaps some preliminary loss. But it will pay, in the long run. This applies just as squarely to the east as to the west and to the west as to the east.

As a rule, I don't look to Wall Street journals for agricultural information or farming wisdom. But Financial America, in a recent issue, hit the nail so forcibly on the head that I'm going to ask you to consider just two sentences. (And I devoutly wish every farmer, west of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio could have the same pasted into his hat.) Says Financial America:

"The majority of American farmers, who have been used as footballs by political meddlers, want a square deal and are entitled to it. They are not seeking charity, and a great many of them understand full well that in the long run they must work their own way out."

Yes, verily. And more power to the elbows of whose who are beginning to scratch gravel in their own private deposits of pay-dirt!!

THE FARMER.

GALES FERRY

The May meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society was held at the home of Mrs. John Harold at the submarine base, Tuesday afternoon, the president, Mrs. W. D. Woodward, presiding. The meeting opened with singing hymn, We've a Story to Tell to the Nations, Miss Caroline B. Freeman at the piano. The devotions were conducted by Miss Sarah T. Latimer. The secretary, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop read the minutes of the last meeting and roll call. The treasurer, Mrs. C. E. Colver, stated $5 had been recently sent to Silver Bay work in Providence, R. I. A paper on Silver Bay community work, followed read by Mrs. Lucy A. Huributt. A solo, Just for Today (Paul Ambrose) was sung by Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, with Miss Freeman accompanist. The Group Idea, a missionary dialogue, was given by the members with Mrs. R. Irving Huributt leader. A paper, A Little Child Shall Lead Them, was read by Mrs. Carroll S. Huributt. The Embryo Missionary was a story read by Mrs. C. E. Colver, and another, My Becky's Bargain, by Mrs. Nelson Parker. The Mite Box Song was sung to the tune of the Old Oaken Bucket, an acrostic in which every member read a selection formed the words, Woman's Home Missionary Society. Mrs. Henry W. Huributt and Miss Alice Satterlee were made a nominating committee for naming officers at the June meeting. The opening of the mite boxes by the mite box secretary, Mrs. Nelson Paiper, assisted by the treasurer, Mrs. Colver, disclosed $23.65. A social hour followed when Mrs. Harold served ice cream, cake, cookies and candy. She was assisted in serving by her mother, Mrs. Marie Cathcart and Mrs. E. E. Colver. Transportation was afforded from Gales Ferry to the base, by the automobiles of Mrs. Harold, Mrs. Avery Main, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham and Mrs. R. Irving Huributt.

The business meeting of the Village Improvement association was held on Monday evening at the Country club house with the president, Rev. Allen Shaw Bush, presiding. The minutes of the last meeting, as read by the secretary, Mrs. Everett Noyes, were approved.

Walter M. Buckingham reported progress on the street guides, also the donation of paint and varnish for the same, from Nelson Parker. D. R. Povey, chairman of landscape gardening, made his report. Miss Grace E. Povey, chairman of the entertainment department, stated that a May party, would be given soon, and plans for future events, well under consideration. Matters pertaining to the fire department were discussed. A gift from Mrs. Lulu B. Hempstead and her brother, Norman L. Brown, was announced by the treasurer, Walter M. Buckingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Alpin and son, Frank A. Alpin Jr., ho have spent the winter at their residence at Gales Ferry, returned to Preston on Wednesday, where F. A. Alpin Jr., has a large dahlia farm.

The summer cottage on the Bluff, recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Jones of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., is undergoing improvements, a fireplace being built on the south side of the living room, with brick chimney and the partition between the living room and dining room being opened ten feet with other changes.

Mrs. A. C. Rigdon of New York city arrived at Gales Ferry Tuesday and opened the family summer home in the village for the season.

Nathan A. Gibbs and daughter, Miss Gibbs and Miss Laura A. Perkins, with S. Alpheus Gilbert of Norwich, motored to Cape Cod Saturday, stopping at New Bedford, Plymouth and East Wareham, and remaining over Sunday and Monday. They returned on Tuesday.

Mrs. Franklin A. Brown of Norwich was at her summer home, Bedfern cottage, Wednesday.

M. Kreisman of Staten Island is a visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hoffman at their home north of the village.

The awarding of a prize of $2 to Em-Beth Bennett, honorable mention to Mildred Crapeau of the Gales Ferry school and Marjorie C. Gates of the Long Cove school, in the poster contest by the Connecticut Humane society, was noted with interest here.

Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins and daughter, Miss Jennie G. Perkins, with Miss Gertrude Allen, were callers on Miss Allen's sister, Mrs. H. Irving Collins in Groton, recently, motoring there in Miss Allen's car.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Lester, who were married recently at the home of Mrs. Lester's mother-in-law, and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Donis Jennings in the Stoddard district, have returned from their honeymoon trip and are at the home of the bridegroom's father in the Unionville district, Ledyard, where they are to reside.

COLUMBIA

Monday, May 19, in Columbia, a well baby conference is to be held.

There will be measuring and weighing to see if the babies are up to the standard weight. There will be much "listening in" to the heart and lungs to see if they are working regularly. There will be examination of eyes, ears, nose and throat—a thorough going-over. Any irregularity so found will be referred at once to the family physician.

How to keep the well baby well is the object of the conference. The new little mother will come and learn how to care for her baby so that it will grow normally, and avoid the illnesses that neglect of proper feeding and correct hygiene often bring about. The mother who has already brought up some children will come with her youngest for she has heard that there are new methods for child care—methods that will assure the child of real health from the beginning. Perhaps she can learn how to avoid some of the mistakes she made before.

For more than a month the plans of the conference have been developing under the guidance of Dr. A. Elizabeth Ingraham, director, bureau of child hygiene, of the state department of health. The standard health examination will be adopted such as is used in all the well baby conferences in 22 towns in the state. The permanent value of this work lies in the regular inspection of children during the growing period. By a monthly examination any tendencies can be readily detected and corrected by the family physician before they become physical defects.

The date is May 19 at the town hall.

LEFFINGWELL

Misses Alice M., and Nola E. Leffingwell are spending some time in New York, visiting Mrs. John Nolan.

Friday evening last a dinner party was given, at his home in Leffingwell, in honor of J. Charles Leffingwell's 88th birthday. A bountiful supper, prepared by Mrs. William Clegg, was enjoyed by the guests. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Beard, Roy L. Beard, Miss Elsie Beard, Mr. and Mrs. C. Emile Geoffrey, C. Thomas Leffingwell, Miss Mildred F. Leffingwell, Frank E. Leffingwell, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Beebe, Miss Carolyn L. Beebe, Miss Alice A. Bishop, Rev. William B. Oakley, Mrs. Frances and Mr. and Mrs. William Clegg.

The Mother's Day text was Genesis 13: 5-6. There was special music and the choir was assisted by the children. A. H. Beebe sang the offertory solo, Home, Sweet Home. There was an extra large attendance.

Several May basket parties have been given by the young people. Franklyn Robinson was one to receive a May basket, also Miss Jessie Ames.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, will run as an independent candidate for president if both the major parties nominate "reactionaries" and when he has become convinced that there is a demand from the people that he make the race.

"... the intelligent grocer knows something about the condition of a woman's hands..."

Let Your Grocer Be Your Beauty Specialist

THAT'S an unusual idea, but—the advice of an intelligent grocer has solved many a woman's most perplexing beauty problem.

This problem, as you may guess, is the appearance of her hands. When your hands are red, coarse and rough, your grocer knows they cannot be made clear and smooth again unless you avoid using common household soaps which irritate the skin.

And your grocer can tell you that you should be equally as careful about the kind of household soap you use as you are about your toilet soap.

* * *

EVERY thinking grocer recommends Kirkman's Soap for all your household purposes, knowing it is as harmless to the hands as is the most exquisite toilet soap. It is free from lye to harm the skin or injure the most delicate fabrics. American grocers have sold it since 1837 and, knowing Kirkman & Son, they know it is made of the purest and finest materials.

For the sake of your hands, insist upon Kirkman's.

Red Seal Records

		Number	DOUBLE-FACED List Price
Vale (Farewell) (d'Arcy-Russell) / I Heard You Go By (Stuart-Wood)	Frances Alda / Frances Alda	1005	$1.50

A beautiful song of love's farewell; and a charming sequel to Alda's familiar "I Passed by Your Window." Knowing the beauty of that record, you'll also want this.

Pilgrim's Song (Tolstoy-Tschaikowsky) / Siberian Prisoners' Song	Feodor Chaliapin / Feodor Chaliapin	1004	1.50

Famous Russian songs. Listen to the clear, unshattered Victrola reproduction of Chaliapin's rich, low notes which mark the close of a descending phrase in about the middle of the "Siberian Prisoners' Song." Results like this, unapproachable with inferior talking-machines and records, are undeviating with Victor products.

Take a Look at Molly (Hazel M. and Lee W. Lockwood) / Sometime (I'll Hear Your Sweet Voice Calling) (Hazel M. and Lee W. Lockwood)	John McCormack / John McCormack	1003	1.50

"Molly" is Irish, and her song is one of the smoothest and most delightful of waltz melodies. "Sometime" is reminiscent. These records are true McCormack gems.

Melodious Instrumental

Prelude Pathetique (Cherkassy) Piano Solo / Ecossaises (Scotch Dances) (Beethoven) Piano Solo	Master Shura Cherkassky / Master Shura Cherkassky	45394	1.00

A composition of this wonderful boy-pianist—amazing to come from the mind of a boy of eleven—combined with a Beethoven number. Both finely played and just recorded.

Light Vocal Selections

Um-Um-Da-Da (from "Tony and Eva") / Aunt Susie's Picnic Day	The Duncan Sisters / The Duncan Sisters	19311	.75

Two whimsically funny numbers by these famous comediennes who are as popular on their Victor Records as on the stage. They'll give you many a real laugh!

Negro Spirituals

Ain't it a Shame to Work on Sunday / Hard Trials	Bethel Jubilee Quartet / Bethel Jubilee Quartet under Direction of Rev. T. H. Wiseman	19289	.75

Splendid negro spirituals. The first deplores Sabbath-breaking, and the other celebrates hard trials and great tribulations. Two of the best records made by this celebrated quartet.

Dance Records

Bring Back That Old Fashioned Waltz—Waltz / Adoration Waltz	Jack Chapman and His Drake Hotel Orchestra / The Troubadours	19310	.75

Forget-Me-Not—Fox Trot / You Can Take Me Away from Dixie—Fox Trot (with vocal refrain)	The Benson Orch. of Chicago / Jack Chapman and His Drake Hotel Orchestra	19312	.75

Two admirable fox trots; light, melodious, free from the extremities of jazz and of sentiment. Dance or listen—delightful records either way.

Never Again—Shimmy Fox Trot / My Sweetheart—Fox Trot	Paul Biese and His Orch. / Jean Goldkette and His Orch.	19313	.75

The season's fox trots have increased sharpness of tempo and accent, and a new technique among comedy trumpeters. Here are two—and they make lively dance records

Cinderella Blues—Shimmy Fox Trot / Blue Evening Blues—Fox Trot	Paul Biese and His Orchestra	19314	.75

Sensational fox trots by Paul Biese and his men—a Benson organization. "Cinderella Blues" has some remarkable group-playing, and Victor recording shows it off to advantage.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

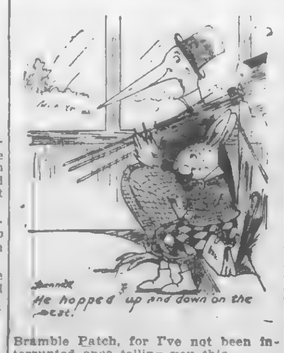
Off to Carrot City

"Oh dearest me!" sighed Mr. Lucky Lefthindfoot, the nice old gentleman rabbit, uncle of Little Jack Rabbit, "how I miss my little nephew. I think I'll call up Lady Love to find out how he is."

And while Uncle Lucky is in the old Hollow Stump Telephone Booth, I'll explain that his bunny nephew had gone to Carrot City to visit the circus animals. Yes sir, that's just where he had gone. You see, all the animals who had seen this dear little rabbit at the circus had sent him an invitation to visit Carrot City, and of course, he had answered yes, just like that, quick as a wink.

On his way he had stopped at Photographer Crane's picture shop to ask that old bird to go along with him.

Goodness me! Uncle Lucky must be having a dreadful time getting the Old Bramble Patch, for I've not been interrupted once telling you this.



He hopped up and down on the seat.

As soon as Photographer Crane had found his camera, he and Little Jack Rabbit jumped into the Billy Goat Stagecoach and were off to Carrot City.

Of course the little rabbit was excited and hopped up and down on the seat until the lollypops in his knapsack almost dropped off the little sticks and the pink rings on his candy cane nearly slipped off.

By and by the coach reached Carrot City and a pretty blue bird began to sing:

"Gracious me, this little rabbit
Has a lazy stagecoach habit.
He could easy hop as far
As his good old grandpapa."

"I will next time," answered the little bunny rabbit boy, "but you see I'm company today."

Then Photographer Crane took a snap shot of the pretty blue bird as they drove through the big gate and over the field to the big tent. The little rabbit looked out of the window and nodded to the children who were waiting for the show to commence.

"I'll take you all," shouted kind Photographer Crane.

As soon as the children were seated, the Picture Man set up his camera on its three legs, and then putting the black cloth over his head, shouted:

"Now keep quiet; don't you sneeze,
Don't you tickle Willie's knees.
Don't pull Mary's yellow braid.
There! I guess the picture's made!"

And in the next story you shall know how little Jack Rabbit met the Elephant.

The semi-monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held Wednesday afternoon in G. A. R. hall and opened with the singing of "The Tide Rolls In." The devotional exercises were conducted by the president, Mrs. W. H. Lamb and the roll call was responded to with responses timely for Mother's Day, that being the subject of the meeting. A letter from Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cooke, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was read, in which she expressed appreciation of the endorsement by the local branch of her stand on law enforcement, etc., as expressed in her address at the annual D. A. R. congress in Washington in April. Mrs. Cooke stated that she had always been in sympathy with the work of the W. C. T. U., her mother having been one of the Crusaders when the organization was started, 50 years ago. Mrs. Augusta Cutler read a paper, entitled "The Crusaders," covering the work of the W. C. T. U. when it was first started 50 years ago. "A Reverie for Mother's Day" was read by Miss Emily N. Murphy; articles on Mothers of Nations were read, Mrs. J. E. Thompson on Chinese Mothers, Mrs. James E. Brown on Italian Mothers and Mrs. Wallace Phillips on Yiddish Mothers; Solo, "Sure is our Victory," by Mrs. W. L. Rollinson, preceded a reading, Shrine at Mother's Knee, Mrs. Martha Stinson; Hebrew Mothers, Mrs. Augusta Cutler and a poem "Mother's Hand," read by Mrs. W. L. Rollinson.

Mrs. D. E. Wilcox, Miss Anna Wilcox, Mrs. Samuel Lamb and children and Mrs. George Denison and daughter were callers in Norwich Wednesday.

Miss Elizabeth T. Mallory left on Thursday for a visit with relatives in New York.

Mrs. Catherine Haley has returned to Middletown, after a stay of several days in the village.

Mrs. Lena Parlow of Fishers Island, has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. John W. Chapman, this week.

A number of Mystic people were in New London Wednesday and witnessed the arrival of the steamer Shinnecock and the parade of guests and officials who came on it accompanied by New London business men and delegations from Norwich, Groton, Stonington and nearby places.

Phoebe Packer Rathbun Tent, Daughters of Veterans, held a successful whist Wednesday evening in G. A. R. Hall. The prizes for high scores went to Mrs. Ada Sweet and Edward Cameron and the consolation award to Doris P. Bovett and Harry C. Allyn.

The membership drive being conducted by Richard W. Morgan Post, American Legion, in conformity with the drive being carried on throughout the state, is meeting with encouraging success and new membership applications are being received daily. These applications will be acted upon at the next meeting of the legion Thursday evening, May 22nd. An invitation has been received by the legion to attend the Memorial service Sunday, May 25th, at the Union Baptist church, with the other patriotic societies of the village.

Oscar Foote has returned to Durham, N. H., where he is a student at the New Hampshire State University, after a visit at his home here.

JEWETT CITY

The executive board of Jewett City Chapter, American Red Cross, the district nurse and two corporation nurses and the superintendent of schools met Miss Grace L. Clock, the field representative for this division and Miss Schuman, the natural nutrition field director from headquarters at Washington, in the chapter room, Thursday afternoon. Miss Schuman set forth the advantages of the services of a nutrition worker among the children and with the mothers, for three months of the year. No action was taken on the matter.

Mrs. Carie Munn entertained the Ladies' Society of the Congregational church in the church parlor, Thursday afternoon. During the business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. E. A. Faust, it was necessary to accept the resignation of the treasurer, Mrs. Carie Munn, as the family is to move to Pawtucket. A new treasurer will be selected by a committee. Plans are under way for a supper this month and an entertainment next month. After the business meeting, there was an entertaining programme, during which Mrs. F. D. Ballou sang two solos, and Mrs. Munn and Mrs. W. P. Richardson played a piano duet. Edith Munn recited a humorous poem. Mrs. Munn was assisted in serving by Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, Mrs. Edward Gallup, Mrs. F. Whalley and Mrs. H. E. Paul.

SPRING LAMBS THRIVE ON FORAGE CROPS

To avoid stomach worms and promote rapid growth in spring lambs with a minimum of labor and feeding cost, the use of forage crops is commended by experts of the United States Department of Agriculture. By this plan the ewes and lambs are put to graze on wheat or rye sown the preceding fall. Fresh grazing should be provided every two weeks. This may be done by subdividing the temporary pastures.

While this crop is being grazed, a crop of soy beans, or rape may be growing on other land for feed after the winter crop is gone. The land at hand the winter crop may then be replanted to any other crop that is seasonable. On request, the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., will supply further information on this and other phases of sheep raising.

EVERY GARDEN SHOULD HAVE RHUBARB

Anyone who has a garden of his own should have rhubarb in it. It is easy to grow if started right. That is, if he selects a medium loam, well drained and sets out good, healthy plants at the right time of year.

Plants may be propagated from seed but it is better to set out plants of the standard varieties as the seeds do not come true to types. Victoria is probably the best variety to grow. It is red in color, large and very good in quality. Set in the fall or early before the ground freezes in the fall or early spring. Mulch to prevent heaving the plant out. Plants should be located about one foot from the edge of the soil. The rows should be three feet apart and the plants between rows two feet apart.

ONIONS AND CABBAGES

Good onion soil is good cabbage soil. Both require the richest soil and the best cultivation in the garden for their best and successful development. Young onions which have sprinted from early planting and furnished spring tonic for the table, make way for an ideal patch for midsummer cabbage, cauliflower or kohl-rabi.

The young cabbage plants can be set between the rows of young onion some time before the ast of the onions have been pulled and thus be sent away to a flying start for early cabbages. tI is best, however among the young onions until the latter are at least helf grown. By the first or second week in May the young cabbage plants can be slipped into position in the young onion patch, about two feet apart, with a clear gain, and the bed will be in continuous operation from the time the young onion sets were planted until the first of the cabbages are cut for the table in midsummer.

As soon as the last of the young onions have been pulled, a light dressing of nitrate of soda will be very beneficial to speed up the growth of the cabbages. This should be sprinkled lightly and not closer than two inches to the stalk of the cabbage. Frequent cultivation, particularly it a dry spell sets in, should be given and frequent sprayings with some arsenical preparation or some of the non-poisonous slug shots must be given for the first flight of butterflies will have its offspring well on the way to goodsized cabbage worms in short order if this precaution is not taken.

At the first appearance of a white butterfly start spraying. A cabbage worm can clean up a cabbage leaf in a hurry if given a start. They are voracious, particularly in their younger stages, and will destroy the budding heads in a hurry if not checked.

CELERY IN THE HOME GARDEN

Celery is a much negected crop in the home garden as it gives an excellent follow crop for early onions, radishes or spinach and is a delicacy well worth while in the early fall days.

St ceery plants in the ground by the middle of May from April-sown seed. They should be transplanted two or three times before going into its permanent quarters for its best growth, as this promotes a good fibrous root system. One transplanting at least is essential.

When placing the seedlings in their permanent beds both the roots and the tops should be trimmed slightly. This also tends to promote thick root dvelopment and the lavs should be trimmed back to compensate for the shortening of the root system, as in all plants there is a direct balanc between th two, and a check to one naturally reacts upon the other.

Celery dmands rich soil, plenty of moisture and growth must be kept going at top speed for a good crop. If allowed to languish during a drought it is likely to become tough and string At such times give good soakings in the small garden where such a process is practical. In larger plantings cultivate rigorously to produce a dust mulch to protect the moisture in the soil.

The balanching process should start in August when the stalks have begun to thicken up and show their characteristic growth. This is done by drawing the soil up to the growing point of the central leaf but using care not to get the earth into the heart of the plant.

Another method is to blanch by placing boards along each side of the row and filling in earth. This will not require as close attention or as much labor and is effective. Paper collars are also sold to place about the plants to protect them from the soil. These are effective for small plantings.

Care should be taken to see that the plants are dry when the hilling-up process is under way. Cleriac or turnip-rooted celery is handled in the same way as celery. It produces a large turnip root with celery flavor, excellent for soups or for cooking and using as a salad.

BALMY SPRING DAYS VITAL TO BEEKEEPERS

These balmy spring days are the most important of the year for the beekeeper, for the amount of honey his bees will produce during the summer depends to a large extent upon the care they receive now and the condition they are in when the honey flow states. The best beekeepers go so far is to say that the best time care" is during the previous fall, thus weather of April and May.

The average colony cannot be built up to strength necessary for maximum honey production without plenty of good food to see it through until the flow of honey starts. No matter how vigorous the queens are they will lay but few eggs if they are in hives housing small colonies to care for the brood, and with food ahead. This is part of the queen bee's wonderful instinct; she seems to sense the condition of her cooiny, and will lay no more eggs than can be cared for adequately.

The need just now is to make sure that hives are supplied with plenty of good food to see them through until fruit bloom starts the honey flow in earnest. This will not be for three or four weeks, at the very east. For spring feed, good clean honey is best, but rather than to take chances on doubtful honey one should make a syrup of granulated sugar. Then, feed inside the hive, but take precaution not to open the hive on a cold, windy day. The best time for this operation is near the hoon hous of a quiet, warm day.

PRODUCTION RECORD IN REFORMATORY HERD

An excellent production record was made recently in the Connecticut Reformatory, at Cheshire, Connecticut, by their purebred Holstein cow, Gussie Pride Korndyke, according to an official announcement made by the advanced registry office of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

At the age of four years and nine months thi cow produced 49.2 pounds milk containing 19.921 pounds butter-fat equal to 24.30 pounds butter in seven days.

Testing for the advanced registry is one of the two chief agencies for improving the capacity of dairy cows. The other is the cow testing association. The latter aids the farmer-dairyman to size up his herd, cull out the undesirable animals and put on a paying basis. The former, testing of purebred cows for advanced registry, sorts out the most desirable cows and bulls for the improvment of the bred. Purebred bulls from cows holding advanced registry records are in demand for the further impovement of dairy hrd in cow testing associations.

The Italian colony in London is puzzled over the sudden cancellation by the Duke of Westminster of permission to use his London mansion, Grosvenor House, for a ball in aid of the Italian hospital in London.

Tar and Oil on Beach.

Up Town residents recently visited their cottages at East Beach, Quonochontaug, bring the report that tar and oil have been deposited in large quantities on the rocks and driftwood which is abundant this season, and along the beach. A ship carrying tar and oil was afire off Newport and drifted near East Beach before breaking to pieces.

Food for thought is often supplied by one's inability to obtain the other kind.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET DULL, IRREGULAR

New York, May 15.—Curious cross currents of prices, reflecting the play of opposing speculative forces, characterized today's dull stock market. Operations for the rise in certain steel, equipment and motor shares were conducted simultaneously with the bear selling of the merchandising, food and certain specialty issues.

When the market opened, the averaging of twenty leading industrial stocks was at the year's low level. Good buying support had been provided, however for the pivotal issues which displayed a firm tone throughout the early trading. An attempt to unsettle the general list by applying concentrated selling pressure when a Baldwin and American Can met with little successful although those two issues were hammered down to around their previous low figures before developing strong recuperative power.

Declaration of increased dividends on the so-called "Walters Roads" monopolized speculative interest in the rail group. Atlantic Coast Line, which had been run up to 125 3-4 in the early trading, broke five points to 120 3-4 following the announcement of a one per cent. extra, which apparently was less than the speculative community had expected. Later in the day Louisville and Nashville increased its annual rate from $5 to $6, that stock closing fractionally higher, at 93 3-4, after touching a record 1924 high at 95. Atlantic Coast Line, which owns a majority of the L. & N. common stock closed at 121 3-8 for a net loss of 3 5-8 points.

Other rails were helped by the higher dividends for these southern roads and an increase of 35,148 in the car loadings for the week ended May 3 over the week before. Chesapeake and Ohio, which was depressed on the failure of the directors to increase the regular $4 rate, showed good recovery, with a net gain of 1-2 point. Other oil stocks offered good resistance to selling pressure. Standard of New Jersey moving up briskly in reflection of an increase of $10,000,000 in last year's earnings.

Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron continued to be in brisk demand, jumping 3 3-4 points to 50 1-8 before profit taking set in which carried it back to 47 1-2 at the close. Other coal stocks shared with it in activity and strength.

Cosden was hammered down to a new 1924 low at 17 1-4 as a result of its poor 1923 report, showing a deficit from operations, but closed the day with a net gain of 1-2 point.

In attempting to bring out additional liquidation, professional operators made the greatest inroads in the specialties, forcing Congoleum, National Enameling and Assorted Dry Goods down to new lows for the year. Rumors of new financing accompanied selling of National Enameling. Anaconda Copper, selling at 30, reached the lowest level since 1920, while other shares in this group also lost ground on a reduction in the price of the red metal.

Foreign exchanges again were unsettled, early selling in London brought about a reaction in the price of French francs at the opening of the market, but the rate later rallied above 800 cents, to within a few points of yesterday's close. Belgian francs fell about 16 points to below 5 cents, while sterling was fractionally lower at $4.36 1-2.

Call money after opening at 3 1-2 per cent. dropped to 3 per cent., the lowest since March. Time money was unchanged with 90 day loans available at 4 per cent. and longer accommodations at 4 1-4 per cent.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 15.—Establishment of best buying levels for the year by all active issues of U. S. government bonds today reflected diversion of Wall streets excess funds, which later overflowed into other sections of the investment market. Substantial improvement in prices resulted, although a few weak spots were scattered throughout the industrial and public utility list.

Expectations that the bonus bill would be vetoed and a drop in the call money at 3 per cent. rate, the lowest since the March plethora of funds, contributed to the heavy institutional buying of Libert bonds. All issues slod at new 1924 top prices, with net gains ranging from 2-32nds to 20-32nds on frequent transactions of $100,000 or more. The "Mellons" sold at a new record high, scoring a net advance of 18-32nds.

The rapid run-up in the prices of government obligations influenced buyers to turn to other sections of the market later in the day. Accumulation of French governmental and municipal issues began, several of the latter registering gains of 1 to 2 points in the late trading. Railroad mortgages were eagerly sought at rising prices, and some of the popular industrial liens were in demand. Independent weakness, however, developed in Virginia-Carolina 7's and Ajax Rubber 8's, both of which dipped to new low levels.

Indications point to a smaller volume of new financing for the week, although several important offerings have been scheduled tentatively for next week. These include the Peruvian loan, a portion of which will be marketed abroad, and a "Nickel Plate" railroad issued to exceed $25,000,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 15.—Likelihood of rapid progress hereafter in corn planting gave prices of corn a material setback today, and also weakened the wheat market. Both corn and wheat closed unsettled. Corn 5-8 a 3-4 to 1 1-8c net lower, July 75 2-8 to 75 1-2, with wheat unchanged to 1-2c down, July 1.06 a 1.06 1-8 to 1.06 1-8 and September 1.07 to 1.07 a 1.07 1-8, oats 1-8 to 3-4 a 1-2c off, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

Warm weather prevailing throughout the corn belt and giving aid to field work drove traders promptly away from the buying side of the corn market, and led to persistent pressure to sell. This pressure gradually increased, especially on the part of houses with eastern connections. Then with shipping demand here slow, the market kept on the downgrade until May delivery and July were about identical in value. Gossip that the northwest was selling corn to come here at 1c under the Chicago spot price had a special bearish effect.

Something of a struggle in the corn market resulted from standing orders to buy corn at around 75 1-4c word of a little export business in corn helped also to bring about fractions rallies, and so, too, did the fact that receipts were light.

As a result of dearth of speculative buying in the wheat market, wheat was easily affected when the corn decline became pronounced. Earlier the wheat market was a little firmer, chiefly in response to Liverpool advices that European stocks were moderate and that France and Italy would need to purchase liberally for a considerable while yet.

Oats like wheat eased down in sympathy with corn, despite some lack of rain for the Iowa oats crop.

Provisions were steady because of a rise in hog values.

CURB MARKET

New York, May 15.—Curb stocks made moderate recovery from recent heaviness in today's quiet market. Chief speculative interest again centered in the oil shares, which showed evidence of short covering.

Prairie Oil and Gas led the advance in the active issues of that group, closing four points higher at 214. Penn Mex Fuel gained more than two points to 39 1-2 on rumors that a large well had been brought in on its Mexican property. The stock touched 40. Northern Pipe Line, Imperial Oil of Canada and Standard Oil of Nebraska each closed a point higher, while other leaders registered fractional gains. In contrast was a two point drop in Illinois Pipe on small sales.

Industrial shares were irregular, the feature being a six points jump in National Tea to 376. Lehigh Valley Coal certificates touched a new current high at 31 1-2 and Dubilier closed 1 1-8 higher at 32 3-4.

The new common and preferred shares of General Motors Corporation were admitted to trading on a when issued basis, 100 shares of the common being traded in at 52.

TAFTVILLE

Lloyd H. Ordway of New York, formerly proprietor of the Ponemah house, was a visitor in town Thursday. Mr. Ordway spent the winter in Florida and is now spending some time in Baltic.

Emile Gauthier of Moosup, a former resident of this village, spent Thursday with friends in town.

John Wohlleben of South A. street is recovering from trouble with ulcerated teeth.

A number of village people are receiving endless chain prayers, which appear to be quite the rage in town as the local post office has been cluttered up with them. These prayers promise that if the chain is not broken, great joy will come to the one who passes on the letter, but misfortune will befall him who negects to do so. Most people do not appreciate the receipt of these letters. If the recipient is at all superstitious, he is thereby condemned to send the letter on. The whole matter is considered by many of the village residents to be a nuisance and as many people have received several of them, they have become a nuisance.

Leo Lepage of Norwich avenue has purchased a new automobile.

The Aowakiya Camp Fire Girls met Thursday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church with the guardian, Mrs. E. Tracy Clark, and the assistant guardian, Miss Elsie Heap, in charge.

Dorilis Ducharme of Norwich avenue has purchased a laundry route in Willimantic.

The Taftville Field Day association Fourth of July celebration committee met Thursday evening at the Army and Navy club with President John B. Benoit presiding.

NORWICH TOWN

Troop No. 20, Boy Scouts of Norwich Town, Frederic H. Wyant, scoutmaster, is to hold a meeting this (Friday) evening. During the summer, this troop is to hold meetings in a tent on the property of the Rock Nook Children's Home.

In a recent letter to Scoutmaster Wyant, from the secretary of the Rock Nook Home committee, Mrs. Willis Austin, announcement was made that the matter of allowing the Boy Scouts to maintain a tent on this property, was decided favorably to the scouts by both the Children's Home Board and the Executive Board of the United Workers. Aside from the courtesy of the above committee this was made possible through the kindness of Ozias Dodge, who was influential in assisting the scouts.

There is to be a meeting of the Norwich Rural association, this (Friday) evening, in the First Congregational chapel.

Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, accompanied by his church choir, will have charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms.

The Forty Hours' Devotion is to open at the Sacred Heart church, Sunday morning at the 10 o'clock mass.

Alexander Kilroy, R. N., of Bellevue Hospital, New York, is visiting for several days at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Brosofsky, of Town St.

CITY WATER DEPARTMENT SHOWS $85,971.42 IN PROFITS IN PAST YEAR

Profits of the Norwich water department for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1924, were $85,971.42, according to the annual report of the board of water commissioners which has been presented to the common council, the receipts were more than last year, the expenses less and the amount turned over to the city, together with the amount on hand, will exceed the estimate by $7,162.35.

The estimate made in the city's annual budget placed $49,000 as the receipts to be expected from the water department. The last statement made by the city treasurer showed that $55,162.35 had been paid over by the water department to him up to April 15, 1924.

The board, whose membership includes John J. Corkery, president, Frank R. Quinley, R. S. Bartlett, Arthur E. Story and Charles A. Hagberg, discusses the need of securing more water, as the consumption of water is increasing, and makes the suggestion that increasing the drainage area at Stony Brook would be more economical and satisfactory than raising the dam there. The report also states that the cure for the difficulties in the Norwich water situation is some storage capacity at diversion points.

Fifty-first Annual Report.

Norwich, Conn., April 1, 1924.

To the Honorable Court of Common Council of the City of Norwich:

Gentlemen: In compliance with the provisions of the city charter, we herewith present our report for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1924. Accompanying it are reports of the supervisor of outside work, and the reports of the cashier and inspector.

Financial Statement.

1923.	Receipts.	Disbursements.	Balance
April 1 to June 30	$25,340.37	$8,903.56	$16,436.81
July 1 to Sept. 30	25,846.23	14,149.29	11,696.94
Oct. 1 to Dec. 31	26,138.38	13,541.93	12,591.40
Jan. 1 to March 31, 1924	24,784.45	10,347.25	14,437.20
	$102,104.38	$46,942.03	$55,162.35

The receipts for the past year exceed those of the preceding year by $4,129.02; the disbursements are $2,057.97 less than estimated at the beginning of our fiscal year, and the amount turned over to the city, together with the amount on hand, will exceed the estimate by $7,162.35.

The mild weather of the past winter saved the department several hundred dollars in expense and at the same time tended to conserve our water supply.

The matter of an adequate water supply has been discussed at several meetings during the past year and it is hoped that some definite plan or plans to increase our supply will be presented to the people during the coming year. The consumption of water is increasing out of all proportion to the increase in receipts. This is due to the increase in consumption by large consumers at a very small price for the water. The board has submitted a schedule of meter rates to the court of common council which, if approved, will tend to improve the above mentioned difference.

In October, 1923, our two reservoirs reached their lowest points for the year—Fairview reservoir down 8 feet 9 inches and Stony Brook down 20 feet 7 inches. On October 20th we had stored about 60 days' supply of water. The low point reached at Stony Brook was the lowest since the reservoir was built. This condition, or a worse one, may come again in a short time, unless we make provision against it. During the year the board received many complaints of low pressure on the high places. Some of this trouble has been remedied and we hope to find some means of future improvements during the coming year. The consumption of water is increasing every year and the receipts of the department now exceed one hundred thousand dollars a year. This increase in consumption cannot continue with safety, unless we increase our water supply.

The need of increasing our water supply has been considered at several meetings during the year, and as a result of investigations made by Charles E. Chandler, the following information is submitted:

The capacity of Fairview reservoir before the recent addition of one foot was 450 million gallons. This foot probably increases the capacity about 30 million gallons. The available temporary storage at Meadow Brook should have some consideration, which perhaps justifies the assumption of 500 million gallons storage.

The drainage area is 3.3 square miles of which about 7 per cent is water surface or its equivalent.

Stony Brook has a drainage area of 2.5 square miles and had a storage of 388 million gallons with about 5 per cent of water surface.

The increase due to a one foot flashboard would probably make the capacity about 415 million gallons.

The storage at Fairview per square mile of drainage area is about 217 million gallons, while the storage at Stony Brook, as now increased is only 166 million gallons per square mile.

To give Stony Brook the same proportion as Fairview would require an additional 127 million gallons.

To get this extra amount of storage, if the ground sloped above the present flow line about as it does below it, would make it necessary to raise the water line between five and six feet.

This would make it necessary to raise the gate house, the bridges, spillway, embankment and corewall.

Stony Brook Reservoir.

Top of embankment at center 272.75
Top of edge of embankment. 272.
Top of corewall ..... 269.
Spillway ..... 267.
Present flashboard on spillway 268.

The embankment is 18 feet wide at the top.

The spillway is 35 feet long.

It seems to me that the flashboard now in use is all that should be done about raising the water unless some changes are made in the embankment and corewall.

If the spillway, corewall and embankments were raised as high as the position of the gate-house and bridge will permit, perhaps a gain of two feet above the top of present flashboard could be safely made.

The raise in embankment should be protected by vertical side walls connected by a curve on the upstream side with the embankment paving.

It would be necessary to have the approval of a member of the state board of civil engineers before such a change is made.

It would seem that increasing the drainage area at Stony Brook would be more economical and satisfactory than raising Stony Brook dam.

Fairview Reservoir.

Top of present coping on well house near main dam	249.53
Top of iron flashboard at northerly end of reservoir ..	247.56
Top of retaining wall on northerly side of main dam	252.
Top of embankments of dams at northerly end of reservoir	252.
Top of present corewalls at northerly end of reservoir..	249.3
Top of present corewall at main dam	250.

Before the dams were raised in 1903 the following elevations existed:

Top of corewall about	243.
Top of coping on well-house..	245.46
Top of embankmen main dam	248.77

On the basis of the experience on the Sudbury water-shed of the Boston water works, which is much like our water works as any we have records of, an increase of 40 per cent. in our drainage areas without increasing our storage capacity would increase our dependable yield about 25 per cent., bringing it from three million gallons daily to three and three-quarter million gallons daily.

On the same theory, adding 100 per cent. to our drainage area by taking Trading Cove Brook by pumping, would increase our dependable supply about 50 per cent.

Again, if we were to increase our storage 40 per cent. it would not be likely to increase our dependable supply more than 10 per cent.

In order to get the full benefit of increased drainage area it is necessary to have diversion pipes of large capacity; so large, in fact, that it is not practicable to get the full theorectical benefit.

Where pumping is required it is also true that a pump large enough for the maximum flow would be too expensive.

The cure for these difficulties is some storage capacity at the diversion points.

Report of Civil Engineer.

Incorporated with the board's report is the following statement giving the result of his investigations by Civil Engineer C. E. Chandler:

Mr. J. J. Corkery,

President Board of Water Com'rs.

Norwich, Conn.

Dear Sir, You made inquiry regarding a stream that I had suggested might be turned into the Stony Brook reservoir.

The stream I mentioned is a branch of Stony Brook that crosses the Fitch Hill road near the Raymond Hill road.

At the Fitch Hill road its drainage area is only about one-half a square mile. About one-half a mile further down stream the drainage area is about one and one-half square miles.

The elevation of the brook at the first mentioned point as indicated by the topographic map is about 215 feet, and at the other point about 265 feet.

It might be found that the elevations are somewhat lower or higher than indicated by the map.

If a reservoir were built at the lower site it would probably be high enough to use in connection with the Stony Brook pipe-line.

Unfortunately, a reservoir at this point would have a large area in proportion to its depth.

The upper site is about one and one-half miles and the lower site about two miles from Stony Brook reservoir.

The number of houses on these drainage areas is not large, but is larger than on our present drainage areas.

The elevation of Gardner's Lake by topographic map is 370, and the distance from the lake to a point where Stony Brook is at elevation 360 is about two miles and the summit between has an elevation of over 400 feet. This means about two miles of pipe with a cut at the summit of about 35 feet at high water, and deeper if low water is considered, or a syphon which would require a pump to start the water.

The shore cottages and the mill owners would have to be considered.

There are points on Trading Cove Brook where small reservoirs could be built to reinforce Stony Brook by pumping in dry years. One of these points is near where the Stony Brook pipe line crosses the Trading Cove Brook, which would have the advantage of a very short pipe line.

Diversion damages would be small, both on the south branch of Stony Brook and on the Trading Cove Brook.

The important question that must sooner or later be decided is:

Shall we go to very large expense to get a large gravity supply like Gardner's Lake or Pease Brook, or shall we increase our supply by pumping from Trading Cove Brook or some other brook?

In no case can we get much water from any water-shed as free from contamination as those we now use.

I enclose topographic maps with the drainage areas on Stony Brook, at Trading Cove Brook, in red.

In comparing Trading Cove Brook and pumping with taking water from Gardner's Lake or Pease Brook, the fact that the expense of pumping could and should be paid from receipts for the sale of water, while the total expense of taking either Gardner's Lake or Pease Brook would have to be provided by a large bond issue, should be considered.

In one case we might have an expenditure of $100,000 and an annual expense of from $5,000 to $10,000, while in the other we would probably have to hire more than a million dollars.

The present excessive cost of material and labor and the uncertainty that these prices will be maintained for a long period should also be considered in the comparison.

Your suggestion regarding payment for diversion of water annually in proportion to th amount used, rather than for all the water forever, seems worthy of careful consideration and it would have the advantage of annual payment from water receipts.

Regarding the use of water from a source where houses are more numerous than on our present watersheds, it should be remembered that the use of chlorine makes it practicable to use supplies otherwise dangerous.

Another consideration is the fact that no one has the right to discharge sewage into a stream or pond, and that if necessary to use a certain source for water supply it would be the duty of house owners to treat their sewage in such a manner as to make the streams and ponds safe for a water supply.

If the summer cottagers on Gardner's Lake were to treat their sewage with septic tanks or sub-irrigation or both, and the city would chlorinate the water they use, and the mill owners would agree to a price per thousand gallons of water actually used by the city, Gardner's Lake would have advantages as a source of supply and the expense to the city would be largely annual instead of in advance.

Any water supply that is capable in the driest years of furnishing a given quantity of water will have water to waste in the average years and still more to waste in the wet years.

It is impossible to know whether the next pair of dry years will come immediately or a long time in the future.

The fact that we are now using about [illegible] more water than can be depended on in the driest years with our present supply makes a shortage of water likely to occur soon, but not sure to occur soon.

Yours respectfully,

C. E. CHANDLER.

NORWICH LEGION POST IS OVER THE TOP

According to notices sent out from American Legion state headquarters, concerning the Legion Raid, the Norwich post, Robert O. Fletcher, No. 4, stands second in the state in the number of members taken in during the first week, with 63. Hartford comes first with 74 members and Meriden a close third with 58 members. New London post, which is in the same regiment as Norwich, is fourth with 45 members.

Norwich post is already over the top, figuring the membership in 1923, and bids fair to jump the membership by nearly 75 and the boys are determined to bring the membership over the 150 mark before the raid ends on Saturday night.

A big post rally has been scheduled for this (Friday) evening at the Legion rooms on Main street when reports will be heard from all posts in the district, and the newly signed members will be entertained at a smoker.

The Legion has the backing of the biggest men in the state and many letters have been written to State Commander E. P. Armstrong complimenting the Legion on the fine work it has accomplished in the past, and praising the future policy of the greatest veterans' organization in the country. Among the letters received is the following from Charles A. Templeton, governor of the state of Connecticut:

Letter From Governor Templetin.

Major E. P. Armstrong, Dept. Com.,
The American Legion
171 Church St.,
New Haven, Conn.

My dear Commander Armstrong: The American Legion has a staunch supporter in myself. The purposes for which it was founded were both patriotic and practical. The non-political feature of your tenets is particularly important.

The men who served their country during the World war did their duty well. Their chief reward will come in the satisfaction of knowing this. But that does not exclude the rest of us from expressing our appreciation in a tangible way. Many of our former soldiers and sailors are now disabled, and I for one regard it as a pleasant duty to co-operate with you in caring for them.

Your organization has done good work in the past and I am persuaded that it will continue that good work. As President Coolidge wrote five years ago, when he was yet governor of Massachusetts, "The contest between good and evil, between those who love freedom and liberty sufficiently to make sacrifices for it and those who are selfishly bent on some form of despotism for their own satisfaction, must still be maintained. One of the (enemy) methods was to [illegible], the other was to pervert the truth."

In the direction of combatting propaganda and other patriotic direction the American Legion is performing a great service.

I trust your membership will grow and that in every way, and particularly in the matter of rendering service to your fellow men, your organization will prosper.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. A. TEMPLETON.

Norwich Market Growers' Association

To the readers of the Bulletin:

Two years ago last month the local growers of hothouse and field grown vegetables raised a fund of several hundred dollars to be used for newspaper advertising through '22 and '23. Our contract with this paper expires with this issue. And the question arises. Shall we continue our advertising or not? Some of our members are in favor and some are against further publicity. We have been told by grocers and market men that the demand for home grown vegetables has increased through our advertising. Others say they see no more demand than normal. But we would like the views of the consumer. You have read, more or less of our ads during the two summers just passed. Have they been of any value to you? Have you felt better, had a clearer brain, a more active liver, slept more restfully, enjoyed your meals more heartily because you have used more vegetables? We want the views of 100 or 1000 readers and will ask you to write our president or secretary your opinion of our service. If you have benefited or not by reading our ads, kindly let us know by mail, so that we may be certain that we are performing a service, and if not shall we discontinue advising the free use of

CONVICT TELLS OF VAST SUMS HE PAID FOR "PROTECTION"

George Remus of Atlanta Penitentiary Testified Before Senate Committee of Paying $250,000 to $300,000 to the Late Jess W. Smith, Companion of Former Attorney General Daugherty — Former Bootlegger Promises to Produce Checks and Records.

[illegible], May 16.—A quiet little man with piercing eyes, George Remus of Atlanta penitentiary, between guards [illegible] hearing room today and told a story of a magically sudden rise to wealth and almost as sudden a fall to the status of a convict. An unscrupulous criminal lawyer in Chicago in 1919, by 1922 he had become sole owner of nine distilleries in Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana, and part owner of more, and the operator of a string of wholesale and retail drug companies from New York to Missouri.

That he bought up government officials almost as expeditiously as he acquired his properties was an implication to which he clung unshaken throughout his examination. He told the committee that his selling whiskey as medicine was a mere pretext and that in reality he was the source of supply for bootleggers in a half dozen central states, the "financial man" of an organization he referred to as "Remus and his men."

His "chief counsel," introduced him to Jess Smith in New York in 1921, Remus said. Smith knowing the witness as "a reasonably large operator in whiskey," and Remus knowing Smith as "a man very close to the attorney general." When the third party had "retired gracefully" Remus said, he laid a foundation for good relationship with Smith by passing over $50,000 in $1,000 bills. Then began a series of meetings, he added, which continued until the shadow of the penitentiary was falling over him, although Smith was promising even then that the "General"—the term applied to H. M. Daugherty—was going to use his influence to obtain executive clemency for Remus.

There was "a gentleman's agreement," pursuant to which Remus said he paid Smith large sums at intervals while "whiskey was coming through," on the government permits that enabled the bootlegger chief to withdraw stocks from his distilleries and turn them into the distribution chain of the drug houses.

[illegible] the penitentiary the senate committee, visiting Mr. Daugherty's department of justice, [illegible] four months of [illegible] imposed upon [illegible] to violate the [illegible]. Communist Leader Arrested

Berlin, May 16.—The Communist Leader Botzenhardt, search for whom caused the recent raid on the Russian soviet trade mission, was arrested today in the Russian delegation's flat, it was officially announced. The communist who is wanted by the Pomeranian state's attorney on a charge of treason had been hiding in the flat since Saturday. At a preliminary hearing after his arrest he declined to answer all questions.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, denied the existence of a "joker" in the immigration bill.

The house rules committee heard arguments on a especial rule for immediate consideration of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Investigation of charges against Federal Judge Baker of the northern West Virginia district was recommended by a house committee.

George Remus, millionaire bootlegger, told the Daugherty committee he paid between $250,000 and $300,000 to Jess W. Smith for protection.

The shipping board investigating committee sought further information on the sale of steamer Martha Washington to an Italian corporation.

Edward J. Doheny, Jr., was relieved of testifying before the oil grand jury in a decision by Justice Hitz of the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

The department of justice began a study of legal precedents for the action of federal judges at Chicago overriding a grant of presidential clemency.

Charges of railroad propaganda against railroad legislation were made in the senate by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, and Gooding, republican, Idaho.

CONFEREES DEADLOCKED ON TAX REDUCTION BILL

Washington, May 16.—Prospects of extended contests on the tax reduction bill appeared today as the conferees locked horns on some of the more controversial differences between the senate and house. It was freely intimated that the conferees probably would have to return to their respective houses for instructions on some of these provisions.

Members of the conference are bound to secrecy on their actions but it was indicated that among the real stumbling blocks are the senate amendments for publicity of tax returns and a graduated tax on undistributed corporation profits.

In this connection, Secretary Hoover issued a statement today assailing the full publicity proposal as unfair to small business and as opening the door to fraud.

House conferees, it is understood, have stood firm against this amendment which was voted into the bill by the democratic-republican insurgent coalition in the senate on motion of Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska. A similar proposal was rejected by a decisive margin in the house. House leaders privately predicted today this amendment would be turned down by the conferees.

Both the house and the senate finance committee, however, agreed to open the tax returns to inspection by certain congressional committees, empowered by resolutions.

2 PER CENT DECLINE IN RETAIL FOOD PRICES

Washington, May 16—An average decline of two per cent. in retail food prices in the United States during the month ending April 15 was reported today by the labor department bureau of statistics. The trend of the wholesale commodity prices also continued downward during the month, the bureau's weighted index number, including 404 commodities, declining to 148 as compared with 150 for the month before.

Decreases in retail food prices in 51 of the 52 cities for which figures were reported ranged from five per cent. at Buffalo, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Providence and Scranton to less than one per cent at Atlanta, Los Angeles, Portland, Oregon and Salt Lake City. For the year ending April 15 the average decrease was given as 1 per cent.

Decreases in food stuffs and metals were chiefly responsible for the average drop in wholesale commodity prices during the month smaller decreases were reported in the groups of cloths and clothing, fuel and lighting and chemicals and drugs.

Farm products, on the other hand, showed an increase, due to advances in cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry, cotton, hay, potatoes and peanuts. No change was reported in building materials, house furnishing goods and miscellaneous commodities.

The general commodity price level for April was nearly 7 per cent. lower than in the same month last year.

MORE RUM HUNTING SHIPS IN THE SOUND

Hartford, May 16.—Word was received here from New London tonight that following three big liquor seizures along the coast of Connecticut and Rhode Island within the last twenty four hours, government boats had been detached from other places and detailed to Long Island sound in an efforts to stop the passage of liquor across the sound from the rum fleet off Montauk Point. The coast guard cutter Acushnet, it was said at New London had left Wood's Hole but whether she was bound for New London or detailed to watch the bonts off Montauk Point could not be learned there.

TRUCK LOAD OF ALLEGED 4 PER CENT. BEER CAPTURED

Hartford, May 16.—State policeman Bahr of the Centerbrook hararcks this afternoon captured a truck load of alleged four per cent. beer at Saybrook. The truck was owned and driven by John Mercier of 50 Washington street, West Haven who is held under $1,000 bond for hearing next Friday. The suspicions of the state policeman were aroused when he noticed the truck stopping at a number of places. On examination, he found twenty-five case of alleged beer on the truck.

SENATOR PAT HARRISON TO OPEN DEM. CONVENTION

New York, May 16.—(By the A. P.)—Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi will be selected temporary chairman and "Keynote speaker" of the democratic national convention tomorrow which meets here on June 24, it was learned tonight.

Famous Pedestrian Shot By Rowdies

Edward Payson Weston Was Wounded in Leg When His Home Was Attacked.

Kingston, N. Y., May 16.—Edward Payson Weston, 86-year-old world famous pedestrian, was shot and slightly wounded when a band of men, armed with guns, stones and sticks, attacked his farm home in Ulster county last Monday night, it became known today. A bullet struck Mr. Weston in the leg, but it is understood his condition is not serious. His housekeeper and adopted son were in the house at the time of the attack, but neither was injured. Doors were battered down and windows smashed.

State troopers working on the case said the aged pedestrian could not explain why he was attacked and was reluctant to talk about his experiences. It is known, however, that some time during Monday night five or six men sought admittance to Weston's farm home at Plutarch, near New Paltz, and that when the door was closed against them they attacked the house. They threw stones and sticks through the windows, then rushed the front door and broke in.

Weston, unarmed, fled to an upstairs room, locked the door and held himself against it. More sticks and stones were hurled through the windows and then the men began pounding on the door, finally making a concerted rush and breaking it in. Weston was cornered and severely beaten. Then the men left.

The housekeeper and the boy were in another room during the attack, but managed to escape injury. The action of the men apparently was quite as much a mystery to them as to Weston and they could give the troopers only few minor details of the affair.

Mr. Weston came to Ulster county after his retirement several years ago.

ARRESTED IN GREENWICH FOR TRANSPORTING BEER

Bridgeport, May 16.—Ward S. Dexter, of 89 Seaview avenue, this city, and Joseph Taylor of 179 Meadow street, New Haven, are being detained at Greenwich following their arrests there early yesterday morning by State Policeman Streaman of the "flying squadron," when they were caught transporting 120 barrels of beer in two trucks of the American Transporting company of New Haven and New York.

Eugene Gallini, of 215 Morris street, Fairview, N. J., who was found riding on one of the trucks, and who said that he knew nothing of the beer, is likewise being detained at Greenwich lockup on technical charges of breach of peace.

Taylor, member of an alleged "beer ring" supplying New Yorkers with pre-prohibition brew, was arrested at Greenwich with other members of the alleged ring on May 5, and is also awaiting arrangement in criminal superior court here and in Stratford town court with other alleged bootleggers on similar counts.

IMMIGRATION BILL HAS NOT REACHED PRESIDENT

Washington, May 16—The immigration bill with its Japanese exclusion provision moved today along the routine via votes in legislation to the white house and the uncertain fate that awaits it there at the hands of President Coolidge.

The measure having been approved finally yesterday by the house and senate, was signed by Speaker Gillett but reached the senate too late for President Pro Tem Cummins to attach his signature.

It will be signed by President Cummins tomorrow and may reach the white house late in the day but probably not until next week.

While the bill thus was going through the technical processes incident to its transmission to the white house, discussion arose as to whether the measure did not contain a loop hole through which Japanese might enter the United States as immigrants.

COMPLAINTS AGAINST MORE CABARETS IN NEW YORK

New York, May 16.—Complaints against three more cabarets in the White Light district were made to Federal Judge Learned Hand this afternoon by the district attorney's office which asked for a temporary injunction restraining the sale of liquor. The establishments are the Piccadilly-Rendezvous, The Silver Slipper and The Hollywood.

The district attorney's office expressed the hope that this injunction would be granted early tomorrow and notice of it pasted on the walls of the cabarets mentioned by tomorrow night. Counsel for the nine cabarets, which were padlocked on Thursday by federal authorities for violation of the prohibition law, declared that his clients will retire from the business without any intention of resuming.

Bonus Veto Approved By Ex-Service Men

Will Declare War on Every Member of Congress Who Votes to Override Veto.

Washington, May 16.—Declaring war on every member of congress who votes to override President Coolidge's veto of the soldier bonus, the ex-service men's anti-bonus league today announced that it would organize to carry the fight into every state where necessary next November.

Knowlton Durham, president of the organization, issued this statement announcing the contemplated extension of the league's activities:

"If a member of congress has conscientiously favored and voted for the bonus, that is his affair; but if there are those who believe the bonus wrong in principle and yet are influenced by what they consider political expediency to cast their vote against the presidential veto, we intend to show that there are at least two sides to the question, and we expect to appeal to the voters who agree with us (and we believe they are the great majority of the voters of this country) to support and defend those who uphold the principles enunciated by the president."

TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT U. W. H. P. FAUNCE OF BROWN

Providence, R. I., May 16.—A tribute to President U. W. H. P. Faunce of Brown university, describing him as "the example of what a Christian scholar and gentleman should be," was paid by Secretary Hughes here tonight, speaking at a dinner given in honor of President Faunce to congratulate him upon a quarter of a century of service as head of the university.

"In my time," Mr. Hughes said, referring to his years at Brown, Faunce stood out as one of the young men of demonstrated ability of highest character. He is still the preacher, the inspirer, the courageous defender of the faith which does not seek conviction at the price of mental rectitude."

The secretary said that the only solution of the problems of democracy lay in "education, and still more education." He added that Brown university was "an exemplar of the freedom of learning," although established when sectrian restrictions were most severe.

"It knows no creed, no ambition but the service of truth," he said. "Brown university has not suffered from this cherished freedom either with respect to the soundness of its culture or the spiritual influences which have always dominated its life."

TALKING OF BIG STRIKE OF GARMENT WORKERS

Boston, May 16.—A general strike of the 50,000 workers in the cloak and suit branch of the needle industry of New York city, will be ordered for June 1 unless the manufacturers agree to grant demands for improved working conditions, including a forty hour week and a minimum of 40 weeks work a year, at present under discussion, according to a decision reached today by the 17th biennial convention of the International Ladies' garment Workers' union in session here.

Authority for a general strike was voted unanimously by the delegates when, in the reading of the officers report, power to order the strike was asked.

Workers in Boston and Cleveland now are employed under an agreement which carries the clause relating to hours and regularity of employment. The general excutive board was instructed to have a clause of this nature included in every agreement signed hereafter.

A recommendation that a fund be established for granting scholarships in the principal colleges and universities of the United States for young men and women members who can obtain an education and at the same time remain affiliated with the union, was adopted.

EMBEZZLER PETITIONS FOR A WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

Boston, Mass., May 16.—A petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed in behalf of Joseph B. Marcino, now serving a five year sentence at Atlanta for embezzlement in connection with the wrecking of the First National bank, of Warren, Mass., was dismissed by Judge James M. Morton in United States district court late today. As a result, the trial of Marcino in superior court at Worcester, together with that of Frank L. Taylor, former president of the bank, and Abraham Goldman, all charged with larceny and conspiracy, is expected to go forward.

OREGON IS VOTING FAVORABLE TO COOLIDGE

Portland, Oregon, May 16.—Returns from the first three precincts in today's primary election, give for preference for the republican nomination for president: Coolidge 252; Senator Hiram Johnson 39.

SENATOR LODGE TO VOTE TO OVERRIDE BONUS BILL VETO

Massachusetts Man So Declares in the Senate During Debate —The Measure Will Come Before the House Today— Advocates of the Bonus Are Confident of Repassage— In the Senate a Close Vote is Expected, With the Bill Receiving a Possible Majority of Two.

Washington, May 16.—Congress prepared with businesslike concern today to take up the veto of the soldier bonus bill, proponents of the measure insisting the situation was unchanged by the president's message and that the bill would be repassed by both houses.

In the house, where the measure will be brought up on convening tomorrow, bonus advocates were so confident of repassage that scarcely a poll was taken. Likewise, opponents of the bill there made little effort to organize their forces.

Activities centered on the senate which will vote on the bill, if passed by the house, probably Monday or Tuesday. Most of the members were deluged with messages, in contrast to the house, and leaders were busy conducting polls.

Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas, in charge of the bill in the senate, declared, however, that the necessary two-thirds majority had been untouched. There were intimations from other proponents that they expected a close vote, with the measure receiving a possible majority of two.

While administration spokesmen characterized the president's message as effective, the situation, they said, had been fairly well crystallized for some time in view of the expected veto. There was little evidence of a concerted movement among opponents of the bill in the senate to line up support for the presidential action. Most of the republican leaders, including Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, the floor leader, declared during debate on the measure that they would vote to override a veto. Other republicans who made similar declarations were Senators Watson, of Indiana, and Willis, of Ohio.

Senator Smoot, of Utah, one of the administration leaders who has opposed the bill, has been almost constantly occupied with conference meetings on the revenue bill and said today he would have no time to organize the opposition forces.

The bill passed the senate by a vote of 67 to 17.

While numerous messages have been received from advocates of the bill, members also heard from opponents. Julius H. Barnes, president of the chamber of commerce of the United States, and the ex-service men's anti-bonus league were among these.

Little debate is anticipated tomorrow in the house where the vote on original passage of the bill was 333 to 54.

In a letter addressed today to each member of congress John Thomas Taylor, the chairman of the national legislative committee of the American Legion today declared "The service men and women look with confidence for you to keep the faith and override the veto."

In passing the bill, he said, congress had determined its attitude "upon the inherent justice of the principle of the measure."

"It was known then what the measure would cost," and how the cost must be met. It is upon these questions—cost and principle—that the president bases his opposition, although he brings no information to the congress which it did not possess when it voted overwhelmingly in favor of the measure twice during the past month."

Declaring arguments that the cost of the bill "will wreck the nations finances" had been discarded, Mr. Taylor alluded then to President Coolidge's declaration in his veto message that the bill would destroy our theory of patriotism."

"The veteran asks no reward for his patriotism" the letter continued. "That is his pride, for the hardships, dangers and sufferings he endured have already been paid for in his knowledge for all time, that in the hour of his country's need he was called and not found wanting.

"In this statement, Mr. Coolidge loses sight of the fact that the adjusted compensation measure is not pay for patriotism, but is designed to rectify the economic handicap which veterans and their families suffered while fighting and have not yet overcome.

"His loss was not caused alone by the less than living wage which the soldier and his family received. It was magnified many times by the enormous increase in the cost of basic necessities, which brought debt on the soldiers' dependents in order to live.

"War-time pay was readjusted in all employes of labor, and hundreds of millions were spent in this. The government recognized the railroads, and increased their war compensation by $1,636,000,000; and the government recognized the war contractors, who had already salted down billions, by increasing their war compensation $706,000,000.

"In his message the president adheres to the old theory, since discarded by the awakened conscience of America, that in addition to bearing all the hardships and dangers of battle, the soldier alone, for his privilege must be denied the right of adequate maintenance for his family in war time. That although it is just to compensate all others in full for their financial losses due to war, the soldier must be made the single exception to thes. And that while cheerfully compensating in full the losses that others sustained the soldier must be denounced as unpatriotic, because he shows his empty larder, and says, while I was fighting and you were profiting, my family suffered poverty which has not yet been overcome.'

"The heart of America long ago abandoned the theory of patriotism which the president champions. The congress and the people have decided that the soldier alone shall not be discriminated against, to the further financial gain of a nation teeming with prosperity.

"In every instance where the American people have registered their will directly upon this question, they have voted overwhelmingly in favor of it. In twenty-two states the people have voted for state compensation, and the majorities have been as high as 8 to 1. All national polls taken on the question, show the people favor it overwhelmingly.

"Override this veto and you will write upon the statute books of America, for all time, a law which will make operative the condition which has grown in the conscience of the nation. And that is, that dollars are no more sacred than human life—and that if compensation is to be paid for the use of one in [illegible] stress, then compensation [illegible] also."

The greatest decrease in employment, 11.4 per cent, was shown in the men's clothing industry.

AGAINST LODGE'S PROPOSAL FOR A NEW WORLD COURT

Washington, May 16—The Federal Council of Churches through its commission on international justice tonight came out against Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's recent proposal for a new world court.

In an open letter entitled: "An appeal to the United States Senate," the commission declared the plan would be unacceptable to the principal nations having membership in the present world court; would "make it still more difficult" for the United States to resume the leadership for peace; and would in any case require several years of accomplishment.

Again asking for action on the recommendation of Presidents Harding and Coolidge for participation in the present court, the appeal said:

"Millions of Americans, we believe, would be deeply disappointed and feel humiliated and thwarted if such a proposal as that presented by Senator Lodge were adopted by the senate. The proposal undoubtedly before the senate and tends to block any real participation by the United States in the efforts of many nations to organize the world for peace."

WILLIMANTIC

Three decrees were granted at the session of the Windham county superior court held in this city Friday. Of ten four uncontested divorce cases were heard. Elise Bibeault Fletcher vs. Putnam sought a separation from Hon Fletcher, on the grounds of adultery. This matter was held up for the time being. Depositions from parties in Vermont in relation to the part of the defendant in that state in the case were produced by the plaintiff's attorney, E. C. Morse of Putnam.

John Albin Thorin of Windham was granted a decree from Emma Caroline Edmquist Thorin of Munson, Mass., the grounds being desertion. The couple lived in Monson and several years ago the plaintiff secured a position in Palmer, Mass., but his wife refused to go there to live with him. Thorin came home one night and his wife was missing. This was in 1911 and his wife never returned to him. Thorin worked for five years in Palmer and then came to Connecticut. He has resided in Willimantic for several years. August J. Carlson of this city, in whom Thorin has lived for some time, testified in favor of the plaintiff. John August Peterson of Monson testified to knowing both of the principals and that they had not lived together for several years.

The case of Grace E. Brown, of Putnam, versus Clayton A. Brown, in which the defendant was charged with intolerable cruelty, was brought by the wife who sought a divorce on the grounds of adultery. No next taken up. Several witnesses testified to the habits of the husband, who now lives in California. The decree was granted and plaintiff was given the custody of her twelve year old daughter.

On the grounds of habitual intemperance, Muriel Martin, of New London, was granted a decree of separation from George A. Martin, a musician. She was also privileged by the court to resume her maiden name, Muriel Darrow.

The application of Samuel Porcaro, of this city, for a change of his name to Samuel Storo Porcaro, chiefly for business purposes was heard. Attorney Hinsdale Bill appearing for the applicant. The change to name was granted.

Cases were assigned as follows: Monday, May 26. Mabel Wiley Kelley vs. Lewis Burney Kelley and Carl A. Bahnke vs Harriet J. Tahnke, both contested divorce cases. Wednesday, May 21. It was also expected to lodge a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor against the man. Ansderger was taken to the local police station and locked up for the night.

Some two hundred members and guests attended the Fifth annual convention of District No. 1 of the Pythian Sisters in Odd Fellows' Hall, Friday afternoon and evening. The afternoon session opened at 4 o'clock with instructions in various phases of lodge work. A social hour preceded an excellent supper served at 6.30 o'clock in charge of a committee comprising Mrs. Sadie Norton, Bessie Picknell and Eva Adams. As the date also marked the regular meeting night of the local organization, business was carried out and this was followed by convention work on a large class of candidates. The work of the officers was in part done by the local Puritan Temple, No. 2 and the floor work was in charge of the local degree team, captained by Mrs. J. N. Gilman.

Distinguished guests seated in honorary chairs were: Grand Chief, Sister Snyder of Hartford; Grand Senior Lena Gates of this city; and Past Grand Chiefs Mrs. J. N. Gilman and Mrs. Eva Adams of this city, Sadie Nutland of Rockville, Lenore Atwell of Middletown, Etta Berry and Elizabeth Maxwell of Westerly, R. I., and Mima Jeffrey of New London. George Wright of Hartford, grand keeper of records and seals of the Knights of Pythias was also in attendance. Guests came from Norwich, New London, Mystic, Rockville, Westerly, Hartford and other towns in eastern Connecticut. The activities of the day were in charge of District Deputy Mrs Eva Adams of Puritan Temple.

While visiting at the home of Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer Stanton L. Briggs, in this city, Thursday night, Deputy Sheriff George Huskie of Lebanon noticed a Buick machine driven by a man who appeared intoxicated. The officers started after the man in another car and finally succeeded in overhauling him in Village Hill. The driver proved to be Robert Ausberger of Village Hill. He was placed under arrest by Sheriff Hoxie on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and when a pink bottle of moonshine was found in the machine, an additional charge of possession of liquor was lodged against him. On these two charges Ausberger was fined $50 and costs by Justice of the Peace William P. Curry Thursday night. Grand Juror Elmer Lord prosecuted the case. The man was also wanted on another charge, of having robbed a Lebanon resident of $50 but due to the lack of proper evidence that charge was pooled by Justice Curry.

John Yuschalk of Willimantic, driver of one of the Providence Dairy Milk trucks will be brought before Justice of the Peace Curry of the Lebanon town court today (Saturday) on a charge of reckless driving. It is alleged that Yuschalk allowed the heavy truck to coast at the rate of 50 miles an hour down a steep hill near the creamery in Lebanon. Several complaints have been received by Sheriff Hoxie from pedestrians and motorists who claim that the man habitually allowed the truck to coast down the hill.

HUSBAND FREED, WIFE FINED, IN COLCHESTER LIQUOR CASE

Willimantic, May 16—Isadore and Ida Mintz of Pleasant street, Colchester, whose place of business was successfully raided last Saturday by Constable John Ryan of that town and Federal Officers Congdon, Avery, Briggs and Fitts and County Detective Jackson, were tried before Justice of the Peace Fred E. Baker, Friday afternoon charged with violation of the liquor law.

The case against Isadore Mintz was nolled on payment of costs, but Ida Mintz was fined $100 and costs and placed on probation for a period of six months, during which time she will report weekly to Constable Ryan. Three additional homes in Colchester which have been under suspicion for some time were raided by the officers Thursday night but nothing of an incriminating nature was found by the officers.

Short Paragraphs

Two cases of scarlet fever were reported frmo Willimantic according to the weekly morbidity report of the state department of health for the week ending May 10.

Motorists who habitually make trips between Willimantic and Norwich are beginning to appreciate the worth of a slight springle of sand and tar on highways. After being a rough and tumble trip for several months the ride is now a fairly pleasant one. The only stretch of road which remains rough is from Williams Crossing to this city.

Charles Henry Bishop, who is serving a life sentence in state prison has again petitioned for pardon. Bishop's crime was the murder of Mrs. Carolie Williams, who lived with her husband on what is now "Knot Hill Farm" on the river road. He had been taken by Mr. and Mrs. Williams from a home in Massachusetts. The crime, which was a very brutal one, created a good deal of sensation in Stafford Springs at the time. Mrs. Williams was washing dishes at the sink in her kitchen when Bishop crept up behind her and hit her on the head with a club, throwing her on the floor. He then took a butcher knife and cut her throat after which he broke open a trunk with an ax and stole a sum of money. Bishop at first denied that he knew anything of the murder, but finally broke down and confessed. He was indicted on the 19th birthday for murder in the first degree, and after the case had been on trial in the superior court for two weeks he changed his plea to guilty to second degree murder. This was accepted by the court and Bishop was immediately sentenced to states prison for life by Judge Robinson who was on the bench at that session of court.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Four days starting tomorrow night matinee daily thereafter, one of the year's best pictures Black Oxen.

More than ordinary interest is aroused by the announcement that the management of the Palace theatre has contracted to play Frank Lloyd's Black Oxen, a First National Picture featuring Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle, starting tomorrow night for four days. For this photoplay is the screen version of Gertrude Atherton's novel which became the best selling novel of 1923.

Miss Griffith, one of the screen's most beautiful and talented stars, is seen as Madame Zatlanny, who, rejuvenated by a glandular treatment, finds her true love in the autumn of life, and Mr. Tearle plays Clavering, who, although active in social circles for many years, finds in the charming Zatlanny his ideal, and whose devotion is unhampered by the discovery of his sweetheart's true age. Clara Bow, a newcomer to the screen essays the part of the flapperish Janet Oglethorpe, a debutante with modern ideas as to her own behavior and her prospective husband.

Thomas Ricketts is seen as Charles Dinwiddie, an old sweetheart of Zatlanny's, who gallantly steps aside to aid Clavering in his suit for her hand. Tom Guise is cast as Judge Trent, Claire MacDowell, as Agnes Trevor, a maiden-lady whose life has been devoid of romance and felt that Zatlanny's extraordinary transformation might serve as a guide to her own happiness, Clarissa Selwynne portrays Gora Dwight, authoress, Alan Hale plays the dual character of Prince Hohenhauer and Lincoln Stedman is seen as Donnie Ferren, whom fortune blessed with an inheritance and plenty of time to spend it in.

Black Oxen is in eight reels and will be presented with special music and appropriate short features.

Broadway Theatre.

Glenn Hunter, the famous young stage star, made his debut as a star in Paramount pictures under the most favorable auspices in "West of the Water Tower" at the Broadway theater for four days starting Sunday. Both the star and picture caught on finely, the result being screen entertainment which will be talked about for many a day as the best seen here in two years.

The story of "West of the Water Tower" was written by Homer Croy. The novel appeared early this year and scored a literary sensation. It is a story which deals with small town folk in a masterly manner. Mr. Hunter, as Guy Plummer, son of a rigidly orthodox minister portrayed by Ernest Torrence, meets and loves Bee Chew, played by May McAvoy, daughter of a wealthy atheist, the latter role being in the capable hands of George Fawcett. The young couple are secretly wed and this incident provokes a near tragedy which has its influence on many lives. But happiness comes at last after a series of breath-taking sequences, all of which will thrill even the most blase picture fan.

The picture is one that will live long in the memory of all who see it. Zasu Pitts featured as the other girl in the story, is admirably as are also all in the cast. Paramount is to be felicitated upon the beauty and charm of this delightful photoplay.

Short subjects will include a comedy and News.

Next Week at United Congregational Church.

All teachers and officers of the church school are asked to report at the Community house at half past six on Monday evening, for the last of the season's monthly suppers and meetings.

James L. Case has sold for Joseph R. Yerrington, the property No. 22 Platt avenue to Michael and Catherine Sullivan, who will occupy the same for a home.

Mr. Case has also transferred the property No. 83 Spring street, consisting of a cottage house, for Michael and Catherine Sullivan, to Louis and Paraska Kudravetz.

STUDIED TOLLAND COUNTY HOME SCHOOL CONDITIONS

A study of the one room school conducted in the Tolland county Home was begun last year by the State Board of Education. This year it has been extended and detailed reports have been sent to the County Commissioners, Board of Management, Superintendent and teacher, together with an invitation to attend a conference for the purpose of discussing the findings and suggesting plans for improving the work. On the physical side, each child was examined for vision and Malnutrition. On the mental side all children above the first grade were given a group intelligence test last year, while this year another group intelligence test was given to children above the second grade, and those in grades one and two were given individual tests. The efficiency of instruction in reading, arithmetic, spelling and other school subjects was measured by the use of standard achievement tests.

The result may be very briefly summarized as following:

I. Physical condition. 1. Vision—34 children were examined, of whom 8 were reported as needing glasses which have since been provided. 2. Malnutrition—35 per cent. of the children in the school registered were under weight. Steps were immediately taken to improve the condition. It should be understood that many public schools show a percentage of underweight almost as high as this, though institution children usually make a better showing.

II. Mental condition. 1. Feebleminded—only one child can be definitely classified here, though five others may belong in this group. 2. Dull—four to ten children may be classified here. All children in these two groups have been kept in the first or second grade, where they properly belong. 3. Normal—the 11 children in the grades above the second are normal though two or possible three are dull while at least three are above normal.

III. Instruction. 1. Reading, history facts, literature facts, spelling and handwriting are fairly satisfactory except in the case of the brighter pupils who are working far below the level of their ability.

During the past year about forty new text books have been purchased. The supply is still inadequate. The most urgent need is suitable provision for the bright children in the upper grades who are capable of doing superior work and who should have high school advantages.

Similar studies are in progress in the other County Homes.
